no voter who would like to see Bryan there can contemplate the spectacle of J. P. Morgan's former attorney ruling the country without anger and dismay. It is hardly surprising that the New York World, leading Democratic organ, should describe the convention as "the most incompetent in the history of the party," or that the New York American should declare that, "The proud Democratic party proposes to substitute the House of Morgan for the White House" and declare that by its selections "the Democrats, decided to commit political suicide."

John Sharp Williams, once brilliant leader of the Democracy in the House and Senate, pathetically addressing his Democratic colleagues said, "The poor, dear old foolish Democratic party is going through the same game that she can generally he trusted to go through soon after she gets in power. That is the Democratic party, true enough. That is its history. That is what led Speaker Reed to say in 1894-95, 'You can't last long because you are not accustomed to governing anybody or anything; you cannot govern the country because you cannot govern yourselves. You are just incompetent.' " Tom Reed is dead and John Sharp Williams has retired from the senate, but the words of the great Republican and the great Democrat were never more vividly illustrated than during the recent Democratic convention.

"Any lawyer who surrenders his independence or shades his duty by trimming his professional course to fit the gusts of popular opinion, in my judgment not only dishonors himself but disparages and degrades the great profession to which he should be proud to belong." This was the statement of John W. Davis when his political friends told him he should throw J. P. Morgan & Co. overboard in the interest of his political future and when Wm. G. McAdoo had just made a spectacle of himself by quitting his client, E. L. Doheny the instant the latter got into trouble. McAdoo was willing to accept generous fees with his hand behind his back and behind closed doors. Davis openly accepted his fees and stood frankly by his client. McAdoo is now a defeated and discredited politician, hating all men and sulking in his room. Davis is his party's nominee for the highest office in the land—might even stand a chance of election if "the poor, dear foolish old Democracy" had not hung a mill-stone around his neck in the person of "the little brother of the Peerless Leader."

"La Follette is Socialist in everything but name." So announces Victor Berger, Socialist member of congress, in an appeal for support for the Wisconsin aspirant. "He has been so for twenty years," continues Berger. "He hasn't voted the Republican ticket since 1904. There is no reason why he can't be our (the Socialist) candidate." And Victor knows what he's talking about.

There has been no politics in Washington this week. Instead, the national capital has been torn with anxiety, which turned to grief and profound sympathy for the President and Mrs. Coolidge when, after their vigil at the bedside of their younger son, they were stricken with the greatest grief that can pierce a father's and a mother's heart—and greater grief no man knows. None could observe the infinite sorrow of the devoted wife and mother without a heartache. In the face of their sorrow none has had the heart to talk politics or to disturb the president with anything other than those affairs of state from which no president can escape for even one brief moment. Even as he turned from the little grave in the humble cemetery at Northampton where he had laid his boy, Mr. Coolidge's secretary was compelled to hand him a telegram on an important government matter.

AT THE MOVIES

PALACE THEATRE

A more famous and higher priced cast than the one playing the roles of "The Gold Diggers," Warner Brothers' adaptation of David Belasco's play of the same name would be hard to find. The cast includes Hope Hampton, Windham Standing, Louise Fazenda, Gertrude Short, Alec Francis, Ted Prouty, Arita Gillman, Peggy Brown, Margaret Seldon, Johnny Harron, Ann Cornwall, Edna Tichenor, Frances Ross, Marie Prade and Louise Beaudet. Harry Beaumont directed. "The Gold Diggers" starts at the Palace Theatre Monday.

Rintintin, the police dog who has won many championships, and who is reckoned the most intelligent dog alive, appears in "Where the North Begins," the Warner Brothers classic of the screen, which will play at the Palace Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Rintintin, as the wolf-dog who leaves the pack and joins fortune with a wounded man, is the pivot around which revolves all the action of this strong picture of far-north life.

Melodrama Coming Back on Screen

Right in the middle of the cinema ring is Emmett Flynn's sombrero. He has declared that melodrama is coming into its own, and to back up his words with action, he filmed Owen Davis' old thriller, "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," the picture coming next Saturday and Sunday to coming next Saturday and Sunday.

One reason that the picture is auspicious is that it will bring a new Claire Windsor to the screen, a Claire Windsor who, besides being thrillingly beautiful, must also be beautifully thrilling.

Filmed on the Riviera

The French Riviera, one of the most picturesque and elaborately gardened spots in the world is the setting for most of Rex Beach's story, "Recoil," which J. Parker Read, Jr. has produced for Goldwyn and which will be the attraction at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday. Because it was decided that "Recoil" had the dramatic requirements to be one of the best pictures ever filmed if given the proper production, Mr. Read, in order to give it such production, sent the entire company, headed by T. Hayes Hunter, the director, over to the actual Riviera to take many of the scenes.

This picture will be run the second day (Friday) at the Majestic Theatre.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Harry Myers, noted for his never-to-be-forgotten portrayal of the Yankee in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" has an equally droll part in "The Printer's Devil," Wesley Barry's latest picture, coming to the Majestic Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

Others supporting Wesley in this Warner Brothers' classic of the screen are Katherine McGuire, Louis King, George Pearce, Ray Cnnon, Mary Halter and Harry Rottenberg.

Advantages to Farmers in Living on Good Road

Living on a good highway with quick transportation the farmer is enabled to enter into the plans for the benefit of his village and of his community, to take part in the town meetings, to have a voice in the affairs of his district, to be helpful to his neighbors, to attend divine services on the Sabbath, to go to lectures, university extension courses and to aid in the organizations of those agencies that are helpful to the community and this meeting with his neighbors aids in the forming of co-operative associations that give him better marketing facilities and better prices for his products.

In the matter of the estate of Luke Hallett, deceased.

Joseph J. Hallett having filed in said court his petition praying that said court adjudicate and determine who were at the time of his death the legal heirs of said deceased and entitled to inherit the real estate of which said deceased died seized.

It is ordered, that the 13th day of August, A. D. 1924, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition.

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

A Parable

One time there was a fellow who thought himself a pretty good business man.

He went out a fishin' one day and to get out of a hard rain crawled in a hollow log. The rain made the log swell so he couldn't get out. He thought he was a goner and got to thinking about his past.

Says he to himself—"Here I am forty-five years old. Had lots of chances in my day and let most of them get away. Haven't a penny's life insurance—no savings account—don't even own my home."

Well sir, don't you know that feller kept a thinking and the more he thought the smaller he felt—until at last he crawled out of the little end of the log and went home a different man!

Ellsworth Section

Alfred Mohla, of Traverse City, was in town on business one day last week.

B. P. Wilson, of Central Lake, was an Ellsworth caller on Tuesday of this week.

Miss Ruth Chelles left on Wednesday for Charlevoix, where she has a position for the summer.

J. E. and Mrs. William Adams, of Grand Rapids, are spending a few days with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dean, of Flint, are spending a few days with friends here and at East Jordan.

E. J. Chelles arrived from Detroit on Friday and is busy looking after affairs at his farm west of town.

George Hoogewerf, who has been working in Detroit for the past year, is at home for an indefinite stay.

Quite a number from here plan to attend the mission festival at the Peckles Grove, on Wednesday, July 30th.

All business places will close at noon on Wednesday, July 30th, on account of the mission festival at the H. S. Peckles picnic grounds.

Stark Brothers have finished their special meetings at East Jordan and are conducting the camp meeting at the Boyne City camp grounds this week.

Attorney Geo. Nicholls, of Ionia, has been spending the past week at Big Fish Inn and attending to business affairs in connection with his farm northeast of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan McPhee and son, and Mark Dean, of Detroit, arrived on Sunday for a two week's visit at the home of Mrs. McPhee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Deline.

Rev. E. E. Clark, of Pellston, is spending the week with friends in and around Ellsworth and will preach at the Methodist church on Sunday evening, July 27th. Don't fail to hear him.

Mrs. Francis Patterson, of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Patterson and son, Don Jr., of Ironwood, Mich., and Mrs. Anna Tallon, of Winnipeg, Canada, arrived on Sunday for a ten day's visit at the W. G. Patterson home.

Last week's band concert was well rendered and a goodly number of people were on the streets. A number of people from Charlevoix, Norwood and East Jordan were noticed among the crowd. The band is almost certain of landing a job of playing at the Traverse City fair, probably for Thursday.

A movement is under way by the Dutch Reformed denomination to acquire the M. E. church here, either by lease or purchase, and convert it into a Reformed church with English speaking. The movement is meeting with some approval and some opposition and what the outcome will be is still undecided.

ANTRIM CITY
Alfred Brooks worked for Will Knight last week.

Albert Harwood was a visitor at the Stott home Sunday.

Mrs. Brooks was a visitor at the Dennis home Sunday evening.

Mr. Stott finished making hay at the Baker home Friday afternoon.

Cecil Rice was a visitor at the Brooks home Thursday and Friday.

Roy Rushton, the Rawleigh retailer, was in this vicinity again on Monday.

Mrs. Stott and daughter, Bernice and Viola, celebrated Bernice Stott's 9th birthday, July 16, at the Brooks home.

ROCK ELM
(Too late for last week)

Several in this neighborhood have met with quite heavy losses of both chickens and turkeys from some night prowler, probably a fox.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shepherd made the full trip with the County Agent and cow tester on Monday. The first meeting was held at Mr. Shepherd's farm.

The annual school meeting of this district was held at the grange hall on Monday evening. The officers were all in their places. The director's report was read and accepted. H. E. Hutton was re-elected director on the first ballot. There were seven applications for tuition and a motion carried to raise the tuition money and also eight hundred dollars for general fund purposes. It was also voted to have an eight-month school. By vote of those present the treasurer was instructed to deposit the district funds in the State Bank of East Jordan. The meeting was adjourned to meet at the grange hall on the second Monday in July, 1925.

The month of June hangs up a new production record in the North Antrim County Cow Testing Association. Good weather and pasture conditions are only partly responsible for the large returns from cows. The results of culling the herds comes to the front at this time.

The association's report per cow shows a decided increase which, without a doubt, is due to elimination of over 100 unprofitable cows in the last eleven months. Many members also understand feeding much better which also aids in keeping up production.

Anthony Shook's grade cow, Anna, purchased for $10.00 at an auction sale, has made $112.18 above cost of feed in her new home in eight months on test. Her former owner certainly did not know her actual value or she would hardly have sold at that figure. Such things are discovered only in a cow testing association.

In the month of June, 273 cows were on test who averaged 810 lbs. of milk and 32.8 lbs. of butterfat per cow, with an average test of 4.05. The average return above cost of feed was $10.20, and cream sold at 38 cents a pound. Feed costs per cow this month were: pasture, $1.32; roughage, (pasture included) $1.40; grain, 90 cents; total cost of feed, being $2.30. This is the lowest point that feed cost has reached in the association year. A vast amount of difference can be noticed between the highest cost per month, month of February, $4.36 and $2.30 per cow for the last month.

Dollar returned for dollar spent was $5.40. Butterfat cost less than 8 cents a pound and milk production cost of 27 cents per cwt. The value of product per cow was $12.50.

P. H. Hemstreet's P. B. Holstein, "Beauty," leads the milk production by a wide margin with 1707 lbs. milk for June and 1717 lbs. milk in May. In the association 12 cows qualified in the 1250 lb. milk class, while 52 cows made over 1000 lbs. of milk. The butterfat classes also are well represented, with 13 cows making over 50 lbs. butterfat and 52 cows making over 40 lbs. of butterfat. Twelve men are keeping daily milk records during the busy part of the season, and 20 members are realizing profits by the very commendable practice of feeding grain to cattle when in pasture. Six separators were tested and found in good condition. Nine new cows were put on test. Heifers head the list in number of new cows entered.

Henry Black leads in net return per cow with $13.53 per cow. Mr. Black also had high cow this month. W. P. Smith comes a close second for net return per cow with $13.35. Many others range over $12.00 per cow.

Geo. Dreth has high herd in butterfat and milk production with eight cows whose average test was 3.9, 42.22 lbs. butterfat, 1001 lbs. milk, and $12.81 net return above cost of feed. John Hensip came a close second with 41.25 lbs. butterfat, 966 lbs. milk, and $12.67 net return per cow and an average test of 4.27 per cent. Hitchcock Stock Farms placed next with 16 cows who made 39.25 lbs. butterfat, 950 lbs. milk and a net return of $11.78 per cow. The average test for this herd was 4.11 per cent. It is well to note that these men with high herds are liberal feeders of grain.

LACK OF MINERALS IS CAUSE OF LOSS

The greatest profit in pork production comes from insuring the most rapid growth from the time the pigs are born. In this growth, bone development is of equal importance with the putting on of flesh, says L. A. Maynard of the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca.

If the feed does not contain the essentials for making the proper bone, one result is a slower growth at a greater feed cost. Another result may be crippled hogs, due to the inability of the poorly nourished bony frame work to support the weight of flesh. Sometimes this trouble occurs in the young growing pigs; sometimes in the sow at farrowing time. At the state college at Cornell university, it is found that enough of the right minerals is the best way of insuring against cripples.

Pigs that eat a lot of tankage or fish meal do not suffer from a lack of minerals. On the other hand, rations made up largely of grains, garbage, and rations containing only limited amounts of bone-building minerals, lime and phosphorus. The following mixture will supply the needed minerals. Thirty parts of steam bone meal, 30 pounds of ground limestone, 20 pounds of salt, and 20 pounds of tankage.

The tankage favors the mixture so that it is readily eaten in the self-feeder.

The inclusion of alfalfa in the ration also helps in developing the right kind of bone. Brood sows will eat it loose from a rack, but for young pigs it should be chopped and mixed as 5 per cent of the grain mixture.

Lambs Bring More Money if Docked and Castrated

Ram lambs should be castrated when between one and four weeks of age. All lambs should be docked when they are one or two weeks old. Either docking irons or a sharp knife may be used for docking. The tail should be removed about one-half or three-quarters of an inch from the body. When docking irons are used the wound is sealed by the hot iron and this prevents bleeding.

When ram lambs are sent to market they are penalized severely, usually from two to four dollars per head. They do not feed out as well as a wether lamb and if light in weight cannot be sold as a feeder.

Live Stock Notes

Give the brood sow some tankage. It increases the size and hardness of the litter.

This is the time of year to take out feed insurance for live stock by planting those forage crops.

When prices of all live stock are low, including pure breeds, it is a good time to replace scrubs with pure breeds.

A little tankage or skim milk fed in the right proportion to corn will work wonders in supplying foods which hogs need.

When the pigs are a week or ten days old, they should be allowed access to a pasture of some sort if at all possible.

There is nothing to be gained by stalling on the feed, and letting the brood sow reduce herself to a shadow as many are inclined to do.

If necessary give the pigs a dose of worm medicine a week or two after weaning. Keep them well bedded, especially in cold weather, and provide well-ventilating stables.

CARL HAGENBECK- WALLACE CIRCUS

Booked to Show in Petoskey on Monday, August 4

Three herds of performing elephants, or exactly 75,567 pounds of pachyderms are featured with the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, which comes to Petoskey for afternoon and night performances and grand free street parade at 11 o'clock in the morning on Monday, August 4.

During the winter months the elephants were taught the latest dances by their trainers, Bert Noyes and Miss Alma Wood, and in "Tribby," a little elephant of but 4900 pounds, Miss Wood claims to have the champion shimmy dancer of the white tops. "Tribby" is able to follow the music of Professor Don Montgomery's band, just like a human, and is said to be more proficient in the terpsichorean art, than many of us plain, everyday folks.

Trainer Noyes had a difficult task in breaking in an act in which "Lovena," a prize tiger rides on the back of "Rosie," as these two animals are natural enemies, and their enmity goes back thousands of years. Six months training, twice daily, was necessary before the elephant would allow the tiger to mount on her back, and even now she is not pleased about having the cat animal ride around the steel arena in a howdah.

The three herds of elephants are not only worked in the rings, but they must assist in putting up the big top, and also aid in getting the heavy wagons, especially the cook house, electric light plant, stake and chain, pole and canvass, and the other heavy loads on and off the lot. Without the elephant it would be a difficult task to move a big circus, such as the Hagenbeck-Wallace, in the rainy weather, as one or two of these big land animals, are able to move a wagon, hub-deep in mud, when sixteen horses would be unable to pull it an inch.

Both species of elephants, Asiatic and African, are carried by the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, and all of them appear in the street parade, which is more than a mile in length.

Dance every night at Booth's pavilion, Harbor Springs. Music by Henry Thies' Detroiters, a ten piece orchestra. Best in the north. 3,000 feet of floor over the lake.—Adv. 30-t2 pd.

MRS. LOUISE A. ULRICH IS DEAD

Passed Away Last Wednesday at Wyandotte, Mich.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Louise A. Ulrich was held from her home on Antrim street last Saturday, the remains having been brought here from the home of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bettles, of Wyandotte, where death occurred on July 16th, following confinement to her bed with paralysis since May 30th last. Mrs. Ulrich had been a sufferer from partial paralysis for the past seventeen years and took a turn for the worse about two years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Bettles and their three children, Frances, Carl and Floyd Richard, accompanied the remains to this city.

Louise Heise was born in Germany about sixty-five years ago. She was married in Germany to Carl C. Ulrich and there two children were born to her, who died in infancy. She came to this country with her husband some 46 years ago, settling in St. Joseph, Mich., where they lived for about four years before coming to Charlevoix. She has been a resident of this city for the past 42 years.

Mrs. Ulrich is survived by two children, Charles C. of this city and Mrs. Elizabeth L. Bettles of Wyandotte, Mich. One brother, William Heise, is a resident of this city. There are two other brothers and three sisters living at Eberswald, near Berlin, Germany.

The funeral was held July 19th, with interment at Brookside, Rev. H. R. E. Quant of the M. E. church officiating.

Dance every night at Booth's pavilion, Harbor Springs. Music by Henry Thies' Detroiters, a ten piece orchestra. Best in the north. 3,000 feet of floor over the lake.—Adv. 30-t2 pd.

SOUTH SIDE SUFFERS FROM THUNDERBOLTS

Lightning Plays Queer Pranks at Parker Home—School House and Two Other Places Struck

The storm of last Thursday completely demolished the chimney of the Parker home on State street and did other damage. The bolt struck at five o'clock, hurling brick as far as 25 feet from the house. It clipped a piece of studding and then, oddly enough, shattered six out of seven large double-strength windows stored on the second floor, but left the middle sash unbroken. They were standing on edge against the wall.

The lightning then crossed the house, cut an irregular gash in the wall paper of the living room below and wrecked the lights. Luckily, the entire family escaped injury. Mr. Parker having just returned to the bedroom in the north wing.

"From the very first flash we had a premonition of great danger," said Parker. "Lightning was striking all around, apparently, and then came a terrific explosion and a blinding flash. We expected to see the house fall or burn. Sulphur fumes filled the room at once, so I went upstairs. The chimney bricks were smoking."

House and contents were covered by insurance, issued by the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Company, who immediately began to replace the chimney and make good all damages. Wood Brothers repaired the damage to the lights.

Lightning also struck the home of Ted Pearl on East Garfield street, demolishing the chimney top and tearing a small hole in the roof. The chimney on the Lincoln School across the street also suffered considerable damage and the residence of William Boak on Upright street was visited by the fury of the storm, lightning tearing shingles from the roof.

This is the most severe electrical disturbance that has occurred in this vicinity this summer and seems to have marked the change from cold weather to warm, as it has been unseasonably warm ever since. Must have been something unnatural about the cold spell we have all been complaining about to have wound up in so furious a fashion.

STATE GRANGE TO HOLD PICNIC SOON

Will Meet Near Bellaire on Saturday, August 23rd

Officials of the Michigan State Grange, extension dept. Region 2, whose headquarters are at Morley, Mich., have decided to hold their Tri-County picnic on the "Snowflake" camp ground, a few miles above Bellaire on the P. M. R. R., on Saturday, August 23rd.

State Master Cook and H. F. Baker of Cheboygan county will be the speakers. A good literary program, in charge of Sister T. E. Niles, of Mancelona, has also been prepared. There will be good music and a basket dinner. Send your best ball players for a game with a picked nine of another county.

HAROLD ECKINGER MARRIED IN FLINT

To Miss Thelma Kelly of Cincinnati, Last Saturday

Harold D. Eckinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Eckinger of this city, and Miss Thelma Kelly, of Cincinnati, Ohio, were married last Saturday, July 26th, at 4:30 p. m., at the home of Rev. H. G. Pearce, 620 Newall street, Flint, Mich. Mr. and Mrs. Seeley Pierce, of Flint, attended the bridal couple. The double ring ceremony was performed. R. F. MacArthur, of Flint, brother-in-law of the groom, was also present, as guest of honor.

As a coincidence, the Rev. Mr. Pearce happened to be the minister who baptized Mr. Eckinger in 1901 at Bay City.

The bride was dressed in white georgette and the bridesmaid in blue crepe de chene. Both carried bouquets of roses. Following the marriage ceremony, the wedding party repaired to the new home of the bride and groom at 742 Taylor street, Flint, where a wedding dinner was served, the couple leaving immediately afterwards on a honeymoon trip to Potter's Lake, where they spent the week end at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Rini Crandle, as the latter's guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Eckinger will be at home to their many friends in Charlevoix and Flint at 742 Taylor street, Flint. The Courier wishes for them a long life of happiness and prosperity.

BASEBALL TEAM IS REORGANIZED

SUNDAY'S LOSS TO BOYNE DE-CIDING FACTOR

New Team Will Play Pellston on North Side Grounds Next Sunday Afternoon

As a result of Sunday's loss to Boyne City, the local baseball team, which has lost some close games this season, will be completely reorganized. New players for several of the positions will be here for Sunday's game with Pellston and it is the intention of the base ball association to give Charlevoix a winner, even against such stiff opposition as is being furnished by our neighboring cities.

Miller, who will pitch against the locals for Pellston Sunday, has been offered a position with the Grand Rapids Mint League club. He is a wonderful pitcher and it is hoped that a large number of fans will turn out Sunday to see our new team go against him. Pellston has defeated Harbor Springs, Boyne City, East Jordan and Petoskey, on successive Sundays.

The game Sunday was a complete reversal of form over last week's game with Cheboygan. Charlevoix drove to Cheboygan and won against the team that had defeated East Jordan and it was expected that they would continue to win. However, this was not the case, as Boyne City, with the ancient Saffron and Foster as a battery, beat us 5 to 1, more through indifferent playing by Charlevoix than through their own ability. Both Saffron and Ebers pitched steady games, Boyne getting 5 hits to the locals 4.

Charlevoix has a hard schedule ahead, playing East Jordan, Traverse City, Cheboygan and Bay View and making a trip through the U. P. to Manistiquie, Gladstone and Escanaba during the first two weeks in August.

POMONA AND MARION CENTER TO MEET

Granges Will Hold Joint Session on Thursday, August 7th

Pomona Grange will meet with Marion Center at the hall of the latter on August 7, 1924. Although the entire program is not complete as yet, it is expected that Miss May L. Stewart, former school commissioner of Charlevoix county, will appear at the meeting.

Special music has been prepared for the occasion and in the evening special moving pictures will be shown. A large attendance is desired, as plans for a state grange will be made.

The Ladies of the Pilgrim Circle will hold a sale of rag rugs, aprons and baked goods, Saturday, August 16th. Prices announced later.—Adv. 31-13.

INTREPID, KAYOSHK II AND ARIEL ARE WINNERS IN PINE LAKE RACES

TENTH ANNUAL REGATTA CLOSURES WITH BANQUET TO VISITING YACHTSMEN AT HALLETT INN

A Chicago to Charlevoix Race of Smaller Craft Planned for 1925; Larger Vessels Continuing to Mackinac
To Race Back To This Port

The Tenth Annual Regatta of the Chicago and Charlevoix Yacht Clubs on Pine Lake, which commenced last Thursday closed Saturday, July 26th, and was followed by a banquet at the Hallett Inn, at which the visiting yacht owners and their officers were guests of the Charlevoix Yacht Club. Nineteen persons were served, five yachts being represented.

Ray Hamilton made a very able address of welcome, to which the visiting yachtsmen responded, voicing their appreciation of the many courtesies extended to them by the local organization and citizens of Charlevoix.

A suggestion was made during the evening that next year a race be promoted for the smaller craft from Chicago to Charlevoix and that the larger vessels, after finishing the usual course from Chicago to Mackinac, race from the latter port back to Charlevoix. In other words, all the vessels would start from Chicago at the same time, the small craft finishing here and the others continuing the race to Mackinac. If this can be arranged, it will bring from 30 to 35 boats into Charlevoix harbor at one time, to say nothing of the numerous motor boats and cruising yachts that generally follow the racers.

All of the visitors expressed themselves as delighted with Charlevoix and the reception they had been given here and left the banquet hall with mutual feelings of respect and friendship for their hosts.

The names of the yachts taking part in the Chicago Mackinac race that visited this harbor during the week of the races, together with those the owners and home ports, are as follows:

Intrepid, Donald F. Prather, Chicago.
Kayoskh II, George Fox, Chicago.
Siesta, Marvin Haskell, Chicago.
Trunnet, C. M. Peterson, Chicago.
Sari, Ben Carpenter, Chicago.

Ariel, Ogden T. McClurg, Chicago.
Virginia, J. A. Hadwiger, Chicago.
Gaviota, Mr. Langley, Chicago.
See Jay, Mr. Sturdy, Chicago.
Jackson Park, Dr. William F. Hewitt, Chicago.

Verona, Keller brothers, Chicago.
Nantant, Milton Myers, Chicago.
Vanadis, former owner, Gordon Scagrove, Chicago.

Mavourneen, Clarence, Harold and Norman Shaw, Boyne City.
Ranger, R. B. Brown, Milwaukee.
Dorello, J. C. Van Dyke, Milwaukee.

Josephine, Kenneth C. and Ray N. Hamilton, Milwaukee.
Volante, Dr. John E. Guy, Milwaukee.

Capsicum, W. C. and E. A. Lindemann, Milwaukee.
Sabomook, Howard F. Baxter, Grand Rapids.

Rogue, Richard Simmons, St. Louis and Harbor Springs.
Tiger, Mr. Smith, St. Louis and Harbor Springs.

Alemite, Mr. Steadman, Harbor Springs.

The above include nearly all the yachts taking part in the Chicago to Mackinac race. The Wendameen, owned by Kurt R. Beck, of Chicago, and one of the finest yachts in the fleet did not come in here, although she took part in the race. She was in the harbor last fall, however. The Siren didn't put in here, nor did the Chaparrone and Sunshine. The Dorinda and the Nabob were scheduled for the race but for some reason unknown to us didn't leave Chicago. The Virginia was the boat which the Manitou rammed in the harbor at Mackinac Island. She came into Charlevoix for repairs under tow of the U. S. S. C-419, government sub-chaser.

The results of Thursday's and Saturday's races, according to the official time keeper of the regatta are as follows:

First Prize or Bust

TOURNAMENT STARTS WITH BOYS CONTEST

Big Yearly Event at Bay View Open to All Comers

The Bay View tennis tournament gets under way July 28th when the boys' play begins. This followed closely July 31st by the tournament for women. The main interest however, centers in the men's tournament beginning August 4th.

All sections of this tournament are open to all amateurs that happen to be in this part of the country. Practically all resort towns will be represented as usual.

The prizes are really worth while in the three divisions. The winner of the men's singles secures a leg on the Thomas Gordon, Jr., cup, as well as permanent possession of a silver statuette of a tennis player in action. The runner up wins a silver cup. The same prizes are offered in the women's section with the exception of the leg on the Gordon cup. Winner and runner up in the boys' section win permanent possession of silver cups.

Bay View now has five of the finest courts in the state. These five courts are on the bay, at the dock. The two courts in the park on the ridge are no longer used for tournament play.

Those who desire to enter should address their applications to the director of athletics at Bay View. The boys' tournament is limited to those who are sixteen or under.

TO HOLD AN- NUAL MEETING

HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION WILL CONVENE AUGUST 6TH

Matters of Importance Affecting Future of the Institution To Be Considered

On the 6th of August there will be held the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Hospital Association.

On this date it is the desire of the officers and board of trustees that all those of the townspeople and summer visitors who are interested in the hospital and its work and are able to attend this meeting to do so. Reports covering the year's work will be submitted and other important matters for the coming year will be taken up. The meeting will probably be held in the council rooms, at the library building.

A visitors' day will be held on August 2nd and a special invitation is extended to all who are interested in hospital work and the progress made during the past year and since its beginning by the local institution, to come in and see what has been accomplished.

The members of the board are endeavoring to secure additional membership pledges for 1924-25 and any who have been overlooked by the solicitors are requested to turn their membership fees over to the treasurer, A. J. Usher, at the Courier office as soon as they can conveniently do so.

Tag Day is on August 9th and an opportunity will be offered at that time for the hospital's friends and supporters to rally to its assistance in a practical manner.

If there are any young women who would care to offer their services as Tag Day solicitors, they are asked to kindly communicate with Mrs. E. J. Edwards, at the Orchard Bay Farms, phone No. 7098-113, or Miss Addie Holley at the Gift Shop.

The members of the board of trustees, as well as the nursing and medical staff of the hospital and the advisory board feel that a great deal has been accomplished in the comparatively short time that the hospital has been in operation. They place the credit for the fine showing made with the people of Charlevoix, whose loyal, enthusiastic and able support has made its rapid development into a first-class institution possible. For this support they would express their sincere appreciation and bespeak the same cooperation for the fiscal year which is before us.

DISCOVERED A FACT ABOUT WATERMELONS

Archie Balch Now Knows That They Will Float

Archie Balch, popular Ellsworth boy employed at Loeb Farms, likes watermelons and girls.

He invested a dollar in a genuine, Georgia rattlesnake melon one evening last week and took a party out to the bench north of town.

Archie thought it would be a fine thing to have a cool melon, so he placed it in the water. After a while, he went to look for the melon and found that it was gone—apparently, had drifted away with the current. He told his story to the men at the farm and was listened to with the close attention that "melon stories" always receive.

"But two things worry me," laughed Archie in conclusion, "I wonder who found the melon and if it was a good one."

"I can settle your mind on both points," said Lyle Kowalske, with his most cheerful grin. "My brothers and I found it Sunday and it was voted the finest ever. How about a 50-50 split and the cost?"

"Not much," protested Archie. "Look at what I learned—that watermelons float. That's enough and the fact that it was enjoyed by my friends."

Political Announcement

I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for member of the House of Representatives for Charlevoix county at the coming Primary election to be held on September 9th, 1924.

I have had for many years more than usual interest in State Legislation and if nominated and elected will give the state and this district diligent effort and attention.

I will appreciate the support of the electors for the nomination. Dated Boyne City, July 9th, 1924. J. M. Harris.

Miss Florence Sprague will speak at the service at the Ironton church at 2:30 next Sunday afternoon. Miss Sprague has recently returned from a year's trip around the world. She visited the countries of the Orient and Near East and spent considerable time in the Balkan states. She will give intimate glimpses of life in these countries and will tell of some of her experiences, one of which was being entertained by the king of Romania. Her talk will be of interest to young as well as old. All are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Brown and Myron J. Brown motored to Petoskey, Sunday, July 20, and spent the day at Magnus State Park.

Political Announcement

To the Electors of Charlevoix County:

At the solicitation of many Republican friends and close business associates I have decided to allow my name to be brought forward as a candidate for Register of Deeds at the September 9, 1924, primary. I have received many unsolicited assurances of support. I have never before asked political favors, nor held public office. Am a practical farmer and have lived in the rural districts all my life. Have been a resident of Charlevoix county for over 22 years. For the past three years have been secretary of the County Agricultural Society. I believe I can meet the requirements and have the ability to do the work as register of deeds to the satisfaction of everyone. If nominated and elected I will give my entire time and attention to the duties of this office. Having entered the field, I solicit the support of all Republicans throughout the county. Frank F. Bird.—Adv. 29-1f.

Political Announcement

I respectfully submit to the Republican electors of Charlevoix county that I am a candidate for nomination at the September primary for the office of Register of Deeds.

POULTRY

PROVIDE DUCKLINGS WITH AMPLE SHADE

Shade must be provided for the ducklings. Many of the sudden deaths among ducklings are due solely to sunstroke. If there are no low growing bushes, and no shade of trees make shelters of burlap or of branches and keep the water there. Sun-baked water is bad; change the water often and keep it cool as possible.

After they are thirty-six hours old, ducklings should be fed five times daily at first. A government ration calls for a mixture of equal parts by measure of rolled oats and bread crumbs with 3 per cent of sharp sand mixed in the feed. The amount needed for one feed should be moistened and given near the drinking fountain so the ducklings can drink as they eat.

About the third day this feed is changed to equal parts of bread, rolled oats, bran and cornmeal; then after the seventh day to three parts of bran, one part each of low-grade wheat flour and of cornmeal, 10 per cent of green feed and 5 per cent of beef scrap, with about 3 per cent of sand or grit in all of the rations. All to be fed slightly damp.

The amount of beef scrap is gradually increased to 15 per cent by the end of the third week. Gradually increase the proportion of cornmeal and decrease the amount of bran until the ration becomes the fattening ration given below for those ducklings which are to be marketed. Those to be saved for breeding should be given the duckling ration with the increased beef scrap (15 per cent) but not fed the fattening ration. They should also be given a good range where grass and water are available. If confined to bare yards, considerable green feed and vegetables should be fed.

The ducklings to be marketed should be fattened for two weeks before killing, on a ration made of three parts by weight of cornmeal, two parts of low-grade flour or middlings, one part of bran, one-half part beef scrap, with 3 per cent grit and 10 per cent green food. Oyster shell, or ground bone is an addition to the mash.

Sudden Change of Feed Causes Pullet to Molt

Any sudden change in feeding or care of a flock of laying pullets is likely to induce a partial molt and check egg production. For this reason, any needed changes should be made gradually. If the kind of feed is to be changed, gradually substitute the new for the old, not immediately discontinuing one thing to give another of a different kind. Do not change suddenly from wet to dry, or dry to wet mash, or make great changes in the amount of meat scrap fed. It is of course necessary that changes should be made in the management of a flock at times, but avoid the shock to what appears to be a very susceptible nervous system of hens that ensues from quick changes. I know of no way of helping a flock through its molt, other than by good care and feeding, says a writer in the Rural New Yorker. Do not change the accustomed ration, with the idea of helping the molt along, providing that you were feeding a suitable laying ration before the molt began.

Feeding During Summer Months Very Important

Pullets are not expected to start laying while they are still taking on growth, and for the person who is anxious to get them laying, the summer months of feeding are important. Dual purpose types, such as the Plymouth Rocks or Rhode Island Reds, will give little worry of maturing too early. The average early-hatched chick should be carefully fed, be ready for laying early in November.

Since pullets will not lay while they are growing rapidly, further development can be checked oftentimes by increasing the feeds which produce fat, such as corn. At the same time feeds which stimulate the egg-laying organs may be used, such as animal food. This is a method of feeding which is intended for pullets to be used as layers; it would be objectionable if the birds were intended for the next season's breeding pen.

Color of Young Chicks

Chicks from eggs of the black breeds such as Black Langshans, Black Cochins, etc., often hatch out white chicks, but are none the less pure for all that, and will grow into perfectly black fowls. Chicks from the white breeds, again, such as White Plymouth Rocks, White Orpingtons and White Wyndotters will hatch out dark or yellow chicks. But they will outgrow that and become perfectly white after they have shed. Rocks rarely show any barring at first.

Keep Hen Contented

Farm land that has been overworked can be fertilized and made productive again, but the poor old hen cannot be rejuvenated and made to produce the necessary number of eggs to make her a payer. She is sentenced to the boiling pot. This being true, why not give her the best there is while she is in active service? She is certainly entitled to all the attention and good treatment it is possible to bestow upon her. Make her lot a contented one.

BARNARD

Good haying weather.

Mrs. Wm. Shapton was quite ill with tonsillitis last week.

The Holland Mission picnic is being held this week Wednesday in Peeble's Grove.

Dr. G. DeYoung, of Zeeland, Mich., will have charge of the services at the South Barnard church Sunday, August 3rd.

John Smith was called to Detroit, on Saturday, on account of the illness of his daughter, Mrs. Cleo Aymer.

Rev. E. E. Clark, former pastor at Ellsworth, preached in Barnard in the absence of Mr. Moody, who has the charge until conference time.

We neglected to mention last week that George Hamilton and wife, of Detroit, have been visiting their relatives, the Potter family, a few days.

Rev. Mellema and family, who have been spending their vacation with friends in the vicinity, motored to Petoskey on Monday. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Klooster.

Miss Beulah Bowdish, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Clarence Bestie, and her mother, Mrs. Annie Bowdish, returned to her professional duties at the hospital in Evanston, Ill., last week.

Margaret Gornell celebrated her birthday with a party last Friday afternoon. Needless to say the girls all enjoyed themselves and Margaret was the recipient of many presents.

CLARION

Mrs. J. W. Eckert and son returned last week from Ann Arbor.

Miss Elsie L. Miller spent Sunday with her parents near Springvale.

B. Kleinhenz is having a cement platform built in front of his store.

John P. Colden, of Detroit, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Colden.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Palmer and children are guests of Mr. Palmer's father at Cedar, Michigan.

J. P. Colden, Mrs. Colden and her grand-daughter, Marian Wheeler, were Charlevoix visitors on Thursday.

Mrs. Fred Danah and son, Robert, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boughner, and children, of Petoskey, were Sunday guests of the Colden family.

CRANK CASE EVILS

Adding a 'quart of oil' whenever the spirit moves you is just like throwing a glass of water into a tub of soapsuds and expecting the mixture to turn clear.

The same motorist drains his crank case each 500 miles because he knows motor oil wears out just like any other substance subject to wear and tear. When oil is worn, has absorbed a certain amount of raw gasoline, a certain amount of carbon, its usefulness as a motor lubricant is over.

Some so-called motor oils are not fit for any car. About the same destructive effect as bootleg liquor to the human interior economy. Use judgement in selecting your motor oil.

And we want you to try Staroline oil of course. In fact we would like you to compare the Staroline drawn oil from your crank case after 500 miles service with any other oil you have used a similar time. Then we know you will agree with us

IT PAYS TO GRIND GRAIN FOR STEERS

"Grinding feed for my young steers enables me to cut the feed bill about 25 per cent," writes D. D. Stevens, Washington county, Iowa, in Successful Farming. "I usually feed oats and corn, both of which are ground. In this shape it is easily digested and the usual waste because of cattle bolting whole corn is eliminated. Of course there is very little hog feed from steers fed shelled corn, but the ground corn makes up a big share of this loss."

"I usually buy young steers. This bunch averaged 435 pounds when I bought them. After almost a year on ground grain, hay and roughage, they scaled close to 1,000 pounds. This is a very good increase in less than twelve months. I usually buy these cattle in November, and through the winter give them silage, clover hay and ground feed. The winter feed of grain is about two-thirds of what they will eat when on full feed; and even then the full feed is only about twenty pounds of mixed ground grain."

"When my clover and blue grass pasture is ready along in May, the cattle are turned out. There is no setback at first because I still continue the hay and grain. After a bit they will eat but the corn and oats, leaving the hay. Along in September, when the corn is in good shape, I turn the cattle in the fields for a month with the hogs. The grain is ripe but not thoroughly hardened. This does not make any difference."

"The reason I feed young cattle is the initial investment. It is not very large, so that the interest on the investment does not make very much difference. Then, too, there is the saving in freight rate in sending the stuff back from the market is another advantage which cannot be overlooked, for the cattle are on the place for almost a year and consequently nothing gets away from them, as is the case when a farmer has stock only parts of the year."

Work Horses Carefully on Hot Days in Spring

Horsemen need to be on their guard against overheating. Most cases of overheating can be prevented by keeping a few simple things in mind.

Give at least a half gallon of water to each horse about ten o'clock and again at three or four o'clock on a hot day. Be very careful with a horse that is a little out of health, if you are working him on a hot day.

Look out for a horse that after sweating freely suddenly stops sweating. Put such a horse in the shade as soon as possible and give a moderate drink.

Do not put a horse not in good condition for hard work in the center of a four-horse team in hot weather.

Work carefully on a hot day when the atmosphere is moist and heavy.

A horse can hardly get too hot to water, but one must regulate the amount by the temperature of the water.

In case of an attack of overheating the horse should be taken to the shade as soon as possible. A treatment of the surface of the body, particularly of the head, with cold water, should be given until the temperature is within a degree or two of normal. Stimulants, such as whisky or brandy, well diluted, should be given as early as possible.

In most cases it is better to plan to avoid overheating than to plan to treat the horse for it.

Efficient Measures for Killing Vermin on Hogs

Small, but very costly to swine raisers, are the lice that very frequently make their appearance in great numbers. When the animals scratch themselves continually on posts, wagor wheels or other convenient rubbing places, the attendant should recognize the danger signal and furnish relief.

The hog louse is a blood-sucking parasite, which, if not itself visible, may be detected by the presence of yellow eggs usually deposited in the bristles on the back of the neck. Lice occasion heavy losses through causing uneasiness among the animals, as well as actually reducing their vitality.

Many successful breeders use rubbing posts for the application of crude oil, which is destructive to both lice and eggs. One farmer, however, who owns only a few head of hogs, wraps burlap about a post and soaks it occasionally with the waste oil from his tractor. The hogs rub against the burlap and cover themselves with the oil. Dipping is sure death to the lice, but is said not always to destroy the eggs. Spraying with kerosene emulsion is recommended by some breeders.

Sell Unprofitable Stock

Get busy improving your live stock. Get rid of the unprofitable animals on your farm. Labor is too big to employ it in milking cows that produce only 125 to 150 pounds of butter a year and corn is too expensive to feed to a hog that is brought to a weight of only 200 pounds at nine months of age. Improve the breeding as well as the method of feeding your stock and make every pound of grain and every hour of labor count as much as possible.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

Where fresh fish are obtainable the following dish will be enjoyed:

Fish Pudding.—Cook one cupful of rice in boiling water until tender, drain and pour through it enough cold water to separate the grains. Cook two pounds of pickered, bass or other fresh fish, until well done, cooking by steam in a steamer or tie in a cloth and drop into boiling water. Flake the fish after removing all the bones and skin. Combine the rice and fish, add two well-beaten eggs, one cupful of fish stock and the same of milk. Season with two teaspoonfuls of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper, two tablespoonfuls of butter, using the seasonings between the layers of the fish and rice. Bake one-half hour and serve hot with drawn butter sauce.

Bolled Fish With Butter Sauce.—Drop the fish well-dressed, tied in a cheese cloth, into boiling water and cook at the simmering temperature until tender. Use onion, bay leaf or parsley in the simmering water. Drain the fish and serve with a rich white sauce to which the juice of a large lemon has been added and a tablespoonful of butter with salt and pepper as needed. Serve hot or cold with the fish.

Stuffed Fish.—For a three-pound fish, fry one minced onion with two ounces of sliced bacon and a large tomato peeled and chopped. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of bread crumbs, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of parsley, three tablespoonfuls of water to moisten the crumbs, or soak them and squeeze dry. Mix well and stuff the fish which has been well-salted and peppered inside and out. Sew up and bake, basting with butter and water during the baking.

Fish Salad.—To one cupful of cold, cooked fish add the same amount of chopped cabbage and celery, season well and serve with a good bolled dressing on lettuce. Salmon makes a delicious salad; add chopped pickle and a half-cupful of fresh grated coconut and the usual salad dressing; serve on head lettuce and garnish with white of egg cut into fancy shapes.

AT THE MOVIES
PALACE THEATRE
"Under the Red Robe"
What is undoubtedly the most gorgeous motion picture production Cosmopolitan has yet made, even surpassing its great achievement, "When Knighthood Was In Flower," is the picturization of Stanley Weiman's historical romance, "Under the Red Robe." It has been hailed as the biggest thing the screen has ever presented, in gorgeousness of settings, in lavishness of costumes, and in excellence of acting. "Under the Red Robe" will be the attraction at the Palace Theatre for two days, beginning Tuesday.
Nine months' time was required to film "Under the Red Robe." The production cost over $1,500,000. The massive settings alone cost a fortune. They are all historically accurate and were designed by Joseph Urban from paintings of the rooms in which the persons actually appeared. A quarter of a million has been spent on the settings, half that much on the costumes, jewels, ornaments and other items.

"The Great White Way"
The field of sports will have its innings in motion pictures when "The Great White Way" comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday. Leading celebrities of the prize ring, the race track, prominent sports writers and other familiar figures of sportdom make their film debut in the new picture.
A thrilling feature of "The Great White Way" is a big race track scene, filmed at Belmont Park on Futurity Day. It discloses a realistic steeplechase, specially staged for the picture, and many other phases of turf life. Earle Sande, world's

MAJESTIC THEATRE

In "shooting" the storm scenes for the William Fox production "The Blizzard," from the story of Selma Lagerlof, cameramen risked their lives repeatedly, as the picture will prove. The blizzard was had enough to face but the photographers had to get in the way of a stampeding reindeer herd as well. The scene originally was caught for a scientific expedition, but later was used as part of "The Blizzard," for the reason that it exactly portrayed the scene described by Selma Lagerlof in "The Story of a Country House," from which the picture was adapted.

"The Blizzard" comes to the Majestic Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Mary Johnson, known as the "Pickford of Europe" has the leading role and is supported by an admirable cast of Swedish performers. The picture was directed by Mauritz Stiller. The story tells of a young Swedish musician and his love for a girl of a wandering minstrel troupe.

More than 10,000 reeider appear in the William Fox production of "The Blizzard."

Robert Dorey and Bruce Reinhart Suffer Painful Bruises

Two of the caddies of the Charlevoix Golf Club met with an experience last Tuesday afternoon which might easily have resulted much more seriously for both but was painful enough as it was.

The boys, Robert Dorey and Bruce Reinhart were coming home from the links at about five-thirty, young Reinhart riding on the handlebars of Dorey's wheel. While passing an intersecting street, they were struck by a truck, owned by Gamble & Robinson of Petoskey, fish dealers, which swung around the corner at a good clip on the wrong side of the road, according to reports of the accident. The boys were thrown violently in the ground and the wheel was demolished. A passing chauffeur picked up the two and brought them to their homes. Young Dorey received the more serious injuries of the two and is now confined to his home, suffering with a severely bruised and lacerated leg.

Fill them with grease and the squeaks are gone. Equip your car with the Alcomite High Pressure Lubricating System. Benj. Brown has them.—Adv. 30-1f.

Mrs. Porter Dead

Mrs. Adelia Porter, well-known resident of this city and famous in this region for many years as a provider of fine chicken dinners for resort parties at her place in the country, died at the home of her son, Harry, in Charlevoix, on July 28th last, at the age of 77 years and seven months. Heart trouble was the cause of death. Mrs. Porter was born in Michigan on December 10, 1846. The funeral was held on July 30th (today), Rev. C. W. Long officiating. Interment was at Brookside.

Grandmother Dies

Mrs. Ellen Baker Yemmans, mother of Walter Yemmans of this city, died at the home of her son on July 26th, at the age of nearly 83 years. Mrs. Yemmans was born in Oakland county, Mich., October 11, 1842. Death was the result of heart trouble. The funeral was held July 28, 1924, Rev. C. W. Long officiating. Interment was at Brookside.

ELKS PLAN BIG SUMMER PICNIC

Petoskey and Cheboygan Lodges Join For Event August 17

Plans are being worked out for an Elks picnic at Indian River State park, Sunday, August 17. Petoskey and Cheboygan lodges of Elks will participate in the affair. Visiting Elks are also invited to participate.

The Elks lodges will furnish bread, meat, and coffee and the individual will bring the remainder of the picnic dinner. It is estimated that fully a thousand Elks and members of their families will take part.

There will be a program of sports: bathing, water events, baseball, etc., for the young people and children. Contests are also planned for which suitable prizes will be offered. Charlevoix members are urged to attend.

SUMMER HORSE RACES AUG. 7-8

Petoskey to Have Fast Events at Fair Ground Track

The Emmet County Agricultural Society announces a mid-summer racing meet at the Fair Grounds race track, Thursday and Friday afternoons, August 7 and 8. Fast horses from the various cities of northern Michigan will be there for the event. Purses offered total $1,200.

This is the first attempt in recent years to stage good horse racing in Petoskey in mid-summer and it is believed the attraction will draw large crowds.

Thursday afternoon there will be the 2:30 class and the 2:15 class races and running races, making at least nine heats. Friday afternoon the 2:20 class will be run off and the free-for-all will be the big event. Running races are also booked for Friday afternoon.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The Charlevoix Union of the W. C. T. U. has instituted a membership drive, which will last until September 12th.

Large numbers give power and prestige to any organization and, as the jubilee year of the W. C. T. U. work is nearing its close, the "Million Members" will be enrolled, thus increasing in power and finance this great organization, whose strength encircles the globe.

Leaders of groups, or any persons securing the most names, either active, honorary or extension members, will have all expenses paid to the district convention in October.

The W. C. T. U. is and always has been a dominant factor in the education of public sentiment. Let us not forget this vital part of our life as an organization, but help in the education of public sentiment in Charlevoix for the standard of obedience to law and respect for the constitution of the United States.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Mrs. Mike Newman, of East Jordan, submitted to an operation last Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Martha Freiberg, of East Jordan, had her appendix removed last Friday.

Mrs. S. M. Berger, a guest at the Inn, was in the hospital Tuesday with a broken wrist, received in a fall from a horse.

Charles Hull had a goitre removed last Thursday and is now getting along nicely.

The Misses Helen and Myrtle Newman returned last Friday evening from Creighton Mine, Ontario, where they were called some time ago by the illness and death of their brother-in-law.

New School Board

At a meeting of the newly-elected board of education, held at the school house on Monday evening, July 21st, the following re-organization took place, officers for the ensuing year being: Mrs. A. Bergeon, president; Mrs. L. Shanahan, vice-president; H. A. Craig, secretary and Dr. Frank H. Wilkinson, treasurer. While holding no office, Hon. R. L. Lewis, still a member of the board until his resignation takes effect in October, is acting in an advisory capacity. Future meetings will be held on the first and third Mondays of each month at 7:30 p. m. at the high school building.

Pant-Crambill

Married, at the Methodist parsonage at three o'clock last Sunday afternoon, Miss Lillian Isabelle Pant, of Charlevoix, and Leon Darwin Crambill, of Indian River, Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating.

Political Announcement

I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination of Register of Deeds of Charlevoix county. Your vote at the primary election, Sept. 9th, will be appreciated.

Rev. C. W. Taggart Presides at Goldner-Taylor Wedding

The following article, clipped from the Osceola County Herald, will be of interest to Charlevoix people:

"The Rev. C. W. Taggart of the Congregational church, officiated at a wedding Saturday at the parsonage in which one of the principals was a member of his church when he was at Charlevoix. The bride was Miss Dorothy Goldner, of Grand Rapids, and the bridegroom, Clifford R. Taylor, of Kalamazoo. Mr. Taggart's friend. They were attended by Miss Mary C. McKinley and Arba E. Greiner of Grand Rapids. The mothers of the bride and groom were present. They drove here from Grand Rapids, returning after the ceremony where a dinner was in waiting. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside in Kalamazoo, where the bridegroom is sales manager of the Pure Silk Hose company. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Yarnell are uncle and aunt of the bride, and state that the friends of the young couple in Grand Rapids had planned a great time with the newlyweds, so they just skipped out."

Political Announcement

I wish to announce that I am a candidate on the Republican ticket at the September primaries, for the office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, and solicit the support of the electors of the county.

This pupil has been presented with a gold medal and a check for fifteen dollars, while his paper is entitled to represent the state in the final elimination for winners of the three national prizes, namely, a gold watch and a trip to Washington, first prize, and gold watches for second and third prizes.

In Memoriam

In remembrance of our dear little Jane, who was called away one year ago today, July 29, 1923:

We had a little treasure once, She was our joy and pride. We loved her, perhaps too well For soon she slept and died. All is dark within our dwelling, Lonely are our hearts today; For the one we loved so dearly Has forever passed away.

WHY NOT ENTER A CHARLEVOIX BABY?

Michigan State Fair to Conduct Better Babies' Contest

The Courier has a letter today from the Michigan State Fair asking if we have any prize winning babies here and, judging entirely from the unprejudiced words of parents we know, tho' all other crops may fail that one is just what we have plenty of—prize winning babies.

The Better Babies' contest at the Michigan State Fair is a real thing. There are youngsters there from every nook and corner of the state, and the contest has a real purpose. Some of the best physicians in Michigan are among the judges. It is an interesting and popular feature of the Fair.

Entries close Wednesday, August 27th. A person entering a baby must purchase at the time of making entry an exhibitor's ticket, price $2.00. This ticket will admit the holder once each day during the fair, but is not transferable.

Write to G. W. Dickinson, Secretary-Manager, of the Michigan State Fair, 815 Farwell Building, Detroit, for entry blanks and instructions.

Here is "Poodles" with his famous family—the horse too—all will welcome you to the State Fair at Detroit this year.

WASHINGTON LETTER

"How can I vote for Davis without voting for Bryan? How can I vote for Bryan without voting for Davis?" These are the questions which are nagging the Democrats, east and west. And the answer to both is the same, "You can't." One sad and weary congressman who had just returned from the Democratic convention, when asked by a correspondent what he thought of the ticket, replied laconically, "Anybody who can't hook up a thoroughbred and a jackass and expect the team to pull." He refused to indicate which was which—but he was from the west.

Sen. La Follette's determination to run, continues to be an occasion of anxiety to the leaders of both parties. No one for a moment dreams that he has the slightest chance of election, even La Follette. He has only one purpose, to get revenge on the party which so persistently denied him the nomination and, like the proverbial bull in the china-shop, he is out to do all the harm he can. But how many votes will he draw from Coolidge and Davis? As the situation stands, a vote for La Follette is a vote for Davis and "the little brother of the Peerless Leader." Why? Because the only effect of any considerable number of votes for La Follette would be to throw the election into the House. The most foolish cannot imagine the House electing La Follette; but every intelligent observer knows that after a period of deadlock La Follette and his followers would vote with the Democrats for Davis, rather than permit the election of Coolidge.

With the convention over, the leaders are carefully surveying the situation. Here is what they find. Davis will start out with "the solid South," 135 votes in the electoral college. To this number must be added Okla., Ky., Mo., W. Va., and Md., with a combined vote of 57 probably Democratic and making a probable Davis vote of 192. If La Follette achieves anything he will carry Wis., Mont., No. and So. Dakota, Ore., and Wash., with a combined vote of 39, and probably Minn., with 12 more, making a total of 51. Coolidge will be assured of 138 votes from safe Republican states. There must be described as debatable ground N. Y., 45; N. J., 14; Ohio 24; Ind. 15; Mich. 15; Ia. 13; Col. 6; Del. 3; Idaho 4; Wyo. 3 and Neb. 8, making a total of 150. With 531 votes in the electoral college, 266 are necessary to choose. Of the 150 debatable, therefore, Coolidge cannot lose more than 22 without losing the election; or at least throwing it into the House. The Republican leaders firmly believe they can carry all the states listed as debatable and elect Coolidge with a margin of 22 votes. But they are keenly alive to the necessity of hard work and lots of it, of a campaign managed with extraordinary skill and sagacity.

La Follette's managers announce their purpose to raise a campaign fund of from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. Knowing La Follette has no chance of winning, they will expend their entire campaign fund in a few states and there will be bonanza times for those professional political workers who, untroubled by convictions or conscience, are "just out for the dough."

Democratic leaders are almost weeping over the defection of Senator Wheeler of Montana, all the more so because they exploited him as such a hero when he was broadcasting "Roxie Stinson's bedtime stories," the filth offered up by Gaston B. Means and others of that ilk engaged in slinging mud at the Republicans. They knew all the time just what Wheeler was and they are only getting what they deserved when he turns and bites them. Wheeler announces that he will support La Follette. So will all the I. W. W.'s, anarchists, Socialists and a few honest but misguided citizens.

The sad death of President Coolidge's young son has put the Democratic candidate in an unusual position. It has always been customary for the Democratic candidate to be notified after the Republican and he has, therefore, had the advantage of knowing just what his opponent has said when he prepared his speech of acceptance. Young Coolidge's death necessitated postponement of the notification ceremonies until August 21, so that Mr. Davis will speak in advance of the President. However, as Mr. Davis is a trained lawyer and an adroit and able speaker he will, doubtless, be less troubled by this accident than would have many former Democratic presidential candidates.

NEW PALACE WAITS STATE FAIR CATTLE

MICHIGAN THOROUGHBREDS TO BE HOUSED IN "FIRST BARN OF THE LAND"

MOST MODERN EQUIPMENT TO BE USED THROUGHOUT

Visitors at the Seventy-fifth annual Michigan State Fair, Detroit, August 29 to Sept. 7, will find the new cattle building itself one of the finest exhibits and they can get a good idea from it about the group of buildings, G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager of the fair, has planned out in his mind to materialize in the next few years.

The cattle building is now nearing completion and it will be ready for the opening of the fair August 29. Those who have seen it say that it is the finest structure of its kind in America and is a credit to Michigan.

Last Word in Equipment

The new building was designed by Lyna W. Frye, state architect. It is a big, clean and light and white. It loses nothing in beauty. It has been designed primarily to meet the demands of Michigan's steadily growing interest in blooded cattle.

The most modern practical equipment that can be found today for the care of cattle is being installed in the new building.

Meets Michigan Need

"This building gives a good idea of the model fair buildings we will have for Michigan in a few years," said Mr. Dickinson. "We are glad to have the cattle building ready this year both because it is part of our plan realized and because it puts the fair well ahead of the development of blooded cattle in Michigan. The interest in thoroughbred stock in Michigan has increased very rapidly and will continue to do so. To have Michigan cattle housed in the finest building of its kind in the country will be a help to the development of blooded cattle in Michigan."

A small army of workmen has been busy for months on the state fair grounds, giving the place the appearance of a new city springing into being. Several hundred carloads of material have been used in the new buildings and 3 miles of new paving. The new structures and new paving give the fair buildings the appearance of a white city when seen from Woodward avenue.

EARLY MICHIGAN HISTORY TO BE WRITTEN IN THE SKY

One of the most interesting things at the state fair, Detroit, August 29 to September 7, will be a fireworks picture, showing the "Founding of Detroit." The scenes of old Fort Pontchartrain will leap into being in flames of fire high above the big state fair grounds, carrying out in detail the battles the French and English and Indians carried on in reality down Woodward avenue just eight or so miles from where the fair visitors will be sitting.

RIGID EXAMINATIONS OF STATE FAIR CATTLE

Every precaution will be taken at the state fair, Detroit, August 29 to September 7, this year to protect the health of the million dollar's worth of live stock that will be exhibited. Rigid examinations at entrance by experts will prevent the possibility of disease and daily inspection of all stock will be made.

HAVE YOU URIC ACID TROUBLE?

Many Charlevoix Folks Are Learning How to Avoid It.

Are you lame and aching, tortured with backache, and rheumatic pains? Feel nervous, depressed, and all played-out? Then look to your kidneys! When the kidneys weaken uric acid accumulates, poisoning blood and nerves, and many mysterious aches and ills result. Help your kidneys with a stimulant diuretic. Use Doan's Pills! Your friends and neighbors recommend Doan's.

L. H. Wheeler, retired engineer, 807 Bridge St., Charlevoix, says: "My kidneys were weak and I had to get up three or four times during the night to pass the secretions, which contained sediment. I heard of Doan's Pills and a few boxes, which I bought at Metcalf's Drug Store, cured me up, in great shape. Doan's are a good kidney remedy and I am glad to recommend them."

Softening Waters for Use by Orchardists

Where Liquid Is Too Hard Oil Will Separate Out.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

On account of the low cost of the 2 per cent lubricating oil emulsion developed by the United States Department of Agriculture for the control of the San Jose scale, this spray is coming into extended use by orchardists. Inquiries received at the department indicate that many of the waters used in preparing the diluted spray are more or less hard and cause the oil to separate from the water.

Fruit growers contemplating the use of the 2 per cent household emulsion or commercial products made according to the government formula should ascertain whether the water to be used for spraying purposes is sufficiently hard to cause the separation of the oil and water when diluted in the spray tank. This can be readily determined by mixing three teaspoonfuls of the household stock solution, or of the commercial article, in a pint of the water to be used in a glass jar and placing it aside for a few hours. If no oil rises to the top, the water does not require softening. If, however, the oil separates out, the hardness of the water must be corrected if effective results are to be secured in the control of the scale. The water can be softened in different ways, but a convenient and inexpensive method is to make some weak bordeaux mixture for use in the spray. The bordeaux should be made according to the following formula:

Water 50 gallons

Add the bordeaux mixture to the spray tank while filling with water, adding just before the tank is full six gallons of the stock oil emulsion required to give the two per cent of oil in 200 gallons of spray. The spray should be kept well agitated during application. The bordeaux mixture made from one pound of bluestone and one pound of lime is the proper amount for 200 gallons of spray. When less quantities of the spray are required, as 50 gallons, $\frac{1}{4}$ pound of bluestone and $\frac{1}{4}$ pound of lime will make sufficient bordeaux.

Make Quality Hay When Alfalfa Blooms Appear

Alfalfa should be cut for hay about the time the blooms appear or at the time the young shoots start out from the crown. The mow should be equipped with a shoe so as not to cut too low as this will damage the crop. The hay should remain in the swath only long enough to wilt good, then it should be raked with a tedder, or side delivery rake, and allowed to cure in the windrow, rather than in the swath. If exposed to the sun too long in the swath, the leaves will cure and become brittle before the stems are cured. This will stop the leaves from performing the duty of drawing the moisture from the stems, and that will result in dangerous hay if it is baled before properly curing. When properly cured in the windrow the leaves, which constitute about 60 per cent of the feeding value of the hay, are saved. Of course alfalfa can be cured in the swath, the same as any other hay, but it is important that it be thoroughly cured, or it may cause death from feeding, or possibly, spontaneous combustion—which will likely burn the place where it is stored. However, there is no excuse for this if care is taken in curing.

FARM NOTES

Weeds are robbers of both plant food and moisture.

Plant corn every ten days for a succession of roasting ears.

Low-analysis fertilizers cost just as much to mix, bag and deliver as the high-analysis grades.

A homelike home and a homely home are not the same. Sometimes a little shrubbery makes the second into the first.

The typewriter is also a valuable farm implement, for it gives the farmer a carbon copy of each business communication.

After all, the secret of success in farming lies in the proper cultivation of only the acres that can be made to produce large yields.

With things so high, the farmer who puts out a good garden for next summer is likely to be well repaid, even if not a thing is sold out of it.

Take all the time that is necessary to get the farm machinery properly adjusted. It will save horse power and time and will enable you to do better work.

Of 2,600 grain marketing associations reporting to the United States Department of Agriculture, 78 per cent buy feed for members; 73 per cent buy fuel, and 24 per cent buy containers.

Reports from 753 associations handling fruits and vegetables indicate that 55 per cent buy containers for their members; 40 per cent fertilizers, and 25 per cent buy spraying materials.

For all the news, read the Courier.

POULTRY FACTS

PLAN TO PICK OUT GOOD LAYING HENS

"If you were going bird banting, you wouldn't take a hound. Starting a dairy, you wouldn't buy beef cattle. Or if you wanted to go into horse racing, it would not be desirable to get a Shetland pony. Yet many people seem to think that a chick is a chicken, regardless of its individual qualities and purposes."

While some varieties of chickens are better layers than others, yet individual selection will greatly increase the laying qualities of any variety.

H. B. Lansden, of the Florida Agricultural college, says: "When a bird has laid through one season, you can judge some of her performance qualities by color of her legs and condition of beak and plumage." The explanation continues: "Select a hen that has a large space for manufacturing and carrying eggs, and you get one that will produce more eggs than another with less carrying space, even though of the same variety."

"It is no trouble to detect which has the greater ability to perform by examining the body outlines. The body should be wide and deep, and well-proportioned, the back broad and rather flat, the breast bone rather short, rocker-shaped and sharp, not round and plump as in a quail."

"The comb and wattle indicate the condition of the reproductive organs. A hen with a healthy, well-developed reproductive organ, has a large full comb and wattle, with full circulation indicated by warmth and softness of texture. The hen with a small, crowded or diseased organ has a small, shriveled, scaly, cold and coarse comb and wattle. The distance between pelvic bones and the pliability of the skin and abdomen indicate the present performing condition of the hen and not her ability to lay."

Demand for Guineas Is Increasing in the East

Wild game, such as partridge, quail and pheasant, are becoming scarce in many localities. Besides, most states have laws which prohibit the sale of game birds as a measure to discourage hunters from killing more than they and their friends can conveniently use. There is, however, a good substitute for game birds and it is found in the guinea. The guinea is more than half wild anyway and has many of the characteristics of game birds found in the woods and fields. The demand from hotels and clubs is increasing. This is particularly true in the East and the taste for this bird is growing in the Middle West.

When well cooked, guineas are attractive in appearance, although darker than common fowls, and the flesh of young birds is tender and of especially fine flavor, resembling that of wild game. Like all other fowl, old guineas are very likely to be tough and rather dry.

Feed More Meat Scraps and Sour Milk to Hens

The use of more meat scraps and sour milk in the rations for the farm flock will help to keep up the egg production through the hottest season of August and early September. The laying hen's diet to be full of all the necessary material should consist of grain, mash, animal feed, mineral feed, and water. The grain is usually taken care of, as is the water supply. The difference which a mash can make in the laying is surprising, when the mash contains besides grain an abundance of milk and meat scrap material. These two foods supply the animal matter, while cracked oyster shells or grit furnish the mineral matter. Green food is essential, and if the flock does not have range, green grass or weeds are specially good for layers during the hot weather.

Provide Shade for Hens During Hot Summer Days

The poultry industry is being developed in many sections where there is very little natural shade. Summers are long and hot and poultry is certain to suffer unless adequate shade is provided. To overcome the absence of trees in the poultry yards, some plant castor beans, which grow rapidly and produce large leaves, thus providing shade for the chickens which they so thoroughly enjoy during the hot hours of summer days. Others erect low sheds, or provide shade by stretching gunny sacks and blankets over frames constructed for that purpose.

Poultry should be provided both shade and plenty of clean fresh water. It is not only a humane act, but will pay in increased egg yield and more rapid development of young birds.

Big Mortality of Chicks

Poor methods of feeding and brooding are the chief reasons given for the heavy mortality of chicks. In the state of Iowa, it is said, nearly one-half of the chicks hatched on farms are never raised to maturity. Iowa farmers are probably no more careless in their methods of handling chicks than farmers in other states. This is a warning to the poultryman who neglects to use well-balanced rations in feeding his chicks, and watch the temperature of the brooder.

SEEKING RE-ELECTION TO SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Charles Novak Again a Candidate
For This Position

Charles Novak, sheriff of Charlevoix county, has announced himself as a candidate for a second term in office, and asks the support of the voters at the September primaries.

Charley is an old hand at the sheriff business and thoroughly understands all its ins and outs. He is fearless and resourceful and, above all, possesses that quality of common sense that is so necessary if the office of sheriff is not to become a joke.

No two cases are alike and much discretion must be used in their handling. Arrests on insufficient evidence and in cases where the element of negligence rather than deliberate intent enters into the affair as a factor, a warning many times is sufficient. To haul the offender into court in many such cases is to incur for the county heavy expense without doing any real good and many times doing great harm. This is especially true in the case of minors. The popular idea of justice is, of course, as is so frequently heard in street conversations and around the stove in the corner grocery, is "put 'em in jail." But there are many gradations of guilt and many kinds of offenders and a blanket rule will not fit them all. Here is where the sheriff has a chance to use good sense or poor sense, and Mr. Novak in many such instances has proven himself to be possessed of keen insight and excellent judgment. We have no hesitation in recommending him to the voters for re-election to the office which he has honorably filled during the past term.

The South Side Ladies will hold their annual bazaar and cake sale on August 1st. Place announced later. Adv. 30-t2.

HAVE YOU SEEN BOULDER PARK

NEWEST RESORT SECTION IS A BEAUTY SPOT

Work of Grading Streets Now Underway—Many Wonderful Natural Vistas

Driving to South Point, along the winding gravel road that skirts the beautiful shores of Lake Michigan, one notices on the left, just after passing the city auto camp, two fine gateways flanked with handsome side posts built of natural boulders. Nearby is a sign, calling attention to the fact that this is Boulder Park, the new resort subdivision.

Apart from noting the excellent situation of the property, as respects the general contour of the lake shore on which it fronts, if we pass on our way, there is nothing to excite special comment. But if one stops, alights and makes his way up the bank under the fine trees with which the new subdivision abounds, if he explores the natural lanes, shaded by white birch and evergreen; the grassy plots, ringed with white-barked palings, as if some band of happy fays had fenced the greensward for their mystic rites; or if, ascending some sweeping, rounded knoll, he turns lakeward, catching alluring glimpses of restless silver and green flashes through the leafy screens that fringe the road, then indeed one takes with him an impression of unusual and appealing beauty, such as before he has seldom encountered in his travels through an unusually beautiful region.

The owner and promoter of this new residential property, which is without a doubt to become the nucleus of Charlevoix's most extensive and popular resort colony, has developed the site with a view of making the utmost of its remarkable natural assets. Instead of laying out the plots in arbitrary fashion according to the conventional checkerboard plan, Mr. Earl A. Young, who is well known to our townspeople and summer visitors as a real estate operator and broker of high-class properties, possessed of marked originality and initiative, has picked out the natural building sites, of which there are many, and has arranged his street plan with reference to these sites, following the parkway style. Out of 37 1-2 acres, he has developed 85 generous sized lots, the smallest of which is of 90 foot frontage, the others ranging from this figure up to 180 feet. From the two main gateways opening onto the Lake Shore Drive, with a distance of about ten rods between them, two north and south avenues, to known as Eastern and Western Roads, traverse the subdivision from the shore drive to Garfield avenue, terminating there in gateways similar to those at their northern end. On the side of the auto park, at a point where the continuation of Park avenue intersects the Boulder Park boundary, another gateway will be erected, opening into

"COLE" MISSES HIS FAITHFUL BOW-LEGGED PAL

Clare Usher's beagle hound, "Stubby," was run over by a resort car last week and had to be killed. "Stubby" was pretty nearly as well known about town as Clare is and wherever you would see one of them the other was sure to be not far off. Clare feels pretty badly about the loss of his friend and the following little bit by W. Dayton Weggefath somehow most aptly expresses the situation:

I talk to him when I'm lonesome-like, and I'm sure that he understands, When he looks at me so attentively and gently licks my hands; Then he rubs his nose on my tailored clothes, but I never say naught thereof.

For the good Lord knows I can buy more clothes, but never a friend like that!

So my good old pal, my irregular dog, my bow-legged, long-tailed friend,

Has become a part of my very heart, to be cherished till life-time's end;

And on Judgment Day, if I take the way that leads where the righteous meet,

If my dog is barred by the heavenly guard—we'll both of us have the heat!

Animals are Shedding Their Old Coats—Many Fine Pups—New Cold Storage

HOW AND WHEN OF TAX SALES

THEIR INTRICACIES CLEARLY EXPLAINED

Much Could Be Saved the Taxpayer by Better Understanding of The Law Therein

For the benefit of the tax payers of Charlevoix county, the county treasurer, H. C. Cooper, gives out the following valuable information regarding the tax sale which is not generally very well understood: "Taxes run for three years with 3-4 per cent interest per month added before they are sold to the state. But we will take the 1922 taxes for instance: they will come up for sale on May 4th, 1925, although the auditor general's office at Lansing, Mich., makes up the advertised sales list beginning October 1st, 1924. All unpaid 1922 taxes will appear on the sales list unless paid before October 1st, 1924, and $1.00 state expense will be charged on every description of 1922 taxes beginning October 1st, 1924.

"If the taxes are paid after October 1st they will not come up for sale but will appear on the advertised sales list. Therefore by paying the 1922 taxes before October 1st, 1924, the tax payer will save $1.00 of state expense on every description of land beside the increase in interest from September to October which is quite a saving to the tax payer who is already over-burdened with taxes.

"For instance, on four descriptions of land amounting to $100.00 in taxes, if paid in September instead of October, the saving to the tax payer is $4.75.

"The 1921 tax sale for Charlevoix county contained 1,241 descriptions. The state received $1,241.00 for expenses of sale on account of the 1921 taxes being unpaid on October 1st, 1923. A considerable portion of the 1921 taxes were paid after October 1st, which amount could have been saved to the tax payers if they had had information in time."

RACING YACHTS STILL LAID UP FOR REPAIRS

Siesta and Virginia Now at Hamilton's Boat Yard

The yachts Siesta, owned by Marvin Haskell of Chicago, and Virginia, the property of J. A. Hadwiger, of Chicago, are still at the Hamilton docks, undergoing repairs of damages developed during the recent races.

The Virginia lost her mast when the Manitou rammed her in the harbor at Mackinac Island and is having stepped a new one, of hollow type, recently shipped to this city from Maine. Harry Gregory, of Charlevoix, is fitting the mast.

The Siesta sprung leaks around her shaft bearings and the rudder post and is now hauled up on the ways having the packing replaced.

PELLSTON FAILED TO SHOW UP

NORTHERN TEAM GAVE NO EXCUSE FOR ABSENCE

Locals, Strengthened by New Pitcher and First and Second Bagger, Plays Giants Tomorrow

A large crowd of baseball fans were disappointed Sunday afternoon when the Pellston club of the Resort League failed to show up for the game scheduled here with the Charlevoix team. No reason was given and the only thing that can be figured out was a bad case of cold and poor sportsmanship on the part of the little town which we have always admired for keeping a team in the field.

In the other league games, Petoskey defeated Harbor Springs by a 2-0 count and East Jordan scored 14 runs while Boyne City failed to get over even one.

The local team has been strengthened by the addition of Widener, a pitcher from Bay City, who will start against East Jordan this afternoon.

Also there has been added a first and a second baseman who should greatly strengthen the team.

The schedule laid out for the team for the balance of the season is a hard one, but everyone is confident that we will yet make a good showing in spite of a disastrous start.

Tomorrow (Thursday) we play the Illinois Colored Giants, of Chicago, on the North Side ball park field.

The schedule follows:

August 6—East Jordan at East Jordan.
August 7—Illinois Giants here.
August 10—Cheboygan there.
August 12—Manistique there.
August 13—Gladstone there.
August 14—Escanaba there.
August 17—Harbor Springs here.
August 20—Traverse City there.
August 21—Onaway here.
August 24—Petoskey here.
August 27—Traverse City here.
August 29—Bay View here.
August 31—Boyne City there.
Sept. 1—East Jordan here.

Sunday, August 17th, we play Harbor Springs here. Harbor won the last game by a score of 3-2 in 12 innings. The locals hope to get 'em this time.

QUANT RETURNED BY M. E. CONFERENCE

Has Accomplished Much Here During His Pastorate

At the annual meeting of the Quarterly Conference of the Methodist church, held last Monday night, Rev. H. R. E. Quant was unanimously voted to return for the fourth year.

This is very gratifying news, as Mr. Quant, aside from being a top-hole good fellow, has contributed much towards the upbuilding of the local church, not only in a financial way but in point of membership.

With all due respect to the Methodist system of frequently changing their ministers from one charge to another, there is much to be said for the plan of letting a good man, with the experience gained from several years of close contact with his parishioners, stick to the job and utilize this experience. That principle holds good in any line of human endeavor.

J. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be in his office in Petoskey, Friday and Saturday each week.—Adv. 30-tf.

TEACHER'S EXAMINATION

August 14, 15 and 16, 1924. The regular August examination of teachers of Charlevoix county will be held in the parlor of the Methodist church on August 14, 15 and 16, beginning each morning at eight o'clock standard time.

PREMIUM LISTS ARE NOW READY

Secretary Frank F. Bird Now Distributing Booklets

Premium lists for the Fortieth Annual Charlevoix County Day and Night Fair at East Jordan, September 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, are now being distributed by Secretary Frank F. Bird, R. F. D. 3, Charlevoix. There are 86 pages in the book this year which list the various premiums offered and some of the attractions already under contract for the exposition. The list also carries a fine line of advertising from the merchants of the county's three cities—Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix.

Prospective exhibitors or persons interested in the Fair's program can get copies of the premium lists by applying to the secretary. A number of additional premiums are offered this year. Two new features are added—a cow testing association exhibit and a boys' and girls' pig club exhibit.

The Fair this year gives promise of being the best yet held, and weather permitting, the grounds should be filled each day. Remember the dates, September 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12.

TENNIS CONTEST CLOSING

CHARLEVOIX'S VETERAN PLAYER HOLDING HIS OWN

W. Gordon Parker to Meet Winner of Leland-Witherspoon Match in Final Round Friday

Manager A. I. Creamer of the Inn and Ronald Larzelere in charge of the tennis courts have made it possible for lovers of the game in Charlevoix to enjoy an open tournament, which is developing some hard fought matches.

There were sixteen entries in the men's singles and eight teams in the doubles. Mixed doubles will probably be added. Orders on local merchants will be given to the winners: $10 for first prize in the singles and $6.50 for second prize. The winning team in doubles will receive two orders of $6.00 each.

Mr. Larzelere moved the fences well back and now has three excellent double courts, the clay having panned well. The Inn management has generously thrown these courts open to the public for the season.

Several close matches have been played; the Leland-Segal and the Agay-Parker matches being two of the best. The latter match was played during the heat of Tuesday and left the players exhausted. Parker will now meet the winner of the Leland-Witherspoon match in the final round. Both Leland and Witherspoon are young college men and the winner of their match will probably play the Charlevoix veteran Friday afternoon.

Summaries to Date

First Round—George Anson beat J. L. Ach, 6-0, 6-2; J. H. Witherspoon beat Robert Miles, 6-0, 6-1; Austin Leland beat H. Segal, 7-9, 6-3, 6-4; John Knight beat T. H. Wagner, Jr., 6-3, 3-6, 6-3; M. Agay beat Hugh Sullivan, 6-1, 6-1; W. Gordon Parker beat Harold Hallett, 6-2, 6-7, 6-1. Charles Fox and William Claggett drew byes.

Second Round—Witherspoon beat Ranson, 6-0, 6-0; Leland beat Knight, 6-4, 6-4; Agay beat Fox, 6-1, 6-2; Parker beat Claggett, 6-3, 6-2.

Semi-finals—Parker beat Agay, 6-4, 7-5.

Doubles—Agay and Ranson beat Segal and Leland, 6-0, 3-6, 6-4.

Depot Robbed

The safe in the P. M. depot at Central Lake was entered by robbers last Sunday night and cash amounting to $100.00 taken. The police are busy on the case, having an excellent impression of finger prints on the safe to work from. The finger print expert of the state police department at Lansing will be called in to help. An acetylene torch was used in cutting into the safe.

The Ladies of the Pilgrim Circle will hold a sale of rag rugs, aprons and baked goods, Saturday, August 16th at Bonthron's Plumbing Shop. Adv.—31-tf.

M-11 IS NOW BEST ROUTING

SHINING EXAMPLE OF MODERN ENGINEERING SKILL

Road is Shortened at Many Points With Elimination of Steep Grades and Curves

The last unfinished link in the M-11 highway is now filled in with a stretch of fine cement making the route through Charlevoix one of the very best ways to northern points.

Announcements from the Remus Construction Company, of which the very able Mr. Baumann is manager, came last week to the effect that the work was done and the road open to traffic.

Our many persistent pluggers for M-11 can no longer paint their unattractive pictures of the perils of the detour above Eastport. Our route can boast of one of the finest stretches of cement in the state.

Upon inspection of the new piece of road we find it the acme of perfection. Perfect engineering is shown in the grading of the hills. Down along the steep hills where impassable mud lay last spring a long graceful sweep of cement leads away into the distance, a road free from "ripples" and "waves," a road with 90-mile curves carefully built in, with gentle bends and perfect construction.

A perfect feat of workmanship typical of the Remus company is noticed in the 2200 foot hill with its 5 1-2 per cent grade. This hill, the longest of its kind in Michigan, is absolutely free from "waves." This is due to a new foundation plan original with the Remus people which insures the permanent position of the cement. We believe that nowhere in the state a more perfect job of cement roadwork can be found. It is a great factor in the bringing of tourists to the northern resorts along M-11.

This new section of roadway to which we refer connects that constructed by the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Co., and the gravel road on M-11 constructed by Mr. Edison two years ago. It completes the new roadway section which shortens the route and cuts out the steep hills which infested the former road.

This makes M-11 without a single doubt the best route into northern points and makes this fine cement highway a characteristic of Charlevoix the Beautiful.—Contributed.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination of Register of Deeds of Charlevoix county on the Republican ticket. Your vote at the primary election, Sept. 9th, will be appreciated.

RED "LENA" RUNS AGROUND WITH A CREW OF PIRATES

Guinivere, The Two-Timer, alias "Leaping Lena," formerly owned by Fire Chief "Hank" Marshall and now the property of two noted pirates from the Siesta, came to grief last Monday on the East Jordan pike near Ironton.

Just to show her new owners that she was still a skittish young thing, notwithstanding her years of service rushing to the rescue of blinding chicken coops, supernaturated barns, and frantic but careless housewives, "Lena" did a frisky tail-spin and dove her red nose into the mire of the ditch, probably heading for the green and inviting alfalfa.

It being a literal case of "root hog or die," the aforementioned doughty pirates doffed their nautical garb and descended to the level of the mere and much despised land-lubber. Plentifully besmeared with good old Charlevoix county muck and giving vent to language strangely out of place in polite circles, either on land or sea, the husky disciples of Captain Kidd tugged and strained and grunted until the utility of their unaided efforts became painfully apparent and it was unanimously voted to call upon Farmer Brown for assistance. The latter appeared upon the scene erstwhile with his team of fat Percherons and "Lena," subdued but snorting honorably, was set firmly back on her feet again.

A TEST OF YEARS

Is the Experience of This Charlevoix Resident.

Are you miserable with an aching back? Feel tired, nervous and run down? Do you have daily headaches, dizzy spells and annoying urinary disorders? Then why not take the advice of a Charlevoix resident who suffered as you do and found lasting relief by using Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys? Here is a Charlevoix case that the years haven't changed. Why not profit by it?

Mrs. John Cook, 307 Mason St., says: "I have used Doan's Pills for symptoms of kidney disorder and backache and they have always given me splendid results. I am glad to recommend Doan's, for they certainly are a splendid kidney remedy."

OVER EIGHT YEARS LATER, Mrs. Cook said: "I haven't had occasion to use Doan's for some time, as they made a cure for me which has proven lasting."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Cook had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Clarence Heise and family were Sunday visitors at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jones.

Cecil Richardson was an over Sunday visitor with relatives in Traverse City, and attended the circus while there.

Mrs. Ethel Kirby and children visited last week at the home of her brother, Percy Empey, near Central Lake.

Mrs. Merrill Richardson and her father, George Lord, were week end visitors at the Colon McKenzie home in Charlevoix.

Miss June Stafford, of Charlevoix, was a supper guest at the home of her aunt, Mrs. A. B. Stafford, on Thursday of last week.

Ed Jones and son, John, Burr Jolliffe and Dorothy Esch, from Empire, were Sunday callers at the E. R. Jones home in North Norwood.

Morris Henry has completed repair work on a well for Mrs. S. B. Chase. He also put a new screen and brand new pump in the well on the school grounds.

Clifford Gennette and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hollebeck and son, Robert, motored to Cadillac last Sunday and visited their brother and stepfather, Antoine Hollebeck and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Pearl and children and Raphael and Miss June Stafford were callers one day last week at the home of their brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stafford.

The children of John H. McCann are spending a fortnight at their home in Norwood. They are accompanied this week by their aunt, Miss Esther Babcock, and Mr. and Mrs. Barney Harrington.

Political Announcement I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Sheriff of Charlevoix county for a second term, and will be glad of your support at the coming primaries.

STATE FAIR STAND WILL SEAT 15,000

COST PLACED AT $250,000; DESIGNER BY STATE ARCHITECT; IS MODERN THROUGHOUT

EXPERTS DECLARE BUILDING WILL BE FINEST IN COUNTRY

Visitors to the seventy-fifth annual Michigan State Fair at Detroit, August 29 to September 7, will welcome the addition of a new 500 foot grandstand to the already fast-growing group of fire-proof steel constructions now on the grounds.

This structure, embodying every modern convenience and appointment of the up-to-date stand, is now being built. In fact the steel work is completed and stucco and plastering partially finished.

Designed By Fry.

Building of this new grandstand necessitated complete razing of the former wooden structure which was only 400 feet long. The new stand will be one of the beauty spots of the fair grounds with a seating capacity near 15,000. The estimated cost of construction is placed at $250,000.

Lynn W. Fry, state architect, is the designer of the building and experts who have looked over the plans and preliminary steel work say it is certain when completed to be the finest of its kind in this country. The new stand eliminates the loss of space to the front of the track where, in former years, crowds have congregated making it difficult to witness whatever entertainment happened to be in progress at the time.

With the possible exception of the new Dairy Cattle building which is estimated to cost $175,000 when completed, the grandstand is perhaps the outstanding improvement of this year's big construction program.

Resembles Cub Stand.

Similar in type to the famous stands in the Chicago Cubs' ball park, the fair grandstand will be equipped with copper seats. Approximately 1,500 reserved chairs will front the seating arrangement.

Up and down stairs folks who have experienced no small difficulty in previous years in finding parking space for their automobiles will be happy to learn of the subway construction under the mile track which will permit 4,000 additional machines or 7,000 cars to be parked in the infield, in front of the grandstand. This is made possible not only by the construction of the subway, which, by the way, is a steel and cement job costing $30,000, but also by the elimination of the mile track.

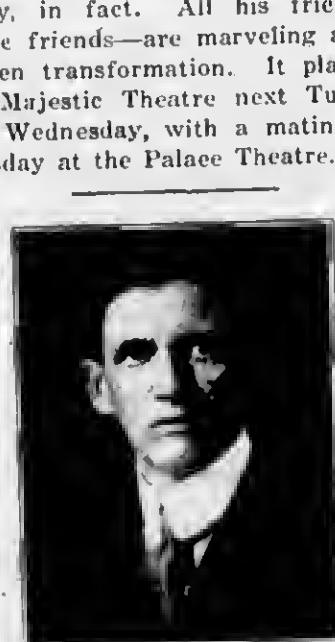

The infield will be tile-drained and instead of being constantly wet and soggy it will become one of the beauty spots. The elimination of the half-mile track also makes possible certain revisions in the mile run-way which will be raised considerably at the turn. Present plans are to raise the banks, starting from a straightaway, to possibly a height of five or six feet.

STATE FAIR HEAD ANNOUNCES NEW BIG LIGHTING SYSTEM

Thousands of folks who visit the Michigan State Fair in the evening and leave partially disappointed because of poor lighting facilities did not give them the same pleasure they could have seen in a day-time visit, will approve construction of an underground lighting system which is being installed with 45 additional outlets of light scattered through the grounds.

MANY motorists have put Red Crown in the tanks of their coupes, limousines, touring or other passenger cars, after having proved in their trucks that for service and economy, Red Crown is the business gasoline.

One of the large packing houses writes:

"We find that Red Crown Gasoline gives entire satisfaction in our large fleet of motor trucks—starting easily, accelerating rapidly, and giving excellent mileage.

"In our business every truck must move on time. Dependability is essential in order that exacting schedules may be maintained in the distribution of perishable products.

"Included in our fleet are trucks of various makes and sizes, from 1-ton delivery cars to 15-ton tractor trailers, and they operate efficiently on Red Crown Gasoline."

Summer tourists will find Red Crown everywhere in ten Middle Western States, and everywhere the same. By using Red Crown, they will get more and better mileage; uniformity in quality, thoroughly dependable operation with consequent avoidance of the irritation and delay occasioned by constant carburetor adjustments.

Use Red Crown and enjoy a banner mileage summer.

SPEAKING CAMPAIGN SOON TO START

The active speaking campaign of the political parties will not start until after the candidates on the several tickets have been formally notified that they have been chosen by their conventions. After these notifications have taken place the country may look for numerous speakers to appear on the stump and present the claims of the parties for whom they speak.

While it is true that certain men claiming to represent organized labor have stated their preferences, it is a well-known fact that labor, that is, the body of men making up the rank and file of the different organizations, deeply resent the treatment labor received at the hands of the democratic convention when the Davis managers ruthlessly shoved George L. Berry, leading democratic candidate for vice president, to one side for "Brother Chas." Bryan, despite the fact that Berry's friends had been told by the Davis adherents that he, Berry, would make a most acceptable running mate. Major Berry's slap in the face by the Davis folks has also caused the veterans of the world war to deeply resent the cruel and unnecessary treatment of one who served with distinction in the world war.

The talk of labor being solid for the independent candidate, or any candidate, no one takes seriously. Labor, farmers, business men, clerks, or any other body of citizens, cannot be delivered by anyone to any candidate. American citizens cannot be bossed around like sheep. Labor, or any other body of citizens, cannot be fooled by beautiful phrases or by promises which any thinking man knows cannot be fulfilled.

OUT AFTER THE VOTE

The Republican party is going to conduct an aggressive campaign in all parts of the nation. The party is going to present to the people a list of the many achievements beneficial to the people that have been brought about since 1920. The Republicans are determined that the people of the nation shall have a full opportunity to become acquainted with the many good things the party has done for the people since March 4, 1921. The party managers feel that the people have a right to be presented with all, not part, of the facts. The Republicans are going to point to the fact that the program of Calvin Coolidge has been one of economy, of tax reduction, of efficiency; that he has steadily pursued an honest, direct course tending to bring about a better condition through every part of the United States. Not alone will the appeal be made to Republicans but to every thinking man and woman throughout the nation. The party realizes that the American people have already achieved their own understanding of President Coolidge; that he is the choice of the people and is not the choice of any set of politicians. The primary elections showed that Coolidge was the choice of the people. Chairman Butler, in his statement recently issued, said: "We have a party platform and a presidential ticket that will make it possible to conduct the campaign everywhere in the open as energetically in one part of the country as in another, and to present our cause with the utmost frankness." Mr. Butler stated that he was particularly pleased to have received a large number of communications from men and women who admit that their interest in previous campaigns had only been incidental, but that they are now extremely anxious to actively participate in the present campaign. Coolidge's clean record will gain for him the support of many who, this year, for the first time, will vote the Republican ticket.

PEACE-TIME SLAUGHTER

A police judge, speaking after eight years' experience in a traffic court declares that the battlefields of France, were safer than our American highways.

"In 18 months," he says, "we lost 48,000 killed in France. In a similar period in America, just closed, we had 96,000 persons slain by automobiles, and 25,000 of that number were children."

Here is an indictment that comes home to every community and every family.

Most of the carelessness, it is agreed, is on the part of drivers. Yet this is by no means the whole story. A large share of the fatalities are caused by carelessness just as inexcusable on the part of pedestrians.

The present traffic problem is something quite new in the world. It is destined to become more and more serious, as the traffic increases in volume. It can be coped with, as all human difficulties can. But the matter must have more concentrated attention than has yet been given it, on the part of the entire public.

It is not merely a question of automobile drivers being more careful and obeying traffic rules better. It is a question of better traffic engineering, along new lines to take care of the new streams and types of traffic. It is a question of improved, simplified, uniform traffic rules, for drivers and for pedestrians made known to all of both classes, and obeyed by all. It is a question of trained and tested drivers. It is a question of genuine education of the entire public, until everybody knows what ought to be done and is willing not only to take pains but to spend money for improvement.

DON'T CASH U. S. MONEY ORDERS

WARNING ISSUED THAT STOLEN POSTAL ORDERS ARE OUT

Man and Woman Believed Working in Northern Michigan—Police Should Be Notified

Warning to be on the lookout for a man and a woman who are thought to be working in the northern part of Michigan cashing stolen postal money orders, has been given by Postmaster George Weaver, of this city, following word received from A. E. Germer, of Chicago, postoffice inspector in charge of this district.

Money order forms Nos. 32801 to 39000, inclusive, were stolen from the postoffice at Valer, Ill., July 11, and since the robbery a number of these forms have been filled out for sums of from $10 to $25 each, and passed on merchants in northern Illinois cities and Milwaukee.

The orders have been presented by a man and a woman, described as follows: The man is 30 to 35 years of age, five feet ten inches tall, and weighs about 160 to 175 pounds, dark hair and eyes, the hair being thin on top. He is a smooth and pleasant talker, dresses neatly in a dark suit and nearly everyone takes him for a traveling man. The woman is about 25 to 30 years of age, five feet six or seven inches tall, and weighs about 125 to 130 pounds. Black or dark blue gown. She has long dark hair and dark eyes.

Any person attempting to cash any of the above described money orders should be turned over to the police and Inspector Germer notified by telegraph, government rate, collect.

On every lot sold at Boulder Park on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, August 7th, 8th and 9th, ten per cent of the sale price will be diverted to the benefit of the Charlevoix Hospital. The owner of one of the first ten deeds recorded is going to receive as a gift or bonus a new 1925 model Ford coupe. Ten numbers, ranging from 1 to 10, have been individually sealed in envelopes. One of these envelopes has been picked at random by officials of the Charlevoix State Savings Bank and is now in their possession, unopened. When the last one of the first ten deeds to lots in Boulder Park has been recorded at the county register's office, this envelope will be opened and the deed which, in order of its recording, bears the same number as that contained in the envelope at the State Bank will carry with it title to the free Ford coupe.

Time purchases of lots at Boulder Park will be permitted, ten per cent of the price to be paid down at time of purchase—the balance on monthly payments with interest at six per cent. There will be no taxes to pay on any of the lots until January, 1926. We understand that ten of the lots have been sold to date and they are going fast.

CARS CRASH AT CITY'S WORST CORNER

Miss Stevenson Hits a Trailer at Antrim and State

An automobile accident of minor importance but serious possibilities occurred at the corner of State and Antrim streets Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock, when Miss Doris Stevenson, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. W. J. Stevenson, and driving a Chevrolet touring car, crashed into a trailer towed by a passing tourist going east on M-11.

A car coming in the opposite direction prevented Miss Stevenson from turning out to the left to avoid the trailer, which suffered the loss of a tire through the mishap, the two front wheels of the Chevrolet being sprung out of line. The tourist changed his trailer tire and went on and Miss Stevenson drove her car into the garage for repairs.

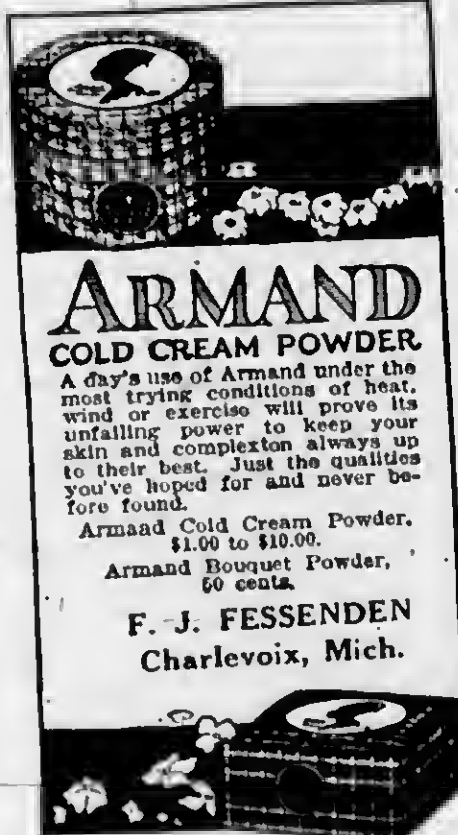

The corner where the accident occurred is a dangerous one on account of the steep grade of State street descending onto a trunk line highway, the drivers on M-11, of course, having the right of way over cars coming down the hill and consequently driving right along without paying much attention to the intersecting streets, although the fellow on the hill may have poor brakes. The view of Antrim street to the driver descending the hill is also obstructed by buildings on either side of State street at the corners. Exceptional care should therefore be taken by those going in either direction at this point.

Three Prisoners Escape by Breaking Off Locks and Using Large Vent

Thomas Proctor, Thomas Garrison and John Roy, three prisoners in the county jail made their escape about 12 o'clock Monday morning, July 29. The men had been given the liberty of the inner corridor the door of which was fastened with two locks, which were found broken and indicated the way to freedom. Taking bed clothing with them the prisoners made their way to the attic, over the cell block, and at the end of the building made their descent to the ground through a ventilator, as several other prisoners have done before.

Proctor had been sentenced to Ionia by Judge Shepherd to serve from one to two years and the other two men were convicted of stealing a boat and paroled and then locked up again for having broken it. The men are still at large and officers are scouring the county for them.

DRYS TO FIGHT SEN. COUZENS

WILL PICK CANDIDATE FOR SENATORIAL RACE

Smith, Tussing and Tuttle Asked Into Conference to Decide Which Shall Make the Race

To insure the state against Senator James Couzens, R. N. Holsapple, superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League last Thursday called upon Hal H. Smith, Daniel W. Tussing and Arthur J. Tuttle, all candidates for the United States Senate, to get behind a single "dry" candidate.

Holsapple, in letters to the three, suggested that they confer and that two of them withdraw in favor of a third candidate and thus prevent a three-way split in the dry vote.

The state dry leader, also warned that, although the Anti-Saloon League had not yet endorsed a senatorial candidate, it would be necessary, unless an agreement could be reached, to single out one of them in short time.

"The paramount need in Michigan politics, at the present time, is the defeat of James Couzens for the United States Senate," Holsapple stated. In case the three cannot agree upon any one of their number, Holsapple suggested that they select representatives, who may be able to agree upon a compromise candidate whom Smith, Tuttle and Tussing will pledge themselves to support.

In addressing the three in his letter, he said:

"Believing, therefore, that you are all patriotically inclined men, that you all have the welfare of the state at heart, that you are all interested in maintaining our present prohibition laws and that you specially desire to defeat Mr. Couzens, I am writing to you to make an appeal for you to show your willingness to make a sacrifice in the interest of good government."

"I suggest that a meeting be held and attended by all of you, or some representative authorized to speak for you, in order that the whole situation will be directly canvassed and fully discussed and, with a view to arrive at an agreement, whereby two of you will withdraw from the senatorial race in favor of the remaining third candidate."

WHAT TO DO WHEN INJURED

A FEW PRECAUTIONS MAY PREVENT MUCH SUFFERING

Tragic Death of Calvin Coolidge, Jr. Shows That No Wound Is "Slight"

The American Red Cross issues timely warning to those who suffer slight injury or bruises and gives warning as to serious results that might take place:

1. Apply iodine—do not wash wound.
2. Apply sterile piece of gauze.
3. Wrap with sterile gauze bandage.
4. Fasten with adhesive plaster.

Summer vacationists are warned to be more careful of bruises and slight wounds, because of the seriousness of infection, by Dr. Harry W. Gentles, chairman of the first aid committee, Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross.

"The tragic death of young Calvin Coolidge, Jr. has served dramatically to show that no wound is slight," Doctor Gentles declared. "There is always the danger of infection. When the skin is abraded or cut, do not go on with your tennis or golf—avoid further irritation. If the swelling, pain or redness continues, consult a doctor."

"It is a great mistake to wrap a handkerchief around a bruise. Thousands of infections prove to doctors that so-called 'clean cloths' are never free of germ life.

"Especially in summer should bruises be watched. Vacation activities, outdoor sports, mountain and seashore pastimes bring frequent minor scratches and bruises. Vacationists should be as careful as their doctors."

"If you get a slight wound or bruise, do not neglect it. Serious sickness may result, and occasionally septic poisoning may cause death. There are four simple things that one should do:

"First, apply half-strength tincture of iodine to the wound, or better, use glass ampoules. Never apply near the eyes, between the thighs or for wounds of the intestines. It is a mistake to wash the injury. Iodine is a destroyer of germs, and is very effective, as war surgeons proved."

"Second, apply a sterilized piece of gauze, folded into a convenient pad. Third, wrap this dressing with a sterile gauze bandage. Fourth, fasten the bandage with adhesive plaster."

"It is simple to do, but it may save much suffering later. There is no need to fear septic poisoning from summer injuries, if you do this. The American Red Cross is teaching thousands of men, women and children these simple rudiments of first aid. It means the saving of many lives this summer."

TWELVE AND A HALF MILES OF CONCRETE

Announcement of the official opening of M-11 to the public appears in another place in this paper.

M-11 in this county comprises approximately twelve and a half miles of concrete, without counting the city pavement. The balance, with the exception of a mile and a half of gravel, is tar-topped. Between Bay Shore and Greensky Hill is 5.7 miles of concrete. The southern stretch of concrete lies between Norwood Corners and a point about 80 rods north of Sprick's corners and is approximately 6.8 miles in length. The stretch of plain gravel lies between the last named point and the county line—a mile and a half in extent.

The short strip of unpaved road between Bay Shore post office and the Emmet county line is now awaiting the action of the state highway department, which is contemplating, we understand, condemnation proceedings to acquire the land lying in the angle formed by the intersection of the two roads for the purpose of constructing a cut-off through the fields, thus eliminating the double right-angle turn.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY NOTES

The Charlevoix Hospital Auxiliary will participate in the Tax Day activities, August 9th, with the following booths for sale of different articles as listed below:

WORDEN RAN A TRAVELLING DISPENSARY

Caught in Act of Peddling Moon to Colored Dancers

Claude Worden, of Detroit, who drives taxi at Harbor Springs in the summer, was arrested by Sheriff Charles Novak, last Friday morning at one o'clock on a charge of violating the state liquor laws.

Thursday evening was the night of the colored ball. At about 10:30 o'clock in the evening, the sheriff went down to the hall and stayed around, watching the dancers for some little time. He soon noticed that some of the latter appeared to be "under the influence" and, as time passed, seemed to be more and more so. This led to the inevitable conclusion that there must somewhere be a source of supply.

A little sleuthing located Mr. Worden, sitting in his car in front of the laundry in a nice, dark spot, busily engaged in passing out the "stuff." He was taken into custody and nine pint bottles of what the sheriff termed "good moon" was found in his possession. This was at about 1:00 a. m., Friday. Before the affair was over, the sheriff encountered one of the patrons who was in the act of pouring himself a drink from one of the bottles and a ruckus ensued in which the sheriff came out on top, with the assistance of a pair of steel handcuffs which he was forced to use as a club. The disorderly gentleman was shrewd enough, however, to dash the bottle to the ground, thus destroying the evidence.

Worden was lodged in the county jail and it is thought will plead guilty to the charges brought against him.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

Thursday and Friday, August 7 and 8

"LUCRETIA LOMBARD," a drama of flaming passions, from the novel by Kathleen Norris. A Harry Rape production, featuring Irene Rich and Monte Blue. A society drama.

Saturday and Sunday, August 9 and 10

Wm. Fox presents "THIS FREEDOM," a picture version of A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel, featuring Fay Compton. Can a wife win freedom and happiness and disregard her home duties? Most widely discussed novel of the year. Also an Al St. John two reel comedy, "SLOW AND SURE."

Monday and Tuesday, August 11 and 12

Elinor Glynn's "THREE WEEKS," with a noted cast, including Conrad Nagel and Aileen Pringle. A most beautiful picture. Also a Lyman Howe Hodge Podge reel, "KING WINTER."

Wednesday and Thursday, August 13 and 14

Rex Ingram's "SCARAMOUCHE," from the famous novel of the French revolution by Rafael Sabatini, featuring beautiful Alice Terry, Lewis Stone and Ramon Novarro. One of the greatest photoplays in motion picture history. Rex Ingram's masterpiece, an overwhelming triumph. Love, hate, comedy, thrills, romance. The screen sensation of the century. Please note—one full show starting at 7:45 p. m., and four reels of the second show will be run for those that come late. Special prices: children, 25c; adults, 50c.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Friday, August 8th

Charles (Buck) Jones in his latest picture, "WESTERN LUCK." A fiery romance that leaps from the West to Wall Street and back. Rich in feats of daring. A high-speed story of western pluck and luck. Also a Neeley Edwards comedy, "NO PARKING ALLOWED."

Saturday and Sunday, August 9 and 10

Lenore Ulric in David Belasco's "TIGER ROSE." A child of the woods, as beautiful as the flower whose name she bears, but dangerous in defense as the queen of the jungles—where an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth is law. A story of a wild-cat child of the Canadian Northwest. Also a Cameo comedy, "UNDER COVER."

Tuesday and Wednesday, August 12 and 13

Wesley Barry in his latest production, "GEORGE WASHINGTON, JR." From the famous stage hit by Geo. M. Cohan. Full of side-splitting, thrilling comedy. We can not tell a lie—you'll like "George Washington, Jr." Also two reels of the Fast Steppers Gems of comedy drama, "THE SHOOTING STAR." Please note—there will be a matinee at the Palace Theatre on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., on this picture.

AMENDMENT NOT TO GO ON BALLOT

Attorney General Rules Against Wardell Wet Amendment

Attorney General Dougherty holds, very properly as the Courier believes, that the fake amendment drafted and sponsored by Wardell can not go on the ballot in November.

He says that it fails to comply with the requirements of the constitution because it does not set out in full the text of the United States laws to which it refers.

The proposed amendment is in itself a subterfuge and clearly intended to mislead and deceive voters. It was not expected when the amendment was conceived that it would ever get on the statute books of the state since it was vague, misleading and clearly unconstitutional. But if it could only be passed by deception, it might serve as an argument that the people had decided against prohibition. The fact is that, of course an amendment to our constitution which provided as this did that the state should put no greater restrictions on the manufacture and sale of liquor than is put by the United States, would in case of the repeal of the Volstead act or its modification automatically repeal every bit of state prohibition. Michigan would not stand for this but the proposed amendment was so deceptively framed that it might have received more votes than it could possibly get as a straight proposition. All friends of law and order will rejoice in the ruling of Attorney General Dougherty. This amendment will not be on the ballot unless the supreme court reverses this decision, which is not probable.

The church at Ironton holds public service every Sunday at 2:30 p. m., to which all are invited.

AT THE MOVIES

PALACE THEATRE

"Scaramouche" is Coming

The latest Rex Ingram production for Metro, "Scaramouche," a picture of Rafael Sabatini's novel of that name, will come to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. The cast is headed by Alice Terry, Lewis Stone and Ramon Novarro.

"Scaramouche," according to advance reports from the larger cities where it has been played as a two dollar attraction, is one of the greatest pictures in screen history.

The story is laid in the time of the French revolution and deals with the adventures of a young noble who takes the side of the people. Willis Goldbeck made the screen adaptation and the photography was by John F. Seitz.

"This Freedom"

Another chapter in screen history has been written with the presentation of A. S. M. Hutchinson's latest best seller, "This Freedom," in photoplay form. This picture was filmed in England on the sites selected by the author as was "If Winter Comes" which is also being shown to American movie fans this year.

Denison Clift directed the picture which presents the story of a woman who tries to have a business career and manage her home at the same time. Hutchinson in this novel claims that the home invariably suffers when the woman is a great success in the business world. Whether you agree with the author or not you will be greatly interested in the pictorialization of the most discussed novel of the year.

Fay Compton has the leading role of Rosalie, the woman banker. She is supported by Clive Brook, one of the leading men of the English stage and a capable cast of screen players. This picture will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

"Tiger Rose" in Screen Form

An exceptional film event is offered local patrons of the silver screen in the announcement of the coming of "Tiger Rose" at the Majestic Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

The story of "Tiger Rose," set in the far northwest, in the region where men and wild beasts rove at large, killing and being killed, impelled by instincts of hunger, love and fear, is one chuck-full of the dramatic and soul-stirring. As a result, the picture is said to move and tingle with human interest.

Rose Bocion, nicknamed "Tiger Rose" for her untamed ways, is a regular wildcat, untutored and unrestrained. Leaving home after her father's death, she is saved from death on a raft and brought to the factor of a Hudson Bay post, who decides to adopt and bring her up as his own child. In the post she learns to participate in the loves and hates of the men she is thrown in contact with.

GAS FUMES KILL YOUTH IN ROOM

RAY NELSON OVERCOME WHILE PREPARING FOR TRIP

Former Ellsworth Boy Meets Untimely Death in Bathroom—Funeral Monday at Hawkins

"Ray Nelson, 25, machine hand employed by the Wolverine Brass company, was found dead, apparently from gas fumes, on the floor of a bathroom on the second floor of the Empire block, 47 Michigan St., N. E., where he roomed, shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Nelson, who came here about a year ago from Hawkins, where his parents operate a store, had for a week roomed with an uncle, Harry Mallard. He returned from work yesterday noon and upon being invited by Mallard to accompany him on a trip to Greenville over the week end, hurried to prepare for the trip.

When Nelson did not reappear, Mallard investigated and found the young man face down on the floor. Mallard made an attempt to revive him and then called a physician. Coroner Simon LeRoy ordered the body taken to the Van Strein morgue at 101 Michigan St., N. W., and a post-mortem examination revealed, the coroner said, that death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning resulting from the inhalation of gas.

Inspection of piping in the bathroom revealed that heating apparatus was not in good condition, according to the coroner, and that enough gas might have accumulated in the room to cause death. Mallard said he had never experienced any trouble in the room, and informed the coroner that Nelson had complained of stomach trouble for about a week.

The body will be taken to Hawkins, the father, Murray Nelson, arriving late in the day to accompany it north. Besides the parents, there are two brothers, George, of Ellsworth, and Hugh, of Charlevoix, and a sister, Dee, of Hawkins.

The above article, clipped from the Grand Rapids Herald of Sunday, August 3rd, explains the death of a young man well known here, where up until one year ago he was a resident for ten years.

Ray, better known here by the nickname "Spike," was born at Coleman, Mich., May 30th, 1899. He came to Ellsworth with his parents when his father took over the management of the Ellsworth Produce company in 1914, and with the exception of one year spent at Spooner, Wis., resided here until June of last year, when he went with his parents to Hawkins, Mich., shortly afterwards taking a position with the Wolverine Brass company of Grand Rapids, where he was employed at the time of his death.

The funeral services, conducted by the Masonic Order, of which deceased was a member, were held at the home of his sister, Mrs. Lyle Pangborn, at Big Rapids, on Monday, August 4th, and the body was taken to the family lot at Mt. Pleasant for burial.

He leaves, besides his father and mother at Hawkins, Mich., two brothers, George, of Ellsworth, and Hugh, of Charlevoix, and two sisters, Mrs. Lyle Pangborn, of Big Rapids, and Anna, of Hawkins.

The family have the deepest sympathy of the entire community.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Harlan Fiske Stone, Mr. Coolidge's attorney general, is putting both ginger and ability into the department of justice. Mr. Stone is not a spectacular man. He moves quietly and cautiously but with undiminished determination and compelling force. Without any previous boasting or advertising, Mr. Stone has brought suit against the Binder Twine Trust, charging it with being a monopoly and a conspiracy in restraint of trade. It costs the farmers of this country $3,000,000 a year for binder twine and nothing could be more reprehensible than a conspiracy to compel them to pay more for this commodity than is just and right. A long list of banks and trust companies are also made defendants in the suit. The attorney general paid heed to the complaints of the farmers that they were being robbed by the binder twine trust, conducted a quiet investigation and discovered that the trust was making an annual profit of $1,800,000 on a capital of $1,500. Then he haled the members of the trust into court. Give Mr. Stone a little time and he will teach wealthy law-breakers that they are as amenable to the law as anyone else.

Another suit instituted by Attorney General Stone is designed to break up the fraudulent practice of importing high grade wools duty free by wrapping them with carpet wools which are on the free-list. The tariff on wool has proved less effective than was expected. Mr. Stone started an investigation to ascertain the cause. Again there was no blare of trumpets. It was all done very quietly. But now suit has been entered to forfeit to the United States an importation of wool valued at $1,500,000. There are a number of technicalities involved but at least the suit will have the effect of deterring the smuggling of fine grade wools by packing them inside of coarse, duty free grades.

Further examination of the constitutional provisions to be invoked in case the electoral college fails to elect a president has revealed that, as the House now stands, such failure would be attended with grave peril. Failure of the electoral college to give a majority to any candidate would send the election to the House. There the members vote by states and as there are 48 states 25 would be required for a majority. As the House stands—and it is the present House that would have to act—there would be 23 Republican votes, 20 Democratic, and 5 La Follette votes. This would mean a deadlock, for no one can imagine La Follette releasing his supporters to vote for either Coolidge or Davis, and the constitution limits the choice of the House to the three highest candidates in the electoral college which, of course, would be the candidates named. If the House has not elected by March 4, the constitution provides that the senate shall make the choice of a vice-president and he shall be president, but its choice is limited to the two candidates who have received the highest votes in the electoral college, who would be, of course, Dawes and Bryan. Who would be chief executive while the senate was making its choice is a question. Some think Secretary Hughes. Others contend that he cannot hold over his term. All of this means chaos and confusion worse confounded.

It is dawning on students of the political situation that a vote for La Follette can mean only the defeat of the will of the people, of the majority vote. If the choice of president were made by the House it would be the present House, including all the lame ducks defeated in November. As the representatives can vote only by states a majority of one might sway a state delegation, might compel a Democratic state which had gone Republican or vice versa, by the vote of one lame duck, to vote against the convictions of the majority of the voters in the state. If the election went to the senate it would be the present senate and the senate would have no choice save between two men that no party ever nominated for president, Dawes and Bryan. A vote for La Follette is, therefore, clearly a vote to defeat the will of the majority. As the N. Y. World (Democratic) clearly puts it, "The only result, as we see it, of great success for La Follette and Wheeler would be to paralyze the government."

La Follette managers have now set the campaign fund they hope to raise at $5,000,000 and it is further discovered that, by refusing to call their movement a "party," or to employ a party designation, they hope to escape the legal necessity of reporting to the Borah campaign committee the amounts and sources

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Gunther, from near Saginaw, have been enjoying a short visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Jensen.

The poultry culling demonstration held at Wilbur Spidel's Wednesday afternoon was well attended and was both interesting and instructive.

Mrs. Metz had quite an experience recently. She discovered one of those little animals that are all black except where they are white, climbing up the side of the barn. Thinking it might be responsible for some of the poultry losses, she advanced to the attack with the pitch fork. Taking care to keep the corner of the barn between her and the beast, she succeeded in vanquishing the foe without any unpleasant consequences to herself, but her next door neighbor had to forego the enjoyment of the evening breezes for that night and close her doors and windows.

Up the Big Folks Until All Were Tagged

Saturday, August 10th, was Hospital Tag Day in Charlevoix and early in the morning the campaign started with a small army of young skirmishers all eager to win the prizes to be awarded those turning in the largest receipts at the end of the day.

By noon most of the town's prominent and non-prominent citizens were sporting tags in token of their surrender to the youthful cohorts and during the afternoon the stragglers were rounded up by the eagle-eyed scouts and capitulated without a murmur. All this time, the big guns were roaring over on Park avenue where the various societies of the city had their booths. By nightfall, the conquered, with empty pockets but wearing that befitting expression that tells of inward peace and consciousness of good deeds accomplished were permitted to return to their several abodes, armistice having been declared until next Tag Day.

Prizes for the largest amount of receipts turned in Saturday evening were awarded as follows: first prize, a gold Eversharp pencil, went to Robert Schlesinger, son of Arthur Schlesinger, Michigan avenue resort; second prize, a lustre bud vase, to Emma Lou Plaut, daughter of Jacob M. Plaut, of Michigan avenue; third prize, a child's cedar chest, to Sybil Levinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Levinson of this city and the fourth prize was granted to Elaine Schlesinger, sister of the first prize winner, a stick and ivory pencil with cord.

The Hospital Board wishes to thank those who contributed so largely of their time and means to make the Tag Day a success. As soon as the results of the recent audit of the building fund are available, a complete report of the same will be published so that the public may know just what has been done.

Receipts from the Tag Day drive, exclusive of membership fees, amounted to $434.03. Returns from the booths operated by the various organizations will amount to approximately $195.00, making the total results of the Tag Day figure $633.00. This is an excellent showing and the board is well pleased with it.

The books of the treasurer for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, show a gratifying condition of affairs, as evidenced by the report which is hereto appended and the treasurer's report which follows it shows a substantial balance on hand as of August 1, 1924:

ARE YOU GOING SOUTH?—TRY DUSTLESS ROUTE

Since the vacation season is drawing to a close, we would point out for the benefit of the departing tourist that M-11 is a part of the only "Dustless Route" from Mackinac to Traverse City.

M-11 should be kept until eight miles south of Traverse City where it connects with M-42. The traveler should follow 42 until he reaches the sign reading "To Kingsley." It is a big one and hard to miss. Here he turns east for 12 miles until he reaches M-13, which takes him south to Big Rapids. From here M-24 leads into Muskegon where the tourist again picks up M-11.

Charlevoix county boasts 12 1-2 miles of perfect concrete highway in the "Dustless Route." By taking this route, one avoids all detours on M-11 south of Manistee.

PUNCTUAL KIDS ADMITTED FREE

SECRETARY BIRD HOLDS TO FORMER RULING

Pupils Neither Absent Nor Tardy for Three Months May See County Fair Gratis

All school children who were neither absent nor tardy during the last three months of the school year are entitled to free tickets to the county fair. Such has been the ruling in former years and will continue so for the coming fair.

The secretary, Frank F. Bird, having discussed the matter with several educational leaders in the county deems it advisable to allow the children tickets on a basis of their standing. It has therefore been decided that next year city children must have an average of 85 per cent in all subjects, while the children of the rural schools must have an average of 80 per cent in all subjects in order to receive free tickets. A different standing is considered fair because the city child has an advantage over the country child in that he receives a mark at each recitation, while the country child usually has an examination only at the end of each month, so it is just as difficult for the latter to get an average of 80 per cent as it is the former to get 85 per cent.

So now superintendents, teachers, and school patrons, please make it your duty to find out who of your school children are entitled to free tickets and mail the list of names to the secretary, Frank F. Bird, Charlevoix, and he will gladly see that the tickets are mailed in plenty of time. Last year many of the children did not get their tickets simply because the names were not sent in. Do not put this off. You owe it to the children.

ELMER INGALLS BUYS VALUABLE HOLSTEIN

Has Added Pure-Bred Bull to His Fine Herd

Elmer Ingalls bought a full blooded Holstein bull from the Loeb Farms last week Wednesday, August 6th. The name of the bull is Charlevoix Ormsby De Kol. Chief, born October 23, 1923, out of senior herd sire, Sir Pietertje Ormsby 40th. Mr. Ingalls is one of the progressive dairymen and stock raisers of this region who believes in pure bred stock. More and more are the farmers of Charlevoix county becoming converted to the principle of maintaining only thoroughbred animals and the results obtained are amply justifying their judgment. That there is little or no profit in the scrub bull or cow is rapidly becoming a truism that passes without argument.

The Epworth Ladies' Aid of Inwood will give an ice cream social at Mrs. Guy Stutzman's on Friday evening, August 15th. Everybody welcome.—33-11.

PARKER IS NOW SINGLES CHAMP

LOCAL VETERAN WINS OPEN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

With Harold Hallett as Team Mate
He Cleans Up on the Leaders
At Inn Courts

W. Gordon Parker of Charlevoix won the singles championship in the open tennis tournament which ended Monday on the courts of the Inn.

Coupled with Harold Hallett in the doubles, the local team won this event without the loss of a set, young Hallett supporting the veteran in fine shape.

Hallett and Parker defeated Leland and Larzelere Sunday morning in an interesting match, the first set going to 11-9. Leland was considerably off, Larzelere scoring most of the points for the losers.

In the afternoon, the Charlevoix team faced Segal and Ranson, winning a fine match. Parker drove very well from his forehand, the ball just clearing the net at top speed. Hallett scooped up everything that came his way, chipping his returns. This change of pace, coupled with Parker's skyrocket lobs, which nearly always fell safe, proved too much for Segal and Ranson.

The final singles match, played Monday afternoon, proved a disappointment. Witherspoon, refusing to trade strokes with the veteran, tried to take the net, but was repeatedly passed or driven back by his opponent's lobs. Parker won three straight sets.

Both final matches were refereed by Ronald Larzelere, in charge of the Inn courts. Mr. Larzelere handled the tournament in fine shape and made many friends. Manager Creamer of the Inn is so well pleased with the support given Mr. Larzelere that he has offered handsome trophies for a second tournament which may be held in the last week of August.

Summaries—Singles: semi-final, round, J. H. Witherspoon beat Austin Leland, 6-2, 6-3. Final round: W. Gordon Parker beat J. H. Witherspoon, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. Doubles: first round: Leland and Larzelere beat Ach and Moses, 6-1, 6-1. Hallett and Parker beat Livingston and Ricards, 6-3, 6-4. Semi-final round: Segal and Ranson beat Witherspoon and Wagner, 8-6, 2-6, 6-3. Hallett and Parker beat Leland and Larzelere, 11-9, 6-2. Final round: Hallett and Parker beat Segal and Ranson, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

ED DEUEL IS PRETTY SORE

HIS SPORTSMANSHIP QUES-TIONED BY RESORTER

Foreign Gent Sprung a Brand New
One on the Warden and He Isn't Himself Yet

Ed Deuel, one of the game wardens operating in this territory, is pretty sore. He picked up a resort gentleman recently for having undressed him in his possession and the latter sprung an entirely new one on Ed, which fairly left him gasping for air. Ed has always prided himself on his sportsmanship and it sure cut deep to have it questioned.

It happened in this way. Ed found his quarry just stepping out of a boat, over the side of which hung trailing two bass, very plainly less than the legal limit in length.

The warden nailed the fisherman for his license and the following dialogue took place:

"Where's your license?"

"Oh, I got 'em, it's up to my cottage."

"Well, you're supposed to have it with you. Let's see those fish you've got there. They're under the legal limit."

"Oh, no der nod, I haf a measure on my pile."

"Well, let's see them anyway."

And upon examining the fish Ed found them to be under the legal length and informed the gentleman of it.

"Well, I'd bedder pud 'em hook, hadn't I?"

"No sir, that don't go. You knew well enough they were undersized when you caught 'em. Give 'em to me. I want them for evidence."

"Well, vy don't you put 'em back in der lake?"

"Give me those fish, I told you."

"Vasst! You mean to say you vas going to led dem little fishes die? You are no good sportsman to not put 'em back in der lake. I will report you."

"I 2-2-2—right at this point Ed had a temporary lapse of memory and didn't recover consciousness until he was before the justice with his prisoner. Pretty tough, wouldn't you call it."

INN ORCHESTRA PLAYS ON RECREATION PIER

Sunday and Tuesday Afternoons at
Two Thirty P. M.

The Charlevoix Inn has added a new feature to their already very attractive program of entertainment for their guests.

Starting with last week, the Inn orchestra will play in the Pine Lake pavilion on the recreation pier in front of the hotel every fair Sunday and Tuesday afternoon, the concert to commence at 2:30 o'clock. Their playing was much enjoyed last week and the attendance, especially Sunday afternoon, was evidence of the fact that this new feature is a popular one.

The management has also installed in the lobby of the Inn a bulletin board for the information of their guests, covering social events, water sports, theatrical programs at the local movie houses, dancing and league baseball.

ADOPT UNIFORM SYS- TEM OF FLAG DISPLAY

Our Retail Merchants Co-operating With American Legion

The Shenandoah uniform system of decorating is being adopted by the retail merchants of Charlevoix, the movement being sponsored by the American Legion Post and by the association of commerce. A large number of business men have agreed that uniform decorating of the main street with flags of uniform size will greatly enhance the appearance of the city on patriotic occasions and will enable the city to be appropriately "dressed" with ease and speed.

This system has been adopted by 60 Michigan cities including Adrian, Cadillac, Belding, Ann Arbor, Dowagiac, Eaton Rapids, Charlotte, Hastings, Hillsdale, Travers, Gay, Owosso, Paw Paw, Pontiac and many northern peninsula cities.

The idea is that each merchant may display the banner whenever the demand warrants. The flag is four by six and is on a hard wood staff. The staff fits into a small hole in the sidewalk, the price of the outfit including the drilling of this hole which is plugged between displays.

LIGHTNING KILLS MANTON WOMAN

WAS STANDING NEAR WINDOW
WATCHING STORM

Body Burned and Death Ensued in 20 Minutes—Other Members of Family Shocked

Miss Vina Salisbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Salisbury, who live 8 miles west of Manton, was almost instantly killed Wednesday evening, August 6, at about 7 o'clock, when lightning struck the Salisbury home.

Miss Salisbury was standing near a window and beneath a metallic flower pot suspended from the ceiling by a wire. The current struck her on the right side of the head and took a direct course to the door through the right side of the body. While not burned severely there were several burns on the body which indicated the course of the lightning.

Miss Salisbury regained consciousness for a few moments before she died, but was unable to talk. Death occurred within 20 minutes and before a physician could be secured.

Edith Salisbury, who was standing near the door which he had just shut, was knocked unconscious, and the door was ripped from the hinges. He was not injured and revived within a few minutes.

Mrs. Salisbury, who is an invalid, was also in the house, but aside from being stunned for a few minutes from the heavy charge of electricity, suffered no injury.

All perhaps, owe their lives to God. S. Wood, who was in the Salisbury barn milking when the bolt came. Although stunned, he made his way to the house when he discovered that it had been set afire. He found Mr. Salisbury and the daughter on the floor and after making sure they were not dead, proceeded to fight the fire.

Miss Salisbury, who was 40 years of age, was buried Friday last. Services were held at 2 p. m. Friday at the Soper school house. Rev. Inci-cum of Meauwataka officiating. Burial will be at the Soper cemetery. Manton Tribune.

Have You Appendicitis And Don't Know It?

Much so-called stomach trouble is really chronic appendicitis. This can often be relieved by simple glycerine, buckthorn bark, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. Most medicines act only on lower bowel but Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing all gases and poisons. Brings out matter you never thought was in your system. Excellent for obstinate constipation. Sold at Central Drug Store.

We are very sorry to learn of the death last Friday of Miss Kate Newland, of Atwood. Miss Newland was a sister of Mrs. Ed. Jones and has been a great sufferer for many months. Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives.

Some of those who glided to Charlevoix Saturday evening over the new concrete road, were Wm. Richardson and family, Wm. Alward and family, Mrs. F. E. Richardson and son, Cecil, Mrs. Rose Pierce and son, Kenneth. Everyone is joyful over the new road and those who have no car are contemplating buying roller skates.

A family reunion was held at the Frank Richardson home last Sunday, and there were twenty-one present, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dye, of Traverse City, and their son, Paul Dye and family, of Saginaw, Mr. and Mrs. John McCall and family, of Charlevoix, Merrill Richardson and family and Miss Drusilla Richardson. A bountiful picnic dinner was enjoyed on the lawn, after which the party went to the lake for an hour, taking their departure late in the evening.

STATE FAIR PRIZES TO EXCEED $100,000

SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNUAL PROGRAM PROVIDES LIBERALLY FOR ALL DEPARTMENTS

CATTLE LEAD WITH AWARDS TOTALING OVER $17,000

The seventy-fifth annual Michigan State Fair, which opens August 29, will be marked by the liberal awards for the winners in all departments. Cash prizes this year will total more than $100,000, according to announcement by G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager of the state fair.

The cattle department leads with a total of $17,778.66 to be awarded and every class in this department is provided for in the prize list. Second in the total cash awards will be the horse department, where the various class awards total $13,030.

Boys and Girls, $4,566. Among the other departments provided for very liberally is the Boys and Girls' Club departments in accordance with the State Fair's policy of encouraging Michigan boys and girls and making the competition not only interesting but very well worth while for them. The total of the awards in this department is $4,566.

The appeal to the housewife, whether on city or farm, is made very strong in the awards for the winners in two departments. In the Dairy and Domestic department the awards total $1,339.75 and in the Woman's Work department the total is considerably larger.

The total awards in some of the principal departments follow:

Cattle	$17,778.66
Horses	13,030.00
Poultry and pet stock	8,693.25
Swine	6,597.00
Agriculture and horticulture	5,470.00
Floriculture	1,780.50
Dairy and Domestic	1,339.75
Woman's Work	2,366.75
Fine, Decorating and Industrial Arts	2,500.00
Education	415.00
Boys and Girls' Clubs	4,566.00
Awards in other departments and special awards will bring the total to more than $100,000.

Costliest Saxophones To Toot and Groan At 75th Michigan Fair

No fair is a fair without plenty of good music, according to G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager of the Michigan State Fair, and so Cervone and his famous band will be at the opening of the Seventy-Fifth Annual State Fair, Detroit, August 29 to September 7. They will play every afternoon and evening.

State Fair goes last year will remember Cervone, who comes this year with new talent and new music, not forgetting the old popular numbers, whose strains drifting over the big fair grounds give a spirit to the state fair at night that isn't duplicated.

Besides Cervone one of the big musical attractions will be Joe Thomas and his Saxophone with that lively groaning jazz—that has been called typically American. The Thomas players play on what are said to be the most costly saxophones made.

OUTDOOR HOME BUILT BY MICHIGAN BEES IS MOVED TO STATE FAIR

One of the unusual attractions at the coming State Fair, Detroit, August 29 to September 7, will be an outdoor home built by bees on a cluster of wild grape vines, the work of a new swarm of bees who could find no hollow tree, box or hive for a home.

These bees were found by two hunters in White Lake township, Oakland county, and the sight is so rare that the home has been given a place in the Aplary department of the seventy-fifth exposition.

Farmers interested in bee-keeping and its possibilities will find E. B. Tyrrell, superintendent of the Aplary department college ready to answer all questions pertaining to this industry.

A great deal of work in bee raising is being done in Michigan now by the Department of Agriculture and there will be a representative of the United States director of Aplary inspection at the fair.

Roads Bring Business

Anniston must have good roads leading out into every community and every county from which her merchants draw trade. For two years Anniston's commercial organization and Anniston's merchants have been energetically working to build up the cobble trade of this city, and the result has been gratifying. Despite the handicap of poor roads Anniston has extended its trade territory in every direction and now this city is the market for a greater number of people from this and other counties than at any previous time in its history.—Anniston Star.

WASHINGTON LETTER

"Patriotic citizens will not object to devoting one day a year to a fire drill. Heretofore when an international fire—that is a war—which called for assistance by the United States broke out every man has grabbed a bucket and run for the fire. That's patriotic but it is not up-to-date. Now we have good laws and an excellent volunteer fire department with modern apparatus, but we must have a fire drill occasionally or we won't know what to do or how to use our equipment. That is what the National Defense Day is and I cannot conceive how any patriotic or progressive American can object to it. We are simply going to test the efficiency of the company and try out the fire hose. National Defense Day means nothing else. There is nothing militaristic about it." This is the statement of General John J. Pershing who expressed himself amazed, when he returned from Europe this week, that anyone should object to National Defense Day.

The opinion in Washington is that it was wholly characteristic of the Bryans that Brother Chas., without even waiting for an expression from the head of the ticket, should have injected himself into the national situation with an appeal designed to attract the pacifists. His first protest was taken here as merely a smart-alecky effort to play cheap politics and for that reason President Coolidge has declined to enter into any public controversy with "the little brother of the Peerless Leader." It was suspected in some quarters that John W. Davis would resent the conduct of his running-mate but not by those who know Mr. Davis at all well. He is, his close friends point out, far too shrewd and adroit a lawyer to permit, at this early stage of the campaign, any indication of real animosity between him and the man chosen to bribe the Bryan vote. Whatever Mr. Davis may think he will give no public sign of displeasure and it was all in accordance with expectations that he should have taken occasion, as soon as he returned from his vacation in Maine, to announce that he was "in entire accord" with Brother Chas. That Brother Chas. has seen the error of his ways, however, would seem to be indicated by his announcement that he did not purpose to play politics when he voiced his views.

Malcolm R. McAdoo, brother of the Crown Prince, has come out for La Follette. Of the statement that the followers of Wm. G. McAdoo are going to support La Follette generally Malcolm says, "I should say they were fools if they did not, after the treatment received at the convention, which will go down in history as the crime of 1924." Even those political observers in the national capital who really know La Follette, who know him to be a cheap political demagogue of the lowest order and who regard him as a menace to the nation's welfare, cannot but feel it is pretty hard on him to have Malcolm McAdoo publicly support him. For Washington has not forgotten Malcolm's part in the negotiations looking to the purchase of interned German ships—before the United States went into the world war. L. Z. Foster, Malcolm McAdoo, the I. W. Ws. It will be a motley crew that ranges itself behind Skipper La Follette.

Forced to assume some sort of name for his party, La Follette has chosen the name "progressive," greatly to the anger and chagrin of those progressives who enlisted under the banner of Theodore Roosevelt in 1912. In 1912, it is recalled, La Follette was an insurgent and violently anti-Taft as long as he thought he could gain the nomination for himself. But once the real progressives lined themselves up behind Roosevelt La Follette was more bitter in his opposition to that ticket than any other prominent politician—even Taft. It is the memory of that fact which angers the men who stood with T. R. and which leads E. A. Vnn Valkenburg, Roosevelt's chief journalistic supporter, publisher of the Philadelphia North American, to call upon progressives everywhere to repudiate La Follette and all his works. "Throughout the campaign (of 1912) La Follette persistently assailed the Progressive movement and its leader," declares Mr. Vnn Valkenburg in his appeal.

President Coolidge is working hard on his letter of acceptance. Reports from the Democratic camp state that Davis is doing the same. The details of organization are being effected in the campaign headquarters and in the meantime, national politics are passing through the summer solstice. Mr. Coolidge works hard each day at the White House, going very early in the morning for a comparatively short horse back ride but getting to his desk by 9. And most of his evenings he is just now devoting to his letter of acceptance. Weekends he goes for a short cruise on the Mayflower, usually accompanied by some of his cabinet or political advisers.

A Real Treat for Nature Lovers

"Where shall we take a little drive, this evening?"—or, "Where shall we go Sunday afternoon?" Those two questions have been asked and answered many hundreds of times in the families of Michigan residents—judging by the visitors we have been glad to welcome to the

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY NURSERY

It has been a real delight to realize that so many hundreds of householders, so many families, have had a true regard for the attractiveness and beauty of trees and flowering plants. It would be a treat for you to come to the nursery, enjoy a walk through the greenery and examine the evergreens of countless varieties and the flowering plants.

If you are planning on Fall planting for hedge or shrubbery, by all means, you should come now and make a selection. But it is not necessary to be a buyer to be welcome at the Charlevoix County Nursery. We are nature lovers here and like to have others enjoy what we enjoy too without any obligation to buy.

Wm. D. Jacobs and Leighton Maxine, of Boyne City, are expected here tomorrow to spend a week or two visiting their brother and uncle, H. B. Jacobs on Canton street.

Fred Soderberg, of St. Johns, was brought to Charlevoix by the game warden last week on a charge of having in his possession some 500 pounds of undersized whitefish.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Versepunt, of Grand Rapids, visited Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Usher Tuesday evening while on an automobile trip through the northern part of the state.

Mr. Peter McCafferty and son, Stanley, accompanied by Ray Gordon and Joe Person, all of Chicago, drove to Charlevoix last Friday in a Lafayette sedan, and expect to be here until the 20th of the month.

Miss Katherine McDonald arrived here last week from Ypsilanti, where she recently graduated from the Michigan State Normal, after attending the sessions of the summer school. She will teach at Central Lake next fall.

C. E. Bellinger accompanied his cousin, Mrs. Nellie De Smythe, of Centralia, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Wilson, of Miliken, Colo., on an auto trip to Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Cross Village last Sunday. The visitors were delighted with the beautiful scenery along the route and declared that they had never seen better roads.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Webster, accompanied by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Webster, drove to the Soo last Saturday, returning to Charlevoix Sunday.

QUIET ZONES SIGNIFY NOTHING TO NIT-WITS

Complaint is made by the superintendent of the Charlevoix Hospital, Miss Bertha Larsen, that certain unknown parties are making a public "turn-around" of the driveway leading in and out of the hospital grounds and turning right into a hideous pandemonium for the sensitive and nerve wrecked patients by parking their cars in front of the building and sitting there for hours and into the early morning, talking and laughing.

Now, anybody with enough brains to rattle in a peesod knows that a hospital vicinity is a quiet zone and that in large cities, adequately policed, a violation of the zoning ordinance brings prompt arrest and drastic punishment. If these hoodlums haven't respect enough for decency and the rights of the unfortunate who are fighting their way back to health to keep away from the hospital on their maudlin petting expeditions, measures will probably be taken and that right soon to see that they do. The superintendent intimates in his uncertain language that if it is not stopped someone is going to get into trouble and we have no idea that she means what she says.

Man Held Up Near Alanson
Boy, Piece of the Daylight Bakery, Cheboygan, reports that he was robbed of $20 Saturday night by two automobile bandits on the Mackinaw City-Petoskey road, just south of Alanson. The Cheboygan man says he begged the highwaymen to leave him a small amount of money to pay his board in Petoskey Saturday night, but that they refused, declaring they needed the money worse than did the Cheboygan man. After rifling his pockets the two drove south.

Horse Races
Remember, tomorrow and Friday are the days of the big series of horse races at the East Jordan Fair Grounds. Many record holders will compete and there will also be some good running races. A class of green trotters and pacers has been formed and ought to provide quite a little excitement. It is possible that a special series of races may be arranged for next Sunday, Aug. 17th.

A free lecture on Christian Science at the Palace Theatre, Sunday afternoon, August 17, at 3:00 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.—Adv. 33-11.

Skating Rink Sold
Roy Ranger has purchased the skating rink property from Geik C. Geiken. Mr. Ranger says the building, standing out, as it does, beyond the surrounding docks, is a fire-trap and adversely affects his insurance rate on his boat house. He will rent the building in two and rent the shore half for a basketball court, a storehouse for fishing, or other legitimate purposes.

"AMERICA"

D. W. Griffith's masterpiece. Said by critics to be the greatest picture ever filmed. Second time shown in Michigan. The story of the sacrifice made by our forefathers during the Revolution is romantic, inspiring and thrilling beyond description. It is also absolutely correct historically. See the beginnings and causes that made necessary a great sacrifice; see the magnificent ride of Paul Revere, said by the New York Herald to be the most thrilling scene ever filmed; see the gathering of the American patriots at Lexington and Concord—77 Americans standing against 800 British regulars at Lexington; see the battle of Bunker Hill; see the magnificent Valley Forge; see the surrender of Cornwallis and the inauguration of the first President of the United States. See this great picture—it will help you to keep this land of America free from intolerance, from hatred—a refuge for all the oppressed for ever and ever—your land, the land of all people. "AMERICA." "AMERICA." One full show each day starting at 7:45 p. m., and a part of the second show will be run for those that come late. Special prices of 25 and 50 cents. Matinee Tuesday at 2:30 p. m.

CROP OUTLOOK IS IMPROVING

ALL BUT TWO ITEMS ABOVE
TEN YEAR AVERAGE

Fruit Crops Are Declining Due to Wet Weather Developing Fungus Growths

All important field crops except corn showed a better prospect on August 1 than they did a month earlier, and all except corn and beans were above the ten-year average. The fruit crops have declined in condition, the drop in tree fruits continuing throughout July. Frequent rains favored the development of fungus diseases, delayed spraying operations, and added to the difficulty in controlling scab and other diseases. Much of the wheat and rye crop was cut before the end of the month, but wet weather has interfered with hauling and threshing. The yield of wheat promises to be the best in several years according to the report issued by Verne H. Church, agricultural statistician and L. Whitney Watkins, commissioner of agriculture.

Corn, which had made but little growth before July 1, has since made decided improvement in some sections but is still very spotted, different fields ranging from very poor to fairly good. The present condition of 68 per cent represents a crop of 48,059,000 bushels as compared with 58,167,000 bushels last year. This condition is 13 per cent below the average.

The United States' crop is estimated at 2,576,440,000 bushels, or nearly 500,000,000 bushels less than was produced last year.

But very little threshing of wheat had been done up to the time of re-

BACK BAD TODAY?

Then Find the Cause and Correct It
As Other Charlevoix Folks Have

There's little rest or peace for the backache sufferer. Days are tired and weary—Nights brings no respite. Urinary troubles, headaches, dizziness and nervousness, all tend to prevent rest or sleep. Why continue to be so miserable? Why not use a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys?

Use Doan's Pills. Your neighbors recommend Doan's. Read this Charlevoix case. Hubert Ackert, mason, 107 W. Garfield Ave., says: "There was a constant ache in the small of my back and nights I couldn't get any sleep. My kidneys were sluggish and the secretions were scanty and burned in passage. I bought Doan's Pills at Metcalf's Drug Store and they fixed me up in fine shape. I haven't had any trouble since Doan's cured me." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Ackert had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

port and most of the answers to the yield inquiry were estimates. The indicated yield from this preliminary inquiry is 19.3 bushels per acre, or a total production of 17,447,000 bushels, the largest since 1919 although the acreage is smaller than that of any intervening year. The quality of the grain is rated at 94 per cent, although the rains during harvest may result in more or less damage. The spring wheat crop is placed at 124,000 bushels, the condition being 86 per cent.

For the United States, the estimate for winter wheat is 589,350,000 bushels and for spring wheat, 224,767,000 a total gain of 74,000,000 over last month, and 28,000,000 bushels in excess of last year.

Rye cutting was practically completed during July but much of the crop was still in the shock and has since been subjected to frequent rains. The prospective yield is 15 bushels per acre, or a total crop of 5,460,000 bushels. The quality was reported as 93 per cent, the same as the ten-year average.

The nation's crop is estimated at 65,805,000 bushels, or nearly three millions more than produced in 1923.

Oats made decided improvement during July and promise a good yield. Many fields are quite heavy and have lodged badly as a result of recent storms. The condition is 90 per cent, a gain of six per cent better than last year. The indicated production is 53,787,000 bushels, or about five millions more than in 1923. The portion of the old crop remaining on farms on July 1 is estimated at 6 per cent.

The United States as a whole will produce about 140,000,000 bushels more than last year, the estimate being 1,439,041,000 bushels.

Barley is a generally good crop with an average condition of 90 per cent, six per cent above the ten-year average and eight per cent better than last year at this date. The prospective production, based upon this condition figure is 3,797,000 bushels.

The entire country will harvest an estimated total of 184,171,000 bushels as against 198,185,000 in 1923.

The preliminary inquiry regarding buckwheat showed an increase of six per cent in the average, or a total of 56,000, and a condition of 89 per cent which is five per cent above the average for August 1. Allowing for the average decline to the end of the season, this represents a production of 897,000 bushels.

The condition of sugar beets is 89 per cent, four per cent better than on the same date last year. The beets are in thrifty condition and there is less disease than usual in most sections.

The condition of the bean crop declined four per cent during the month, due to excess moisture in some of the leading counties and to various other causes. As the usual decline during July averages eight per cent, the outlook is relatively better than one month ago and increases the production forecast to 6,241,000 bushels.

The total crop of beans in the United States is estimated at 13,688,000 bushels, which is only a slight change from the July 1 forecast. There was no important changes in the pea bean states, New York remaining the same, and a slight increase in Wisconsin and California.

The condition of potatoes was 89 per cent and is equivalent to a crop of 31,611,000 bushels. The stands are generally good except in some eastern and north-eastern counties and the supply of moisture has been ample for satisfactory growth. Beetles have given less trouble than usual to date.

The United States' estimate is also increased over one month ago, and now stands at 398,821,000 bushels as compared with 412,392,000 produced in 1923.

The hay crop improved decidedly toward the end of the growing season, and the yields through central and southern Michigan have been generally good. The reported condition on August 1 was 89 per cent, a gain of eight per cent during July, and represents a crop of 4,035,000 tons. The average yield of timothy is estimated at 1.3 tons; clover, 1.35 tons; clover and timothy mixed, 1.45; and alfalfa, 1.7 tons per acre.

There is little change from last year in the United States' production, the present estimate being 89,017,000 tons.

Apples continued to drop badly during July and the condition fell to 52 per cent, or a total crop of 8,951,000 bushels of which 1,522,000 barrels are considered as commercial production. Aphid and scab are very prevalent except in well sprayed orchards. Winter varieties, especially Spies and Baldwins, are light. Summer apples are more plentiful but the greater part is of poor quality.

Peaches have also declined and the present outlook is for only 32 per cent of a crop, or a production of 532,000 bushels. There are practically none in Berrien and Van Buren, the leading two counties.

The grape outlook is good except that the fruit is late and a favorable fall will be required to mature all of the crop. The condition of 79 per cent presages a total production of 105,228,000 lbs.

Pears and plums are only partial crops this year, the condition of the former being reported as 45 and the latter, 59 per cent. The total production of cherries is placed at 70 per cent of a full crop. Picking is well advanced and the outturn is slightly better than expected a few weeks ago. Blackberries and raspberries are yielding better and the quality is good in most sections. The crop is estimated at 85 per cent of a full one.

An increase of three per cent over last year in the acreage of field peas is indicated. Weather conditions have been favorable and the condition as reported is 92 per cent, eight per cent above the average.

Truck crops and home gardens are doing well under the influence of warmer weather and a plentiful supply of moisture. The condition of gardens is rated at 89 per cent, as compared with 82 per cent on July 1.

Both the supply of and demand for farm labor is estimated at 86 per cent by correspondents, or a ratio of supply to demand of 100 per cent.

AT THE MOVIES

PALACE THEATRE

Griffith Introduces Distinct Novelities in "America"

D. W. Griffith, responsible to a greater degree than anyone for innovations in the making of photoplays, and father of the motion picture as a vehicle for art, has again made a radical departure from established custom in the filming of "America," the titanic epic of Revolutionary days, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

In fact, it may be rightly stated that "America" embodies more distinct novelties in motion picture production than even the masterpieces with which Griffith hitherto has revolutionized the theatre world.

Because of the fact that the production was undertaken at the instigation of our most prominent patriotic organizations, representatives of which were present at the filming of the various scenes, and that through Secretary of War Weeks the United States army co-operated, Mr. Griffith first sought to achieve the most meticulous accuracy from a romantic and historical point of view.

Aroused to a high pitch of enthusiasm over Mr. Griffith's aims in producing "America," patriotic organizations throughout the country not only volunteered their services to aid in the research work, but, defying custom and tradition, took from the museum cases and private vaults which housed them for years invaluable relics of the Revolution and offered them to the famous director for use in his picture.

Concord and Lexington, Mass., led in this wholesale temporary turning over of the most sacred relics of our battle for freedom, and Mr. Griffith has been able to use as properties for his scenes antiques from the shrines of the Revolution which have never before been photographed, let alone by a movie camera.

But perhaps of all the many innovations in the filming of "America," the most unusual is the use of large units of the regular army of the United States in several battle scenes. Infantrymen and cavalrymen, clad in the garb of British grenadiers and in the buff and blue of Washington's Continental army sweep majestically through the action.

It is the first time that units of the regular army have ever appeared in a dramatic film, or that Uncle Sam's soldiery has ever donned costumes to appear before the motion picture camera. In staging the scenes in which the soldiers appear, Mr. Griffith had the advice of army officers on disputed points of the technique of strategy and tactics as used during the Revolution.

The major battles of the war from "the shot that was heard 'round the world," on Lexington Green to the engagement which culminated in the surrender of Cornwallis are to be shown in this extraordinary photoplay, and its dramatic episodes from Paul Revere's ride to the signing of the Declaration of Independence will lend their inspiring atmosphere.

"Daddies" Starring May Marsh Contains Novel Situations

When "Daddies" comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday as the feature attraction, you will have an opportunity to see one of the very finest of stage productions presented in motion pictures by a hand-picked cast of brilliant stars. Picture producers for years have been dreaming of the time when they could produce Belasco plays on the screen. The dream of the Warner Brothers came true. This will be the third Belasco success produced by the Warners this year.

"Daddies" is one of the very best of the Belasco plays, a clean, sparkling comedy that will chase away the glooms and the joy-killing blues. It is a picture that combines comedy, pathos and drama in just the right proportion for maximum entertainment quality. Advance reports indicate that this picture is already enjoying success as one of the very best pictures of the year.

The days of the Pony Express, early Indian uprisings and the building of the first railroad across the United States to the Pacific Coast are recalled by contrast with Lincoln J. Carter's melodrama "The Arizona Express," which has been completed at the William Fox West Coast Studios. Carter, himself, who has been called the "father of the melodrama" in America, assisted in transferring his stage success to the screen.

Tom Buckingham directed the screen version of "The Arizona Express" from the scenario prepared by Fred Jackson and Robert N. Lee. The following cast was selected to portray the characters who always used to bring the gallery gales to their feet in the days of the play's stage career: Pauline Starke, Evelyn Brent, Anne Cornwall, Harold Goodwyn, David Butler, Francis MacDonald, Frank Beal and William Humphrey. The picture comes to the Majestic Theatre Saturday for two days.

TRACK AND SWIMMING MEETS FOR THE BOYS

Register for Events Next Saturday Morning

The resort boys of the North Side, Chicago Club and Belvedere, through their tutors and recreational directors, are arranging for a track meet, similar to the one held last year, which is to take place on Saturday, August 23rd. Mr. Oberfelder, north side resort, who is in charge of the meet, will establish a registration booth at the corner of Michigan and Dixon avenues and all boys who intend to take part in the events are asked to register there at ten o'clock on the morning of Saturday, August 16th, which is next Saturday. The age limit of those eligible to compete is between 6 and 13 years.

The boys will be classified according to age into three different groups. Thirty or more medals will be awarded as prizes, 1st, 2nd and 3rd in each class. Points will be credited in each event and the one in each class having the greatest number of points wins the first prize, the next highest the second prize, and so on.

A swimming contest will also be held at the same time with the track meet and registration next Saturday morning will also be necessary for entry in this contest.

An invitation is cordially extended to the boys of Charlevoix's year around population to join with the resort boys in their track and swimming meets. Don't forget to register next Saturday if you want to enter the events.

HOSPITAL NOTES

W. E. Parmelee, well-known local contractor, was brought to the hospital last Thursday, August 7th, with a broken wrist, received while cranking his car. The break is a bad one, the artery nearly being severed.

Mrs. Romeo A. Emrey entered the hospital on Thursday of last week, with a badly slashed arm, resulting from a fall at her shop on Bridge street. She slipped on the floor and fell against a table filled with glassware, a piece of which broke and inflicted a serious wound.

Mrs. Lawrence Taylor of this city was operated on at the hospital last Monday, as was also Mrs. Don Gailman of East Jordan. Both are getting along nicely.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Isaacson, of this city, last Tuesday evening at the hospital, a fine girl, Mrs. Mary Linisey, employed at the Chicago Club in this city, was taken to the hospital Tuesday night, suffering from the effects of a slight stroke.

Miss Minnie Payton, local librarian, is in the hospital this week receiving medical treatment. She is doing as well as can be expected.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. George Jacquay, of East Jordan, at the hospital this morning, Wednesday, August 14th, a daughter.

Mrs. Amy Bruley, of 102 W. Hurlbut St., will take school teachers to board and room for $10.00 per week. A real home, good cooking, nice, clean, warm, rooms and plenty of good music.—Adv. 33-t2 pd.

AUGUST TERM OF COURT COMMENCES

With 15 Criminal Cases and Quite a Few Divorces

The August term of court opened Monday, August 11th, with 15 criminal cases (part of them carried over from last term), 8 issues of fact and law, 7 chancery cases, not including 12 divorce actions which come under a chancery head.

Among the cases so far disposed of is that of Ed. Eagleton and Hilt Marshall, violation of the liquor law. The defendants plead guilty and each received a fine of $50.00 with costs in like amount.

Joe Oliver, well-known Charlevoix Indian, convicted of non-support, was instructed by the court to pay his wife $4.00 per week for six ensuing weeks and $5.00 thereafter until otherwise ordered.

Claude Worden, of Detroit, arrested by Sheriff Novak for selling liquor to patrons of the colored dance at the Lakeside on the evening of Thursday, July 31st, plead guilty and was remanded to jail to await sentence.

Odell Barrington

Married at the Methodist parsonage, last Monday, August 11th, at one o'clock in the afternoon, Miss Dorothy Irene Odell and Winford Clayton Barrington, both of East Jordan, Mich. Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiated.

ALFALFA DEMONSTRATION TOUR ON 14TH

Howard Rath, M. A. C. Expert, Will Speak at Stops

An alfalfa demonstration tour under the conduct of county agricultural agent, Burton C. Mellenkamp and Howard Rath, secretary of the Michigan crop improvement association, will be made through the county on Thursday, August 14th, the party making the following stops:

First stop—at Frank Bird's at nine o'clock fast time, on north side of Pine Lake, halfway between Boyne City and Charlevoix.

Second stop—at Emil Nasson's at 10:30 fast time, on west side of lake on Charlevoix and East Jordan road.

Third stop—at Bert Waterman's at 1:00 o'clock fast time, about two miles south and west of East Jordan.

Fourth stop—at William Pearson's at 3:00 p. m., fast time, about one mile west of Boyne Falls.

Mr. Rath, who is well equipped to talk along the lines of alfalfa problems, will discuss them at these several visits. He has been directly associated with alfalfa culture for several years at the Michigan Agricultural college. The time consumed in attendance on these meetings will therefore be well spent.

Charlevoix county can be justly proud of its alfalfa. It is one of the leading alfalfa growing counties of the state. If you have experienced any difficulty in getting a crop of alfalfa and can't exactly discover what the trouble is, by all means plan to attend the nearest demonstration.

A play entitled "Old Fashioned Mothers" will be given at the Atwood Town Hall, Friday evening, August 22nd. Admission, 25 and 15 cents.—Adv. 33-t1.

GRANDDAUGHTER OF MANTON WOMAN WEDS

Miss Charlotte Williams Becomes Mrs. Ransom in Florida

We note the following item in a recent issue of the Deland (Fla.) Daily News:

"A marriage of unusual interest took place Sunday morning, July 20th, at the Baptist church in Lake Helen at 7 o'clock, Rev. E. W. Holland officiating, Miss Charlotte Williams becoming the wife of Mr. Lewis Folsom. Miss Gladys Stone of Detroit and Mr. Harold Mace were the attendants. Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends were present. Mrs. Folsom is one of our young girls, both well and favorably known, and Mr. Folsom has been associated with his father here in the garage business a number of years, and naturally has a large circle of friends. The bride and groom left immediately for a two week's honeymoon at Coronado Beach, after which they will be at home at the Todd cottage."

Mrs. Folsom is a granddaughter of Mrs. R. Williams of Manton, Michigan, who is well known in this city.

A free lecture on Christian Science at the Palace Theatre, Sunday afternoon, August 17, at 3:00 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.—Adv. 33-t1.

LAKE SURVEY BOAT IS SOUNDING FOR DEPTHS

Margaret of U. S. Engineer Dept. Now in Harbor

Curious folk who have noticed, in passing, the handsome, gray-painted, schooner-rigged government steamer, with the insignia of the U. S. Engineer Corps on her stack, which has been lying at the foot of Mason street this week, will be interested to know that she is the Margaret of the U. S. lake survey fleet, with headquarters at Detroit, Captain William Green, commander.

The Margaret has been in these waters for the past two weeks, making Charlevoix her base of operations. She is at present engaged in a depth sounding of Little Traverse Bay and adjacent waters and of late has been coasting up and down between a point four miles this side of Fox Island and Nine Mile Point. The Margaret is a vessel of 165 tons and carries a crew of 19, including the captain and first officer.

Old Place Sold

Miss Susan A. Crosby, of Cincinnati, Ohio, has purchased through the Earl A. Young Real Estate agency the Newman property, formerly the old Cameron place, comprising four and a quarter acres facing on Park avenue, near the end of Antrim street. Miss Crosby will commence improving the property in the spring and will occupy it for the greater part of each year.

The Altar Society of St. Mary's church will hold their annual bazaar and social on August 14th and 15th at St. Mary's Hall.—Adv. 32-t2.

A SECOND OVER-SEAS NARRATIVE

EDWARD SHANAHAN CONTINUES HIS STORY OF CRUISE

Saw Some Real Dungeons at Brest and Knows Why Dark Ages Were Dark

Midshipman Edward Shanahan of the U. S. Naval Academy, who recently returned from the midshipmen's practice squadron's cruise which left Annapolis, Md. on the 5th of last June for foreign waters, is now at Hampton Roads engaged in target practice with the other members of his class. The Courier's readers had the pleasure of reading in our issue of July 9th one of Mr. Shanahan's interesting letters regarding his experiences while on this cruise and this week we are presenting a further account of his trip, contained in the following letter, written under date of July 16th to his mother, Mrs. Lisle Shanahan of this city:

"Dear Mother: Quite a bit has happened since I last wrote to you. I did go to London and had a good time. Saw many things of interest, such as the tower of London, Madame Tussaud's, the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley and many other places, to be sure. I was quite amused at something I saw in the Canadian building at Wembley. You see, each of the several dominions have a building of their own in which they have displayed their products. While in the Canadian building, I saw a striking example of English ignorance of American sports—no one saw anything wrong in having a Lacrosse ball in the well of a catcher's glove.

There is one thing I like about England. The train service is very good. It is about 200 miles from Tor Bay to London. We made the trip each way in a special train in less than four hours. That is, we left the station in London at 7:15 and were at the dock at Tor Bay at 11:15.

You, no doubt, have heard of the ruddy faced English people. Well, it is true, but they are ruddy not so much from health as from ale. And I saw no evidence of the use of powder, so you see the English girls did not appeal much to me. Not so with Les Mademoiselles, but—more of this later.

All in all, our stay at Tor Bay was very enjoyable. When we left, we expected to be in Brest the next day sometime, but we ran into a fog and, as Brest harbor is hard to enter under any conditions, we went around in circles for a day until we could take a sight of the sun and thus get our exact location. Did you know that if the sun is not covered, a navigator can get his position within the length of a ship?

However, bad weather and fogs can't last forever, so finally we came in. As you must know, Brest, France, has one of the best ports in the world, being large enough for 400 battleships to lie at anchor there at one time and that is not a few. When we came in, all we could see of the city was a large hill covered with dirty looking houses. You may be sure I went ashore at the first opportunity.

We were anchored in the port, but there is a breakwater around a small inlet—the real port in the days of the Romans. When we went ashore in the motorsailer, I noticed on each side of the inlet an old fortress.

TRY THESE ON YOUR CAR AND HAVE GAS TO SELL

A story is going around to the effect that a certain local automobile owner installed a new fangled evaporator that was guaranteed to save 20 per cent in gas. Then he put in special spark plugs, that were guaranteed to save 20 per cent of the same precious fluid and an intake super-heater that was guaranteed to save 20 per cent. He next put in a patented rear axle that was also guaranteed to save 20 per cent, and re-tired with a brand new set of tires that promised a 20 per cent savings in gas consumption. Finally, he drained his crank case and refilled it with a new oil guaranteed to increase his mileage 20 per cent. Now, with a fuel economy of 120 per cent, the owner has to stop every hundred miles and bail out the gas tank to keep it from running over!

Later in the day, another youngster and myself happened (that is the word—we just happened) to go to the entrance of one of the fortresses. It is now used as a barracks for French sailors. It was after the hour for visitors but, as we were in uniform, we were allowed to enter. There were three French gobs who acted as guides for four of us. One of them could speak a little English and with our French we were able to understand each other—after a fashion. The first thing they did was to show us a well, or rather pit with water in the bottom. It was about 200 feet deep and four in diameter. They told us that there had been found several human skeletons at the bottom of it. Then they took us into a real dungeon. I had thought I had seen something of the kind in the Tower of London, but this was worse than ever. We had lanterns with us and we sure needed them. The passage way was little more than a narrow tunnel, just high enough to stand up in. Off the passage way were small arches into cells. Several of these cells had been sealed up since the Dark Ages. We went into one room that had been sealed up. In one corner was a hole about three feet deep, dug out by some unfortunate who had been walled in by at least five feet (Continued on Page 8)

FAIR TIME IS NEAR AT HAND

SPECIAL STRESS PLACED ON EXHIBITS THIS YEAR

Whether Farmer or Factoryman, Bring Samples of Your Product and Co-operate

Fair time will soon be here—September 8th to 12th.

The Charlevoix County Fair is, primarily, intended to develop Charlevoix county interests. That means each individual should exhibit the products of his farm, factory, and home, attend the Fair as many times as possible, interest his neighbors in its behalf, and in every way possible be a live wire in its interests.

The Fair officials are this year putting special stress on the matter of exhibits. So many people say, "Well, I could take this or I could take that, but it would not pay me to go so far with such a small amount of exhibits." No doubt those very things are just what are needed to make our Fair a success and a credit to our county. Now, is not there a leader in every community who will take it upon himself to find out what his neighbors have worth exhibiting and see that it reaches the Fair? Please do your best. Let us show how we stand in agricultural prosperity and wealth and so shall our county speak for itself as being a fine place in which to live.

The Fair management invites and urges you to begin today to get your exhibits ready and to boost YOUR Fair. This is the fortieth annual exhibit. Help us to make it the best ever.

Premium books are available at all banks in the county, and also at the three marketing associations, or write or phone the secretary, Frank F. Bird, Charlevoix, Route No. 3, and he will mail you one.

BENJAMIN BROWN IS DODGE AGENT

Takes Over Line and Parts Stock From Wood Estate

The agency for the Dodge Brothers line of automobiles, formerly held by the late H. B. Wood for nearly ten years, has been awarded to the Benjamin Brown Auto Sales Company of this city.

This marks another step in the remarkable progress made by Mr. Brown since his advent in the auto mobile game some ten or twelve years ago.

All of the accessories and parts stock now in possession of the H. B. Wood Estate are included in the transfer, which will take effect on or about the first of September. Sales of the Dodge line have shown phenomenal growth in Charlevoix and Emmet counties during the past few years and the new agency is likely to prove a very profitable acquisition for its new owner.

Tuesday, September 2nd is the date when J. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be at the Hotel Charlevoix. Curing headache a specialty.—Adv. 34-42.

RECEDING LAKE AWAKING FEARS

BORDERING TOWNS SEE SHORE LINE LOWERING

Chicago Drainage Canal Hourly Saps Their Chief Resource and Glory

The following item, gleaned from the columns of the Elk Rapids Progress, under the heading, "Our Lake is Leaving," will forcibly recall to our readers the several articles that have appeared in the Courier relative to our disappearing shore line and its relation to the Chicago drainage canal:

"Whether it is the Chicago drainage canal, or just the unusual luck of Muskegon Heights fishermen during the past few weeks that is to blame, there is one thing certain and that is if something is not done about the lowering of the Lake Michigan lake level, resorts at Mona Lake will have to move their cottages if they want to remain near the lake shore.

At Recreation Park, where one could enter the water at one time near the north end of the dancing casino, now one has to go out beyond the south side of it before wetting his toes. The big slide erected a few years ago for bathers now stands nearly out of water and if one is not careful this summer he will bump his nose in the sand.

All along the shore and especially at the head of the lake the low water level is evident. Those who had fond dreams of Mona Lake becoming Muskegon Heights' harbor in the future now are shaking their heads."

Even a casual inspection of our local lake shores will convince anyone who has lived in Charlevoix for even three or four years that the conditions of which the Muskegon Heights people are complaining have their counterpart here. If you have been in Charlevoix ten or twelve years or more, the change in the shore line is even more striking.

If you are a swimmer, it is probably already a part of your knowledge that one cannot dive off either the Belvedere or the light house pier with the same reckless abandon that once was possible. It not careful, you are just as likely as not to come up with a handful of sand in each fist if you don't float up with a broken neck.

The steamer Griffin's recent encounter with the north side water-main indicates what the change is going to mean to shipping and we can remember that only one or two years ago an out bound freighter grounded her keel near the outer end of the channel and was several hours getting squared away again.

These conditions are serious and they, of course, affect the entire shore line of Lake Michigan. They are the result of a most brazen piece of graft on the part of interests that lie entirely outside this state and that are even now defending themselves from an action in the courts designed to break their hold on a privilege which spells profit for them and disaster for the Lake Michigan ports in whose behalf relief is being sought. The entire weight of an aroused and indignant public opinion should be directed against them.

The Ladies' Guild of the Episcopal church will hold a baked goods sale, Saturday, August 23, at the Betty Shop. All donations will be appreciated.—Adv. 34-11.

HAS MERGED WITH PONTIAC CONCERN

LOCAL FOX RANCH MAKES A STRONG CONNECTION

Demand for Pontiac Strain Foxes Under Pontiac Plan is Growing Fast

Franklin C. Sears, who established the Sears Silver Fox Farms, the first silver fox farm in the Charlevoix district, has announced that, after several weeks of negotiation, his farm has been accepted and merged into the Pontiac Strain organization, and is therefore, now affiliated with the most successful and largest organization operating in the silver fox industry.

The demand for Pontiac Strain foxes—under the Pontiac plan—is growing so fast that this organization cannot produce anywhere near enough foxes to meet the demand.

Mr. Sears tells us that this organization, for the first time in history, is producing and marketing fur under a standard and a trade-mark. Mr. Sears is very happy over his connection with this institution as he says the first requisite for membership in the Pontiac Strain organization is the quality of the foxes acceptable under the Pontiac Strain standard.

The Pontiac Strain organization has under one policy of operation 700 breeding pens and 1,400 Pontiac Strain foxes, representing in value over $2,000,000.

National magazines, such as The Ladies' Home Journal, Vogue, Cosmopolitan, Harper's Bazaar, The Saturday Evening Post, Photoplay and the American magazine, will, beginning with the November issue, carry full page copy telling of the quality and standard of Pontiac Strain ranch raised furs. Naturally, Mr. Sears is most heartily enthusiastic over the outlook for the silver fox industry in general and the Pontiac plan and organization, in particular.

The Sears Silver Fox Farm is out on the East Jordan road about a twenty minutes ride. Visitors are welcome.

PICNIC AT HOUGHTON LAKE LAST SATURDAY

Party of 31 Find Enjoyment Despite the Weather

In spite of the weather last Saturday morning, three carloads left here for Houghton Lake, returning Sunday evening.

The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Cram and granddaughter, Leslie Jayne Cram, Justin Henschew, James Block and four children, and Mr. and Mrs. George Block. They were joined at the lake by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Cram, and two children, Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Cram and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Wenner, Miss Julia Cady, Miss M. Parks and Miss Z. Porter, all of Flint. Henry Jacobs and his brother, Wirt, and the latter's daughter, Maxine, of Pontiac, left here later in the day and joined the picnickers. All had a good time.

Registration Notice August 30th, last day for registration for general primary election to be held September 9th, 1924. Charles H. Lamphey, City Clerk. Adv.—34-42.

HAVE THEIR DUTIES AS WELL AS RIGHTS

Dog Owners Should Remember the Other Fellow Too

Complaints have been coming in to the local authorities and the newspapers from property owners in all sections of the town regarding the havoc made in their flower beds and lawns by stray dogs and the complainants have intimated that if relief was not shortly forthcoming they would take matters into their own hands and owners of these wandering canines would miss their dogs.

Feeling is apt to run high when a dog is killed by a heedless automobile driver or poisoned by a neighbor and such feeling is perfectly natural and excusable. The dog owner is very sensitive and jealous of his rights but he is apt to forget that he also has duties. One of these is to have his dog licensed according to law. Another is to see that his pet does not work injury to his neighbor.

It is possible that some day more severe restrictions will be placed upon the ownership of pets within the limits of thickly populated districts. This evil day for the city dog lover may be postponed by the use of a little ordinary common sense and consideration for others.

PETOSKEY NOW LEADS LEAGUE

WON FROM EAST JORDAN SUNDAY TWO TO ONE

Boyer City Defeats Pellston by 4 to 2 and Harbor Beats Local Team 4 to 0

The Petoskey baseball team with four games won and only one defeat now leads the Northern Michigan Resort league. Petoskey displaced East Jordan, the league leaders, Sunday winning one of the season's best games at the Fair Grounds diamond at Petoskey by a score of 2 to 1. While Petoskey was sending East Jordan down the ladder Boyer City was doing the same thing to Pellston. Boyer City winning 4 to 0. East Jordan and Pellston have each lost two games while Petoskey has lost but one.

Sunday's game at the Fair grounds on Charlevoix avenue was a regular big league exhibition of the national pastime. The pitching was of the best, Thomas allowing East Jordan five hits, and Gunderson allowing Petoskey seven. There were many thrilling exhibitions of fielding and many tight plays.

East Jordan took the lead in the fourth inning, two doubles and a single resulting in one run. Kamradt doubled after one was down.

He tried to stretch it into a triple and was thrown out Wenz to Dugray at third, Kamradt singled and scored on Gunderson's double. Gunderson also tried to stretch his hit into a triple and was out Wenz to Dugray at third.

Petoskey threatened in the second when Dugray doubled, and Wenz went to first on a base on balls. Dugray was out Diederich to DeLoof on Lennox's fielder's choice, Starkloff struck out and Wenz was out at the plate on Bailey's fielder's choice. Ward to Nilligan. Petoskey tied the count in the eighth when Gurney walked went to second on Dunne's out to center and scored when Kamradt dropped Dugray's long single to right field. The Petoskey players put the inning over in the ninth. Valley singled and Thomas sacrificed. He went to third when Cory fumbled Fessenden's scorching grounder and scored on Gurney's hit.

There was a good crowd out.

MISS NEWLAND IS DEAD AT AGE 41

End Came at Her Atwood Home Last Saturday

Katie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Newland, died at the home of her parents near Atwood, on Saturday, August 9th, aged 41 years. Funeral services were held at the home on August 12th, Rev. Schroeder and Mr. Clark officiating. Katie was dearly loved and will be greatly missed by her family and friends.

Surviving the deceased besides her parents are two sisters, Mrs. E. R. Jones of Route 4 and Mrs. M. B. McPherson of Lowell, Mich.; also two brothers, Bert A. and J. P. Newland, both of Detroit.

BIG PICNIC AT WHITING PARK

SECOND ANNUAL EVENT COMES ON LABOR DAY

Field Sports, League Baseball, Band Music and Speeches Will Fill the Day with Joy

The "Everybody's Picnic" at Whiting Park, which is now established as an annual affair in this county, the first one having been held on August 30th of last year, is scheduled this time for Labor Day, Monday, September 1st. The donor of the park, Perry Whiting of California, has promised to attend the picnic and there will be several other prominent speakers, including a representative of the Michigan Agricultural College.

No definite program has as yet been announced, but the following committees have been appointed to look after arrangements and details:

Sports and Entertainment
John Parker, Boyne City.

Frank Thompson, Boyne City.
John Porter, East Jordan.
Dr. W. H. Parks, East Jordan.
Charles H. Emery, Charlevoix.
Leo Powers, Charlevoix.
H. C. Myers, Boyne Falls.

Baseball
Dr. W. H. Parks, East Jordan.
W. P. Vought, Boyne City.
Leo Powers, Charlevoix.

Publicity
A. J. Usher, Charlevoix.
Ira Adams, Charlevoix.
G. A. Lisk, East Jordan.
E. E. Ormsby, Boyne City.

Finance
E. N. Clink, East Jordan.
Dr. Guy C. Conkle, Boyne City.
Arthur Bergeon, Charlevoix.
W. J. Pearson, Boyne Falls.

The picnic will be a basket affair and there will be music by the Boyne City band, field sports and a baseball game between the East Jordan and Charlevoix league teams, originally scheduled for Charlevoix, but changed to the picnic grounds as an additional attraction. The American Legion has been granted all concession privileges at the picnic. Invitation is cordially extended to residents of the four adjacent counties, Antrim, Otsego, Cheboygan and Emmet, to join with us in celebrating the second anniversary of Mr. Whiting's splendid gift to the public.

Whiting Park, which comprises some 200 acres, is pronounced by officials of the state park department to be one of the most beautiful natural parks in Michigan. The improvements now under way, including the opening of several fine driveways through the grounds, bid fair to put the park in first place in point of beauty and appointments. The work is being done under supervision of the Whiting Park Commission, a permanent body organized to control expenditures and oversee improvements.

HAROLD GEIKEN WEDS MISS WARE OF DAYTON

Marriage Comes As Surprise to His Charlevoix Friends

Harold G. Geiken, son of Captain Geik C. Geiken of this city, and Miss Ruth Ware, daughter of Mrs. H. M. Ware, of Dayton, Ohio, were married by the Rev. C. W. Long at the Congregational parsonage in this city on August 9th. Charles Bailey, of Petoskey, and Miss Ann Wymond, of Warsaw, Ind., acted as groomsmen and bridesmaid for the contracting parties.

Mrs. Geiken, who is a graduate of the Indiana College of Physical Education, is at present employed at the Belvedere Hotel. Mr. Geiken has been taking an accountancy course at Ferris Institute for the past four years. At the close of the resort season Mr. and Mrs. Geiken expect to make their home in Detroit. They are at present staying with Mr. Geiken's father on Belvedere avenue.

The news of his marriage is a distinct surprise to Mr. Geiken's friends and acquaintances here, as it was not thought that he contemplated taking a step of this nature so soon. Charlevoix friends wish the young couple long years of happiness and prosperity.

Mrs. Amy Bruley, of 102 W. Huribut St., will take school teachers to board and room for $10.00 per week. A real home, good cooking, nice, clean warm rooms and plenty of good music.—Adv. 33-42 pd.

Seeing Things

CORRESPONDENCE

BARNARD

Still raining! Dr. G. DeYoung, of Zeeland, Mich., will occupy the pulpit at the South Barnard church on Sunday, August 24th.

Margaret and Willie Potter accompanied Rev. C. Dolfin to the Loeb Farms, also Petoskey and Bay View on Monday last.

Wayne Hoyt and Donald Bennett, of Flint, both formerly of Barnard, were callers at the A. J. Bolhuis home on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Lewis and children of Iron Mountain, Mich., stopped over from their motor trip to Detroit and Ann Arbor, and visited old friends in Barnard on Sunday.

A. J. Bolhuis spent a week at Holland and Coopersville, having returned with his brother, Frank Bolhuis, who visited him recently. Mr. Bolhuis attended the family reunion while there.

Mr. and Mrs. John Walker and daughters, Irene and Lena, also their daughters and sons-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shanks and Mr. and Mrs. Will Seckmiller, of Flint, motor-ed to Kingsley for a few days trip last week.

Snap-on Interchangeable Socket Wrenches, every motor owner should have a set. Fits any nut on your car. Get them at Brown's Garage.—Adv. 30-tf.

PHELPS

Fred Mason's home has been treated to a new coat of paint. It looks fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stevens were business callers in Charlevoix Saturday afternoon.

A new grandson arrived at the home of Harmon Himebauch, Saturday, August 9th.

School starts next Monday morning, August 25th. Mrs. Countis Mascho will be the teacher.

Mrs. Elsie Higbie and Mrs. Howard Hardy, of Manton, are spending a few days at the Francisco home.

The Phelps Marketing association is changing managers again. Hugh Nelson, of Charlevoix, is to be the new manager.

Miss Alda Emery is a guest, of Mr. and Mrs. Francisco a few days, before taking up her studies at Battle Creek, Michigan.

Matt Routley, of Bellaire, is doing the mason work on the basement and walls of the new house that Harmon Himebauch is starting to build on his farm.

Wilbur Himebauch and Ralph Klooster drove to Frederick on Thursday of last week to pick huckleberries. They returned Friday and reported that the berries were scarce.

Mr. and Mrs. James Moulton are spending a few weeks at the home of H. L. Francisco. Mrs. Moulton was formerly Grace Francisco. The young people will teach in the high school at Bear Lake the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Straw entertained a number of friends at their home Monday evening, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Newton, of Skikonnish, Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Newton expect to return to their home in about a week.

Miss Helen McElroy entertained a number of friends and neighbors at a birthday party at her home Monday evening. Games and conversation were enjoyed and refreshments were served, including a lovely birthday cake with candles. The guests departed at a late hour, wishing Miss McElroy many more happy birthdays.

Wednesday evening of last week occurred the annual meeting of the Phelps Marketing association. There was a large turnout of members and Hugh Nelson, of Charlevoix, was hired as manager for the coming year. Mr. Nelson is experienced in the produce business and is a promising young business man. So here's hoping that Mr. Nelson's management will be a success and we all wish him good luck.

Snap-on Interchangeable Socket Wrenches, every motor owner should have a set. Fits any nut on your car. Get them at Brown's Garage.—Adv. 30-tf.

EVELINE

A nice rain we had last week. The oats cutting has started in this neighborhood.

WILL COST $37,000

TO REBUILD PLANT

Engineers Give Estimate on New Bellaire Station

Engineers who have been studying the situation at Bellaire, where the village lighting plant was undermined and swept away July 19, have fixed upon $37,000 as the amount that will be required to rebuild and equip the plant and rebuild the portion of the dam washed out. This is not taking into consideration the salvaging of the water wheel and "umbrella type" generator which are not believed to be damaged.

The plant when rebuilt will be situated some distance north of the site of the old plant, and will be some distance down stream from the dam instead of its foundations forming part of the dam.

A steel penstock will conduct the water to the wheels instead of an open flume. The waste-way will be built entirely separate from the plant. It was the undermining of the waste-way that caused the wrecking of the plant last month.

It is expected that the new plant, above the cement, will be a temporary structure, for a small town has to think twice before spending $37,000 all at once. Plans for bonding are now before the attorney general's office at Lansing, for his interpretation of recent municipal bonding laws.—Mancelona Herald.

MANY HURT IN

AUTO WRECK

Two Ford Touring Cars Come Together During Sunday Rain

One of the worst automobile accidents of the season occurred during the rain storm late Sunday evening when two Ford touring cars crashed on Charlevoix road, near the Cement plant creek, west of Petoskey. One car, driven by Albert Billideau, was headed toward Petoskey, while the other, driven by Miss Lola Brecheisen, was going west toward the Brecheisen farm near Bay Shore. There was considerable rain and wind at the time and the drivers had trouble seeing the highway plainly. The left front wheels of each machine caught, turning the cars turtle.

In the Billideau car were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Billideau and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Park. Mrs. Park and Mr. and Mrs. Billideau were pinned beneath their machine. Mrs. Park received serious injuries to her back. Mr. Park having his hips and back injured and Mr. Billideau injuries to one shoulder and other bruises. Mrs. Billideau also had one shoulder badly bruised and received other injuries.

With Miss Brecheisen were her mother, Mrs. Alice Brecheisen and her young brother. Mrs. Brecheisen had her collar bone broken and was badly bruised and her daughter was injured about the face and head. The little boy escaped injury.

An Appreciation of Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

THERE'S just one way you can know the vast difference between Red Crown and other gasolines. That is by asking Red Crown to get you out of difficulties. It does it every time.

Here's one man's experience:

"Red Crown had been my engine fuel for many years—long tried, well tested, and entirely satisfactory—

"But, in a foolish moment, YOU KNOW, on the advice of a (so-called high-test) gasoline salesman, I changed my brand, and for several months used other kinds of gasoline with various unsettling results, as: Short mileage, with more frequent filling of my gas tank; hard to start after the lighter elements were used out of my tank; lack of power on a hill, with always in low as I climbed; and, to top my difficulties, one day I ran out of 'gas' on the hill.

"Then I was cured. I had always carried a gallon of Red Crown under the seat, and I put it in the tank and climbed the hill on high gear for the first time in months. Red Crown for me from now on."

Furthermore, Red Crown takes a hint with a haste that will delight you. It has the right attitude toward its job—peppy, active, ready to anticipate your desires, and always dependable.

Forestall trouble. Put Red Crown in your tank now—and laugh at sand, grades and mud!

An Announcement and an Invitation

Visit the Sears' Silver Fox Farm—a short drive out the East Jordan Road—see how the most beautiful of all Furs is raised under fence!

No Matter what State you live in The Pontiac Plan—will put you in a State of Prosperity.

As surely as Silver Foxes Breed—Increase, and Yield the most beautiful of all furs—and the only one which cannot be successfully imitated—so surely will they multiply dollars for their owners!

Low production cost—plus high market price—equals—Much profit.

Is your wisdom awake?

We shall see.

The United States Government Department of Agriculture Bulletin 1115 in its Introduction says,—Silver Fox Farming has attracted wide attention, chiefly because of the enormous profits derived from the sale of pelts and breeding stock. As a fur animal propagated in captivity the Silver fox has no rival, and both live foxes and their pelts are in demand. Probably no other live-stock enterprise pays larger returns for the money invested.

PONTIAC STRAIN FOXES, AND THE PONTIAC PLAN MEANS MILLIONS FOR FURS RAISED IN MICHIGAN

The Pontiac Plan, means that you do not need a place to raise foxes yourself. For under Pontiac Plan Service we will select foxes for you—raise them—breed them—sell the offspring as breeders, or sell the pelts for your account. In addition we will GUARANTEE YOU 100 PER CENT INCREASE—INSURE YOUR FOXES AGAINST LOSS BY DEATH OR FROM ANY OTHER CAUSE WHATSOEVER—in short, here you command expert and worry-free service at little cost.

The Announcement

In order to enlarge its capacity for service and to present to Silver Fox owners—the Benefits of a large organization operated along Broad Business lines—the Sears' Silver Fox Farm—is now a member of the Pontiac Strain Organization and the entire output of this Ranch will be marketed by this strong Institution.

The Pontiac Plan is a strong foundation—upon which to build—or increase—your fortune!

Here's just another way of saying that you're making a lot of money—safely, "I own Pontiac Strain Foxes."

WEEDS AND HEALTH

All weeds must be cut, according to a state law, between July 1 and September 1. This ruling was made at the instigation of the state board of health, stating that destruction of weeds is essential to health.

Hay fever is a disease caused for the most part by irritation from plant pollens. Three forms of hay fever—the early spring, the early summer, and the late summer or fall types—are recognized, although the symptoms are essentially the same in each. Each type is caused by the plant pollens maturing in its respective season. An individual that is susceptible usually suffers from but one of these seasonal varieties, although some are afflicted with two or even all three. The autumn form is by far the most common.

Pollens from a great variety of plants are known to produce hay fever occasionally but those most commonly causing the disease, at least in the eastern and northern United States, are the rag-weeds. Of these there are several species.

Ragweeds frequent uncultivated areas such as roadsides, vacant lots and fence corners. They flower from about the middle of August, to the middle of October unless killed earlier by frost. During the flowering season each normal plant produces billions of pollen. The individual grains are so buoyant that on windy days they easily float five miles or more in sufficient numbers to cause nasal irritation to susceptible persons.

More than 1,000,000 persons in the United States suffer annually from hay fever. Depending on the susceptibility of the patient and the amount of pollen in the air, the attacks vary in severity from the symptoms of a mild cold to complete incapacitation.

Since nearly all of this suffering is preventable by destroying the hay fever producing plants, the eradication of the causative agents becomes a problem worthy of serious consideration by public health officials.

What can be done in this direction? If the offender is a tree, such as an oak or a maple, its destruction would generally be entirely impractical, but if it is a grass or a weed (as is usually the case), its control is feasible, and becomes a matter of economics.

Ragweeds may be prevented from growing by cultivation or by thick seeding with clover. Vacant lots should be planted to gardens or plowed and sown with white clover or alfalfa. Areas impractical for cultivation, such as road sides and other waste places, should be mowed before the plants pollinate. A second mowing may be necessary if the frosts are late. Health officers should take care that the grass and weed ordinances are enforced by the city officials.

BACKWARD CHILDREN'S EYES
Investigations made by the Eyesight Conservation Council of America indicates that 2,000,000 children are retarded in their school courses because of defective vision. The United States bureau of education says that elementary and secondary education in this country cost an average of $64.16 per pupil per year in 1920. Perhaps it would be more now. But taking it as a basis it is evident that defective vision in school children costs the public very close to $130,000,000 annually.

It is a large sum, but it is not the only waste attributable to that cause. Many a "bad" boy or girl, causing trouble in school room, on the playground and at home, has become friendly and reasonable and teachable when defective vision has been discovered and corrected. Until such correction is affected, however, there is a tremendous waste of potential power and energy. Both the child and society lose much, too, if the child grows up without having his eyesight cared for. Inefficiency, lowered earning power and less competent co-operation with others result from defective vision.

Can anything be done about this? Occasionally, in some communities, something is done which shows how much more might be done. In one city, among 20,000 cases sent to a public school eye clinic for correction of refractive errors it was found that 60 to 70 per cent of them were classified as backward, mentally deficient, stupid or habitually left behind. After their eyes had been properly treated 70 to 80 per cent of these children immediately improved in their school work and even caught up with their normal grades. The remaining 20 to 30 per cent that did not improve were retarded by other causes than eye trouble.

LA FOLLETTE
The noun "economies" can now be compared as readily as an adjective or adverb, the three degrees being John Law, William Jennings Bryan and Robert M. La Follette—the positive, comparative and superlative, respectfully.

John Law, it will be recalled, is the man who tried to make France wealthy by the simple expedient of issuing fiat or paper money to take the place of gold.

William Jennings Bryan advanced a step further by trying to do the same thing, by the use of silver as a substitute for gold.

Robert M. La Follette went both of these gentlemen one better. Instead of inflating the value of paper, or even of silver to the importance of gold, he has been "over-capitalizing" work, which in the end can have but the same result. Even now, if there is any person who doubts this statement let him ask any intelligent farmer as to the retention of the price levels of those things he has to buy, and those things he has to sell, compared with the time before these new theories were woven into laws providing for governmental wage-fixing.

If there is anyone who thinks that the La Follette theories about business are sound, let him ascertain how many factories have left Wisconsin because of the attacks upon business.

If he is still unconvinced let him ascertain why there are only two lumber yards in the city of Detroit that can economically bring lumber into this city by boat—one cause of higher lumber prices in Detroit.

If the La Follette ideas are good for the state let him ask why the D. & C. Steamship Company was forced to withdraw service to Mackinaw City and upper Michigan points.

If still unconvinced about La Follettism and what it stands for, let him ask why the stars and stripes have been supplanted by the standard of Japan on the merchant marine of the Pacific Ocean.

That is what La Follette means for business. Is it any wonder that there is a depression in business just now with the La Follette fleet of submarines ready to torpedo business at any time?—Detroit Saturday Night.

Fill them with grease and the squeaks are gone. Equip your car with the Alemite High Pressure Lubricating System. Benj. Brown has them.—Adv. 30-1f.

HAS AN ARTICLE IN BUILDER'S JOURNAL

Earl A. Young Disagrees with Eddie Guest

In the August number of "The Building Age and Builders' Journal," the largest builders' trade journal in the United States, appears a two page article by our enterprising fellow-townsmen and real estate operator, Earl A. Young.

This article, which occupies pages
50 and 51 of the August issue, is entitled, "Summer and Winter, Day and Night, This Bungalow Home Charms," and contains a description of Mr. Young's stone bungalow on Park avenue in this city. There are five excellent cuts of photographs of the bungalow, showing both summer and winter scenes including quite an attractive bit of the wooded park on which the dwelling fronts. There is also a cut of the floor plan of the house.

In prefacing his description, Mr.
Young quotes the Michigan poet, Edgar Guest, but takes exception to the latter's idea, appearing in one of his well-known poems, to the effect that "It takes a heap o' livin' in a house to make it home." Mr. Young says he hates to contradict Ed, but his house was a home from the start and argues that "if people would spend more time and thought before they start to build and give attention to all of the details that go into the building of a residence, the 'heap o' livin' could be cut down to such an extent that the house would be home from the very beginning."

MEGGISON'S CHANCES IN U. P. LOOK GOOD

Candidate Now Stumping There Is Much Encouraged

Hon. Thomas Meggison, who has been stumping the northern peninsula during the past week in the interests of his candidacy for Congressman from the Eleventh District, writes us that the opposition in that part of the state seems to be pretty well split up among his rival candidates.

Mr. Meggison says that he is confident of a good vote in both of the above named counties, especially in Luce county. At Curtis in Mackinac county he received very gratifying assurances of support and attended a big picnic—a very live affair at which a large number of good speakers entertained the crowd.

The people of the 11th district see to be awakening to the fact that they have an opportunity in Mr. Meg-gison's candidacy to elect a congressman who will use his best judgment and entire effort in honest furtherance of their best interests.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Friday, August 22

Paramount presents Gloria Swanson in "A SOCIETY SCANDAL." Never has Gloria Swanson offered such marvelous acting nor wore such an array of gorgeous gowns as she does in her classy picture. Also a Cameo comedy, "FILM FOOLISH."

Saturday and Sunday, August 23 and 24

Warner Brothers classics present Sinclair Lewis' story, "BABBITT." Just released. Once in a while a real honest-to-goodness screen play comes along that is filled with the things that make you think as they entertain you—that offers real acting; is mounted in a realistic manner and intelligently adapted—such a picture is "BABBITT." Also a Lyman H. Howe Hodge Podge reel, "MRS. HIPPO."

Monday, August 25

Paramount presents Agnes Ayres in "THE GUILTY ONE." A fine love mystery-drama adapted from the popular stage play of the same name, and the greatest picture Agnes Ayres ever made. Also a Cameo comedy, "HOT SPOTS."

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 26-27-28

Harold Lloyd in his biggest and best picture, "GIRL SHY." A life-time of laughter crowded into eight rousing, rip-roaring reels. The Prince of Merry-Makers at his best in his best and latest production. Added attraction—"AMONG THE MISSING," by William Nigh. One of the biggest novelties the screen has had in many a day. A type of picture entirely new and original. Special matinee on Tuesday. Special prices—children 20c and adults, 40c.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Saturday and Sunday, August 23 and 24

A Wm. Fox special production, "THE PLUNDERER," by Roy Norton. A gripping story of gold mining and human hearts. Featuring Frank Mayo, Tom Santschi, Evelyn Brent and Peggy Shaw. A picture of real action and many thrills. Also a two reel Our Gang comedy, "STAGE FRIGHT."

Wednesday and Thursday, August 27 and 28

Jackie Coogan in his latest production, "LITTLE ROBINSON CRUSOE." Just released. Story by Willard Mack. A South Sea adventure—with Jackie back in the role of a real American kid. Thrills, adventure, fun, colorful with tropic splashes of sunlight and gorgeous with exotic birds and foliage. Picturesque and thrilling with comedy laughing through the tears of a great story. This production is said to be the best Jackie Coogan has ever done. Also a two reel comedy. Please Note:—There will be a special matinee at the Palace Theatre Wednesday for this production.

The Chew That Cheers

A little BEECH-NUT Chewing Tobacco now and then
Is just the thing for regular men.

More punch than a pipe. Fine for fatigue and indigestion—good for the teeth and gums.

Big do-ers are all chewers. Inventors and jurists, deep thinkers and hard workers, crack athletes, star golfers, ball players, keep BEECH-NUT Chewing Tobacco sales beyond the 250 million package mark.

Waxy leaf, cut just the right size—chosen from the best crops—unvaryingly blended—flavored with the purest ingredients—all stems and litter removed—prepared and sealed without one touch of human hands.

10c is flattered every time it meets a package.

AT THE MOVIES

PALACE THEATRE

Plays Role of Bashful Youth
Harold Lloyd's latest feature Pathé-comedy, "Girl Shy," introduces him in the role of a bashful country boy who is trying to make a secret study of women. It is said that his adventures with the fair sex offer greater opportunities for laughter than any of the previous Lloyd pictures. "Girl Shy" also includes in its cast Jobyna Ralston, who plays opposite the spectacled comedian, as she did in his last success, "Why Worry?" Coming to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with a matinee Tuesday afternoon.

Screen Version of "Babbitt"
America is made up of millions of "Babbitts." They are the backbone of this country; the practical schemers of commercial progress and civic development. But—in spite of their materialism, their souls crave the beauty and romance their lives have no place for.

The home of a "Babbitt" is the middle-class home half our presidents, judges, artists and literati have come from, and it is no less a photoplay than the Warner Bros. latest picture, "Babbitt," as adapted from the great Sinclair Lewis novel of the same name, that will be shown at the Palace Theatre, Saturday and Sunday.

Deservedly, the book "Babbitt" has been proclaimed the greatest American novel, depicting, as it does, the life of Geo. F. Babbitt, his home, his family circle, his business and his friends, which is typical of the great army of Americans that make the wheels go round in this tremendous country of ours.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

"Little Robinson Crusoe"
It's a long way from wooden shoes, dykes, canals, windmills, and the bitter cold of the winter that visits the Flemish countryside to the coconut palms, banana trees and straw thatched huts of an eternally baking South Sea isle, but that's the jump Jackie Coogan has taken between "A Boy of Flanders" and his newest Metro-Goldwyn picture, "Little Robinson Crusoe," which comes to the Majestic Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

The amazing experiences and adventures of the boy and his cat on the island populated chiefly by native blacks, provides a story entirely at variance with any of those which have thus far served as starring vehicles for the tiny genius. The appeal of the film is wide, and was produced as entertainment for the whole family. It was supervised by Jack Coogan, Sr.

Notable Performers in "The Plunderer"

Nearly every member of the cast in the William Fox production of "The Plunderer," from the story by Roy Norton, has had considerable experience on the stage, Frank Mayo has the leading role and is supported by Evelyn Brent, Tom Santschi, James Mason, Peggy Shaw, Edward Phillips and Dan Mason.

In addition to their experience on the speaking stage, all of these players have had enviable screen careers. "The Plunderer" comes to the Majestic Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. The story concerns a romance of the western gold mines and is said to be startling in its swiftly moving action. A fight scene between Mayo and Santschi resulted in injury to both performers. Another scene shows the result when a huge dam is dynamited, turning loose upon a little mining town a flood of water.

According to advance notices, the picture reveals a succession of such spectacles and the talented performance of the cast enhances the thrilling realism of the scenes.

Political Announcement
As a Republican citizen, I announce myself a candidate for nomination for the office of Sheriff of Charlevoix county and pledge myself to the electors that, if nominated at the primary election in September and elected at the following general election, I will give the duties of the office my personal and best attention and that I will, to the best of my ability, enforce the proper observation of the statutes within this jurisdiction.
Ernest L. Dawson.

Your Securities

In handling stocks and bonds, owners have three aims:

1. Protection from theft and fire. (The average home or office is not a safe place for stocks or bonds.)
2. Collection of income promptly. (Delay is common among individuals.)
3. The proceeds made available and a record to use in making income tax returns.

At an annual charge of one dollar per annum per $1,000 face value of the securities (minimum charge $12), The Michigan Trust Company will take all these matters off your mind. IT BECOMES YOUR FINANCIAL SECRETARY. The securities are kept in its modern vault; the coupons are clipped; certificates of ownership are attended to when necessary; collection is made of principle and coupons; the proceeds are passed to your credit, subject to your check; you are notified thereof; interest is credited monthly at the rate of 2% per annum on your average daily credit balance above $100; and necessary information for income tax purposes is prepared for your later use. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson and children of Kalamazoo, Mich., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Parsons during part of last week.

Under the supervision of Tice Coeling, of Ellsworth, Paul Veenstra's new home is well under way. It is the bungalow type and a credit to our community.

The Atwood pickle station is receiving some handsome specimens of the pickle crop. Floyd Wagner, of Norwood, is sorting the crop with a smile and hands the growers the deserved check.

Don't forget that next Friday evening at the hall there will be a real old-fashioned play entitled "The Old Fashioned Mother." Come on you old and young and jam the hall full. You will laugh to your heart's content. Proceeds to apply on a piano fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller, who have been visiting at the Brown home for the past ten days, returned to their home in Indiana on Tuesday. They like this part of the globe just fine and the indications are at present that they may locate here in the near future. Who wouldn't?

Dr. Slee, superintendent of the M. E. church, will preach next Sunday at 10:15 a. m. This is the last quarterly meeting of this year. The annual conference meets at Jackson, Michigan, on September 10th, 1924.

"Wonder what we will get next year?" Just wait—we know no one will be disappointed.

One man informs us that he actually counted in one day 487 cars on M-11. Fifty-three years ago we used to go to Pine River, (Charlevoix now), traveling horse back, ox team, buck-board or on foot, taking about 16 hours to do just a little business at the old Lester store on Bridge street which stood near where the Priest studio now stands. Now we go to Charlevoix the beautiful in from 18 to 25 minutes. Uncle Geo. Van Pelt is now eighty-eight years old. He has stated a million times (or less) that cement roads were the best and cheapest in the long run. Now we will all holler three times: "Hurrah for cement roads."

Rumors of a wedding! Thirty-two degrees Monday morning.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY NURSERY

It has been a real delight to realize that so many hundreds of householders, so many families, have had a true regard for the attractiveness and beauty of trees and flowering plants. It would be a treat for you to come to the nursery, enjoy a walk through the greenery and examine the evergreens of countless varieties and the flowering plants.

If you are planning on Fall planting for hedge or shrubbery, by all means, you should come now and make a selection. But it is not necessary to be a buyer to be welcome at the Charlevoix County Nursery. We are nature lovers here and like to have others enjoy what we enjoy too without any obligation to buy.

JUDGE TUTTLE HAS A FINE PUBLIC RECORD

Is Republican Candidate for U. S. Senator, Both Terms

Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, of Detroit, has announced himself as a candidate for election to the office of United States senator from Michigan for both the long and the short term. Judge Tuttle was born on a farm near Leslie, Michigan, on November 8, 1868. This would make him 56 years old—an age of ripened experience and prime mental powers. He is a graduate of the literary department, University of Michigan, 1892 and of the law department, 1895. During 1899-1903, he was the very efficient prosecutor of Ingham county. He was state senator for the period of 1907-11, U. S. district attorney for the eastern district of Michigan, 1911-12 and judge of the U. S. court, eastern district of Michigan, since that date.

In addition to his manifold public duties, Judge Tuttle has found time to successfully manage a large farm which he has owned for years. The outstanding feature of the judge's career has been his rigid stand for law enforcement and he has always been and is now 100 per cent Republican. We believe that in these lawless and uncertain times, such a man is needed sorely in the councils of the nation.

MEGGISON'S PROSPECTS LOOK GOOD

His Qualifications Make Strong Appeal to the Public

The electors of the Eleventh Congressional District are fast becoming aware of the situation regarding the selection of their representative in Congress and they are comparing candidates. They are looking toward Thomas Meggison of Central Lake, with increasing interest, and they are finding in him the qualities which his neighbors and friends have known and recognized for many years. "Honest Tom Meggison" is the name by which he is referred to by all who know him, and it means all that the name implies. His election to Congress will mean that this district will be represented by a man whose every effort will be devoted to the best interests of the people of his district, the state and nation. His entire public and private life has been an open book. He has served two terms in the legislature of the state, was speaker pro tem of that body at the last session and it was conceded by all that no member had a greater influence or worked harder for the best interests of the state. He had the confidence of all and was admired by all for his fairness, ability and courage.

He is not a hand-shaking, boastful, vote-seeking politician, but a plain, steady, hard-thinking and honest citizen. The elector who votes for him will make no mistake, and may walk from the polls with a clear conscience and satisfied of a duty well done.

Annual Event Took Place at Susan Lake Last Thursday

The Burgess Sunday school held their annual picnic last Thursday, August 14th, at Susan Lake. The weather man favored the picnicers with a splendid day and about 60 people were present to do justice to the bountiful pot-luck dinner.

Missionary G. A. Weaver was present at the picnic but, owing to another appointment, had to leave directly after dinner. The afternoon was spent by the older people in visiting, while the kiddies had great fun bathing in the lake.

At a late hour in the afternoon the merry-makers dispersed, each one expressing the sentiment of all that they had enjoyed a full and profitable day.

of stone on all sides. In the direction he was digging is was thirteen feet. The only opening was a hole about six inches square through which they lowered food and water and through which came all the air necessary for life. I think I now understand why the Dark Ages were dark. In those days, it was worth a man's life to have an idea even.

During the war, there were many American sailors stationed there and on some of the walls were many American names and addresses. Many of the walls were first built by the Romans. You can recognize these because of the scheme. They had a row of red stone, then 13 of gray and then another of red.

The main street of Brest is Rue de Siam. I can't say anything of its beauty or grandeur—it hasn't any. One thing, however, that would interest many Americans—about every third or fourth store they sold drinks. But, in spite of this, I have seen very few drunks except American sailors. Sort of a black-eye for our far-famed prohibition, n'est ce pas?

By the time I got to Gibraltar I will have seen three of Europe's best known capitals. London and Paris were wonderful. I wonder what Brussels will be like. I wonder if they sell Brussels sprouts with all their meals. Well, I hope to know before long. It has been a very long time since I have received any mail whatsoever—not since we left Tor Bay and that was quite a while ago.

I have been changed from the deck force to the black gang. In other words, instead of working hard scrubbing decks, I am now working hard shoveling around ashes. I don't know which is the worse or better, but it is a change.

There is much of beauty to be seen and many things to be admired in Paris. The city seemed much more like an American city than did London. That is, the streets are wider and the buildings cleaner. If I were to advise any one to make a choice between seeing either, I would recommend Paris. Also, you get so much more for your money, if you don't let them rob you. Anything that you would say cost a dollar, you can usually get for four or five francs, or for about twenty-five cents.

Well, mother, I must say good-night for this time, as I have the mid-watch, which is from 12:00 to 4:00 a. m."

Dogs Kill Sheep

Will Mayne and Mrs. William Sutton, whose farms are in the Norwood district, have lost quite a few sheep lately through the depredations of stray dogs. The ownership of the dogs, if they are owned at all, has not been traced, but justice of the peace, Jim Heeres, is working on the case.

SHANAHAN'S 3RD LETTER AT HAND

TREATS OF INCIDENTS IN BEL-GIAN CITIES

Finds People of Brussels and Antwerp Have Not Forgotten
Our Good Offices

The third letter of Midshipman Edward Shanahan, which appears below, continues his account of experiences while on the midshipmen's practice cruise in European waters, covering the details of their stay in Belgium and is dated, July 29th, on board the U. S. S. New York.

"Dear Mother:—This letter and the one I wrote before it will no doubt reach you at the same time, with the same time mark on them. However, they were written quite a while apart and there has happened so much since I sealed it that I feel another letter would not be amiss. You will wish to know what it is, so here goes.

By far, Antwerp is the best port and Belgium the best country we have visited in many ways. In the first place, Belgium is not a world power, as was France and England. Therefore, they felt no jealousy of our power and position among the nations of the world. In both France and England, the people were very nice to us—so long as our money was being spent. They were very hospitable as long as we paid for that hospitality. In Antwerp it was very different. There were three or four receptions or teas given for the crew and midshipmen. The first one was "The Baron's Reception." Every one who went said that it was wonderful; everyone enjoyed themselves to the limit. After it was well under way, the host "busted out" the drinks and refreshments—all you wished, too. I was not fortunate enough to be one of the fortunate ones there.

Shortly after this, I got 48 hours liberty. I lost no time in going to Brussels, as it is only about an hour's ride from Antwerp.

As soon as we had found a good but reasonable hotel, we set out to see the town. After we had wandered around for a while, we asked a certain Belgian where the post office was, as one of us had a letter he wished to mail. This Belgian (I forgot his name) had lived for two years in England. He not only told us where it was but offered to show us the way. I went with the other midshipman. It was natural that we should ask him a few questions about Brussels as we went. After we got to the post office, he offered to show us about the town. He surely was an efficient guide. He took us everywhere, explaining everything as he went along. On three different occasions he stopped in at some wine shop so that we might quench our thirst (water is very hard to get in Europe) and each time he absolutely refused to let us pay the bill. To be sure, it never amounted to more than five francs, or 25c in American money, but, nevertheless, it was something.

While we were walking along one of the streets, I remarked at the number of flags seen flying and asked him if they were displayed in such a manner all the while. His reply was strange. "No," he said, "we only fly the flags on holidays and the day before." Then he added, "But we have a holiday about every other day." I wish I could remember all of the things he told us, for it was all interesting.

They have some very beautiful parks in Brussels. We walked up several terraces on our way to the King's palace. This building is very impressive—much more so than the English palace. From here, one is able to get a wonderful view of the city.

The King, at the time, was in Switzerland, but was coming back in the morning (Sunday), for Monday was the national holiday, something resembling the Fourth of July. It celebrates the day Belgium established her independence from the Netherlands.

Always before, I had an idea that Belgium was a little corner lopped off from France and called an independent country. Nothing is farther from the truth. Even though the people of Brussels call their city "The Little Paris," it is no more Parisian than is London. And Brussels is more like France than anything else in Belgium. The people of Belgium are more industrious, and in fact are much better and everything seems much cleaner.

They tell us that Belgium's recovery from the war was the most rapid of any of the countries. I could see no evidence anywhere, but I did not visit the battlefields. However, many of the midshipmen did and they told us that everything has been reclaimed; that the battlefields of Waterloo and of the late war look nearly the same. But then, you must remember that Belgium is a very industrious country. They have crowded into an area about the size of Rhode Island and Connecticut over seven million people. They are industrious and thrifty from necessity.

The Belgians are making a winning fight to save the franc from the fate of the mark. They are doing this in spite of the hostile attitude adopted by France and they are doing it by hard work. Everywhere one may see posters, similar to our war posters, urging the people to work, save and patronize the home industries. There is a joke that has been going the rounds of the ships. It goes like this, "In England, they sing, 'God Save the King,' in Belgium they sing, 'God Save the Franc.' This is not as much of a joke as it seems.

LABOR DAY PRO- GRAM ANNOUNCED

PLANS FOR WHITING PARK PIC-NIC PERFECTED

Now All that Remains Is to Pray Earnestly for Good Sunshiny Weather

The following is an outline of the events scheduled for the Second Annual Charlevoix County Picnic at Whiting county park on Labor Day, September 1st, beginning at 10:00 a. m., standard time:

Fifty-yard dash—(boys below 15 years); 1st prize, $1.00; 2nd prize, 50c.

Fifty-yard dash—(girls below 15 years); 1st prize, $1.00; 2nd prize, 50c.

Potato race—1st prize, $1.50; 2nd prize, $1.00; 3rd prize, 50c.

Fat man's race—(weight over two hundred pounds); 1st prize, $2.00; 2nd prize, $1.00.

Hundred-yard dash—(men); 1st prize, $3.00; 2nd prize, $2.00; 3rd prize, $1.00.

Tug of war—(ten men); City vs. County; 1st prize, box 10c cigars; 2nd prize, box 5c cigars.

Basket dinner from 12:00 to 1:00 o'clock. Coffee, cream and sugar furnished free. California oranges will be free to all, furnished by Mr. Whiting.

F. O. Barden, chairman of the County Park Commission, will have charge of the speaking, beginning promptly at 1:00 o'clock.

The first address on the program will be by Mr. Perry Whiting, of Los Angeles, California, donor of the site for the county park.

At 1:15, address by Dr. S. M. Rice, of Detroit, one of the ablest orators of the state.

At 1:45, address by Professor J. F. Cox, head of the farm crops department of the Michigan Agricultural College.

At 2:45, baseball game between Charlevoix and East Jordan league teams.

Boys City marine band will furnish music throughout the day.

This Whiting County Park looks like it would some day be one of our largest assets and the picnic an annual institution of far-reaching and extremely beneficial effect. There is nothing that makes more for solidarity between the seemingly conflicting but really identical interests of the townsmen and the country-dweller than for them to get together on a friendly, social basis, where self-interest and differences arising from unlike environment and dissimilar economic problems may be laid aside and each come to know more intimately the real man or woman in the other. For such happy mutual understandings gatherings like the county picnic provide splendid opportunity. Viewpoints are exchanged, likes and dislikes discussed and each comes to see that the other is travelling virtually the same road as himself and to the same end. The social benefit involved can scarcely be estimated.

DO THE FOLLOWING FIGURES SHOW EVIDENCE OF "EFFICIENT SERVICE?"

COURIER TURNS SEARCHLIGHT ON RECORDS OF CAN-DIDATES FOR PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

Taxpayers Money Expended With Lavish Hand During Term of Candidate Whose Motto is: "Prompt and Efficient Service at the Least Expense to Taxpayers."

The contest for the nomination of Prosecuting Attorney deserves some comment. It was generally believed that A. L. Fitch would have no opposition for a second term. His services have been eminently satisfactory, but on the last day certain parties, whose names need not be mentioned, induced Mr. Rueggsegger, of Boyne City, to become a candidate. Because of the nature of his duties it is impossible for a Prosecutor to avoid making enemies. He cannot please everybody, but the right-thinking voter takes these things into consideration when he votes.

Mr. Fitch has made one of the best officers this county has ever had in this position. This is conceded and the records show it. He is able to hold his own in the trial of cases and has asked no assistance of any kind. The records show that of fifteen cases tried before a jury, he has secured a verdict of guilty in twelve. A splendid result. The records also show that during the four years of his predecessor, Mr. Rueggsegger, convictions were secured in but seven of twelve cases tried before a jury, and in three of these the then Prosecutor had the assistance of another attorney, at county expense.

Mr. Fitch has shown courage of a high order. Once he becomes convinced he is right, he goes ahead without regard to popular clamor. This shows real backbone and the office needs that kind of stuff. He has played no favorites and is entitled to credit for it.

He has earned the respect and confidence of the Board of Supervisors by his punctual attendance at its sessions and the clearness and soundness of his legal advice.

We have heard reports as to expenses of this office during the past half dozen years, and we have gone over some of the figures to get the facts. We are printing these figures taken from the records in the County Clerk's office, because the public is entitled to know them and the taxpayers should be interested. The comparisons show that while Mr. Fitch has been active and vigorous during his first term and has done a large amount of work, he has been careful and economical with the taxpayers' money. There can be but one conclusion and that is that Mr. Fitch should be returned to office with an overwhelming vote.

All of the above is of record and easily verified. Mr. Fitch claims the above improvement to be the result of the use of business methods. Fines are paid into the library fund with no reduction of taxation. Costs go into the general fund and help to pay the running expenses of the county, and relieve the taxpayers to that extent. All this has been accomplished in a period of 17 months. Taxpayers are invited to examine these figures and come to their own conclusions.

Publication of this article is provoked by the announcement of the motto of Mr. Fitch's opponent which reads, "Prompt and efficient service at the least expense to the taxpayers."

LABOR DAY

BAPTISTS TO CON- VENE AT GAYLORD

Burma Missionary Will Speak on September 4th and 5th

On September 4th and 5th the Baptists of Charlevoix will take part in their annual association, which will be held at Gaylord. The association takes in all the Baptist people in this section of the state. There will be speakers from different parts of Michigan, but a special interest is being attached to the fact that the Rev. Robert Harper, M. D., of Burma will speak on both days.

For more than a quarter of a century Dr. Robert Harper, a missionary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, has devoted himself wholeheartedly to work among the Shans in Burma. These people are difficult to win to Christ, for they are staunch Buddhists and some also believe in animism and nat-worship but, due to Dr. Harper's efforts, many have now become Christians.

His long period of service among the Shans, his enthusiasm for his work and his intimate knowledge of the challenges Burma presents, will make it possible for Dr. Harper to paint an inspiring word-picture of Baptist work in Burma.

ORGANIZE FOR SECOND YEAR

WORK OF COW TESTING ASSO-CIATION POPULAR

Twenty-five Dairymen of this County Will Carry on the Investigations

The Charlevoix Cow-testing Association perfected their organization for the second year, at a meeting held at Rock Elm grange hall on Monday evening, August 18th.

The meeting was well attended and marked by much enthusiasm over the results of the last year and the prospects for a very successful new year.

More and more the dairymen are realizing their possibilities in dairying and with that realization are demanding some agency whereby they can get the facts concerning their cows. The cow-testing association conforms to this demand in every respect, as it enables the dairyman to know exactly what each of his cows is producing in pounds of milk and butterfat, what his income is from the sale of the product, what it costs to feed the animal, how much feed the animal consumes and finally what each of his cows is making in dollars and cents.

As a result of being in the association the dairyman is in a position to feed his cows more economically and efficiently, weed out those cows who are termed "visitor cows," as they never even pay their board, and to improve his herd.

The cow-testing association work is proving to be very popular throughout the state. Michigan ranks second only to Wisconsin in the number of associations operating, and has added more new associations in the last year than any other state. At this time three years ago there were only ten associations in operation; now there are one hundred and one in operation. The wonderful expansion that has taken place is due directly to the merits of the work.

The members of the association are very fortunate in being able to (Continued on Page 8)

CHARLEVOIX CO-OPS HOLD REGULAR MEET

H. L. Barnum Will Be Speaker of the Evening

The regular annual meeting of the Charlevoix Co-operative Association will be held at the Marion Center Grange hall on Tuesday evening, September 2nd.

H. L. Barnum, former Charlevoix county agent, now editor of the Michigan Potato Growers' Exchange, will be the principal speaker of the evening. Election of trustees and officers will follow the regular order of business and a pot-luck supper will be served at which ice cream and coffee will be furnished, John Struthers having very kindly offered to take care of these items of the menu. Everyone who can is invited to attend.

Dinner at Marion Center Grange Hall, Friday evening, August 29th. Good music, everyone invited.—Adv. 35-11.

WOMEN FAVOR A VOTERS LEAGUE

FIFTY FROM COUNTY HEAR
STATE ORGANIZER

Committee Is Formed to Consider
Step and Several Join at Boyer Meeting

Mrs. Helen Brooks Davis, of Saginaw, representing the State League of Women Voters, gave a very interesting and instructive address last Friday afternoon at the Boyne City Presbyterian church. Fifty or more of the representative women of the county were present and showed their interest by asking questions and discussing the work, and several gave their names and dues as members of the state league.

As all the effort of the league at present is bent toward arousing people to register and vote, a county committee was elected to work through existing organizations in this movement. The members of the committee are Mrs. Braxton Saltonstall, Charlevoix; Mrs. Frank Kaden, Boyne City, and Mrs. J. E. Secord, East Jordan.

The League of Women Voters is the only organization in the United States which has for its purpose the education of women for citizenship. It has nearly 10,000,000 members. It is not a political party. It is not a women's party. It urges its members to enroll in political parties. It embraces women of every kind of belief and every kind of politics.

The league has very definite plans about getting definite information from local candidates as to their attitude on different questions. It does not endorse candidates, but it does endorse legislation and policies.

We are ruled by a minority because such a small percentage of the eligible voters vote. Bad and dishonest politicians are elected by good people who stay at home.

The goal of the league is to make our country a better place in which to live and bring up our children.

The Courier believes that the League of Women Voters is destined to become a very powerful factor in determining the future of America. It is evident that our salvation from the economic, social and political wilderness in which we have been wandering since the close of the war is not to be found in the leadership of a single Moses. It is useless to dream of the coming of another Lincoln or Washington, some great, calm majestic figure who will assemble all the loose reins of the nation's vast and pressing problems in his mighty hand and guide us once more into the paths of peace, plenty and righteousness. The situation has assumed too tremendous proportions to be controlled to any great extent by a single individual.

If we are to find real relief, it must come through the medium of an awakened public conscience, through the concerted action of all the people, not playing with any political or social fad or cult nor seeking after something new and untried, but utilizing to the fullest capacity the means we already have. There is no problem that faces us today as a nation that cannot be solved by the application of an earnest, sincere and intelligent public will. The Bible assures us that no individual soul shall ever bow under a burden too great for its strength if that strength is used. As it is with the individual, so it is with nations who, after all, are but a collection of individuals.

It is the function of the Women's League to show us how to use this strength and they bring to their task energies unhampered by hide-bound political dogmas, preconceived notions or hoary traditions of partisanship. Then, too, it is in the nature of a woman to cut through to the heart of things, piercing the husk of words, false logic and prejudice to the meat of truth within. And they will be sincere, since that is also in their nature. We expect great things of them.

SHANAHAN'S THIRD LETTER AT HAND

ing, it was necessary for us all to be back to the ship by 8:00 a. m. To do this, we had to take either the 12:20 or the 2:20 train from Brussels. I took the 12:20. To be sure, the next morning I was not feeling the best, being quite sleepy, but I was able to parade in a fashion. Only the midshipmen on the New York paraded, as the Texas had engine trouble and couldn't get up.

Were able to review the parade, or rather that part that came before us, for we were lined up on one side of the street and watched the people go by. There seemed to be mostly school children of all ages in the parade. As they passed us, they all saluted us in some manner or other. Some used a full military salute, others removed their hats, while still others as they passed held out their arm before them and toward us. But always the whole platoon did it in a uniform way.

Another thing that impressed me was the number of bands they turned out in Antwerp. It seemed that about every block or oftener there was one. I saw more bands that day than in all my life before. I don't think that this is an extravagant statement.

As we took our place in the parade, the people along the sides began to applaud. It wasn't any thunderous outburst but it was genuine. The Belgian people have not forgotten the works of America during the war. All along the applause kept up—it seemed to ebb and flow, but it was always there. It gave me a real thrill to be thus cheered. A good deal of the effect was lost because of some misunderstanding, we were not allowed to carry arms, but the captain later told us that we made a very creditable showing and that he felt justly proud of us.

Last Wednesday afternoon, we had a reception on board the ship. The ship was all dressed up for the occasion. The awning was put up to keep out the rain or sun, as the case might be and all the ungainly parts covered with flags. We had two orchestras or jazz bands to supply the music—one a part of the ship's band, the other a midshipmen's orchestra composed of the musicians from the Texas and the New York. Refreshments were served below decks, while, if one was thirsty, he could get punch most anywhere about the decks. I might add that the reception was for midshipmen and officers only.

I was on watch in the midshipmen's executive office when it started but was told to secure by the first-classman in charge and to get cleaned up, change into blue service and join the fun. I was very glad that I did this.

When I first got on deck there didn't seem to be much doing. Soon, however, the music started and it was up to me to find myself a partner. This was soon done and I was enjoying myself to the full. It developed that she was an American who had been living in Antwerp for five years. She is very pretty. I guess I fell for her sure deserved the attention of someone. How I was ever so fortunate is more than I can ever explain. Her father is a very prominent man in Antwerp, being in charge of the Red Star lines there. The next morning I received an invitation to dine with them, along with a second-classman. After a famous meal, we all went to the Bourgmestre's ball being held at the "Salle des Fêtes." This was a dance being given for midshipmen and officers and the American colony in Antwerp. It was a huge success. The hall itself is of a kind that spells success to such an enterprise. Refreshments were also served here and everyone was soon in a genial mood. The only trouble is that it was all over too soon, as we had to be back to the ship by 1:00 a. m. The next morning we shoved off at the early hour of seven-thirty and were soon on our way to Gibraltar. To set your mind at ease, I will tell you that I wrote Mrs. Mitchell a letter of thanks this afternoon. It made me feel quite flattered to be asked into such a lovely home when I was a total stranger to them.

We are getting ready for short range battle practice now. That is, we have general quarters twice a day. I am in No. 4 turret. My little job is to ram the powder home. We have only been at it two days, so we are not so very good as yet, but already there is a noticeable improvement; things are running more smoothly. Altogether, we will have eleven days of drilling and then the actual firing off Humber Roads; then September leave. A little song is now often heard hummed or even sung about decks. It is very popular and once you get into the swing of it you never tire of it. It goes like this:

"It's home, boys, home,
"It's home we ought to be "Home, boys, home in God's countree;
"The ash and the oak and the weeping-willow tree,
"Oh, we're strong for the Navy but it's home we ought to be."

I have the mid-watch, that is, the watch from 12:00 m to 4:00 a. m. and as it is now nearing 9:00 p. m., I feel I must stop. Not because I have run out of things to say, but a body must get his sleep some time, so, Mother, good night."

A fourth letter from Mr. Shanahan, dealing with his visit to the Rock of Gibraltar, will appear in next week's issue. According to his mother, Mrs. Lisle Shanahan of this city, this letter is the most interesting of the series.

Edison only sleeps four hours a day, but you're no Edison.

AT THE MOVIES

PALACE THEATRE

In his latest picture, "Triumph," coming to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, Cecil B. DeMille, the most brilliant showman, producer in the whole screen world, returns to the type of modern society drama in which he scored his earlier and most decided successes. Film fans who recall with pleasure "Manslaughter," "Why Change Your Wife?" and "Male and Female," are assured that in "Triumph" Mr. DeMille offers them the same gripping, eye-filling combination of dazzling ladies and gowns, romance and thrill that made those pictures so popular. "Triumph" was adapted by Jeanie Macpherson from the Saturday Evening Post serial and novel by May Edginton, author of "Secrets." Besides Leatrice Joy, Rod La Rocque and Victor Varconi, the big cast includes Charles Ogle, Theodore Kosloff, Robert Edeson, Julia Faye, George Fawcett, Zazu Pitts and Raymond Hatton. It is a Paramount picture produced by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Tom Mix Inherits Old Ladies Home in Latest Picture

Tom Mix has had some funny experiences, cinematically speaking, but it remained for his latest starring vehicle, "Ladies to Board," which comes to the Majestic Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, to furnish the prize thrill. He inherits on old ladies home!

William Dudley Pelley, has furnished the virile Fox star with one of the best and funniest stories Mix has appeared in during his long career, according to advance reports. "Ladies to Board" is said to rival even "Soft Boiled," which Mix offered earlier in the season. Jack Blystone, who directed "Soft Boiled" also held the megaphone during the making of his latest picture.

Big Attraction to Be Shown Here

In many respects Jno. F. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the most important of the season's productions. In the first place it serves to exploit the masterpieces of two of Europe's noted artists, i. e., Ralph Bruat's elaborate painting entitled "The Celestial City" and Hart Verion's picture of the New Orleans slave mart; and secondly it has brought back into prominence the memories of that grand old lady, Harriet Beecher Stowe and serves to reveal the beautiful lessons really to be learned by careful attention. Second, to the Holy Book does "Uncle Tom's Cabin" rank as a sacred instructor. The pulpit has endorsed it as a moral teacher worthy of mankind's support, while the board of education in many of the large cities has encouraged scholars in witnessing the worthy dramatization of the story that was instrumental in making our country religious, free and happy. Like a poorly composed book, there are many versions of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" now being forced upon the public under embossed coverings which are the same and to the greatest degree. They are usually short-lived for the reason of being a mere hoodwinked as easily as those of not so many years ago. It is a known

A TALK WITH A CHARLEVOIX MAN

Mr. McCall Tells Something of Interest to Charlevoix Folks

There's nothing more convincing than the statement of someone you know and have confidence in. That's why this talk with Mr. McCall of E. Upright Avenue, should be mighty helpful here in Charlevoix.
John McCall, 110 E. Upright Ave., says: "My kidneys were weak and irregular and were sore as could be. Dizzy spells bothered me and I would often have to grasp something to keep from falling. Doan's Pills completely and permanently cured me of the trouble."
Mr. McCall is only one of many Charlevoix people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for DOAN'S PILLS, the same that Mr. McCall had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 60 cents at all dealers. fact that Mr. Stowe possesses the original version of Mrs. Stowe's story and that it has been unanimously accepted by the press, pulpit and public of America and England. 8:00 p. m., Thursday, prayer meeting. Read Acts 8th.

This is the closing Sunday of the conference year. All financial matters are to be settled by this week end. Committees, societies and clubs of the church will have their reports in. Let us make this a bumper year with everyone doing his part.

The pop-corn party in the tourist's park was a grand success. Isn't it splendid to play under the auspices of the church and by its direction?

We do note with a good deal of gratification the flower display in the hospital zone. The management is to be congratulated not only because of its moderately equipped building and horticultural grounds, but because of its high type of scientific workmanship and loyal body of nurses.

Mrs. C. S. Morrison Writes Grand Haven Is a Live Town

The Courier is in receipt of the following post-card from Grand Haven, written by Mrs. C. S. Morrison, late of Boyne City and perhaps better known to Charlevoix people among whom she lived for several years, as Mrs. Agnes Jarvis:

"Friend Usher—Will you send the Courier to the following address? We sold our home in Boyne City and have bought here and expect to make it our home always. Mr. Morrison has a position as professor of instrumental music in the schools here—a new department installed this year. He will also open a studio here.

Political Announcement

To the Electors of Charlevoix County:
At the solicitation of many Republican friends and close business associates I have decided to allow my name to be brought forward as a candidate for Register of Deeds at the September 9, 1924, primary. I have received many unsolicited assurances of support. I have never before asked political favors, nor held public office. Am a practical farmer and have lived in the rural districts all my life. Have been a resident of Charlevoix county for over 22 years. For the past three years have been secretary of the County Agricultural Society. I believe I can meet the requirements and have the ability to do the work as register of deeds to the satisfaction of everyone. If nominated and elected I will give my entire time and attention to the duties of this office. Having entered the field, I solicit the support of all Republicans throughout the county. Frank F. Bird.—Adv. 35-tf.

LIPPA COMPANY WILL BE FAIR ATTRACTION

Popular Midway Feature to Be With Us Again

While the board of directors of the Charlevoix Fair promises extraordinary exhibits in every department this year, it is also evident that they have not overlooked the very important work of securing suitable amusement and entertainment for the visitors at the Fair.

The contract between the fair directors and the Lippa Amusement Co. assures the fact that this year's midway will be as good or even better than any the Fair has ever had.

The Lippa Amusement Co., which has just finished a tour through the upper peninsula of Michigan, has established a record of cleanliness and many strong letters of recommendation have been received from city and county officials and communities where the Lippa shows have appeared.

With a handsome merry-go-round, a mammoth ferris wheel and six high class shows, plenty of good wholesome entertainment and amusement is secured. The big musical comedy and vaudeville shows are headed by the well-known comedian, Buddy Riley, and features Babe Theda, the youngest toe dancer in America and a phenomenal juvenile performer.

CATCH BIG MUSKIE OFF SNOW ISLANDS

Summer Resorters Land Fish Weighing Twenty-three Pounds

J. R. Orton and W. H. Pritz, summer residents of this city, trolling from a motor boat off Snow Islands, Thursday morning, landed one of the largest fish taken with hook and line this season. It was a true muskellunge and when brought to Charlevoix Friday afternoon measured 45 inches in length and weighed 21 1-2 pounds, though the fish weighed 23 pounds when landed.

Mr. Orton was the lucky angler. He said the fish broke water as he struck and that the light steel rod and 30-lb. test-line held true during twenty minutes of most exciting sport. The muskie was finally gaffed. The lure used was spoon and gaff hook.

The fish was shown to Mr. Orton's family and friends on Dixon avenue and then expressed to Chicago to be mounted.—Contributed.

Tuesday, September 2nd is the date when J. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be at the Hotel Charlevoix. Curing headache a specialty.—Adv. 34-tf.

HAVE MADE PUBLIC THEIR ENGAGEMENT

Miss Swinton and Mr. Richardson Are to Be Married

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Margie Swinton, daughter of Mrs. Marguerite Swinton, to Mr. Gerald W. Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Richardson, was made at an informal party given for Miss Margie by her aunt, Mrs. H. A. Craig, last Saturday afternoon.

Both Miss Swinton and Mr. Richardson are popular members of the younger social set of Charlevoix and the news of their betrothal has already been received with many expressions of congratulation from their many friends.

RUEGSEGGER for Prosecuting Attorney

I am a candidate for the above office for the next term and will appreciate the support of the voters at the coming Primary Election. If elected my motto will be: "Prompt service at the least expense to taxpayers."
Adv. 33-tf. E. A. Ruegsegger.

Political Announcement
I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination of Register of Deeds of Charlevoix county on the Republican ticket. Your vote at the primary election, Sept. 9th, will be appreciated.

U.S. Royal Cords

BALLOON ~ BALLOON-TYPE ~ HIGH PRESSURE
Built of Latex-treated Cords

TIRE building took a big step forward when the makers of United States Tires invented the Latex Process.

The added strength and wearing quality given by Latex-treated cords is something that the user of Royal Cords can tell you about from his own experience.

Royal Cords are the standard of value in cord tire equipment—even more certainly today than ever before.

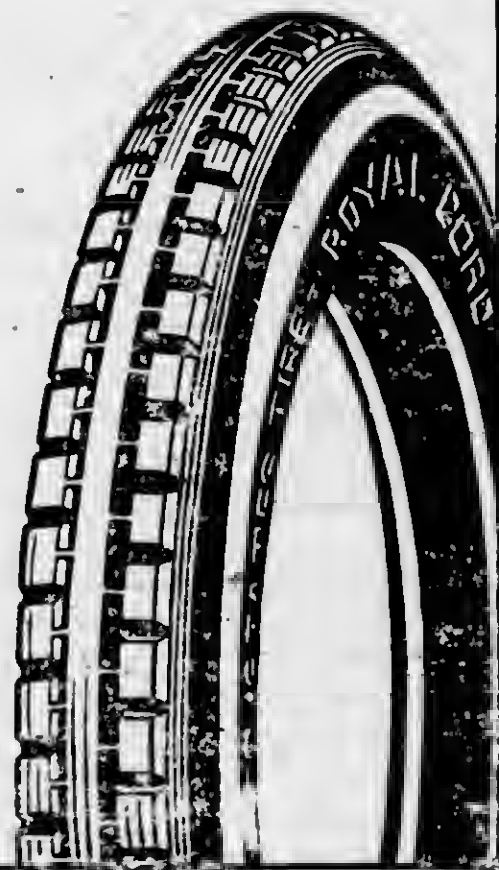

And this holds good whether you are considering a High-Pressure Tire, a Balloon-Type Tire to fit your present wheels and rims, or a Balloon Tire for a 20 or 21 inch wheel.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Friday, August 29

Beverly Bayne and Monte Blue in "HER MARRIAGE VOW," from the popular play by O. N. Davis. A powerful, dramatic photoplay which throws a fierce searchlight on the modern marriage riddle. Drama, romance, action and heart throbs.

Saturday and Sunday, August 30-31

Cecil B. DeMille's "TRIUMPH" Paramount's big picture of the year, with LeRoy and Rod LaRouque. The master-showman's first production since the "Ten Commandments." Produced on the same lavish scale and with the same stars, and the most luxurious society drama he has ever made. Dazzling gowns, lavish settings, gorgeous entertainment. Also a Cameo comedy, "DON'T HESITATE."

Monday, September 1

Paramount presents Walter Hiers in "FAIR WEEK," a rural comedy drama, dealing with the efforts of a village fat boy to rid the town of a couple of crooks and win his sweetheart back from the sliest of the two. Also a Cameo comedy, "OH GIRL," and a Lyman H. Howe's Hodge Podge reel, "DIPPING IN THE DEEP."

Tuesday and Wednesday, September 2-3

A James Cruze production, "HOLLYWOOD," with 20 real stars and 50 screen celebrities appearing in its scenes. You don't have to go to Hollywood to see your favorites, "HOLLYWOOD" is coming to you. The stars of a thousand pictures in one cast, showing the amazing adventures of a screen-struck girl who tried to "get in." Produced by the man who made "The Old Homestead" and "The Covered Wagon," with the most fascinating background ever screened, Hollywood, the garden spot of pictures.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Friday, August 29

"SECOND YOUTH." Bashful? That was his second name. And when she danced he almost passed away with embarrassment. If he hadn't been so fatally handsome, life might have proceeded calmly for him—but the girls wouldn't let him alone. Wherever he went they made eyes at him. Not only that—but the girls actually proposed to him. Here's a laugh fest that everybody can count on for real entertainment. It's a picture for the whole family. If you like clean, fast fun, in a beautifully produced picture—here it is. Also a Neeley Edwards comedy.

Saturday and Sunday, August 30 and 31

Tom Mix in "LADIES TO BOARD," with Tony, the wonder horse. If you can imagine a rough-riding cow puncher as the owner of an old ladies' home, you have a slight conception of how funny Tom Mix is in "Ladies to Board." Tony gives two dozen reasons in this picture why he's called the "wonder horse." Also an Al St. Johns two reel comedy, "HIS BETTER HALF." Please note: There will be a matinee for this picture at the Palace Theatre, Saturday afternoon.

Over one-third of all the tobacco chewers in the United States have proved that.

The demand for BEECH-NUT Chewing Tobacco alone is more than 250 million packages in a single year.

That's because we didn't let tobacco growers, labor, manufacturing costs, State, Federal and revenue taxes collect their increases from the quality or the weight.

BEECH-NUT Chewing Tobacco is the same in 1924 as in 1915. Still the most of the best for 10c—still the best chew at any price—still the favorite everywhere.

The Schools and The Railroads

Teachers in Michigan's primary schools are being supported, to a large degree, by taxes paid by the state's steam Railroads. In many counties, the whole cost of these schools is carried in this way.

Michigan is justly proud of these schools, and of the capable teachers who preside over them.

And Michigan's 24 Railroads are proud of the result which their tax payments have made possible.

These primary school taxes have become a part of the delicate balance which laws have established between Railroad receipts and expenditures.

This balance can be preserved with a steady and continued improvement in Railroad service, as the past two years have amply proved.

To destroy this balance by increasing Railroad taxes, or by imposing any additional burden on your carriers, would be a calamity for the Railroads and a severe blow at Michigan prosperity.

All we ask is a fair chance to keep on making good for you.

Write us freely about any phase of this matter that interests you.

AUTOS COLLIDE—OCCUPANTS UNINJURED

Cars in Each Instance are Badly Banged Up

Three automobile accidents in which Ellsworth residents were involved have occurred here during the past week, considerable damage having been done to the cars, but luckily no one being injured. Alex Sinclair was mixed up in the first of these on Thursday night of last week on M-11 between Eastport and Atwood, when the Ford touring car which he was driving struck a parked car on the gravel road near the See school house and turned over. It was during the height of the severe electrical storm at about midnight and the parked car, which was owned and driven by Charlevoix parties, displayed no tail light. Neither Mr. Sinclair nor either of his two companions were injured.

On Sunday afternoon, the Ford touring car owned and driven by Mrs. Parsons and brother, Russell Alward, was struck at the Joffe corners on M-11, north of Atwood, by a Buick sedan, which made an almost total wreck of the lighter car. The Ford was driving east and the Buick was headed south. Mr. Parsons was cut and bruised about the head and face while the other occupants were uninjured.

On Monday morning at about 7 o'clock, Elmer Reed parked his car, a Studebaker six, against a tree on the curve between the Drenth lumber yard and the Lewis Deline home between Ellsworth and East Jordan. Mr. Reed was uninjured and, although the car may recover, it will never be the same again. The machine, which was going at a high rate of speed, struck an elm tree at the road side and remained right side up although the entire right side, including fenders, running board and even the handles on the doors were scraped off. One tire was ruined, the wind shield smashed, the frame badly sprung and the axle bent and top smashed. Aside from these damages the car is in fairly good shape. As in the other cases no one was injured.

HUGE CROWD AT ANNUAL PICNIC

FEATURES OF DAY WERE MUCH ENJOYED

Over One Thousand People Witness Baseball Game Between Ellsworth and Bellaire

The weather man smiled on the Gleaners on Thursday, August 21st, the day of their annual picnic at Eastport, and a record crowd attended. The features of the day were Herb Baker's address, the music furnished by the Ellsworth band and the Ellsworth-Bellaire baseball game. About one thousand people were on the grounds at noon—and counting the candidates for political positions of the county and state, this number would be increased to nearly fifteen hundred.

The ball game was won by Ellsworth, 6-3, and any one who has ever seen a meeting of these two teams knows that a battle royal is pulled off whenever they lock horns on the diamond. Wilson and Smith were the batteries for Bellaire and Fales and Swafford labored for Ellsworth. Bellaire won the toss and took the field and the game proceeded as follows:

First inning—Ellsworth: Sinclair out Mathers to Lee. Elzinga scratched a hit to third, T. Edson walked, Fales singled to right scoring Elzinga. Wilson threw out Brown. One run, 2 hits, no errors.

Bellaire: Potter fanned, Wilson singled to right, Smith hit for one base to right. Lee fanned and Fales threw out Mathers. No runs, 2 hits, no errors.

Second inning—Ellsworth: C. Edson fanned. Wilson singled to center, H. H. Elzinga fanned. Sinclair singled to right and H. L. Elzinga took three strikes. No runs, 2 hits, no errors.

Bellaire: Harding missed the third strike; so did Richards. Hanlow walked. Heirlehy hit to left for one base and Potter called out on strikes. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Third inning—Ellsworth: T. Edson out Mathers to Lee. Fales singled through third, Fales stole. Brown hit to Harding who threw to second to trap Fales but Mathers dropped the ball. Swafford doubled to center, Fales and Brown scoring. C. Edson singled to left, scoring Swafford. Wilson singled to right. Hanlow took H. H. Elzinga's fly in center and Sinclair popped to Wilson. Three runs, 4 hits, 1 error.

Bellaire: Sinclair threw out Wilson. Elzinga dropped Smith's fly in center. Fales threw out Lee and Wilson's throw to third caught Smith where he was out. Elzinga to Sinclair to Elzinga. No runs, no hits, 1 error.

Fourth inning—(Bechtold playing second for Bellaire in place of Mathers) Ellsworth: H. L. Elzinga fanned as did T. Edson. Smith let the ball get away however, and Edson was safe. Fales walked, Heirlehy took Brown's fly, Swafford walked, C. Edson fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Bellaire: Fales threw out Bechtold. Harding threw out Richards singled, Handlin took one in the ribs. Heirlehy hit to center, scoring Harding, but Richards was out trying to follow Harding across. Potter hit to right, scoring Handlin and Heirlehy. Sinclair and Wilson took care of the Bellaire pitcher. Three runs, 4 hits, no errors.

Fifth inning—Ellsworth: Heirlehy took E. Wilson's fly. Wilson threw out H. H. Elzinga and Sinclair. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Bellaire: Fales threw out Smith. Lee safe on Sinclair's poor throw. Bechtold safe when Elzinga gumbled up his grounder to third, Harding walked, Richards hit to 3rd and Lee was out Elzinga to Swafford. T. Edson threw out Handlin. No runs, no hits, 2 errors.

Bellaire: T. Edson threw out Heirlehy, Potter fanned, Wilson out when Fales took his weak roller and touched first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh inning—Ellsworth: Wilson and Lee got E. Wilson. H. H. Elzinga singled to right and went to second when Richards fumbled the ball. Wilson threw out Sinclair and Lee's throw to third got Elzinga. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Bellaire: Fales and Wilson got Smith. Lee and Bechtold fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth inning—Ellsworth: Elzinga and T. Edson fanned. Bechtold threw out Fales. No runs, no hits, no errors.

A Real Treat for Nature Lovers

"Where shall we take a little drive, this evening?"—or, "Where shall we go Sunday afternoon?" Those two questions have been asked and answered many hundreds of times in the families of Michigan residents—judging by the visitors we have been glad to welcome to the

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY NURSERY

It has been a real delight to realize that so many hundreds of householders, so many families, have had a true regard for the attractiveness and beauty of trees and flowering plants. It would be a treat for you to come to the nursery, enjoy a walk through the greenery and examine the evergreens of countless varieties and the flowering plants.

If you are planning on Fall planting for hedge or shrubbery, by all means, you should come now and make a selection. But it is not necessary to be a buyer to be welcome at the Charlevoix County Nursery. We are nature lovers here and like to have others enjoy what we enjoy too without any obligation to buy.

Potoskey Resorter Badly Injured in an Encounter with Highwaymen

Richard Grey, of LaPorte, Ind., summer guest at the Petoskey House in Petoskey, was beaten over the head and thrown from his car Saturday morning, Aug. 23, near Conway, by two strangers he had picked up to "give a lift." Mr. Grey reports that he overtook the men as he was driving north and that he took them in for a ride. One man got in the front seat and the other in the rear. One of them struck him over the head with some heavy instrument, inflicting a deep and painful wound. Mr. Grey fell from the car and the highwaymen drove on.

A passing motorist picked up Mr. Grey and brought him to Petoskey hospital where he was given medical treatment. Chief of Police Holm of Petoskey, was notified and started a hurried search of the region for the car. He found the machine in a ditch near Alanson, badly damaged, but the highwaymen had taken to the woods. Notice was sent to all places in the region to be on the lookout. Mr. Grey says the pair were young men.

Mr. Grey is one of the well-known summer residents of Petoskey, having made his headquarters with Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Densmore for several seasons. He comes there for relief from hay fever. Saturday he had taken a party of caddies to Wequetonsing and was going to Ponsheaning when the attack occurred.

At 12:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, word came from Mrs. Reed, of the Buckeye telephone exchange central at the lake, that one of the men had been captured. Mrs. Reed said the man was in "pretty hard shape" but did not indicate whether from injuries after the car was wrecked, had been wounded or from what reason.

"The blood-hounds are trailing the other one and we expect he will be taken soon," said Mrs. Reed. The Burt Lake woman gave the Petoskey officers the information regarding the wrecking of the robber's car near Burt Lake, calling the Chamber of Commerce. Chief Holm took the men and several of his men hurried to the scene. Miss Afton Holm, secretary of the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, got in touch with Sheriff Pokriefke and other officers throughout the region and soon a large posse was searching the Burt Lake country.

Indian River reported four men, dressed similar to the two highwaymen, were seen there Friday night and that they stopped several motorists in an effort to catch a ride west. The party is also believed to have visited the region west of Petoskey early last week.

Sheriff Pokriefke brought the captured highwayman to Petoskey Saturday afternoon. The man gave his name as Carroll Wade, aged 18, with no home. He had been shot through the arm by Deputy Sheriff Walker who was aiding other officers in the search. The sheriff said the other highwayman was believed still in the woods and that capture was expected within a short time.

At noon Saturday it was reported from the Buckeye House, on Burt Lake that officers from Petoskey had the two highwaymen who Saturday morning robbed Richard Grey of his car, surrounded in what is known as "Sagers' Wood." The region is in Cheboygan county, near the Buckeye House resort and not far from the home of Judge Anderson, of Indianapolis, who is summing there.

IT IS A WEEK OF ACCIDENTS

THREE AUTOMOBILE COLLISIONS TO REPORT

Two Death Spots, Famous for Smashes, Claim Their Toll of Victims

This has been a week of automobile accidents and deaths. Every once in a while we seem to have a little more grief than usual crowded into the short space of seven days and the period just past may be taken as typical of this phenomenon.

The first of the series of accidents occurred Sunday afternoon at the intersection of State and Antrim streets. A sedan bearing an Illinois license and going west on Antrim struck a Ford coupe from Gaylord, tearing off one of the latter's front wheels and badly shaking up the occupants. There were no personal injuries.

The next catastrophe happened at 8:45 p. m., Sunday, when a milk delivery Chevrolet driven by Henry Howe who was accompanied by his wife was struck by a Ford touring car driven by a Mr. Ogden of Ironton at the intersection of Mercer avenue and the Petoskey Road. Howe was travelling north on the Petoskey Road, preceded by a big Pierce Arrow. Ogden claims he was crowded off the road by the Pierce and that in attempting to get squared away again he skidded across the road into Howe's rig. The front ends of both cars were badly damaged. Mrs. Howe was thrown out of the milk car into the road and suffered severe bruises. She was brought to the Charlevoix Hospital in a passing car.

The third event in the program took place at the corner of Antrim and Sherman streets, Monday afternoon. An Oakland touring car, driven by George Greenleaf of the Sanitary Engineering Company force struck the Hudson coach owned by Dr. W. W. Mitchell, which Mrs. Mitchell was driving at the time. Greenleaf went to make a horseshoe turn at the corners and the two cars came together head on. No one was injured. The Hudson sustained a badly bent fender and some damage to one of the wheels and the steering gear. The Oakland got off light with a bent fender.

AGED CIGAR MAKER DEAD AT 70

Charles Neubert Succumbs to Stroke of Apoplexy

Charles Neubert, for twenty years a resident of this city, died at his home on West Clinton street last Saturday, August 23rd.

Mr. Neubert, though perhaps not so well-known by many, on account of his rather quiet and retiring disposition, was a familiar figure on our streets and by those who got to know the old gentleman and appreciate his kindly friendliness and worth he will be keenly missed. The little shop on Bridge street where he made cigars for so many years is now closed and stands as a mute memorial to the patient and painstaking industry which represented the humble contribution of a worth-while citizen to the town's prosperity.

Mr. Neubert was born in Germany, August 10, 1854 and was therefore over seventy years of age at the time of his death, which resulted from a stroke of apoplexy. He is survived by his widow and a son, Richard Neubert, who is a resident of Chicago.

The remains were accompanied by Mrs. Neubert on August 24th to Chicago where the funeral and interment took place the early part of this week.

A worn out suit case or travelling bag is dangerous to travel with. Spoils your vacation. We have them at all prices. Benj. Brown.—35-11.

MRS. A. P. NEWTON DIED LAST MONDAY

Stricken in Middle Age Following Short Illness

Mrs. Lucinda Newton, wife of Archie P. Newton of 118 East Lincoln avenue, passed away at her home here last Monday, August 25th, after an illness of only two weeks duration.

Mrs. Newton, whose maiden name was Lucinda Smith, was born in Menford, Canada, January 31, 1882 and came to Michigan with her parents in infancy. She is survived by her husband and six children, Mrs. Fred Pautke, of Detroit, Mrs. George Zipp, Jr., of Petoskey, and Lucille, Eugene, Mildred and Clifford of Charlevoix. Of the other living relatives there are the mother of the deceased, Mrs. Mary Smith, of Charlevoix, two brothers, George Smith, of Spokane, Washington and Joe Smith, of Gaylord, and two sisters, Mrs. Fred Keiser, of Levering and Mrs. Charles Bumstead, of the Son. Of these, Mrs. Keiser and Mrs. Bumstead are now here and the brother, Joe Smith, together with other relatives and friends of the deceased are hourly expected to arrive to attend the funeral, which takes place tomorrow from the house at 2:00 p. m. Mrs. Newton was a member of the Church of God and Rev. Brooks, of the East Jordan church of that faith, will officiate at the last services. The remains will be laid to rest in Brookside cemetery.

AUGUST COURT TERM ENDED LAST FRIDAY

Calendar Cleared of Most of the Pending Cases

The August term of the circuit court was concluded last Friday and the jury discharged. The calendar was cleared of most of the pending cases.

The criminal calendar was disposed of by pleas of guilty in all the cases. Sentence was imposed in the case of Claude Worden, the Harbor Springs resident who brought liquor into Charlevoix county. His fine was $300 with costs of $100. One-half the fine and costs was paid and the defendant given until October 1st to pay the balance.

In the case of the People vs. Bernard Newson, the defendant pleaded guilty and Judge Gilbert granted the defendants request to defer sentence until the October term, at which time sentence will be imposed. This disposes of this much talked of case, in which the officers searched the premises occupied by the defendant and secured a large quantity of intoxicating liquor. The plea of guilty saves the county the expense of a jury trial and the prosecuting attorney and sheriff are entitled to credit for their vigorous and efficient handling of the case.

Judge Gilbert has not indicated what his sentence will be, but it will undoubtedly depend upon the result of the examination and investigation which the law requires the judge to make before passing sentence.

"Outdoors" is Out

The first (September) number of the new national magazine, "Outdoors" is out. It contains many lavishly illustrated articles descriptive of natural beauty spots throughout the country. To the motor tourist seeking an interesting objective it is of special value. The scenic pictures are numerous and beautiful, and the text is of unusual interest. Readers who cannot find "Outdoors" at their local news stands may secure a copy of the first number by sending ten cents in stamps or coin to "OUTDOORS," 425 Tenth St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

ELECT MEGGISON FOR CONGRESS

WHAT THE PEOPLE WANT

What do the people want of their representatives? A fair and concise answer would be "representation." But the word is not complete unless we define it.

We are represented now and have been right along—technically. And right there is the trouble. If it were perfectly apparent and plain that we were not represented at all, public demand for a popular voice in the affairs of government would be loud and insistent. But because we have regularly elected representatives in our national and state law-making bodies, the great mass of the people take it that they are represented and let it go at that.

And thus our representation takes the form of an empty shell, a body without a spirit. And because its emptiness and unreality is deftly camouflaged by the traditional dignity of the office of representative or senator, by high sounding legal phraseology and much hokum, we are led astray in our search for the seat of national disease and are apt to lay the blame upon the result rather than the cause, cursing the natural and logical consequences of a particular law or institution that is bad for us and relying upon the faulty intelligence or warped loyalty of its maker to correct the mistake of his own making, or, it may be, the creation of his own selfish design.

The people do not want their representatives to act from motives of fear of public displeasure nor in response to the popular clamor of the moment. Neither do they desire that they subserve party interests, private wealth, or any particular group of reformers, trade, profession, religion or organized section of the country's population, whether aligning itself according to race or occupation, to the detriment of the whole people. What they do want is that their public servants shall act according to their own best judgment and knowledge without fear or favor, squaring their deeds with their own conscience. If they are men of high calibre, such a course will render it impossible for them to do other than serve the people they represent in the fullest degree. As Shakespeare puts it in inimitable language,

"This above all—to thine own self be true,
And it shall follow as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to anyone."

The people's part in the securing of good government under the republican form is two-fold. First, they must choose men of unimpeachable character and proven ability to represent them. Then they must obey in letter and in spirit the laws which the men they have chosen shall make. In the selection of Thomas Meggison to represent the 11th Congressional District, the voters may feel assured that they will have well performed their first duty.

LAST OF SHANAHAN NARRATIVES

COVERS HIS VISIT TO THE FAMOUS ROCK

Says First Thing He Noted At Gibraltar Was Absence of Prudential Sign

The final letter in the interesting series of four written by Midshipman Edward Shanahan while on a practice cruise with his class of U. S. Naval Academy cadets in European waters during the past summer has been kindly submitted to us for publication in this issue. The letter, which is written aboard the U. S. S. New York and dated August 1, 1924, is addressed to the midshipman's father, Lisle Shanahan of this city, and reads as follows:

"Dear Dad:
It has been a long time since I wrote you, but you see the letters I write to mother are more or less for the whole family, so I trust you won't feel slighted. However, I should have written sooner.

I suppose I should tell all the latest dope, so here goes. Yesterday morning, we arrived at the "Rock." The first thing everyone noticed was that the sign had been taken down. To me this was a disappointment, as I always thought that Prudential was only another name for Gibraltar.

All ships coal here. One of the first things we saw was the "Orion," the collier. All colliers are named after stars or constellations, not after men. We were the first ship to coal and, thank goodness, we are finished. At Brest we took on regular good, old American coal. Now, this American coal was just average in regards to dustiness. Nevertheless, we were all fairly dark when we finished. We went about, calling each other such names as "Sambo" and "Rastus." But at Gibraltar we coaled with Welsh coal and such coal as it was. When the first bucketful fell on the deck, the black dust cloud that rolled down towards me was like black fog. One couldn't see more than ten or fifteen feet through it and each bucketful after that was the same. It wasn't a half hour before we were as black as at the end of the day at Brest. Actually, some of the boys were so completely hidden behind the dust on their faces that I was several times taken for someone else. For instance, someone who was and is a stranger to me said, "Well, King, what do you think of this coal?" I forget what I said to him, but he never knew that he was talking to Shanahan and not to King.

After we had taken enough coal on we had to clean up. First, we swept up the dust. When we would put a shovelful in a wheelbarrow, or rather (to be seagoing) in a "buggy," it looked and acted like black flour, it was that fine. Then the water was turned on and the decks scrubbed with "ki-yies" or scrubbers. This was only the beginning, for today we were cleaning ship all the morning and until about three this afternoon. Everything had to be cleaned, paint work washed, canvas scrubbed and decks holy-stoned until now the ship and myself look fairly presentable. However, there is still quite a bit of coal under my lower eye-lashes. Most everyone else looks the same way, so no one will accuse me of being dirty on that score.

I won't be able to go ashore until tomorrow afternoon, so I can't now say much about the town. I don't expect to mail this until I have seen all there is to be seen, so maybe I can give an account of it in this letter, after all.

Yesterday, there was a cloud that hung over Gibraltar for quite a while. Even though the wind was blowing, the cloud did not seem to move, for, as the air rose over the rock, the moisture condensed and then when it came again on the lee side it evaporated.

Sunday, August 4: Well, just as I said before, there has been an interruption in the letter. Yesterday, I went ashore. Gibraltar as a town is not much to see. The entire population 16,006 in 1916. (The total area is one and seven eighths square miles and the highest elevation is 1,489 feet. As you see, the height is out of proportion with other dimensions.

Well, as I said, I went ashore with (Continued on Page 8)

CLINTON COOPER SPRAINS AN ARM

Struck by Truck While Riding His Wheel

Clinton Cooper of the post office force met with a painful accident last Tuesday evening while returning home from his work.

Mr. Cooper was riding his bicycle north on Bridge street when he was struck by one of the Argo Milling Company's trucks and thrown with great force from his wheel over the handle bars, badly spraining his arm and inflicting many minor cuts and contusions. The nerves of the injured arm also appear to be badly affected.

LOCAL HIGHWAY ENGINEER WEDS

ROBERT SLOAN, JR., MARRIED AT THE SOO

His Bride is Miss Dorothy Wilson, Former Teacher in Charlevoix Schools

A pretty church wedding was solemnized in St. James Episcopal church, Sault Ste. Marie, on Wednesday, August 27th, when Miss Dorothy Wilson, daughter of Mrs. W. J. Wilson of that city, became the bride of Robert Sloan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Sloan of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. F. McDowell at high noon in the presence of a large number of wedding guests. Baskets of garden flowers bowed with white tulle were artistically disposed about the sanctuary.

The bride was lovely in a gown of cocoa georgette and lace over silver cloth with hat of the same, and wore silver slippers. She carried a shower bouquet of roses, sweet peas and swansonia. She was attended by her sister, Miss Evelyn Wilson, as bridesmaid, while Mr. James Bradner of Cincinnati, acted as groomsmen.

Immediately after the ceremony, a wedding luncheon was served at the home of the bride's mother on Bingham avenue to about thirty guests, close friends and relatives of the two families. The bridal party sat at one large table, the others at smaller ones disposed about the rooms where roses and sweet peas carried out a pretty color motif of pink and white.

During the afternoon, the newly wedded couple left by motor for Mackinac Island and from there will take a boat for their wedding trip to Chicago. They will make their home, temporarily, at Pentwater, Michigan, after September fifteenth.

Miss Wilson is a graduate of the Soo high school and the Michigan Agricultural College. Since her graduation she taught in this city and last year in the home economics department of the Sault Ste. Marie high school. Prior to her marriage, Miss Wilson was the honor guest at a large number of interesting social affairs.

The bridegroom since graduating from the University of Cincinnati, has been a road contractor and is now engaged at Pentwater.

CONVENTION MARKS SEASON'S FINALE

PYTHIAN ORDERS NOW HOLD FORTH AT INN

Nearly 500 in Attendance Counting Families of Delegates from Michigan Lodges

Charlevoix's last and biggest convention of the three that have been held here at the Inn this season is now in session at this writing, Thursday being the last day of the three-day sojourn in this city—September 2nd, 3rd and 4th.

One hundred sixty of the approximately 200 Michigan castles of the Knights of Pythias are represented at this convention as well as 101 temples of the women's organization, the Pythian Sisters. With the families of the delegates, the assemblage totals close to 500 people, about the largest number that has ever been entertained at the Inn.

Some of the delegates and their families arrived last Friday and Saturday, but they really commenced to come in on Monday, the majority driving their own cars.

Tuesday evening the Past Grand Chancellors held their usual banquet, the Pythian Sisters having their big spread of 150 plates at the same time in an adjoining room at the Inn. The real business of the convention for both orders commenced Wednesday morning, a joint meeting of both branches of the order being held at this time.

At nine o'clock Wednesday morning the Grand Lodge delegates and officers started the order of business with the reading of the two prize essays on Americanization, award of honors being made according to the rules of a contest instituted by the Grand Lodge for all Junior high school students of the state. The first prize was won by a Miss Austin of Grand Haven.

Wednesday afternoon was occupied with election of officers. Ray Brundage, of Kalamazoo, is the new Grand Chancellor, succeeding Fred Vos, of Grand Rapids. Samuel J. Arner, of Howard City, was elected Grand Master of the Exchequer to succeed Harvey C. Clement of Greenville, who has just completed a ten year term in this office.

Dr. B. C. Swift, of Middleville, was elected Grand Outer Guard, (Continued on page 4.)

WHAT PEOPLE WILL GET

Thomas Meggison will be elected to Congress from the 11th Congressional District next Tuesday, according to reports from every part of the district.

This is as it should be. In the business world, a man's previous record of achievement plays a major part in determining his selection for a position of greater responsibility. It applies no less to the selection of those who are to conduct the people's business—the government of the nation.

During the period that Mr. Meggison occupied a seat in the Michigan Legislature he was an active and courageous figure. Instead of representing any one group or class, he constantly kept before him the idea that his mission was to represent his constituency as a whole and he rose in his place to defend the farmer as quickly as for the laborer; he was as earnest in promoting the welfare of the commercial interests of his district as he was in preventing the encroachments of private interests on the rights of the public, whenever those rights were in danger of infringement.

In the important matter of the distribution of primary school money, we find him on the right side of the controversy, fighting to give the boy in the sparsely populated rural district an even chance with his brother of the town and city. In the fight over the gasoline tax, he stood solidly with the men who sought to build and maintain better roads by the sensible and equitable method of levying on a commodity of general use among all users of roads instead of discriminating against the heavier cars and almost all commercial vehicles.

Mr. Meggison's home county will give him almost unanimous support. Surrounding counties where he is next best known will give him big majorities over all other candidates and reports from all counties in the district show him to be the one outstanding candidate in this congressional contest.

Here are a few particular reasons why your vote should be cast for Mr. Meggison:

1. He is a plain, self-made man who believes in the plain people.
2. He is a man of good, solid character and is absolutely dependable.
3. He is a worker who will work on the job—no figurehead.
4. The whole people of the district would be ably represented by him.
5. He is forceful and vigorous enough to really get somewhere for his district.
6. He is a staunch supporter of the American system of government and believes that every man and woman should have equal opportunity with every other man or woman.

CAR SKIDS ACROSS ROAD—HITS TREE

Jay Hite and Party Badly Cut by Flying Glass

A terrifying but, fortunately, not fatal accident took place last Monday afternoon between three and four o'clock on the Petoskey Road, just the other side of Greensky Hill on the cement road.

Jay Hite of the Hite Drug Company of East Jordan, his wife, three children and a lady friend were driving south at a moderate rate of speed in a Buick 5-passenger coupe. They overtook the car driven by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bonthron on their way back from the north and attempted to pass the latter. In some way, Mr. Hite got off the concrete into the loose gravel alongside the road and skidded. In attempting to get back onto the road again, he must have turned his wheel too far to the right, as he shot across the road and up the bank on the other side, striking a tree, the car rolling over on its side.

The Bonthrons stopped and immediately went to the assistance of the unfortunates. Mr. Bonthron was unable to get the car door open in the position in which it was lying and was forced to mount to the roof of the leaning body and help its occupants climb out of the windows. The Hite party were all badly cut by flying glass and were brought to the Charlevoix hospital to have their wounds dressed. The car, almost a total wreck, was towed to Brown's garage.

Pahl-Arnold

Allen E. Arnold, former well-known Charlevoix boy, and Miss Gertrude J. Pahl, of Detroit, were married in that city on August 5th by the Rev. Homer B. Henderson at the First Presbyterian church, 1400 Grand River avenue. The young couple will go to housekeeping immediately upon their return from Charlevoix where they have been visiting the groom's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arnold.

Two Big Games

On Thursday and Friday of this week will occur two great games of baseball, between the East Jordan league team and the Postum Cereals of Battle Creek. The latter were 1923 state champs and the players are all ex-liguera. Games will be called at three p. m. sharp and a real entertainment may be anticipated by fans.

Utter-Wilkinson

Byron P. Wilkinson of this city and Mrs. Mary C. Utter of Bellaire will be married Thursday at the home of the bride, at 2:00 p. m. They will be at home to their friends in Charlevoix after October 1st.

SHORTER SEASON FOR MANY LAKES

STATE REGULATIONS IN SIX COUNTIES CHANGED

Requests Reported Coming in From Others for Shorter Season and Smaller Catch Limit

Continuing its program of permitting local residents of counties to regulate the fishing within the limits of the county, the state conservation department has issued a set of regulations covering six counties, greatly restricting the present fishing season.

At the same time, backed by practically every civic society in Montcalm county, the department started out to purchase a 1,000-acre game preserve in this county at a cost of $17,000. Unfavorable action on the part of the state administrative board alone will prevent the purchase and the establishment of a Township Line lake.

Options on the land for the game preserve have been secured by interested residents of the county and the purchase price set upon the property is said to be several thousand dollars below the assessed valuation.

Backing the Montcalm proposition are the Crystal Rod and Gun club, Vestaburg Sportsman's association, Lakeview Rod and Gun club, the Howard City Commercial club, Stanton Fish and Game club, Sequoyias club of Greenville, Woman's Literary club, Sheridan Woman's Literary club, Santon Woman's club and Carson City Woman's club.

The fishing regulations issued on petition of county residents cover Grand Traverse, Missaukee, Genesee, St. Joseph, Ingham and Oakland counties. In Grand Traverse, in addition to closing all lake fishing from Jan. 1 to July 1, a limit of five large and small mouth bass in one day as well as possession at one time and five walleyed pike of not less than 15 inches is placed on the county for five years. In Missaukee county all fishing is closed from Jan. 1 to June (Continued on page 4.)

Use Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

For Perfect Motor Response

The willing start, the leap ahead, the noiseless regularity of the piston stroke, the steady purr of a satisfied engine—all these lie in Red Crown, the BETTER motor fuel.

The finer shades of Red Crown performance are due to its perfect chain of boiling point fractions. Red Crown begins to vaporize at a very low temperature, with consequent prompt and easy starting, summer or winter. Red Crown vaporizes steadily throughout the entire stroke of the piston, thus yielding smooth and rapid acceleration and maximum mileage.

Red Crown service lies in this wide flexibility. It is an ideal fuel—it not only moves the car, but it gives the driver a sense of perfect control—a thrill of power—an exhilaration due to instant and eager response.

Red Crown service represents the ideals of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) carried into performance. It yields more power—greater economy—more mileage—manifesting in all these the aim of the Company to provide a better motor fuel.

It is available everywhere—and everywhere the same—to the man who buys 1 gallon or 1,000 gallons.

REASONS WHY IT IS BETTER AND LESS EXPENSIVE

BECAUSE the fees and commissions allowed for services as Executor or Administrator are fixed by law, and are the same when rendered by The Michigan Trust Company as when rendered by an individual—no more.

BECAUSE The Michigan Trust Company maintains a specialized organization for all services ordinarily incident to the duties of an Executor or Administrator—attorneys, accountants, auditors, bookkeepers, clerks, stenographers, typists—besides an organization for the necessary executive supervision—and there is in most cases no additional charge against the estate, under the name of expenses or otherwise, for any part of all that these persons do, all such services being covered by the statutory fees or commissions. There is also saved to the estate the cost of necessary executor's or administrator's bond, stationery, account books, postage, storage of valuable account books and papers, and often storage of jewelry, securities, and other valuables. When an individual serves as executor or administrator, some of these are an expense to the estate.

BECAUSE there are no items of expense chargeable against an estate when The Michigan Trust Company serves, that are any greater than when an individual serves.

BECAUSE with The Michigan Trust Company as Executor, Administrator or Trustee, there is ample financial responsibility, continued existence, financial judgment, long experience, greater assurance of promptness and accuracy in the performance of the duties of the office, greater detail in statements rendered, and usually better net results obtained for the beneficiaries.

BECAUSE an individual named as executor in a will may die during his administration of the estate, or cannot, for business or personal reasons, serve for the requisite length of time; and sometimes he is unsuited to the task.

THE MICHIGAN TRUST COMPANY SERVES AS CO-EXECUTOR OR CO-TRUSTEE WITH AN INDIVIDUAL. Where an individual has an intimate knowledge of the business or family conditions of the maker of the will or trust, it may sometimes be desirable that such an individual be appointed to serve with The Michigan Trust Company.

opening the way for the promotion of other officers. A. L. Fitch of this city, formerly Grand Outer Guard, is now Grand Inner Guard. He delivered the speech of welcome to the visiting delegates and together with "Bill" Hampton has been largely instrumental in seeing that the delegates had a good time and were well taken care of in Charlevoix.

The Pythian Sisters have had a committee of seven here since Saturday morning preparing a revision of the grand central constitution and by-laws. Their Wednesday morning session was occupied with this matter and with election of officers, reports of committees, installation of officers and other items of routine business. Mrs. Jennie Doyle, Grand Mistress of Records and Correspondence, is the presiding officer. Wednesday afternoon the Sisters held their memorial exercises.

Wednesday evening was reserved by the Pythian branch for a get-together meeting of the Michigan Pythian Veterans Association, an organization started by W. E. Hampton some seven years ago. It is composed of all members who have been in the lodge 25 years or more.

Thursday morning will see the wind-up of the order of business for both branches of the order. Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock the delegates of both branches will enjoy an automobile trip by courtesy of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. They have already had several auto and boat rides. Alfred Henegys, of Menominee, one of the delegates, brought his big 57 foot steam yacht, the Dorothy, and took a bunch of the K. P.'s and Sisters up the lake to East Jordan and around on Wednesday morning.

The present convention is the second that the Knights of Pythias have held at Charlevoix, the delegates having assembled here in 1922. They are enthusiastic over Charlevoix as a convention point and want to come again.

Several national officers of both branches are in attendance at the convention. They are Supreme Prelate Fred Atwood and Supreme Keeper of Records and Seal Harry Love, both of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Addie Kemp, of Adrian, Mich., Supreme Junior of the Supreme Temple.

Form Local Voters' League with Ward Chairmen

In the interest of the League of Women Voters an organization has been completed in Charlevoix with Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall chairman of the city; Mrs. E. E. Cross, chairman of the first ward; Mrs. John Burns, chairman of the second ward and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, chairman of the third ward.

These chairmen have appointed block chairmen who have canvassed the homes and urged all citizens to register so as to be able to vote at the primaries on September 9th.

The activities of the committees will be directed along the lines of education in citizenship and support of needed legislation, efficiency in government and candidates for public office. Women can render valuable service by stimulating public opinion and by suggesting the improvement of institutions and parties, because women are not bound by partisan precedents nor political habits.

Tuesday, September 9th, is the date of the primary election. Every patriotic citizen will vote.

Woman of executive ability and experience in meeting people can be placed at once. This position requires strong personality. Address P. O. Box 7, Petoskey. Adv. 3511 pd.

PUBLIC KNOWS SCOTT'S STAND

Congressman Has Always Voted as Republican And in Interest of Public Generally

If the public wants lower taxes; if the Coolidge plan of TAX REDUCTION is to become effective in the next congress, the voters should surround the President of the United States with tried and true REPUBLICANS, whom they know by past experience will support the Republican party and adhere to the basic principles upon which the entire success of the party has been built.

Such a man is Congressman Frank D. Scott, who during the five whole terms he has represented this district in Washington, has proven conclusively that he is a REPUBLICAN, not for election purposes, but by conviction. He promises, if re-elected to continue to vote as a republican and not under the direction of any organization, group, clique, bloc or individual, but in the interests of ALL the people and not the selective few seeking special privileges.

In the last congress, the Mellon TAX REDUCTION plan and other extremely important administration measures were defeated by men, elected as Republicans, but whose conduct in congress since, has proven that their sole purpose was to disrupt the Republican organization for their own personal, political gain.

The voters of this district KNOW by his record how Congressman Scott stands and votes. They know that he WILL support President Coolidge, if elected and that he WILL ADHERE to the Republican principles at all times, thereby aiding the administration in affecting its TAX REDUCTION and other equally important measures and policies. REPUBLICAN CONVENTION SEPT. 17

Will Be Held in Court House, Charlevoix, at 11 A. M.

To the Republican Electors of the County of Charlevoix:

A convention of Republicans for Charlevoix county will be held at the circuit court room in the city of Charlevoix on Wednesday, the 17th day of September, 1924, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, central standard time, for the purpose of electing six delegates to attend the Republican state convention called to meet in the city of Detroit, on the twenty-fourth day of September, 1924, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, eastern standard time, for the purpose of nominating candidates for state offices, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the said state convention.

At the same time and place the Republican candidates nominated at the primary election for the county offices will meet and elect a Republican County Committee, and officers thereof, as provided by Section 2, Chapter 23 of the Michigan election laws, as amended by Act 402 of the Public Acts of 1921, and said county convention will transact such other business as may properly come before it.

The several townships and wards of the county will be entitled to the number of delegates as shown on the Republican primary ballot at the September primary election.

The delegates to attend the convention will be elected in the townships and wards of the county at the primary election to be held in said townships and wards on the ninth day of September A. D. 1924.

Dated August 25th, 1924.
Republican County Committee,
By Lisle Shanahan, Chairman; L. H. White, Secretary.

The Petoskey Oil Company

Holds 5,000 Acres of Leases

In Frio County, Texas, under the brow of the famous BALCONES FAULT, along the course of which the MEXIA and many other big oil fields have been "brought in."

ORIGINALLY we were the only drillers on or near our location. NOW they are all around us—converging on us.

ORIGINALLY we were "RANK WILD-CATTERS"—the nearest proven field 20 MILES AWAY. Now there are producing wells eight miles from us.

WE PAID 25c. per acre for our leases; today they would cost us from $1.00 per acre up.

Does the above STATEMENT OF FACTS mean anything to you!

Originally started as a syndicate, our project has outgrown us—we have been compelled to incorporate and "open the pot" to outsiders. We are neighbors of yours. We are not going to distant fields where we are unknown, to put over something crooked; nor are we trying to persuade widows and orphans to put their life insurance and savings into a speculative venture. But if you are a hard-headed business man and want to put $100 to $500 into a "venture" with possibilities of proving a 100 to 1 shot, we will welcome you—a few of you.

We are right beside you and court the fullest investigation as to our project and as to the character and reputation of our officers.

Well posted oil men and geologists assure us we have the LIQUID GOLD underneath our lease-holds.

NO PROMOTION STOCK—NO SALARIES—NO EXTRAVAGANCE. Just HONEST, FAITHFUL EFFORT. Money spent in operations with the greatest care. Our Field Agent the only one in the organization drawing pay—and he draws "wages," not a "salary."

If all this interests you, mail slip below and we will send you our booklet giving our history and will call on you later. NO OBLIGATION.

SHORTER SEASON FOR MANY LAKES

15, a limit of five northern or grass pike with 10 in possession, at one time is imposed. The shipping of minnows out of the county is prohibited. This last regulation is the result of catching of minnows from small streams and shipping of them out of the county to be sold as bait.

In Genesee county all kinds of fishing is prohibited from Jan. 1 to June 16. In St. Joseph county the hunting of muskrats is prohibited after Nov. 1 this year for a period of three years. In Ingham county all spearing is prohibited; the fishing in lakes is closed from Jan. 1 to June 16 and the use of fish houses for ice fishing is prohibited.

Oakland county, one of the fishing mecca for Detroit fishermen, is closed from Jan. 1 to June 16; use of ice fishing houses is prohibited, as is the spearing of all fish, excepting carp and similar omnivorous fish.

Petitions from other lower Michigan counties are coming into the conservation department almost daily and indications are that practically all lakes below the straits will be closed next year from Jan. 1 until at least the opening day for bass fishing, June 16. In some of the counties this date will be advanced to July 1.

Conditions prevailing in all trout streams and inland lakes of Charlevoix county, with the possible exception of Pine Lake, would warrant such action as taken by the above mentioned counties. There seems to be an average of from four to six fishermen for each fish. If a closed season is not brought about soon, fishing in this section will be a thing of the past. Local sportsmen should take immediate action and prevent a complete depletion of fish from our local waters.

Makes 10¢ Swell with Pride

BEECH-NUT chewers don't switch.

The next batch of BEECH-NUT Chewing Tobacco will be like the last—the same quality and quantity of pure, sweet, waxy tobacco—the same bully flavor—the same super money's worth.

Lorillard's have been making chewing tobacco for over a century—upholding standards and following blending recipes that still give their products the widest sale in the world.

No pipe scrap and factory hash in BEECH-NUT. Never cheapened and bulked by rancid, bitter ground leaves, disguised with heavy flavorings.

The same quality and the same weight in 1924 as in 1915, despite increased taxes, overhead, wages and tobacco prices.

10c swells its chest every time it buys a package.

Is it any wonder that over 250 million packages are sold in a single year?

Political Announcement
To the Electors of Charlevoix County:

At the solicitation of many Republican friends and close business associates I have decided to allow my name to be brought forward as a candidate for Register of Deeds at the September 9, 1924, primary. I have received many unsolicited assurances of support. I have never before asked political favors, nor held public office. Am a practical farmer and have lived in the rural districts all my life. Have been a resident of Charlevoix county for over 22 years. For the past three years have been secretary of the County Agricultural Society. I believe I can meet the requirements as register of deeds to the satisfaction of everyone. If nominated and elected I will give my entire time and attention to the duties of this office. Having entered the field, I solicit the support of all Republicans throughout the county. Frank F. Bird.—Adv. 35-tf.

LAI TO REST IN BROOKSIDE CEMETERY

Remains of Mrs. Susan Thorpe Brought Here for Interment

Mrs. Susan Thorpe, formerly Miss Susan Gordon, was born March 1st, 1837, in Mount Forrest, Canada. She lived with her parents in her home town until the age of 27, at which time she married Thomas Thorpe.

This couple lived in Mount Forrest until the year 1881, at which time they came to Charlevoix, bringing with them eight children, William, Ella, John, Susan, Thomas, James, Margaret and Robert.

This entire family has lived, married and are rearing their respective families all within the state of Michigan and not far removed from the home town.

Thomas Thorpe departed this life at the home of his daughter, Susan, in Phelps, Mich., September 6, 1909, survived by his entire family, after which there has been but two deaths up to the present time.

The deceased is survived by all of her eight children, twenty-seven grand-children and nine great grand-children. Mrs. Susan Thorpe, the deceased, was always a faithful wife, careful mother and instant worker and aid in time of sickness or trouble. She was possessed of all her faculties to within about two months of her death, when she began to fail gradually until death claimed her August 21st. The past two years of her life were spent with her daughter, Margaret, in Lansing, Michigan.

The remains arrived from Lansing Tuesday morning and were taken to the M. E. church, services being held at 3:30 p. m., Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

Don't start on your vacation with a shabby suit or traveling bag. Look over our line, then you will buy a new one. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 35-tf.

The Michigan annual conference will convene in the city of Jackson, Michigan, on Wednesday, September 10th at 9 o'clock. This conference covers all of the southern peninsula west of the meridian line. It is comprised of seven districts. Charlevoix is situated in the Grand Traverse district. We have a superintendent of each district. The seven superintendents and the bishop of this area comprise the cabinet which has the appointing power of all the ministers. In this conference are 331 ministerial members, 33 probationers and 70 supplies. These 434 ministers make the conference. There are 564 church buildings, and 68,967 members of the church. The minister is appointed for one year and can remain indefinitely as long as he himself and his people are mutually satisfied.

This Thursday prayer meeting at 8 o'clock. Read the 9th chapter of the Acts. The number of men at prayer meeting increases. Splendid crowd. Good spirit. Are you one of those who has not been in prayer meeting this conference year?

Because of the Staunch Support Given President Coolidge in this last Congress; Because of the fact that Congressman Frank D. Scott, your representative in Congress, voted as a republican in support of the Coolidge program of TAX REDUCTION and like measures, he is opposed in the primary election for renomination on the republican ticket by three who aspire to the office.

It is apparent, then, that his vote in support of President Coolidge and lower taxes, is not in accordance with the views of his opponents,—or—they seek the office because they are politically ambitious. Should it happen, then, that any one of Scott's opponents be elected to Congress, he naturally would not vote in support of the President and the administrative program, but would vote as an individual seeking political advancement.

Alfred E. Sarasin, of Boyne City, candidate for register of deeds at the September primaries, was in town Tuesday on business at the court house.

Mrs. Neil Bennett, of New Haven, Mich., and sister, Mrs. John S. Berry, of Lansing, are in the city, visiting their mother, Mrs. George Pappin, for a couple of weeks.

Mrs. L. T. Lander, of Chicago, who has been visiting her brother and niece, D. S. Payton and daughter, Minnie, on Park avenue, left for home Tuesday, September 2nd.

Mrs. Eri Babcock and three children, Bobby, Sidney and Emma, of Atlanta, Mich., arrived here Tuesday evening and will spend a week with her brother, Joe Moore and family.

Albin Campbell, wife and family left Monday for their home in Flint, after spending several days in the city visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Julia Cram, and other relatives and friends.

James C. Wood, of Manistique, candidate for congressional honors, was in the city the first three days of the week meeting old friends and attending the annual K. of P. convention.

Gordon Kimball has sold his fruit farm near Ironton and expects to leave this fall to make his home in California, where he will take up his work in the advertising department of the Los Angeles Examiner.

Ray Hamilton sailed the yacht Siesta, which has been laid up in Round Lake for repairs since the regatta on July 26th, back to Chicago Saturday. The Siesta is owned by Marvin Haskell of the latter city.

Miss Gladys Livingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McGeagh, left Sunday for Tawas City, where she will teach the seventh and eighth grades in the public schools of that city during the coming school year.

James E. Sanford, of the national advertising department of the Chicago Tribune, arrived in the city Saturday on the Manitou to visit his parents, Captain and Mrs. James Sanford, returning to Chicago last Monday.

Nat Burney came up from Detroit, Saturday, to join Mrs. Burney, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Julia Shrier, and sisters, Mrs. H. R. Fowler and Mrs. L. B. Atchinson. They will return to their home the last of the week.

Mrs. J. J. Howe has returned from a most delightful trip of 2,412 miles, covering the most important points of interest of Canada, New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio and southern Michigan. She has been gone a month.

Lee S. Correll, who has been spending the past two months with his parents, Judge and Mrs. S. A. Correll, left last Saturday morning with his friend, Mr. Davidson, for Long Island, N. Y., where they will take up their school work. They motored through.

The Missouri of the Michigan Transit Company will touch here Monday evening at nine o'clock on her regular northbound trips and southbound Tuesday at six p. m., stopping at Glen Haven and Chicago. These hours will hold good until about the 15th of this month.

Will Newman, who has been staying here the greater part of the summer, expects to return to his home in Santa Monica, California, the last of the week. Mr. Newman recently received a painful injury to his knee in ascending a flight of stairs and has had to walk with a cane recently.

George Harris, of Fou du Lac, Wis., who has been visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles See, for the past week, returned Wednesday morning (Sept. 3rd) accompanied by Bill Christy of the ball team, who will stop off at his home in Danville, Ill. They are driving through.

In last week's issue appeared an account of the death of Charles Neubert. There are several inaccuracies therein that need correction. Mr. Neubert was born in Saxony, a province of the German Empire, he has lived here for the past seventeen years, coming to this country in 1902. He leaves two sons, Richard and Otto.

Many of the cottagers and club guests of the Chicago Club colony have already left for their homes, including the Scott and Warren families, and many others are planning to leave before the end of the week, including the Burnhams, who go Friday. The club house officially closes on the 21st. Quite a number of house guests were up over Labor Day.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Mavis are visiting at the home of Mr. Mavis' sister, Mrs. E. S. Sierritt, 103 Park avenue, this city. Mr. Mavis is connected with the firm of Mavis Company of New York and Frisco, extract manufacturers. Mrs. Sierritt is also entertaining her sister, Mrs. Matt Dorse, of Detroit, and the latter's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. White of that city. This is the first time that Mrs. Sierritt has seen her brother in 24 years. All of the party motored up and will keep together on the return trip as far as Detroit, where their routes separate, the Mavis's going on to New York.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday and Friday, September 4 and 5

"BLUFF," with Agnes Ayres and Antonio Moreno. A flashy Sam Wood Paramount picture in a New York setting. The comedy drama of a girl who tries to beat New York at its own game of bluff—and meets with adventure both thrilling and laughable. A new-idea picture with fashionable Fifth Avenue as the background. Also two reels of "THE FAST STEPPERS," sparkling gems of comedy drama with Billie Sullivan.

Saturday and Sunday, September 6 and 7

Paramount presents Pola Negri in "MEN." Here is the Pola Negri that's going to make all sit up and take notice. Vital—that's the word. Full of fire, of love, spirit and romance. Never was Pola Negri so fascinating as in her great Parisian love-drama, "MEN." Also a scream of a two reel educational comedy, "LOOK OUT BELOW."

Monday and Tuesday, September 8 and 9

A Wm. Fox special production, "THE NET." A riot of revelry. Gorgeous displays of pomp and revelry permeate scene after scene of this unconventional drama of modern womanhood. Spectacular ballroom scenes, and fascinating ballet dances are among the many points of appeal in this exceptional screen creation.

Wednesday, September 10

Wm. Fox presents "DOES IT PAY," with Hope Hampton and a notable cast including Robert T. Haines, Mary Thurman, Peggy Shaw and Florence Short. Does it pay to drink the wine of folly; to tread the primrose path; to break the marriage vows? A powerful drama of women's wiles and man's folly, with an unexpected and thrilling climax.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Wednesday and Thursday, September 3 and 4

A Wm. Fox special production, "THE SHADOW OF THE EAST," with Frank Mayo, Mildred Harris, Norman Kerry and Evelyn Brent. Story by E. M. Hull, author of "The Sheik."

Saturday and Sunday, September 6 and 7

A Wm. Fox special production, "SIX-CYLINDER LOVE," with Ernest Truex and an all-star cast. From the biggest stage success in years. For two years it kept New York roaring with laughter. Six Cylinder Love is the great American game. Many a girl who can't bake biscuits knows how to drive a six-cylinder car fast—and a man mad. Also a two reel Clyde Cook comedy, "WET & WORRY."

Wednesday and Thursday, September 10-11

Paramount presents "THE STRANGER," with Betty Compson, Richard Dix, Lewis Stone and Tully Marshall. They're making some fine pictures these days, but they'll have to go some to make a better one than this. It's a striking, unusual story, woven with the colorful threads of life, acted by a marvelous cast and flawlessly directed. Come and get acquainted with "The Stranger." Also two-reels of the Telephone Girl comedy-drama, "SHERLOCK HOME."

LOEHNE'S HERD HAS HIGH AVERAGE

AMONG MEMBERS NORTH ANTRIM ASSOCIATION

Anthony Shooks Makes $125.78
in Nine Months

The North Antrim Cow Testing Association finished its twelfth month August 8th. Profits were not so high as in the month of June, due to a lower price for butter-fat and the decline in production, combined with a higher cost of feeds.

The practice of summer feeding of a good grain ration at this time helps prevent a large per cent of the decline in milk flow, and helps the cows in condition to realize a profit should prices become more favorable.

The average production per cow for the month was 678 lbs. of milk, with a 3.97 per cent test which makes 26.8 lbs. of butter-fat. The value of product was $9.96, cost of roughage $1.31, cost of grain 89c, or the total cost of feed was $2.20 per cow. The net profit then was $7.70 per cow.

The return for one dollar spent for feed was $4.48, cost of one pound of butter-fat was 8c, cost of cwt. of milk was 32c. Fifty per cent of the members are feeding grain. Thirty-three per cent are keeping daily milk records. A better interest is being expressed in the checking up of each cow with what she eats and what she produces to find the difference in cost of product and value of product. The daily record is also valuable in helping the members to notice any increase or falling off in production. During the month 25 cows produced over 40 lbs. of butter-fat and only 4 cows were able to pass the 50 lb. of butter-fat mark. Thirty-seven cows produced 1,000 lbs. of milk or over, and only 3 cows were able to get above the 1,250 lbs. of milk mark. This is partly due to the large number of cows who are approaching the end of their lactation period.

One separator that was losing at the rate of 21 cent per day in the month of May, or over $76.00 a year, was replaced with a new machine that tested less than .01 of 1 per cent of butter-fat in the skim milk. A checking up of the separators often brings the trouble of getting small cream checks to an end.

Ernest Loehne's herd averaged 48.34 lbs. of butter-fat per cow; W. P. Smith's herd averaged 32.55 lbs. butter-fat per cow; Mettos Rubingh's cows averaged 32.29 lbs. butter-fat, while F. H. Hemstreet's pure-bred cow, Beauty, heads the milk production class with 1,630 lbs. of milk for the month and 5,054 lbs. of milk in 91 days.

Watch for announcement in next issue. Following is a record of 10 high cows in the association for the past month:

THOMAS MEGGISON FOR CONGRESS
11th Congressional District

Thomas Meggison is waging a CLEAN FIGHT for Congress. He is asking your support because he believes he can be of real service to the District. He believes this district is entitled to vigorous representation.

FARMERS are back of him because he is keenly interested in agricultural development.

WORKERS are with him because he is himself a worker.

BUSINESS MEN are with him because they know his integrity.

Where he is well known his support is almost unanimous. Reports from every county of the district shows a big movement of men and women for him. YOU can do the 11th Congressional District an immense service by getting solidly back of "Tom" Meggison for Congress. Your district needs just such a man.

at Atwood. Funeral services at 2:00 p. m., Thursday, from the Reformed church.

The Ladies' Aid Society will give an ice cream social on the old hotel grounds near the Citizen's Bank, on Saturday evening of this week. Everybody welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wieland have been hosts to the following during the past week: Mr. Wieland's brother, Leonard and family and his sister, Mrs. John Ringleburg and family of Grand Rapids; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Drew and Mr. and Mrs. Rembrandt, all of Hudsonville.

A STRONG, SAFE MAN FOR CONGRESS

People Will Be Able Represented by Election of Tom Meggison

One of the largest assortments of political timber from which the voters of Antrim county may make their choice on Tuesday, September 9th, is on the bills for this year of any year in recent history, and as competition is strong a record vote will no doubt be polled. Aside from the candidates for county offices, local interest is centered on the choice of a candidate to carry the Republican banner in the race for congress from the 11th district, in which race the Hon. Thomas D. Meggison is entered. Mr. Meggison needs no introduction to Antrim county voters, and his unblemished record as county prosecutor and later as representative from the Antrim district at Lansing speaks louder than a mere advertising campaign possibly could. Mr. Meggison claims that his chances are bright in the northern counties of the 11th District, but pins his hopes for an overwhelming majority in Antrim county. This means that each and every voter must do his or her bit to make that majority possible.

Four men want the honor of being U. S. Senator. Seven want to be governor. Five would like to be Lieutenant Governor, four of which Thos. D. Meggison is one, are willing to accept a position as congressman. Wm. L. Case is unopposed for a seat in the state senate, two are out for state representative. C. L. Bailey would like to be probate judge for a second term and there are two two candidates for sheriff, two for county clerk, one for treasurer, two for register of deeds and H. E. Wellman is the only one who wants to be prosecuting attorney. On September 9th take your choice, but above all, vote. Don't "let George do it."

ANTRIM CITY

Mr. Westolk and family returned home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans, of Eastport, Mr. Dennis and family and Mr. Stool and family were visitors at the Jack Smith home Sunday.

Mr. Stott's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hall, and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff, all of Gaylord, and also Mr. Stott's nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. George Weber and children and also a girl friend, all of Lansing, were Sunday visitors at the Stott home.

ROCK'ELM

Edward Metz returned to Chicago this week and Miss Sadie to Mt. Pleasant.

Ben Smitts had the misfortune to loose one of his horses from blood poisoning last week.

Mrs. Hyatt and little daughters, Helen and Mary, of Detroit, are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julie Jensen.

The state bee inspectors were at the home of Mrs. Metz on the 26th, and complimented her highly on the fine condition of her hives.

A suggestion to the game warden: Provide a bucket of water for those unfortunate little fish that have to go to court as witnesses against the violators of the fish laws and return them to the lake as quickly as possible after their evidence has been taken.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cox, of Grawn, came Saturday afternoon, August 23, for a brief visit at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Levi Metz. They returned to their home Sunday afternoon, taking their son, Thomas, and daughter, Naomi, who have been spending the summer with their grandmother, home with them.

The Union Signal quotes from Senator Ferris' recent address to the Rotarians of Grand Rapids. He says: "How can you expect—what right have you to expect, that the youth of today will give obedience to the law, or anything else, when the parents and grown men and women stand up and openly violate law and boast of it? I heard a senator on the floor of the United States senate, boast that he violated the Volstead act, yet that man; when he became a senator, took an oath to obey the constitution and laws of this republic. What can you expect of the

James C. Wood For Congress

Former Senator James C. Wood of Manistique, candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District, is receiving encouraging and enthusiastic support from all parts of the district. The generally admitted fact that Mr. Wood has a wide acquaintance in the state is proof that he is in touch with every part of the Eleventh Congressional District, and will add considerable strength to his candidacy. A recognized leader in the state senate for three terms, he made an enviable record, and the loyalty of his colleagues throughout the district testifies to his popularity among them. Mr. Wood is a gentleman of unquestioned integrity, a hard worker, a forceful public speaker and a close student of governmental affairs. He was born in Michigan and has spent his entire life-time in this state. Mr. Wood's work at Lansing was of the highest order and he justly earned the distinction of being the hardest worker in the Michigan Senate. He has never been afraid to stand up and be counted and welcomes a fight for a good cause. Prominently identified with the most important legislation, the result of his painstaking efforts will be found in many of the best bills passed. No man worked more systematically or more conscientiously than he. He studied every bill that came before him, found its weakness and knew its strength.

Mr. Wood comes before the voters upon his merits alone. His ability fits him to meet the task, and with such a man as he in Congress we would be as ably represented as any district in the state.

Mr. Wood announces his stand upon matters of legislation and briefly outlines his platform as follows:

Tax reduction and economy in government expenditures.

Will vote for and support legislation for improvement of agricultural conditions. Favors adequate child labor laws. Protection for American labor and square deal in legislation affecting labor. Full measure of care and protection for wounded and disabled war veterans.

He asks the support and vote of every voter in the district who desires faithful service and who appreciates a representative in Congress who is unafraid to take a definite position on important matters.

If the voters desire a man who will give them a square deal, and who will work for their interest rather than play politics, then nominate and elect James C. Wood as your congressman.—Adv. 36-11.

RODE AT ANCHOR IN A HEAVY SEA

BAILING THEIR LEAKING CRAFT
A DAY AND NIGHT

Party of Three from Les Cheneaux Rescued by Joe Smith and the "Buccaneer"

A trying experience fell to the lot of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Meads of Chicago and their mechanic, Harry Lester, when the engine of their motor cruiser failed them on the broad lake, leaving them at the mercy of a heavy sea and high wind for twenty-one hours until they were rescued.

Mr. and Mrs. Meads and young Lester were on their way home, southbound from Les Cheneaux Islands, or the "Snows," where the Meads have a summer cottage. Wednesday morning, at about eleven o'clock, while off Skillogalee (or Isle aux Galets, to spell it correctly) their craft, the Standard, a 38-foot gasoline cruiser, sprung a leak forward. The water rose rapidly until it had flooded the crank case of the engine which, of course, stopped, making it an acute case of bail or sink and bail they did for twenty-one weary hours, during which time they rode at the end of their storm cable, rolling and tossing in a furious sea.

Time after time as other vessels passed within signalling distance the luckless crew of the Standard frantically attempted to get their attention and Mrs. Meads used all the curtains in the cabin to make smoke signals of distress, but no attention was paid to them. All of Wednesday night they were destined to struggle with the elements in a gallant effort to keep their craft afloat and not until about quarter to eight o'clock Thursday morning did the longed-for assistance arrive in the person of Joe Smith of Charlevoix, with the Buccaneer, a Chicago owned boat of which he is the master and in which he was returning from Detroit in the upper peninsula, where he and his party have been spending the summer. The Buccaneer is a 55-foot cruiser and a nifty boat in her class.

Smith came up with the disabled Standard at about a quarter to eight a. m. and stood by to make fast. He finally succeeded in getting a line across to Mr. Meads and the long tow of 25 miles to Charlevoix began. Three times the tow line parted and finally the timber-head on the Buccaneer pulled out entirely. Then Smith managed to pass his line around the Buccaneer's deck house and make it fast in some fashion and after that there were no more mishaps.

The Standard is now lying at the foot of Brady & Son's dock on Round Lake and its owners are fitting up, with an anxious eye out for the weather, as they want to get back to Chicago soon. Mrs. Meads, when interviewed by the Courier representative, confessed that there were moments during their trying ordeal in which she passed in rapid review the relatives that had preceded her into the Great Beyond and whom she felt sure she was shortly about to meet. This is the twelfth year that the Meads family have made the trip to Les Cheneaux and the first time that they have had any serious trouble. But then—there is always a first time for everything. If help had not arrived when it did, Mr. Meads declares he would have rigged up a sail which he always carried on board and made for the nearest lee shore.

WOLF GALINSKI FUNERAL SUNDAY

Petoskey Man is Buried at Traverse City Cemetery

The funeral of Wolf Galinski, who died Saturday at Traverse City, was held in that city Sunday and burial was made in the cemetery there.

Mr. Galinski was a Petoskey resident for many years, owning considerable property in and near the city. He was in the cattle business for many years and bought stock throughout the northern Michigan country. He had been ill for several years.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Wolf Galinski; and one brother, Louis Galinski, of Petoskey.

FIRST ONE SEEN HERE IN YEARS

Yearling Doe Appears to Amazed
Fishermen

E. L. Denny and Ray Graves have the honor of having seen the first deer to appear in this vicinity for a long period of time.

The gentlemen in question were fishing on Pine Lake last Sunday, about a half mile east of the Oyster Bay point. They were drifting about ten rods from the shore when they heard the shrill crackle on shore and a yearling doe broke cover and ventured to the water's edge to drink. Her thirst quenched, the doe made off up the beach, finally reëntering the timber, where she was lost to the view of the fishermen.

While it is very seldom that we catch a glimpse of a real, wild deer in this end of the county, it is not a rarity for them to appear in the eastern part or in the counties adjoining the eastern end of Charlevoix county. Wiser laws and better observance of them on the part of the sportsmen will perhaps keep the deer of Michigan from going the way of the dodo, the great auk and the mastodon for a while longer.

"Bobbie" Sloan and Bride Chief Figures in Joyous Homecoming Affair

We are in receipt of the following account of a recent and interesting event from a Pentwater contributor:

"For the benefit of our many Charlevoix friends, who were not fortunate enough to be present, I am sending the following letter:

Last Thursday evening, September 4, 1924, was the scene of great rejoicing in our city when the "Road Gang," as they are called with their families and other friends of the town, headed by the Pentwater band and "grey-geese," marched to the home of Robert Sloan, Jr., for the purpose of serenading and welcoming the happy couple to Pentwater. "Bob" was found enjoying himself in the bathtub and was told by the "gang" to dress at once and prepare for a ride. We were entertained by the band, with a few choice cowbells for accompaniment, until "Bob" and "Dorothy" were ready. They were then loaded into the "Grey Goose" and the merry-makers, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sloan, Sr., and "Toots," proceeded back to Main Street and finally paused in front of "The Big White Elephant," where the reception was to be held. We were then asked to stand back and clear the street. Mr. and Mrs. Sloan, Jr., were then escorted from the "Goose" and requested to push a baby carriage containing a real live baby through the streets.

"Bobbie" and his little bride were game, though, and pushed the baby-car along very gracefully, amidst the ringing of cowbells and cheering of people, even casting loving glances at the "wee one" in the cab.

"After returning from this trip, the happy couple were presented with a beautiful parlor rocker and an electric table lamp in token of the high esteem in which they were held by the employees of Mr. Sloan.

"Bobbie" then arose and, in a few, well-chosen words, thanked the "bunch" for so kindly remembering them. The crowd then proceeded to the large ballroom, where dancing was the closing act of the evening's entertainment. Music was furnished by a volunteer orchestra, consisting of about a dozen different instruments.

Altogether, a very enjoyable evening was spent and all went back to their respective homes, after wishing the bride and groom a very long and happy life."

RESULT OF TUESDAY'S PRIMARY VOTE COMES AS A SURPRISE TO MANY

"BEAR-CAT" BAKER HEADS LIST FOR GOVERNOR IN FIELD OF SEVEN CANDIDATES

Mary A. Cooper Choice for Treasurer and Will Be County's First Woman Occupying Office—Fitch Wins in Fight for Second Term

The primary election Tuesday passed off quietly, and there was no more than the usual excitement incident to a contest of this kind. Below we give the complete vote in every precinct in the county on all candidates on the ballot.

It will be seen that Baker carried the county for Governor, while Hamilton, the anti-parochial school candidate polled a rather surprisingly large vote.

A feature of the balloting to cause comment was the fact that while Couzens received the most votes for senator for the full term, Tuttle had a plurality for the short term. Evidently the voters got their reins crossed, for there is no reason why one man should be preferred for senator for the full term and another be the choice for the short term, each being candidates for both the long and short terms.

As will be seen, Mrs. Clinton Cooper was a winner in the contest for county treasurer, this meaning that for the first time in history Charlevoix county will have a woman occupying a county office—it, as will undoubtedly be the case—the voters ratify the primary choice in November.

A. L. Fitch made a splendid run for prosecutor, and was a winner by a handsome majority, carrying one ward in his opponent's home city, and every township in the county.

Thomas D. Meggison received a handsome vote for congressman, showing the esteem in which he is held by those who have known him for so many years.

John M. ("Mack") Harris will represent the county in the state legislature and "Bill" Pearson in the senate, the latter sliding in on high with no opposition—a high compliment indeed.

The contest on register of deeds was nearly as close as that for treasurer, Bird beating his nearest opponent, Sarasin, by only 112 votes.

In the race for county road commissioner, Samuel E. Rogers defeated his opponent, Horace B. Hipp, by a majority of 613 votes. Both of these gentlemen are East Jordan residents.

Charlevoix city cast the largest number of votes in its history, between 750 and 760 ballots being marked for the ballot box. When it comes to women exercising their privilege to vote, our own little burg heads the list of northern Michigan cities.

Following is the vote from all precincts in the county as received, but must not be taken as official:

LOCAL FIRM IS BRANCHING OUT

Cartier and Son to Have Store in Ann Arbor

Harold Cartier, who has been assisting his father in the latter's tailoring establishment during the past summer, will leave shortly for Ann Arbor, where he plans to open an establishment for the sale of high grade clothing, carrying a full line of English tweeds and foreign haberdashery and catering exclusively to the college student.

Harold will have charge of this store, which will be practically a branch of the Charlevoix concern, until November 1st, when he will go on the road for his firm, soliciting business among the college communities of the middle west. F. E. Cartier will at that time assume charge of the Ann Arbor branch, either closing his shop here or leaving it in competent hands until the opening of the Charlevoix summer season, when he will return here.

As both Mr. Cartier and his son have had considerable experience in their line, we predict a large measure of success for the new venture.

GROESBECK IS PRIMARY VICTOR

SUCH IS INDICATION OF RE-TURNS FROM OVER STATE

Frank D. Scott Returned as Congressman in 11th Congressional District—Couzens Leads

Returns up to noon, Wednesday, indicate the re-election of Alex J. Groesbeck for governor of Michigan, by a large majority. The men are running as follows: Groesbeck, Hamilton, Sligh, Baker. Northern Michigan, especially in this territory, gave Baker handsome majorities, but these were rapidly overcome when the returns from southern Michigan precincts came in.

For United States senator, both long term and to fill vacancy, Couzens leads over Tuttle, his nearest opponent, by over 30,000 votes, according to latest reports.

In the 11th district congressional fight, Frank D. Scott carried every county in the lower peninsula with the exception of Charlevoix and Antrim counties, which went to Thomas D. Meggison by an overwhelming majority. Latest reports state Scott claims he will go into the upper peninsula with a majority of 5,000, while Lemire of Escanaba, claims he will enter the lower peninsula also with 5,000 majority. Figures determining the position of these two leading candidates will probably not be determined until the official canvass of votes takes place. The men ran as follows: Scott, Lemire, Meggison, Wood.

Luren D. Dickinson, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, had his nearest rival, George Welsh of Grand Rapids, headed by almost 1,000 votes when 116 precincts in the state had reported.

Figures that will determine the race for all state offices will not be available for several days, especially where contests were close.

Twenty-five girl scouts of Mackinac Island are contemplating a trip to Petoskey and Charlevoix on or about September 16th or 17th, according to a letter received by Mayor Bergeon of Charlevoix from Frank Kenyon, state park superintendent on Mackinac Island, who asks in behalf of the fair scouts, "Could you arrange to give them a little ride around the city and perhaps to Loeb Farms?"

We are advised that the mayor has replied to this letter in the affirmative, so everything is a-jake, girls, come ahead.

LAST OF SHANA- HAN NARRATIVES

COVERS HIS VISIT TO THE FAMOUS ROCK

Says First Thing He Noted At Gibraltar Was Absence of Prudential Sign

And so it goes. You will probably get it for a dollar and a half. I got a lot of fun from trying to get a very low price, but I didn't buy much—for a very good reason.

Another youngster and I walked around to the Mediterranean side. It is all very pretty and one can best enjoy it by walking. As you may know, Gibraltar is connected to Spain by a low neck of land. We were not allowed to cross this into the Spanish town without special permission. I did not go. After we passed the neck, we passed under the highest part. It is a sheer cliff of nearly a thousand feet. It acts as a focus for the sound—thus, the waves that break on the beach are hardly audible, but after each one there came a loud swishing sound from the rock.

Farther on we came to a place where the debris had filled in a large part of the angle between the cliff and the level ground. It had all been smoother off and covered with corrugated iron. The iron every year is given a coat of cement wash to preserve it. When I first saw it, I thought it was cement put there to prevent erosion. However, I later learned that there is a rainy season of the three months, January, February and March, with a little of December thrown in for good measure. Well, in the rainy season, all the water that falls on the iron is carried to the reservoir.

A little farther on we came to the end of the road and, incidentally, to the end of our walk, for there were several guards there who told us that we could not go farther. However, they were very friendly, answering all of our questions as well as they could without disclosing state secrets. Whenever we asked them—for instance—where the reservoir was they would say, "I don't know. There are lots of things we don't know. We know where twenty-four are. See, up there by that tower, see? Well, follow down this way a little in that dark spot, do you see it? Well, there is one and over there, just above that large piece of rock that sticks out, there is another, do you see it?" To be sure, I said I saw it, but I didn't.

Then he told us about the caves in Gibraltar. He pointed out to us the entrance to the largest one known. They have never found the end of it. Some years ago, a British officer and two men started out to find the end of it. They were well supplied with oxygen, food and lights. They set out with the supposition that the outlet was in Africa. There is some support to this thing for, they tell me, they have never found a dead rock-ape on Gibraltar. Now, here is the conclusion arrived at. There are apes on Gibraltar. All animals die and leave skeletons at some time or other. They have never found a dead ape on Gibraltar. Where, then, do these apes die? Well, they have a cave that has never been completely explored, maybe it goes to Africa. Now, whenever an ape feels like dying, he takes the subway and goes to Africa to do it. Logical now, isn't it? Well, to get back to our officer and two men. They either ran out of food, or fell into some crevice, or were drowned, for the rescue parties sent out to find them came back without a trace.

Another thing we saw was the tunnel that runs from the post on the straits to the docks on the harbor. They have a small railroad running through it for carrying supplies. Only a privileged few are allowed to walk through it, so we hired a cab to take us back.

GOOD HOT WEATHER DRINKS

A variety of cooling drinks are always a welcome addition to any meal or menu. The following is a great favorite on the farm:

Oatmeal Drink.—Take one-quarter of a pound of oatmeal, one cupful of sugar and the strained juice of two lemons. Add one-half cupful of boiling water to the oatmeal, mix with the other ingredients and pour into a gallon of boiling water, stir well, put through a sieve and chill before serving.

Tea Punch.—Prepare four cupfuls of strong tea, let it cool, then add one pineapple cut in bits, one pound of cooked cherries, the juice of six lemons, one cupful of sugar. Stir until the sugar is dissolved, add one quart of carbonated water, a pint at a time. Serve with a sprig of mint and chopped ice.

Chocolate Sirup.—This will keep until used if kept in the ice chest. Take three squares of chocolate, one ounce of cocoa, one and one-half pounds of sugar, a pint of water and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Boil the cocoa in one-half cupful of water in a double boiler, grate the chocolate and mix with one-third measure of sugar; add this to the cocoa after cooking ten minutes, stir constantly, adding the remainder of the sugar and cook ten minutes. Remove from the fire, strain and cool and add the vanilla. Add a tablespoonful of the sirup to cold milk or ice water; top with a spoonful of whipped cream or a marshmallow.

Fruit Punch.—Boil together for ten minutes three cupfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of water, with the rind of one lemon and one orange. Strain and while hot, add one glass of currant jelly. Set on ice and when ready to serve add the juice of nine lemons, five oranges, one cupful each of cherries and shredded pineapple. Pour into a punch bowl, add ice and water, adding a pint of charged water at a time to give it sparkle.

Iced Tea.—Take a large bowl of chopped ice and pour over a pint or more of freshly-brewed tea. Shake until chilled; add more ice and serve in tall glasses with lemon and sugar.

U. S. in Midst of Record Period in Road Building

If proof were necessary that the United States, which, thanks to the development of the motor vehicle, is now passing through the most intensive period of highway development in the history of the world, is building roads that surpass in quality anything of the kind constructed since the days of the Roman empire, that proof is to be found in abundance.

It exists not only in the quality and quantity of American highways, but in the development of road building methods and materials. The road builders of this country have not only outstripped their ancient predecessors in the use of the most ancient materials, but are getting better results with greater speed, less labor and lower cost.

ROAD BUILDING

HIGHWAYS CAN LIMIT USE OF AUTOMOBILES

(By ROY D. CHAPIN, Chairman Highway Committee, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.)

The average American is a restless individual. Never quite content with things as they are, he is always searching for some means to widen his range of activity and new methods of making both family and business life more worth while.

Hence it is not surprising that when the motor vehicle was first announced as a practical means of transportation, immediately he began to study its possibilities and finally to develop its use.

The story of how quickly he did it is one of the most amazing chapters in the whole story of the world's industrial progress. From 1895 to the close of 1923 the motor car manufacturers of America have been called upon to produce something more than 20,000,000 vehicles, of which it is conservative to say 13,500,000 are now in operation on American highways and owned and operated by Americans. Practically all of this production has been in the last eight years, and as we came to the close of 1923 we found that the output for the last year was the greatest in the history of the industry.

What, then are the limiting factors which must be taken into consideration when we try to gauge the future use of the car?

Certainly, there is no reason to believe that there will be any decrease in the desire for personal, individual transportation. That characteristic is so deeply embedded in all of us that we may reasonably assert that the only limitations are ability to buy and ability to use.

Each of these themes is a text in itself, and since the purpose of this article is to deal with the second, we can dismiss the first with the reflection that in all of the period during which the American public has been buying motor cars in mass quantities savings deposits have continued to grow steadily, and everywhere there is abundant proof that the manufacture and use of the car have only broadened the productive and purchasing power of the public.

The second question provides us with a definite physical problem which can only be answered in terms of miles of highways.

It is pertinent, then, to examine our present road facilities and to see what is planned for the future. Preliminary estimates of the total rural highway mileage of the United States, as reported to the United States bureau of public roads, show that there were 2,941,241 miles of road of all types in the country on January 1, 1922. Of this there were some thousands of miles which were roads only in the legal sense that section lines had been so designated.

Perhaps the most valuable figures are those which show that at the end of 1923 there were about 430,000 miles of all types of surfaced highways, beginning with sand-clay and ending with the highest types of heavy-duty surface, which perhaps constitute 35,000 miles all told.

In other words, if we eliminate city streets there are thirty-one motor vehicles to every mile of improved highway in the United States, and when we consider that 55 per cent of all the cars of the country are used in communities of 5,000 or less, we can obtain some idea of the problem which is facing the road builders of the country if they are to keep pace with the production and use of the car.

Fortunately, there is plenty of evidence on all sides that the general public, the legislators and the builders who represent them all appreciate the need for more roads and all are joining in making them possible.

For example, there is the federal highway act, passed in 1916, and made an effective instrument for the organization of main state systems through the amendments of 1921.

Under its provisions each state has set up a highway department, and a two-year job of designating the 7 per cent of the total rural mileage which comprises the federal aid program in each state has been completed, so that we now have an actual visualization of the program ahead.

Improved Highway Will Reduce Delivery Cost

Lower cost of production and of marketing will be worked out by the man who uses modern scientific and practical methods, who mixes brains with his brawn, who knows where his products can be distributed to the best advantage and who is situated so he has the ability to make use of good highway transportation. On a good highway his cost of delivery is lessened and his profits therefore larger.

Dustless Pavement Types

The extent to which the dustless types of pavement are being adopted is shown by testimony given recently before the senate committee on post office and post roads at Washington by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, whose statements showed that 107 federal aid projects completed and paid for to May 25 last year were roads built of bituminous materials. These highways were constructed in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas and California.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Robert La Follette is not a candidate for president. He knows just as well as does every one of his supporters that he has not the slightest chance of being elected. His most enthusiastic followers cannot figure that he can get more than 51 votes out of the 531 in the electoral college. What then is his aim? It is solely to prevent the election of Coolidge and Davis, throw the election into the senate and thereby exercise some control over the election of the next president. He knows that the House would be as effectively deadlocked as the electoral college and the Senate would have to choose between two vice-presidential candidates, Dawes and Bryan. Then La Follette could make terms with the Democrats by throwing his votes to Bryan. These are the plain facts which are realized fully by the managers of the two big parties and which they hope to get clearly before the people. Another fact they hope to get to the rank and file of the voters is that inasmuch as La Follette has not—nada knows he has not—the slightest chance of being president, he can promise anything. He will never be called upon to make good. Consequently he is shaping his campaign to meet the wishes of every discontented individual with entire recklessness. It is easy to make promises where one will never be called upon to make them good. La Follette has just asserted his opposition to the Ku Klux Klan, to the great discomfiture of the Democratic managers who see in this step a scheme to draw from their candidate that great mass of normally Democratic voters who are disgusted with the cowardly course of the Democratic national convention.

"We are, both Democrats and Republicans, striving for an honest and upright government in the United States," declared John W. Davis at Rockland, Me., as he stopped to make a brief speech on his way back to New York. He told the truth, but when he met his political advisers in New York he found them in tears. What possible issue had the Democrats other than to charge the Republicans with dishonesty, they asked in mournful accents. And if he, their candidate, was going to admit that the Republicans were honest and striving for an upright government they might as well throw up the sponge. But Davis has seen the error of his ways. One week later, opening his campaign at Poughkeepsie, he said, "The great issue in this campaign is honesty in government." Of course the two statements are in flat contradiction. If the Republicans are "striving for an honest and upright government," "honesty in government" is not an issue. But if the voters believe Mr. Davis' first statement they will naturally ask themselves "If both parties are honest and striving for an upright government, why should we turn from those who are striving with four years training and experience and put in their places men who, however honest, are wholly inexperienced?" According to the statements made at Democratic headquarters here, the candidate will never again make the blunder of admitting what he well knows to be true and what he so frankly said at Rockland, that "Both Democrats and Republicans are striving for an honest and upright government in the United States."

It is also declared that the oil leases will constitute one of the chief issues of the Democratic candidate. Judicial determination of the legality and justice of the oil leases cannot come until after the election. The charges have been made, the indictments have been returned, but the government has been instrumental in putting off all the trials until October or later, so there can be no decision to upset the plans of the Democratic managers to make these leases an issue. If, of course, after the election the courts find the leases honest and legal and beneficial to the navy and the United States, and if the juries find that neither Secretary Fall on the one hand or Messrs. Sinclair or Doheny on the other did anything improper in making the leases, but instead saved millions of barrels of government oil for the government, it will not affect the campaign at all. The election will be over and the so-called "Oil Scandal" will have served its purpose, nicely and, incidentally, Senator Walsh of Montana will have been saved from that defeat at the hands of the Ku Klux Klan in Montana which was staring him in the face when he conceived the idea of exploiting a scandal and playing the role of St. George as he saved the nation from the dragon of his own creation.

While politics generally will remain in obedience until after the formal notification of the candidates, the condemnation of Davis by the federation of labor is adding somewhat to the gayety of the campaign even if it "aint doing the Democratic candidate no good."

Don't start on your vacation with a shabby suit case or traveling bag. Look over our line, then you will buy a new one. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 35tf.

BEAR SEEN AT REASONER FARM

Springvale Farmer Says Bruin Pays Visit to His Barley Field

Some parts of northern Michigan are still considered "wild" sections by residents of the region, while other sections are thought to be "wild" by the summer visitors who come from the large cities and thickly settled sections to the south. Edward Reasoner, Springvale farmer, had long thought of his farm as being in one of the less wild sections, but today is undecided just where to place it in the list.

The reason for this is that a real, honest to goodness black bear was seen on his farm this week. The bear was in Mr. Reasoner's barley field when it was sighted by the farmer and a visitor. "Both parties calmly surveyed each other while they considered their next moves," said Mr. Reasoner. "We decided to fetch the rifle from the house and started for it. The bear evidently understood our plans for he quickly made for the woods and disappeared in the undergrowth."

Bears have been seen on several occasions in the wooded sections of the eastern end of the county, but this is the first time Mr. Reasoner has seen one of the animals on or near his farm. Several bears have been reported in the Black Lake country this summer and several in the wild sections around Manistee.—Petoskey Evening News.

A new home for your old one —at the Cost of Two Seasons' Paint Bills!

We mean exactly what we say. We'll turn that old house of yours into a strikingly attractive new and permanent home by covering it with Elastica. And an Elastica Exterior will not cost you much more than two seasons' paint bills.

Elastica will permanently beautify the most dilapidated building, render it fireproof and eliminate painting expense for all time. Do not confuse Elastica with ordinary stucco. The difference is vast. Elastica's original beauty and strength is lasting because Elastica is permanently waterproofed. Water cannot stain its surface. Nor can water seep through this material and reach the wood or metal lath underneath. That is why the supporting lath under an Elastica exterior will not rot nor corrode. That is why the material itself will remain intact, unmarred and unblemished.

Let us show you, without obligation, how inexpensive it is to cover your home with this beautiful, lasting material. Write, phone or call on us for cost estimates and full information today.

Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

When You Want It—Where You Want It

RED CROWN service rests upon a solid foundation of complete distribution. This service means that at any season, time or place, Red Crown is at your instant command.

The Middle West is checkerboarded into divisions served by bulk stations, motor trucks, tankers plying the Great Lakes, tank wagons serving the farms, service stations every few blocks in cities, and at frequent intervals along country roads.

This service is so flexible that a local interruption due to the elements is compensated immediately by service from adjoining points.

At all times, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is prepared to fulfill its obligations in serving patrons with Red Crown Gasoline. Such service functions under all weather conditions. It is as nearly infallible as any human service can be.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) realizes that Red Crown is a motor fuel so superior in its efficiency that patrons once having used it will be unwilling to change.

Millions of carburetors are adjusted to Red Crown. Change of fuel usually means incomplete combustion, fuel waste, and innumerable nagging motor difficulties.

When you use Red Crown, you need never change your fuel. You will never want to change it.

The HUDSON Coach Again Makes History

This Hudson Coach is the first closed car ever to sell at exactly open car cost. And Hudson, alone, can build it. As the largest producer of 6-cylinder closed cars in the world, Hudson exclusively holds the advantages to create this car and this price. And now genuine balloon tires are standard equipment.

It is the easiest steering, most comfortable and steadiest riding Hudson ever built. No car is smoother in action. None, regardless of price, excels it in reliability or brilliancy of performance.

THE GOLDEN SEASON

We are approaching the golden season of the year, the time when all nature blossoms forth in gorgeous maturity. Yet most of us sit bemoaning the passing of summer. If we have not made our long planned vacation tour this summer we feel that something has been lost of life's pleasures and adventures. We think of the trips we planned last winter, and did not make. We think of the places we had determined to visit this summer but postponed the making from week to week until the season had passed. Next Monday the public schools are opening.

September is here. We need not be entirely downcast. September offers many pleasures for us, if we will but take them. Then comes October, whom many believe to be the most beautiful month of the entire year in this region. Early November has its charms also. The nights are brisk with the autumn chill, the mornings are entrancing with the clear sun-rises. The smoke of the morning fires rises lazily and the out-of-doors is pungent with the odors of the autumn time.

An effort is now being made to extend the tourist season in Michigan through September and into October. Few people who have never been in Michigan realize the entrancing beauty of the golden season in Michigan. There are stormy days, of course, when the wind blows and the rain bends down. There are times when the old lake is whipped into a fury and the waves thunder upon the shore. But even this is an inspiring and thrilling sight. Majestic and wild and powerful such a scene sets the blood tingling and stirs the mind to contemplation of the power of nature.

For the most part the autumn days are tranquil. The lake is calm and the blue of the sky touches the placid waters with a touch of rare coloring. The sand dunes are rich in the reflected lights of puffy, lazy clouds. The flowing streams slip on like moving mirrors. In the deep woods there is a silence which causes the snapping of a twig to carry far. Ripening foliage, touched gently by early frosts, is red and gold and scarlet. The soft tones of summer's deep greens have become gorgeous beyond belief. In the fields, the moonlight nights make Indian wigwags of the stacked corn stalks. The late fruit is matured upon the trees. All whims of nature have their elements of beauty. Spring, with its green, its awakening of nature, is beautiful of course. Summer has its charms of land and sea. Autumn is the golden time when all nature approaches maturity, when the efforts of early labor are resulting in achievement. Winter with its sparkle and bluster and its dazzling sun-lit days, its not without charm.

If many of the tourists who spend a few weeks in the mid-summer dashing through western Michigan, could be induced to make a return visit to this land in September or October, their trip would be a revelation. Under normal conditions the weather during all of September and October is suitable for camping and out-of-door life and a leisurely trip along almost any highway in the resort region would prove a trail of unexpected charm.

Not long ago the Grand Rapids Press published a little comment entitled, "Michigan in September," which covers the point nicely and which is quoted herewith, as follows: "The summer which is now nearing its close has not been satisfactory for summer resorting. As a result, Michigan's great tourist business has been curtailed to some extent. Rains and cold weather do not encourage long stays at cottages or hotels; and certainly camping in the kind of weather we have been having cannot be wholly congenial. Michigan, however, has been hit not worse than other summer vacation states. And there is yet time in which to make amends.

"Weather is never dependable. Guesses are always hazardous. But with cold and rain in July and August it at least is reasonable to hope for a more acceptable brand of weather in September. Michigan's Septembers usually rank with the finest of vacation times. Days are comfortably warm and evenings pleasantly cool. As a sportsman's month, it far exceeds July or August. Fish bite better and the outdoors is more beautiful.

"A year or so ago the suggestion was made that Michigan attempt to lengthen its resort season by encouraging tourists to come here in May, June, September and October. The weather in May and October is rather too doubtful to gamble on, even in average seasons, although both months have many pleasant days. But as for June and September, there is no argument. In September the resorts are not crowded; golf courses are not too busy; lakes are not over-fished and a quietude which is restful dominates the vacation country. Of course, families with school children must return to the cities for the opening of school. But for those who are not forced to seek the cities, September should be a wonderful vacation month. It might be well worth the while of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association, if something of the kind has not been done, to make a special bid, even at this late date, for September visitors. The glories of Michigan in September are worth proclaiming, and a late influx of tourists would help our resorts materially."

TAX AMENDMENT

Following is a text of the income tax amendment to be submitted to the voters of the state in November:

"Section 3. The legislation shall provide by law a uniform rule of taxation except on property paying specific taxes, and taxes shall be levied on such property as shall be prescribed by law. The legislature shall provide by law a scheme of taxes upon the net gains, profits and income of all citizens and inhabitants of this state, from whatever source said gains, profits and incomes are derived, which tax shall be graduated and progressive as follows:

"There shall be an exemption of $4,000 per annum of all incomes. "Incomes of from $4,000 to $20,000 per annum shall be taxed at the rate of 5 per centum. "All incomes above $20,000 up to and including $40,000 shall be taxed at the rate of 6 per centum. "All incomes above $40,000 up to and including $60,000 shall be taxed at the rate of 7 per centum. "All incomes above $60,000 up to and including $80,000 shall be taxed at the rate of 8 per centum. "All incomes above $80,000 up to and including $100,000 shall be taxed at the rate of 9 per centum. "All incomes above $100,000 shall be taxed at the rate of 10 per centum.

"All money paid to a board of state tax commissioners under the provisions of this amendment shall be paid into the state treasury and shall then be credited to the general fund of the state, and shall be used for defraying the general expenses of the state government and for the payment of principal and interest on state bonds.

"On or before the first day of September of each year the auditor general shall deduct from the total amount directed by the legislature to be included in the state tax for that year the amount of money received under the provisions of this amendment, and credited to the general fund of the state for the current year, and the balance, if any, shall be deemed to constitute the state tax to be apportioned among the various counties of the state, in accordance with the provisions of the general tax law."

"VOTE, OR DON'T KICK"

The usual appeals are beginning, for voters to come out and vote. So far, it is the primaries. Soon it will be the big election. A citizens' league is telling the citizens of its community that one-eighth of them have been nominating the candidates and one-half of them have been electing their officers.

Often the proportion of citizens actually participating in their government is less than that. As a result, it is a common thing for city, state and nation to be governed by a small minority of the people merely the fraction of the political party that is enough interested to go to the polls.

But everybody, voter and non-voter, is right there when it comes to criticism. And if anything, it is the stay-at-home citizen who kicks the loudest about the incompetence of public officials, the wrongness of the policies adopted and the way public service in general is deteriorating. "Vote, or don't kick," says this citizens' committee. It is a fair proposition. The man or woman who has nothing to say, in the form of a ballot, on election day, should have nothing to say the rest of the time.

A BIT MORE ABOUT PYTHIAN SISTERS

Sixty-seven Past Chiefs Received Grand Temple Degree

Although we covered the joint Pythian convention in last week's issue, the following resume of events at the Sister's sessions may be of interest, as it gives a trifle more detail:

"The 33rd annual convention of the Michigan Temple of Pythian Sisters was held at the Charlevoix Inn in this city on September 3rd and 4th, 1924.

The opening session was held jointly with the Knights of Pythias, who were holding their convention at the same time. The address of welcome was delivered by Arthur L. Fitch of Charlevoix. Grand Chief, Hattie S. Whitney responded in behalf of the Sisters and Past Grand Chancellor, Fred S. Whitmore spoke for the Knights. Very pleasing features of the program were talks by Supreme Prelate, Fred Atwood and Supreme Keeper of Records and Seal, Harry Love.

Two essays on Americanism were given by the winners of the contest. The first prize was won by Miss Josephine Austin, of South Haven, and the second prize by Miss Catherine Fisher, of Tecumseh. Each was awarded a beautiful wrist watch. Grand Senior, Laura B. Gillet, of Ann Arbor, was elected Grand Chief.

A class of 67 Past Chiefs received their Grand Temple degree. The session ended Thursday afternoon with installation of officers and a night seeing trip by auto around the beautiful city.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A black bear which visited a tourist camp near Menominee one night, was frightened away by the screams of the campers. Is there no safe place for a bear any more?

A parrot owned by a Portland woman has reached the age of 103 years. And we suppose it can still say "Polly wants a cracker" so that no one but its owner can understand.

A Greenville resident owns a dog which is eight inches long and three and a half inches high and weighs one and a quarter pounds. It's a dog, all right, but it doesn't mean anything.

A motorcyclist was arrested at Flint for riding down the street with his legs dangling over the handle bars. This was considered wiser than waiting till his legs were in the air and his head standing on the curb.

A Dowagiac motorist hearing strange noises in his automobile, lifted the hood and found a cat. That is doing better than most of us who, on searching for the cause of sounds, find that the whole menagerie has vanished.

Only one pint of whiskey and a small quantity of home made beer and wine were seized in Montcalm county in the course of the last month. With the exception of that, and of the liquor that wasn't seized the county was entirely dry.

"Fire in a carload of coal is believed to have been caused by combustion," says a news item from Menominee. It would take more than that to cause fire in some of the coal nowadays.

The average woman has a shoe bill three times as large as the average man, according to a Monroe merchant. Yes, and according to the average husband, that is just where the shoe pinches.

A former Kalamazoo woman who stole a dress from a department store, said she did it for the thrill. Many women find that buying on credit, and waiting to see the bill, is almost equally effective.

An eight year old boy covered his face with a handkerchief and attempted to hold up a beauty parlor at Jackson, but was scared away. Ain't it the truth? Boys rush in where handits fear to tread.

Hosts of people recommend Doan's. This is a Charlevoix case.

You can verify it. Mrs. Dan Broot, 105 Lincoln St., says: "My back was stiff and sore just over my kidneys. My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly, so I decided to try Doan's Pills and got a few boxes. They rid me of the trouble in a very satisfactory manner."

Mrs. Broot is only one of many Charlevoix people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Pills. PALACE THEATRE

Story of French Revolution

"Orphans of the Storm," D. W. Griffith's photoplay sensation, is more than "a million dollar picture," but Mr. Griffith does not consider that of importance. What he does regard as important is the fact that the picture accurately depicts the period of the French Revolution, with its striking and dramatic features brought out in hold detail. This dramatic epic is based on Kate Claxton's stage classic, "The Two Orphans," and is a United Artists Corporation release which has been booked for showing at the Palace Theatre on Monday and Tuesday.

GOOD ROADS

INCREASE IN MOTOR VEHICLES LAST YEAR

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

On December 31, 1923, there were 15,062,177 motor vehicles in use in the United States, according to statistics collected by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. During the past year the number registered increased by 2,553,802 vehicles, a greater increase than in any preceding year.

This increase, which is 187,000 registrations greater than the gain in any other year, means that the public demand for road improvement, already strong, will be strengthened, and a more general use of the road, particularly in a business and commercial way, will result. As indicative of the commercial trend motor truck registrations now total over one and one-half million, the hundred-thousand mark having been passed in New York, Ohio and Illinois, and the fifty-thousand mark in Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Total registrations now exceed one million in California, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

While the owners of motor vehicles are insistent in their demand for more and better roads, the statistics show that they are bearing a very considerable share of the cost of maintenance of the state highways. Gross receipts from registration fees, together with the licenses of drivers, chauffeurs, etc., amounted to $188,000,000, or 23 times the amount derived from this source in 1913. During the same period motor vehicle registrations have increased 12 times.

In 35 states a gasoline tax, ranging from one to four cents per gallon, is imposed. Revenue from this source, amounting to $36,300,000, is spent very largely for highway purposes. This revenue will be materially increased in 1924, since in many states such taxes have been in effect only a few months.

Past experience seems to indicate that registrations will continue to increase materially during the present year. There is no doubt that road construction will continue at about the same rate which has been maintained for the past two years. Much of this construction will be on roads never before improved.

SUMMER FEEDING OF HENS IS IMPORTANT

Nature will not supply enough animal protein in the form of bugs and worms during the spring and summer to supply the laying flock of poultry with what is needed to insure good egg production, says A. G. Phillips, head of the poultry department of Purdue university. In the spring when birds get onto free range and in the summer when they utilize the entire farm for exercise, it is a common practice to reduce the amount of mash containing protein and depend upon the grain as the large part of the feed to be supplied by those who keep poultry.

As the weather warms up, birds do not need as much heat supplied by the grain as they do in the winter. Consequently the grain consumption should naturally be reduced and mash consumption increased. In order to see that the birds eat more mash as the season progresses it may be necessary to feed practically no grain in the morning. If the Purdue mash of 50 pounds bran, 50 pounds middlings and 30 pounds tankage is used, the proportion of grain to mash in the spring should be two to one, or equal parts of grain to mash.

As a rule egg production begins to

The Petoskey Oil Company

Holds 5,000 Acres of Leases

In Frio County, Texas, under the brow of the famous BALCONES FAULT, along the course of which the MEXIA and many other big oil fields have been "brought in."

ORIGINALLY we were the only drillers on or near our location. NOW they are all around us—converging on us.

ORIGINALLY we were "RANK WILD-CATTERS"—the nearest proven field 20 MILES AWAY. Now there are producing wells eight miles from us.

WE PAID 25c. per acre for our leases; today they would cost us from $1.00 per acre up.

Does the above STATEMENT OF FACTS mean anything to you!

Originally started as a syndicate, our project has outgrown us—we have been compelled to incorporate and "open the pot" to outsiders. We are neighbors of yours. We are not going to distant fields where we are unknown, to put over something crooked; nor are we trying to persuade widows and orphans to put their life insurance and savings into a speculative venture. But if you are a hard-headed business man and want to put $100 to $500 into a "venture" with possibilities of proving a 100 to 1 shot, we will welcome you—a few of you.

We are right beside you and court the fullest investigation as to our project and as to the character and reputation of our officers.

Well posted oil men and geologists assure us we have the LIQUID GOLD underneath our lease-holds.

NO PROMOTION STOCK—NO SALARIES—NO EXTRAVAGANCE. Just HONEST, FAITHFUL EFFORT. Money spent in operations with the greatest care. Our Field Agent the only one in the organization drawing pay—and he draws "wages," not a "salary."

If all this interests you, mail slip below and we will send you our booklet giving our history and will call on you later. NO OBLIGATION.

ROAD BUILDING

KEEPING ROADS OPEN IS EXPENSIVE TASK

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Removal of snow from the highways of the country is a matter of increasing importance each winter, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. Since 1900, the number of motor vehicles registered has increased from 48,000 to over 15,000,000. While the mileage of surfaced roads has increased from 150,000 miles to about 330,000 miles. Approximately 62 per cent of the motor vehicles are registered and 53 per cent of the surfaced roads lie within the territory where the average annual snowfall is 20 or more inches.

The snow-clearing program of the states east of the Mississippi for the past winter included 19,000 miles of main trunk-line highway as compared with 13,000 miles for the previous year, according to information collected by the bureau. This amounts to about 30 per cent of the surfaced mileage in the states where snow is a problem, those north of the southern boundary of Virginia and Kentucky.

With the exception of a few small areas the annual snowfall in this high range from 20 to 130 inches, making the clearing of the above mileage an undertaking of considerable size. As indicated by the size of the undertaking in various sections, the average annual snowfall ranges from 74 to 132 inches in Maine, from 25 to 92 inches in Pennsylvania, from 16 to 22 inches in Delaware, from 28 to 121 inches in Michigan, and from 9 to 101 inches in West Virginia. The above figures taken from weather bureau records covering a period of years show that the problem of snow removal varies considerably in difficulty even in different parts of the same state. In nearly every state in the group the average maximum snowfall is more than twice as great as the average minimum snowfall, Delaware being the only conspicuous exception.

Snow is removed by state forces in Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, Ohio, West Virginia, Illinois and Indiana, and on one section of road in Minnesota. The work is left to counties, towns or other local units in New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, Kentucky, Michigan, Wisconsin and the greater part of Minnesota. In Michigan and Wisconsin the counties may be ordered by the state highway department to remove snow from state roads.

Pennsylvania, one of the pioneers in snow removal, may be taken as having an organization typical of those well organized for the work. The work is done by the state highway department with its regular maintenance forces and funds, the funds being derived from motor vehicle registration fees. The state is divided into four divisions which are subdivided into 15 districts. Under the district engineers are 52 superintendents, 701 foremen, 6,300 laborers, 130 truck drivers, and 40 tractor operators. One hundred and sixty-seven trucks and 40 tractors are available, all of which are equipped with snow plows and also 300 road machines and drag. A garage and repair shop is located within the jurisdiction of each of the 52 superintendents. The equipment is kept in condition for instant use and the permanently maintained force is ready to start work as soon as a few inches of snow has fallen. This organization had a program for the past season of 2,200 miles of primary roads to be cleared to an average width of 26 feet and secondary roads to be cleared as far as practicable.

Representatives of the federal bureau who have visited all the states east of the Mississippi believe that state control of snow removal on the main trunk-line roads is desirable in the interest of economy. Such work is easily co-ordinated with and is really a part of the maintenance of state roads.

Methods of snow removal vary considerably, but all states report that it is essential that work be started almost as soon as the snowfall begins and continue until the roads are cleared. In the states which have had the longest experience in snow removal two types of equipment are preferred, these being adjustable steel blades and V-shaped plows attached to the front of trucks and tractors. The adjustable steel blades have curved surfaces ranging in height from 15 to 20 inches and are approximately 12 feet long. The blade is set at an angle to the line of travel. If trucks are used they are loaded to capacity with fuel. This type of equipment is regarded as effective for depths of snow up to 16 inches.

V-shaped plows vary in height from two feet to 16 feet with wings ten feet long. The sides of the plow are generally concave, the purpose being to give the snow a rolling motion.

Road machines drawn by horses, trucks or tractors are used to some extent as supplementary equipment.

In the eastern states, rotary plows have not been used to any great extent, but it is anticipated that they are use may increase. Some of them are of such design as to throw snow from 30 to 40 feet from the center of the road and this is a great advantage where the total annual fall is heavy.

Sunshine of Importance at Hog-Farrowing Time

The importance of having windows placed in the hog house so that the sun will shine into the beds at farrowing time is said by swine specialists to be of no small moment. To enable farmers to meet this need, E. R. Gross, professor of rural engineering at the New Jersey college of agriculture, New Brunswick, gives a simple rule based upon the angle of the sun's rays.

"A south window 2 feet above the floor will throw the rays of the sun on the floor 2 feet 2 inches away from the wall and one in the roof 6 feet above the floor would let them strike 6 feet 6 inches from a point directly beneath the window. Thus the first window will furnish sunshine to the pen on the south side of the house while the second window will supply while the second window will supply light to the north pen. The exact location for the upper window must depend upon the width of the house. The wider the building, the higher must the upper window be placed.

"These figures are taken for noon, March 1, which is the beginning of the farrowing season. There is only a slight variation for north and south Jersey. The height and location of windows for any floor arrangement may easily be figured from the rule just given, which is, of course, applicable to buildings other than hog houses."

Good Road Notes

Never pass a street car when it is stopping, or, if the law permits, proceed very slowly past it at the legal distance.

Rural express routes are great aids where the farms are small and the milk or garden products haulage is not heavy enough to justify the running of a truck to town.

The total estimated expenditures for new highways by all agencies and from all sources during 1921 amounted to more than $7,000,000,000. The figures for 1922 were slightly less.

It is estimated by highway experts that mileage of surfaced roads in the United States has reached at least 460,000 miles.

CHIROS STAGE A BIG PARADE

MEET DE JORDY AT JAIL DOOR WITH CARS

Procession a Half Mile Long Wends
Its Way in Triumph to Boyer City

A public demonstration last Sunday afternoon marked the release of J. F. A. De Jordy, Boyne City chiropractor, who had been incarcerated in the county jail for the past six months for a technical violation of the Medical Practice Act. This was the first time in the history of Charlevoix county that a person has been honored on being released from jail.

Just previous to the time for Dr. De Jordy's release, a number of his friends and former patients from all parts of the county called at the jail to greet him and escort him back to Boyne City. When he left the jail there were many hands extended to him with words of encouragement and condolence.

Many took advantage of the occasion and called on Dr. Beach who was convicted of a similar charge in June. Everyone seemed interested in how much longer he had to stay in jail. To their questions he replied that he would be out in time to do his Christmas shopping. Plans are being made to come after him with bob-sleighs.

The party left the jail and circled through the west part of the city and then back to Bridge street. Auto horns furnished a discord that attracted attention and the autos were placarded with banners of welcome and protest, such as, "Welcome home, De Jordy," "We Want Chiropractic," "Jails Are for Criminals," etc. The procession then headed toward Boyne City, via Horton Bay and was joined by other autos until it was over a half mile long. On arriving at Boyne City the party passed through the various streets of the city before disbanding.

The demonstration was a protest against the present law that requires the chiropractor to come under the control of the state medical board. The chiropractor claims that there is no protection for the public in the present law that requires an examination in medical subjects, but none whatever in the fundamentals of chiropractic. Chiropractors are hoping to have the law changed at the next session of the legislature, so that they will have a board that is competent to determine the fitness of applicants to practice chiropractic. They further state that the chiropractors are the only licensed professionals who are required by law in Michigan to take an examination before a board of another profession.

Of course, the chiropractor understands and acknowledges that the officers of the law have no choice in the matter of prosecuting one of his profession for violation of the Medical Practice Act, when complaint to that effect is brought before them. They do not blame the sheriff, judge or prosecutor, but it is for the purpose of drawing public attention to an alleged gross injustice in the laws of this state which, they claim, discriminate against the chiropractor in favor of the medical profession, that they are going to jail all over the state, rather than pay fines. The situation they claim is this—either the public must be subjected to chiropractors, able to pass the simple medical examination required by the state but deficient in the fundamentals of their own profession, which they allege are not covered by the state examination, or the law must be amended to permit the creation of a board of competent chiropractors who will see to it that no one is admitted to practice chiropractic in this state unless he or she is thoroughly qualified as a chiropractor. The strictly medical part of the examination will then assume minor importance, even if required by the state as an additional qualification, as chiropractors do not use medicine in their practice nor work along medical lines. Their function is manipulation, pure and simple, but it is imperative for the safety of the public that they should be skilled in such manipulation and the determining of this point should be left to a board of chiropractors, not medical men. So they contend.

walked around for a while and then came back to the ship.

Last night we had a boxing meet between the 'limie' combined marions, some six thousand in number, and the gobs from the squadron. The result was another victory for Uncle Sam. Altogether, there were nine bouts. Our score was three knockouts and three decisions and for the 'limies' two decisions and one bout on a foul. However, the fighting was much better than the score seems to indicate. The first knockout was one of the most clean cut that many had ever seen. The Englishman was clever and quick. Our representative was a Philippine Islander. The first round was fast and terrible, with the edge on our side. At the beginning of the second round, the Philippine Islander fainted twice, then crashed across with a left to the side of the chin. The 'limie' didn't even move from where he fell.

The English don't have a referee in the ring, but rather he stands on one side while the contestants fight. The bouts were alternately fought under the English and the American rules so as to even things up.

They were very sportsmanlike, both the boxers, and the spectators on both sides. There was little noticeable difference in the applause, whether we or they won. There was one exception to this. One of their fighters soon knew he was up against a better man, but instead of standing on his feet and fighting it out, he was continually dropping to one knee so as to get a rest. One British spectator was heard to say, "Look at the coward. Why doesn't he get up and fight? I hope the American knocks him out, it would serve him right. And to think he is in His Majesty's service too. Why doesn't he get up and fight? Now, what do you think of that. After the bouts, everyone was served refreshments on the gun deck.

I think I told mother that Belgium is the size of Connecticut and Rhode Island. I should have said Connecticut and Massachusetts. A bad bust on my part.

Tomorrow we shove off for the Azores, where we stay for a day and then for Hampton Roads, where we have short range target practice, and then on the morning of September 28th leave starts and I start for Charlevoix. It seems a long time looking ahead, but when I look back to the start of the cruise, it doesn't seem so long.

It's now 5:30, about time to get ready for chow, so I will close. Furthermore, I have run out of anything to say.

With the love of a son, EDWARD."

DAIRY

Fit Methods to Follow in Production of Cream

Since at the present time, our farmers who are milking a few good dairy cows, are generally better fixed financially, than those following almost any other line, it seems that we should pay particular attention to the handling of the product, that it may be put on the market in the best condition possible and thereby bring the highest returns.

Methods which will aid in producing a good product:

Keep the barn and cows clean. Remove manure from stable twice daily. Wipe udder and flanks with a damp cloth, before milking.

Milk with dry hands, into a small tin milk pail.

Separate while warm, to insure less waste in the skimming.

Wash separator thoroughly after each separation. Use a brush rather than a rag. First use warm water and washing powder, then scald all parts thoroughly.

Do not separate into vessel containing the cooled cream. Cool freshly separated cream before adding it to previous skimming.

Stir cream thoroughly every time a fresh supply is added, using a stirrer manufactured for the purpose.

A cooling tank should be on every farm. Run the water pumped for live stock through the cream tank and then into the stock tank.

Keep cooled cream in a sanitary place which is cool, sanitary, free from odors and well aired.

Cream should be delivered to market at least three times a week in summer and twice in winter.

Cream should not be allowed to freeze.—L. K. Crowe, assistant professor, animal husbandry, Colorado Agricultural college.

Brass Letters on Cans Will Prevent Much Loss

When the owner's initials or number is painted on his cream cans, they have to be remarked frequently, as the marks become dim, due to washing and shipping. In order to avoid this I solder brass letters to the sloping part of the can, just below the neck, writes W. R. Taylor of Missouri in the Rural New Yorker. Copper or brass letters can usually be purchased at the variety stores, but if not to be obtained they can be cut from a piece of sheet brass or copper with a pair of tinners' shears and a narrow chisel. Letters or figures made of aluminum will not do, as they are very difficult to solder. Cans so marked can always be easily identified and thus loss will be prevented. The lids should be stenciled or marked to correspond.

Dairy Cow Is Necessity, Claims Florida Expert

"As feed prices continue to soar, and the price of land increases, so will the dairy cow replace to a very large extent the beef steer, the sheep, and the pig as a producer of human food," says John M. Scott of the University of Florida experiment station. "And about the only rival the dairy cow has is the busy hen."

The dairy cow and the hen are the only two farm animals that produce good, nourishing food day after day, when properly cared for. They provide foods that are indispensable in the home.

"What is home without milk and eggs?" asks Mr. Scott. These items enter so largely into the preparation of food for the family, the cow meaning life itself to thousands of children. "We owe the cow and the hen a debt that can be paid only by giving them the very best of care that they may produce the maximum amount of food," says Mr. Scott. And neither of them are now receiving the attention that will be theirs when their full value is realized.

Cow Is Highly Nervous and Is Easily Excited

The cow is a highly-strung nervous organism and easily excited, shocked or affected in one way or another by the resultant lessening of her milk flow. Turning her out on a cold, windy or wet day to drink ice-cold water causes a serious shrink in milk production. Weigh the milk night-and-morning, without fail, every day of the year and watch the record. That tells the story of such shrinkage.

FEDERAL OFFICERS MAKE RAID HERE

Get Oliver McGarvey and Wm. Starr for Making Moonshine

Federal and state prohibition officers made two raids on suspected moonshine points and blind pigs at Wabeme, Friday morning, and took into custody Oliver McGarvey and William Starr. Both are charged with moonshining.

The men were to have been taken before United States Court Commissioner Pratt, at Traverse City, for a hearing but Mr. Pratt's unexpected visit to Petoskey Friday made this unnecessary. City Manager Wolff assisted in engineering the raids and also quite accidentally ran into Mr. Pratt as the latter was visiting here and made it possible for the hearing to be conducted at the City Hall in this city.

Officers found a large quantity of mash in one house and in the woods near the other they located several large barrels of mash. A large quantity of finished moonshine was also found. The two places raided are on highway M-13 at Wabeme.

Officers believe that a company of some of the residents of that section have a co-operative still but the outfit was not located.—Petoskey Evening News.

RABBIT HUNTER SHOOTS SMALL BOY

Daniel Marquardt Loses Part of Hand When Hit by Bullets

Deputy Sheriff West and Charles Houts, of Petoskey, with his blood hounds are busy in Resort township endeavoring to learn who fired the shot that struck Daniel Marquardt, tearing off a part of the thumb and one finger of the left hand. The lad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marquardt, west of Petoskey, was driving the herd of cows to pasture when struck. He says he saw a rabbit nearby and heard a shot, the shot striking his left hand. A part of the thumb and one finger were torn away. He turned and saw a strange man hurrying toward the corn field of the farm. The lad, was taken to Petoskey hospital where the wounds were treated.

HOSPITAL NOTES
Anna Lett, of St. James—operation for appendicitis last week.

Will Speak at Fair
It is expected that Mrs. Helen Brooks Davis will be at the County Fair at East Jordan, Thursday afternoon, September 11th, at two o'clock (standard time) and will speak to the women in the annex of the educational building. Mrs. Davis represents the League of Women Voters and is a very interesting speaker.

Green Feeds and Water Essential for All Hens

It is absolutely essential that layers be furnished green feed of some kind. The question of how to supply this green feed must be decided by the individual. For maximum egg production the bird must have access to fresh clean water at all times, which should neither be too hot nor too cold. One hundred hens in good laying condition should consume from 12 to 24 quarts of water daily, and in extremely hot weather even more.

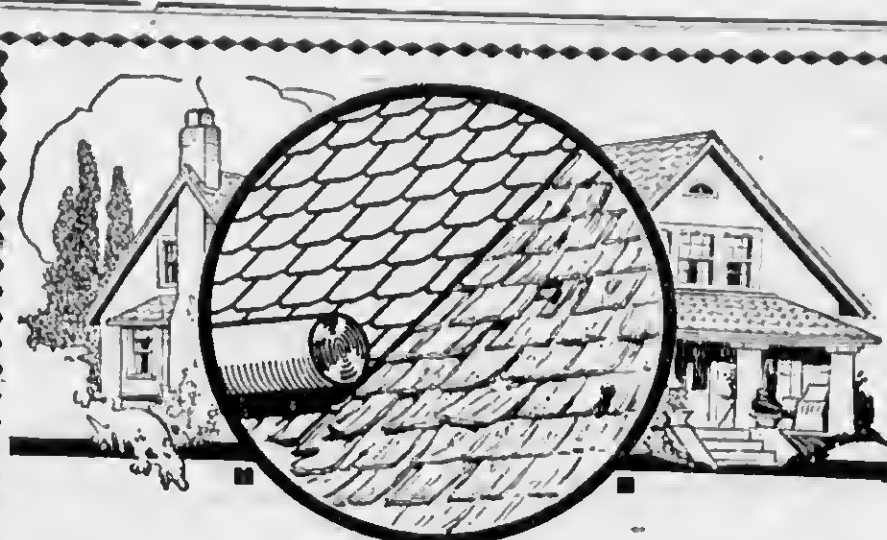

When properly fed, milk makes an excellent feed for laying hens. Skim milk or buttermilk are economical feeds and when available should be used instead of the higher-priced protein feeds such as meat scrap. Skimmed milk not only contains the valuable food nutrients, but it is in the form that is easily digested. Sour milk is preferable to sweet milk, since sweet milk when fed may not all be consumed before it sours, thus causing the fowl to have sweet food at one time, and then sour immediately following, which is not advisable. Furthermore, sour milk contains an acid that is said to be a benefit in controlling bowel troubles.

Grit in some form is very essential to the health of a flock and also means economy in feeding. It is also to be remembered that shells are just as important as any other part of the egg. A large amount of lime is used in building these shells. Unless some form of lime is supplied, hens laying heavily will not secure a sufficient amount to manufacture the shells.

Corn Gluten in Ration

Corn gluten feed makes an excellent addition to the ration, and may be procured through almost any feed store. It is highly palatable and may be fed in advantage in the dry mash with other feed, such as follows: One hundred pounds of corn, 100 pounds of bran, 100 pounds of white middlings, 100 pounds of ground feed, 100 pounds of corn gluten feed, 100 pounds of meat scrap, 8 pounds of charcoal, 10 pounds of salt.

MISS CHARLEVOIX A WONDER

NOTHING FASTER OF HER CLASS IN MICHIGAN

Brady Boat Company Has Turned Out One Of World's Swiftest Speed Boats

Because we Charlevoixians live away off up here in a neck of the woods, out of the beaten path, we are not accustomed to imagine that—outside of summer climate—we can lead the rest of the country in any respect or produce anything that will hang up a record. Therefore the bare, unsupported statement that Charlevoix may boast of a speed power-boat faster than any other craft of its type and horsepower in the state and faster than any speed-boat north of Detroit in any class will come as a distinct surprise to those who are not inside on the facts. It may also be said with truth that there are but a very few boats in the entire world that can show her a clean pair of heels.

This remarkable craft is the Miss Charlevoix, built and owned by the Brady Boat Company of this city. She is of the single step hydroplane type, Hacker design, and is powered by a 220 H. P. Hispano-Suiza converted aeroplane eight cylinder motor. On September 2nd last, M. Roy Brady, who built the boat and converted the motor into a marine engine himself in his own shop, reeled off a measured mile on Pine Lake in his speedy craft in one minute and eight seconds, from a standing start timed by a brand new stopwatch especially purchased for the event. This was at the rate of 2400 revolutions per minute. After he passed the mile marker, he opened the throttle to the limit and got 300 more revolutions out of her to the minute. He figures that under favorable conditions and everything working sweet she will do 56 miles per hour and it is possible that with some slight changes this speed can be exceeded. This morning, with the Courier reporter as a passenger, she made an easy 50 miles P. H. with only seven of her eight cylinders hitting.

The Miss Charlevoix is in the same class, though of different design, with the record holding boats of 725 cubic inch piston displacement, such as Doc's II, Elanar, Peggy II and Meteor VI. Doc's II is the boat that last Fourth of July on Lake Winnebago at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, captured everything in sight in the 725 cu. in. class and also won the 1100 cu. in. championship, smashing all records. This phenomenal speedster is owned by Dr. L. R. VanSant of Peoria, Ill., the famous leading exponent of the direct drive principle in powering hydroplanes and she is largely of his own design. To quote from "Power Boating" for August, 1924: "Of the 29 racing boats which competed in the meet, 14 were making their first starts in official races." WARNING TO SMOKERS ABOUT FIRE DANGERS

U. S. Forest Service Seeking General Cooperation

The Forest Service has just written to seventeen of the largest tobacco manufacturers of the United States requesting them to insert warning cards in every package of cigarettes they put out cautioning the smokers to be careful with fire in the woods. Similar campaigns are being undertaken by various state chambers of commerce.

The reason for this is that in studying the problem of fire prevention, the Forest Service has been forcibly impressed with the hazard of forest fires caused by thoughtless smokers. Figures recently compiled covering Oregon and Washington show that 23 per cent of the fires have been caused by smokers.

The public, year by year, is becoming more and more aggressive on the subject of man-caused forest fires and should demand that whatever steps are necessary be taken to eliminate such fires entirely.

Inasmuch as matches and cigarettes are responsible for the greater part of our annual fire loss, match manufacturers could well join with tobacco manufacturers in spreading the gospel of carefulness with fire.

DUCK SEASON STARTED TUESDAY, SEPT. 16TH

Local Hunters Already Fanning In-land Waters

The bird hunting season for the fall of 1924 opened Tuesday, September 16. The birds coming under this open season include ducks, coots, snipe, gallinules, geese, brant, plover and rail.

Local interest Tuesday centered in the duck season and many Charlevoix nimrods tried their luck on the nearby lakes and streams.

The duck season and that for the other game birds named is from September 16 to December 31, inclusive. The resident citizen license fee for hunting licenses is $1. Resident citizens and their minor children are exempt from license fee while hunting on their own enclosed lands, upon which they are regularly domiciled. The fee for non-resident hunters is $10.

The legal bag limit on the game birds named is: Ducks and coot, 25 in one day, 50 in possession at one time, 50 in one calendar week. The hunting day is from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset; geese and brant, 6 in one day, 20 in possession at one time, 25 in one season, same hunting day as for ducks; snipe, gallinules, plovers, yellow legs, 15 in one day, 25 in possession at any one time, 25 in one season.

TOWNSHIPS SHARE OF PRIMARY FUND

PRIMARY AND LIBRARY MONEY IS APPORTIONED

Treasurer's Office Distributes State Funds According to School Census

The various townships of this county have just received their quota of the primary school and library funds from the county treasurer's office and the figures are now available for publication.

While it is probably a matter of general knowledge, it might be well to explain for the benefit of the uninitiated that the source of the primary school fund is the general state school tax assessed against real property in the state and of the library fund the collective total of penal fines imposed in the justice and circuit courts of the state.

Both funds are apportioned to the various townships according to the number of children of school age resident within their respective boundaries, but in the case of the primary fund the rate is fixed by the state at $14 per capita, while the county figures its own percentage of apportionment of the library fund, which this year amounts to about 24 cents per capita.

The following is a schedule of the distribution of both funds among the townships of Charlevoix county:

Township	Primary	Library
Bay	30.75	$1,792.00
Boyer Valley	73.26	4,270.00
Chandler	35.79	2,086.00

BELLAIRE VOTES ON DAM MATTER SEPT. 22

Proposition to Bond Village for $19,500 to Rebuild

A special election will be held in Bellaire September 22 to decide on bonding the village for $19,500 to rebuild the village lighting plant, dam and equipment. This sum is the amount that can be raised under the present charter. The estimated cost is about $30,000.

Another special election will be called late in October to amend the village charter in case the bonding election carries, so that additional funds may be raised.

Since the dam went out July 10 the city of Charlevoix has been furnishing the current for Bellaire.

DOLLAR DAY TO BE BARGAIN DAY

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27TH IS THE DATE.

You Will Find Wonderful Values In The Shops of Charlevoix on The Big Day

Saturday, September 27th, will be Dollar Day in Charlevoix. On this day the merchants of the city are going to give the public a chance to get more than a dollar's worth of value for every dollar they spend.

There will be bargains in everything and no one will need to leave the busy market place (poetical for Bridge Street) unsatisfied as to their particular wants. We look to see record crowds and autos parked solid for many blocks because no one will want to stay at home and miss anything. According to predictions, the weather will be fine and everybody should feel happy—especially when at the close of the day they figure up the savings they have made.

The following merchants and business men have signified their intention to help make Dollar Day a red letter day in the memory of Charlevoix people:

JAIL DELIVERY IS FRUSTRATED

Petoskey Sheriff Foils Attempt—May Have New Jail

Sheriff Harry Pokriefke and Deputy West, of Petoskey, frustrated an attempted jail delivery from the Emmet county jail Saturday when they visited the institution rather unexpectedly late at night, finding one heavy hard steel bar torn from a cell door and several 20-pound window weights hidden in various part of the jail. With these it would have been but a few minutes' job to pry open the door or hammer a hole through a wall or crush the cell window bars. Several bars were found sawed.

There were ten prisoners in the jail and three of them were reported by the sheriff to have been drunk from moonshine, passed them through two small holes in a window screen.

Petoskey officers declare the jail an easy one to escape from, the steel bars being easily sawed or pried apart. The brick wall is of flimsy construction. In the jail were several prisoners convicted of robbery and other serious crimes.

O'NEILL TAKES OVER BUS LINE

Long Time Employee Becomes Proprietor

Edward R. O'Neill of this city, who for the past fifteen years has been responsibly connected with the bus and taxi line formerly owned and operated by the late H. B. Wood, has taken over the business from the estate, the transfer having been made this past week.

Mr. O'Neill is not contemplating any immediate change in either equipment or personnel. He has, however, acquired the agency for U. S. tires for this district.

Charlevoix folks have known Ed a long time and will be glad to know that he is branching out in a business way. He has the best wishes of all for success in his enterprise.

FIRE BROKE OUT IN EARLY HOURS

Firemen Save Pearl & Lemieux Store from Ruin

The fire department answered an early morning call to the cigar store of Pearl and Lemieux last Sunday.

A passer-by at 3 a. m. noticed smoke pouring out of the rear of the building and turned in the alarm to which the firemen promptly responded with the chemical engine.

Smoke caused the major part of the damage, although some of the stock was also a little the worse for the water which it was found necessary to use. It is thought the blaze started from a defective light switch in the rear of the building.

The store was closed for a day or two, pending the inevitable insurance examination and repairs.

Newman-Betts

Friends of Kenneth H. Betts, bookkeeper of the Charlevoix State Savings Bank and Miss Myrtle Newman of the Charlevoix Hospital nursing staff will be pleasantly surprised to learn of their marriage, which took place recently at the home of Mr. Betts in Lansing. Mr. and Mrs. Betts will go to housekeeping in this city shortly. The Courier and their many friends extend to them the best of good wishes and congratulations.

FAIR VOTED THE BEST IN YEARS

DAIRY CATTLE EXHIBIT SHOWED GREAT GAIN

Fruit Exhibit Good Considering Late Maturing of Crop—School Work Fine

In spite of the cold and rainy weather of the past week this year's county fair excelled in many respects any of those in previous years. Probably the one greatest advance was in the exhibit of dairy cattle. The cattle barn was filled to overflowing with blooded stock and intense interest was shown by nearly a thousand people in the judging.

The fruit exhibit was remarkably good, every space being taken, and this in spite of the fact that fruit this year is late in maturing. The vegetable exhibit was also very good. The exhibits of school work were fine, the rural schools and East Jordan putting up meritorious work. For some reason neither Boyne City or Charlevoix schools were represented in this annual event.

Boyne City marine band furnished music throughout the fair and on Thursday the East Jordan concert band was augmented. The free attractions went big with the crowds. Thursday, Charlevoix day at the fair, broke all previous attendance records the crowd being the largest in the history of the fair.

On the midway, the fine merry-go-round and Ferris wheel, as well as the many side shows proved a source of attraction to the thousands of visitors.

East Jordan defeated Boyne City in Wednesday's base ball game, and on Thursday the Postum Cereal team defeated Boyne City.

Scream's Ramblers orchestra furnished excellent dance music at the dances given in the educational building.

Moving pictures of the fair grounds crowds were taken each day of the fair and these will be exhibited at a later date.

Horse races at the fair this year were by far the best ever pulled off on the East Jordan track, and keen interest was manifested by the thousands who witnessed the events.

E. S. Royce, of the Soo, was the starter and presiding judge and his work was decidedly satisfactory.

The relay runs of Wednesday and Thursday caused considerable excitement and were won by horses run under the colors of M. B. Hooker of this city.

First Church of Christ Scientist Sunday service 10:45 a. m., subject, "Matter."

CONDITION OF MICHIGAN CROPS

COOL, WET SEASON HAS PROMOTED THRIFTY GROWTH

Grain Harvesting and Threshing Delayed by Frequent Rains—Condition Below Average

The cool and wet season has promoted a thrifty growth of practically all crops, but corn, potatoes, beans and the fruits are maturing very slowly. Grain threshing was delayed for a time by frequent rains but has progressed more rapidly of late. Grain yields have been excellent, but some wheat and rye sprouted and much oats and barley was more or less discolored from frequent rains while standing in the shock. The condition of corn, beans and sugar beets is below the average.

Corn: The condition of corn is rated at 64 per cent, 20 per cent below that of one year ago and 17 per cent below the ten-year average. The size and quality of the crop is now chiefly dependent upon a sufficient amount of warm weather to mature it, the entire month of September without a killing frost being needed for this purpose. The forecasted production, based upon the present condition, is 46,322,000 bushels. As about one-third of the crop is generally cut for fodder and silage, the grain will scarcely exceed 30,000,000 bushels.

The nation's crop is also below normal, the estimated production being 2,512,888,000 bushels, which is over one-half billion less than was harvested last year.

Spring Wheat: Michigan's spring wheat production is placed at 138,000 bushels as compared with 120,000 last year, the acreage being practically the same but the yield considerably better.

The total spring wheat crop of the country is reported as 217,404,000 bushels against 213,401,000 grown in 1923. This, together with the winter wheat crop, raises the total wheat production this year to about 51,000,000 above the 1923 figures.

Oats: Michigan has produced a splendid crop of oats this year, aggregating 58,825,000 bushels. The quality is good except that some were discolored by rains. The state's crop is about ten million bushels larger than last year's, and the nation's crop of 1,486,412,000 is about 187,000,000 bushels greater.

Barley: The crop averages 13 per cent better than last year and nine per cent better than the ten-year average. The condition of 93 per cent, as reported, is equivalent to a production of 4,018,000 bushels. Last year's crop was 3,600,000 bushels.

The United State's crop is placed at 194,455,000 bushels as compared with 198,185,000 for last year.

Buckwheat: Weather conditions have been mainly favorable for growth and a condition of 87 per cent is reported by correspondents. This condition is six per cent above that reported one year ago, three per cent above the ten-year average, and represents a production of 887,000 bushels as against a crop of 753,000 bushels in 1923.

The entire crop of the country is estimated at 15,152,000 bushels as against 13,920,000 produced last year.

Anna Jones started attending school in Charlevoix Monday.

Rev. A. K. Foster left last week for New York City and other eastern points.

Roy Rushton, of Central Lake, was a caller here Monday, selling the Rawleigh remedies.

Several from this locality attended the East Jordan fair last Thursday and report a fine time.

Russell Spear and Henry Johnson, of Manton, were week end visitors with relatives and friends here.

Geo. Sarasin, Jr., who has been spending part of the summer at Manton, Mich., returned home Saturday.

Mrs. J. N. Empey is in Charlevoix this week, visiting at the homes of her sisters, Mrs. Wm. Cowan and Mrs. Henry Wagner.

Richard Kirby arrived home last Wednesday from Ypsilanti, where he has been employed at the carpenter trade for the past two months.

H. Pierce wishes to have it announced that he has started a home for homeless dawgs. Anyone wishing to adopt one will know where to apply.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stave and sister, Mrs. Tubman, started by auto last Thursday for their home in Chicago, after visiting for a fortnight with relatives here.

Mrs. Chas. Raber, of Charlevoix, was a caller here Saturday. Her daughter, Miss Mildred, who spent a part of last week with her friend, Bertha Pierce, returned with her.

The unexpected arrival of guests from the west prevented E. W. Law, manager of the western department of the Royal Insurance Company of Chicago, from visiting last week at the Norwood summer home of his mother, Mrs. Geo. W. Law.

The report of the marriage of Orson J. Everts came as a great surprise to his many friends on route 4, who had long since given him up as a hopeless old bachelor. Oh, well, one never can tell by the looks of a frog just how far or how sudden he can leap. He has our best wishes.

BARNARD

Crayton Kerr is staying in Charlevoix to begin high school this year.

Those who attended the county fair report a huge crowd, especially on Thursday.

Messrs. Hiram Potter, Henry Potter and Frank Brock visited several days last week in Hudsonville.

Several from around here have been black berrying, but owing to cold weather have not been successful in getting many.

The storm on Friday morning played havoc with our telephone line, totally demolishing several poles.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Bennett and her mother, Mrs. Delong, of Boyne City, visited at Clyde Smith's on Sunday.

Rev. G. DeYoung, of Zeeland, Mich., will occupy the pulpit at the South Barnard church on Sunday, September 21st.

John Smith returned last week from Detroit, where he was called on account of the serious illness of his daughter, Mrs. Cleo Aymer. She is still very ill and not much hope for her recovery.

Hiram Potter and his two brothers, John and Henry, also Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brock and daughter, Alice, left on a motor trip to Grand Rapids, Zeeland and Jamestown for a week, returning last Tuesday. Mrs. Jake Poortinga, their cousin, returned with them for a week's visit.

HAND SIGNALING BY DRIVERS NEGLECTED

Five Maneuvers Indicated by Arm Hung Out Over Side.

Relative to safe and sane automobile traffic control, it is hard to understand why such an important matter as hand signaling by drivers has been universally neglected. At present, if at all, the arm is hung limply over the side of the car and is supposed to indicate one of five maneuvers—right turn, left turn, complete turn, reverse or stop.

Any decently cautious driver, not being a mind reader, naturally slows down because the signal is not intelligible and the entire line of traffic is retarded correspondingly. If the signal of the leading car had been a definite one, there would be little need for such confusion. Adoption of an accepted signal code is the only solution to this difficulty and would not be a difficult thing to accomplish.

It is possible that the complete turn signal could be eliminated and with the aid of four others complete information transmitted to the car behind.

For instance—the left arm extended horizontally from the car with fist closed and one finger extended could indicate a left turn. The hand extended with palm forward could indicate a right turn. Hand extended with palm to the rear could indicate reverse. Arm raised up and down could indicate a stop.

At present, drivers employ signals of their own invention or use the same signal to indicate one of many moves—consequently, the signaling is nearly valueless. The fact that there is an attempt to use these signals shows how willing drivers would be to use a definite system if one were provided for them.

ROAD BUILDING

HIGHWAY OFFICIALS UNJUSTLY CENSURED

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Lack of understanding of the significance of highway cost figures is often the cause of unjust criticism of highway officials, says the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture.

Generally such criticism takes the form of comparing the cost of local construction with construction of the same type performed in some other section or at some previous time. The taxpayer will naturally wish to inform himself about such matters, but his comparison should be thorough rather than superficial.

Differences in cost are often due to differences in thickness of pavement, width of roadway, drainage structures, grading, length of haul of materials and the care with which the material is prepared and placed in the roadway.

Even where the above conditions are identical there is often cause for considerable difference in cost due to wages of labor and prices of materials. To illustrate this point, the bureau has assumed a road in which the quantities per mile are as follows: Grading 8,000 cubic yards, high-type surfacing, 10,500 square yards and 75 cubic yards of concrete for drainage structures. Taking average prevailing prices it has estimated the mileage of road which could be built with $100,000 as follows:

	United States	East, South, Central States	New England States
1919	2.9	3.1	2.8
1920	2.9	2.5	1.9
1921	2.6	2.7	2.1
1922	3.3	3.3	2.3
1923	3.0	2.9	2.2

How Good Highways Assist the Farmer

- They link the farm with the city.
- They enable him to take advantage of favorable markets.
- They prevent crop waste on the farm.
- They bring the church, school house, township house nearer.
- They increase his social opportunities.
- They make the boys and girls satisfied with home life.
- They make traveling a pleasure.
- They prevent wear and tear on his motor vehicle.
- They bring aid more quickly in case of fire.
- They bring the doctor more quickly in the event of sickness.
- They increase the value of his property.
- They save time.
- They eliminate the mud tax.
- They make life happier and more worth living.—Ohio Good Roads Federation.

Road Building Projects in Alabama Are Booming

Alabama has something like 175,000 motor cars. At the rate of increase shown last year the state will have a quarter of a million motor vehicles at the end of 1925. The annual revenue is now around one and a half million dollars. The state highway commission will soon come into possession of something like $7,000,000 from the sale of state bonds, the entire proceeds going immediately into road building projects in the various counties. These sums, together with federal aid and the revenues from automobiles and the returns from the gasoline tax, should constitute a healthy budget for use in solving the road needs of the people. The amount will permit the continuance of road building on a big scale during this year and the next.—Selma Times Journal.

Good Roads Notes

Scientists of Yale university and highway officials of the state of Connecticut are working on a plan for accident prevention in motor vehicle traffic.

The state of Georgia has scores of towns maintaining tourists' camps for motorists—with free lights, water, and other conveniences, and in some cases free gas for cooking. Georgia is crossed by the Dixie highway.

What, it is said, will be the longest "white way" in the South is to be made by electrically lighting the 32-mile concrete highway between the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, Tex.

The United States Department of Agriculture estimates that 134,400,000 tons of farm products go over our highways yearly.

The Canadian Good Roads association is adopting uniformity in signs to be placed along the public highways in the dominion. The caution symbols will be painted in black on a white background, the dimensions of the danger signs to be standardized in two feet square. The signs are to be located at a distance of 300 feet from the point of danger.

Soy Beans Are Valuable Source of Cattle Feed

Soy beans are a comparatively new source of protein to the dairyman. Results have shown that this plant proves a very valuable source of protein as a roughage as well as a concentrate. The beans may be ground and fed in the grain mixture. Because of the oil nature of the bean it is difficult to grind the seeds very finely.

The oil contained in the seeds has considerable commercial importance and several plants have been started in Iowa to extract the oil. The cake remaining is quite similar to cottonseed or oil meal, and compares very favorably with them in feeding value. Soy beans have proved to be about one-third more valuable when ground than linseed oil meal. The cake contains less oil than the cracked beans, but has about 7 per cent more protein. Soy beans are very palatable and may be fed in considerable quantities. The Iowa experiment station found that when oil meal was worth $45 a ton for milk production, cracked soy beans were worth $90 per ton.

Plan to Supply Minerals

Cows fed a legume hay and a balanced grain ration, such as the 4-2-1 mixture, usually need no mineral other than plenty of salt where they can get it at all times. However, cows fed crops that grow on acid soils may need minerals because these crops are usually deficient in mineral. If mineral is lacking its lack may be supplied by adding three or four pounds of wood ashes, lime or steamed bone meal to each 100 pounds of grain mixture. Never use raw bone meal.

WASHINGTON LETTER

"As goes Maine so goes the election" may not hold good this year, in the opinion of those who have returned from that state. They insist that the election in Maine will have no significance whatever from the standpoint of national politics for the reason that the contest is essentially a Ku Klux and anti-Ku Klux fight. That this is so is largely the result of the efforts of the Democratic campaign managers who have expended vast sums on newspaper advertising in order to convince the voters that a vote for the Republican candidate for governor is a vote for the Klan and a vote for the Democratic candidate a vote against the Klan. The Republicans have tried—largely at the eleventh hour—to dispel this impression, but Washington correspondents who have been touring the state bring back word that "its all Klan and anti-Klan" in Maine and that in the bitterness of that fight all national issues, and even the presidential candidates, are entirely lost to sight. These observers believe, too, that solely on this issue Pattangall, the Democratic candidate, who led the fight against the Klan in the national convention, will run thousands of votes ahead of the rest of his ticket.

Secretary Mellon, who has just returned from London, is most optimistic regarding the outcome of the Dawes plan for which, he says the United States not only deserves but is receiving credit from all of Europe. Mr. Mellon asserts that the benefits which will accrue from re-establishment of peace and financial stability in Europe will so far outweigh any injury which might result from German competition in the markets of the world as to make the latter "comparatively negligible." He points out that the loan provided for by the Dawes plan is not, in essence, a loan to Germany, but a loan for a specific purpose, the rehabilitation of German industries and commerce; that it will constitute a lien on German railways and industries, and that the allied nations have formally agreed to do nothing to impair the security of the loan so that, even should Germany default in her reparations payments and it become necessary again to resort to force or military occupation, the first moneys collected by such means will be applied to the payment of the loan. For this reason the Secretary believes no difficulty will be experienced in floating the loan and he predicts that even larger sums will be privately loaned to German industries by American investors. He says experience clearly demonstrates that the United States was much more potent in promoting the adoption of the Dawes plan than she could have been if she had been a member of the League of Nations, because as it is she is in no way involved in European politics and her efforts to help have in no instance aroused the slightest suspicion regarding the sincerity of her motives.

Anyone who could have been present at the meeting between the president and the labor leaders at the White House on Labor Day would have realized how foolish was the claim that labor is a unit for La Follette. A very considerable number of the most influential labor leaders are for Coolidge and report that their followers are as well. Of course some are for La Follette and some are for Davis. The situation this year is as it always has been, that labor thinks for itself and different men reach different conclusions. But with the prosperity and good wages now prevailing and with every prospect of better times ahead if the economic situation is not upset by a political upheaval there is no likelihood of any great number of laboring men being led away by the vain promises of those who want to tear down present prosperity to build a new one on new and untested foundations.

John Draney, president of the veterans' association branch of the locomotive engineers, told President Coolidge, he would support him, saying, "Let every man vote for his own best interest as I shall vote for mine. At the present time I have steady work and I get high wages. I have a family to support and children to educate. With an administration that is safe and solid, men with capital will invest their money in this country and if they invest it I'll get the share that goes with five days and a half of solid, honest labor. And for the interest of my family, and for nothing else, I'm going to vote to keep things as they are. We're going to keep you in the White House, Mr. President, so that my family and I can stay in our house." Joseph P. McArdle, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who was counselor on labor legislation for that organization when Mr. Coolidge was governor, told the president he could count on the support of all who knew how squarely he had stood for the "full crew bill."

All the band instruments were ruined in a fire which destroyed a dance hall at New Baltimore one night last week. It would have been a keen pleasure to many people to hear this fire over the radio.

A Saginaw woman says her husband left home in an intoxicated condition just before the prohibition law was passed, and has never returned. It is feared he may have become sober and been unable to find his way back.

The school census in Mecosta county shows that there are 334 fewer school children in the county than there were last year. The explanation is furnished by the fact that so many children want to move away and give their parents the advantages of the city.

The fire department was called at Port Huron one day last week to extinguish a fire which is thought to have been started in an awning by the sun's rays beating directly upon it. Other merchants along the street of course made haste then to take their awnings into the shade.

The Mt. Clemens fire department furnishes each resident with a card giving the location of alarm boxes by number, and when a fire breaks out the location of the box and the fire is indicated by a series of whistles from the water works. As a further accommodation we understand the department will make every effort to keep the fires in check until the residents get there.

BETTER ROADS

Interest in Good Roads Found to Be Increasing

That interest in the good roads movement throughout the country is increasing rather than diminishing is shown by results of a census of bond issues contemplated and authorized for highway construction just completed by the Asphalt Association of New York. The figures show that a total of $781,228,384, in bond issues, exclusive of federal aid, were reported under contemplation in the states, counties, townships and road districts of the country from August 1, 1922, to August 1, 1923, and that the sum of $917,029,537 was actually authorized to be expended.

The amount reported as contemplated during the year previous by $32,075,384, and the sum authorized exceeded that of the year before by $75,304,757. The bond issues authorized from August 1, 1921, to August 1, 1922, amounted to $541,724,780.

"For some time," said J. E. Pennybacker, secretary of the Asphalt Association, "among good roads advocates, the opinion has prevailed seemingly that the public demand for improved roads is not now as great as in previous years. That the exact reverse is the case is shown by the investigations we have made. Not only is the demand for good roads increasing practically everywhere, but there is a much greater demand for the finest types of hard surfaced highways, such as sheet asphalt and asphaltic concrete. Last year 82,000,000 square yards of asphalt highways were constructed in this country. The reports we are now receiving indicate that asphalt construction this year will far exceed that figure."

That the greatest interest in good roads is to be found in the South at present is indicated by the fact that Virginia led all other states in contemplated improvements. Tennessee was second and Texas third. Pennsylvania ranked fourth. The last named state, however, led the country in the amount of money actually authorized to be expended. Illinois was second in this respect, Florida was third and California fourth.

Field Culvert Built to Decrease Surface Water

Heavy rains do a lot of damage in the fields. The ditches are often deepened until it is impossible to cross them with farm implements, and aside from this inconvenience, the ditches usually run at angles, making waste land and, in fields that are cultivated, a number of point rows.

The illustration shows how an Indiana farmer overcomes the difficulty:

he always has a good crossing, the ditch is kept open for drainage of surface water and the velocity of the running water is decreased until it does not have the cutting action that it would have if it were totally unobstructed.

An old tile is imbedded in concrete to allow the passage of the water. The surface of the concrete is creased to insure good footing.

Rapid Transportation Is Possible by Paved Roads

Paved roads and dairying go hand in hand. As more improved roads are constructed, milk routes are extended and the farmer farther from the city is provided with a market for his milk. Over unimproved routes, requiring wagon delivery, the longest route possible is only approximately 15 miles, while over paved highways, traveled by motortrucks, routes covering as high as 40 miles are established. Large areas of prospective dairy country are waiting only the construction of more hard-surfaced roads. When these are built many more farmers, now cut off from their market, will receive the benefit of the economical and rapid transportation made possible by the motortruck and the paved highway.

Rubber Blocks Used to Deadend Sound of Traffic

To deaden the sound of passing traffic, the surface of Whitehall street in London is now being paved with rubber blocks. The area covered is 1,500 square yards, and will cost $30,000. Each block of rubber weighs nearly 5 pounds and measures 8 by 3 inches. The rubber block area is expected to last half a century, despite the enormous volume of heavy traffic constantly using the roadway.

SMOOTH PERFORMANCE

A marked smoothness characterizes the performance of Dodge Brothers Motor Car.

In keeping with the policy of constant improvement, effective measures have been taken to minimize vibration. Applied to the body, engine, clutch, brakes, and other vital units, these refinements add immeasurably to the comfort of travel over boulevards and country roads.

The effect is so pronounced, in fact, that it is entirely fitting to classify smooth performance as one of the outstanding attributes of Dodge Brothers Motor Car.

ABOUT THE GAS TAX

The gasoline tax idea of road financing seems to work pretty well in Indiana. At the close of the first year the two cent tax had yielded $4,500,000 with a total collection expense of $6,046.

There never was a state that needed better roads more than rugged, rough and hilly Pennsylvania. Since that state has been collecting a two cent gasoline tax, a long hoped for system of good roads is developing rapidly.

California probably gets more tourists annually than does Michigan. By means of a gasoline tax the tourists chip in with the citizens and not only keep the roads in repair but build more good roads. A long suffering farm real estate does not carry the burden. California collected $5,500,000 in gasoline taxes the first year.

Some 37 states are now agreed that a gasoline tax is a just means of meeting the terrific expense of building and maintaining the good roads we must have. They all have gas taxes. Michigan almost got one last session of the legislature and surely will this next session unless opponents of a gasoline tax succeed in defeating state senator and legislator friends of the measure this November. That's the thing to watch. Note what the candidates pledge on the gas tax question. Stand by the men who were right on that issue.

LABOR AND WAR

"The greatest service that organized labor can render to the human race today is to stop forever the scourge of war," says Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. "The organized workers alone have the power to do it, for without their aid no armaments could be made and no battles fought."

It must be admitted that this is true—provided the workers act together. They are a majority. They furnish not only a majority of the fighters in any war but a majority of the votes in any election. If they were to vote as solidly as they fight it would lie within their power to stop fighting.

But numbers prove nothing. It is a question of morals, temperament and viewpoint. Workmen in the past have divided politically, in this country especially, pretty much as have other classes. They have regarded war in the same way. Wars, in democratic countries, have been fought usually because the people desired them, and workmen have desired them no less than others have.

This is merely to say that wars spring from combative human nature, and workmen are human. It does not seem likely that they will unite against war until society in general does.

ENFORCING PROHIBITION

The Record-Eagle, perhaps the widest read daily in the fruit belt, takes its editorial pen in hand and makes a few observations in its columns. It gives a clear-cut and concise conception of its opinion as well as drawing interesting conclusions. Here it is in full:

"It is probably true that if a bootlegger couldn't find any patrons he would seek another trade, so that in making prohibition effective it is necessary to keep after the men and women who think they must quench their thirst with alcoholic beverages."

"On the other hand, the bootlegger's activities might be greatly curtailed by more drastic enforcement measures dealing with him directly."

"A judge in Omaha, Neb., has been setting a good example of such measures recently. In one day he passed 42 jail sentences aggregating 84 years and announced fines totalling $108,000. If he keeps that up, the bootleggers in his vicinity will begin to crave a vacation from their chosen trade."

these, yes, probably the most prominent boat in the meet* was Doc's II. Doc's II is the second venture of Dr. L. R. Van Sant of Peoria, in the racing game and, like her predecessor, Doc's, was designed and built by Findley Bailey, the Peoria builder who has produced so many of the notable valley pinnes. To begin with, Dr. Van Sant is the leading exponent of the direct drive principle in powering hydroplanes. Against the firm conviction of practically all of the leading architects and builders and in face of the desertion of almost all owners, he has steadily persevered until today his boat stands at the head of its class; the undisputed champion and holder of the world's record of 61.02 miles per hour over an oval course of 2-1-2 miles. Doc's is without a doubt a 65 miler. Perhaps she is even faster, for she made a faster lap than the 450 H. P. Fore, holder of the Webb trophy and admittedly one of the world's fastest single-engine hydroplanes, a boat that boasts a record of better than 67 miles per hour in official trials. Unfortunately, time did not allow for Doc's to compete in the mile trials. All this has been accomplished with an eight cylinder, 220 H. P. Hispano-Suiza engine of less than 725 cu. in. cylinder capacity."

It will be observed from the foregoing that the Brady boat, Miss Charlevoix, carries identically the same power plant as the record-breaking Doc's II. She also embodies the direct drive design, regarding which Mr. Brady had considerable correspondence with Dr. Van Sant before the plans for the Miss Charlevoix were completed. Other types of hydroplane speed boats use a forward drive through the gear box. As in Doc's II, the engine of the Miss Charlevoix is set well forward. The hull of the latter was, however, designed according to the specifications of John L. Hacker, whereas Doc's II is the joint creation of Findley Bailey and its owner.

The Brady Boat Company built the Miss Charlevoix in the winter of 1923, the engine being installed for the first time this spring. Though the Hispano-Suiza engine is now being manufactured in the United States, this particular unit was made in France. Material for the hull was shipped from the east. The hull which is of mahogany, is 22 feet in length overall with a beam of six feet. At low speed, she rises at the front end so that you can't see the water over her bow. As speed is increased, she gradually levels down until at top notch she touches the surface of the water at practically only two points—the forward and after planes.

She carries in her tank a supply of 22 gallons of gasoline which is fed to the motor by an air pressure system which operates as the motor runs. She burns up 20 gallons of gasoline per hour, when wide open, and uses a gallon and a half of oil under oil every sixty minutes. She has a six gallon reserve lubricating oil tank which requires two pumps, the oil being pumped through the motor and back into the tank where another high pressure pump puts it through the bearings again at a pressure of 85 pounds. The oiling system is of the dry base type.

DAIRY FACTS

FEED FOR DRY COWS IS MOST IMPORTANT

There is a tendency on the part of many dairymen to neglect the dairy cow when she is dry. Oftentimes she is put into some back pasture and forgotten, or if it is winter the grain is taken from her and she is given little attention.

The dry cow is going to be the producing cow, and her ability to produce during each succeeding lactation is partly dependent upon her condition at the time of freshening, writes C. L. Blackman in Wallace's Farmer. No dairy cow can do herself credit unless she freshens in a good, thrifty condition, for great demands are made on the cow at freshening time. The cow that is thin before freshening presents an unattractive appearance after freshening.

It is during the period shortly after freshening that the average cow milks heaviest, and a cow in low condition then can never do her best. Even if the cow is fed well after freshening, she must use large amounts of the feed to restore her depleted body.

Men who make large records have learned to take advantage of the tendency of good dairy cows to produce more milk than their feed warrants shortly after freshening. That is, at this time the cow is in good condition milks the flesh off her back, as we say. The cow that is in low condition has no reserve to call on, and consequently her milk flow decreases. Once the milk production is lowered for any length of time, it is practically impossible to restore it to its proper place. Thus, by not feeding the dry cow, the amount of production is decreased and her efficiency as a producer is lowered.

One of the well-known dairy feeders in Iowa has said that the feed given during the dry period was the cheapest feed used, meaning that it gave the largest returns. Do not lower the ability of your cow to produce by neglect during the dry period. Feed her liberally, so that she may have reserve strength and "flesh" to supply the demands made upon her.

Cows Freshened in Fall Are Highest Producers

That a definite relation exists between production per cow and income over feed cost is shown in Department Bulletin 1009, Relation of Production to Income From Dairy Cows, issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The group that produced the most per cow ate the most on an average and always had the highest average income over cost of feed. At 100 pounds of butterfat per cow a year, the average income over cost of feed was $10. At 400 pounds of butterfat a year the average income over cost of feed was $108. As production increased 4 times, the average income over cost of feed increased 10.6 times.

A former edition of this bulletin was exhausted by the heavy demand for it, and a reprint has just been issued. A reprint also has recently been published of Department Bulletin 1071, entitled Influence of Season of Freshening on Production and Income From Dairy Cows. The figures in this bulletin show that, on an average, the cows that freshened in the fall and early winter produced more milk and butterfat and had a higher average income over cost of feed than those that freshened at other times of the year.

Copies of these two bulletins may be obtained as long as the supply lasts by application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

and the low temperature of the growing season are given as reasons for the backwardness of the crop, conditions being similar to those of 1917.

Ways in which the danger of a seed shortage may be overcome have been discussed by Professor Cox, briefly as follows:

"Experiments at the Michigan Agricultural College show that seed of high germination can be secured from corn in the dough, or even in the milk stage, if it is properly dried in the fall before being affected by freezing weather. While best seed results from selecting in the field at time of maturity, good seed can nevertheless be secured from immature corn if it is immediately dried under conditions where free ventilation exists. Corn carrying a high moisture content should be dried in an artificially heated room or seed corn drying house with windows or ventilators open."

The Michigan corn crop is in a dangerous condition, with a large percentage of the crop having but little chance of ripening, according to Prof. J. F. Cox, head of the farm crops department at the Michigan Agricultural College.

The most serious side of the situation, it is said, lies in the possibility of a great shortage of adapted seed for the state's planting next year, unless farmers make a special effort to field-select seed corn and dry it properly. Lateness of planting last spring

DAIRY SITUATION IS SURVEYED

ONE THIRD OF COWS MAKE A PROFIT

Better Feeding and Better Breeding Will Help the Situation Says Experts

One third of all the dairy cows in the state of Michigan are losing money, a third is making up for what the first third is losing, and the other third is reaping profits for their owners, according to a survey of the state dairy situation, just completed by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. Better feeding and better breeding is the solution of this problem, the institute experts declare.

"The state of Michigan," continues the report of the institute, "has dairy cows in milk on 85 per cent of her farms. In 1880 the state had 3.09 per cent of all the dairy cows in the United States; in 1924—4.08 per cent. In 1910 the state had 123 heads of all kinds of cattle per one thousand acres of improved land. Now in 1924, it has only 117 head. A few head more or less matters little. Have they improved in fourteen years? What will they be fourteen years from now? These are the questions on which the institute's experts will enlighten the farmers.

"Farmers want happiness and contentment. There are two ways of doing this—get more money for what they produce or lower cost of production. A quarter saved in the grain cost of producing a hundred pounds of milk by feeding better milk making grain rations, a dime saved per one hundred pounds of pork, or dozen eggs, is money ahead for the farmer. We don't need more cows, hogs or hens. We need better ones. More efficient animals mean lowered cost of manufacturing one hundred pounds of milk, pork, poultry, beef, mutton and eggs.

"The average cow in Michigan makes only 3,965 pounds of milk and only 3.7 per cent of all the dairy cattle in the state are purebred. Better feeding will raise production and lower costs per hundred pounds of milk. The daughters of good cows, sired by purebred bulls, will increase that production and further lower costs of production. The same is true with other animals. In 1919, the peak year, only 11 per cent of the entire state's income went to farmers. That is not enough," the institute's experts point out.

There has been a rising tide of popularity in intensive farming. As agriculture is brought face to face with higher costs of production and farmers find that they cannot get by

AT THE MOVIES
Picture Fans Have Great Treat Coming

Devotees of the cinema art are going to have the opportunity of seeing "Tess of the Storm Country" again and therein lies a tale of more than passing interest.

In the first place, this was the picture in which Mary Pickford scored one of those earlier big screen triumphs, which insured her immortal fame and inspired the populace of the whole country to proclaim her "America's Sweetheart." That was just eight years ago, for this epochal photoplay had its inning in 1914.

Now, in this 1924, in her new "Tess of the Storm Country," a United Artist's release, coming to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, Mary Pickford will be seen for a second time as Tess in an elaborated version of Grace Miller White's celebrated story. The "Queen of the Screen" re-created this lovable character before the camera at the Pickford-Fairbanks studio at Hollywood and this notable revival is now being presented internationally.

Critics Acclaim Tom Mix as Comedian in New Fox Production

Tom Mix scores one of the biggest hits of his screen career in his new William Fox offering, "Soft Boiled," which comes to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday.

"This is the best picture Tom Mix has ever made," enthuses a New York critic.

"It has everything—fast action, thrills, romance, pretty girls, fun, and attractive settings. As for the star, he shows that he is a real comedian in addition to being a stunt actor par excellence."

"Soft Boiled" is really Tom's official bow as a comedian. Dressed in a checker suit that isn't too modest to shriek for itself, with tortoise glasses, and a hat balanced perilously atop his head, Tom proves he's 'soft boiled' by getting a job as a shoe clerk. Then the fun and the action race along in full force and he doesn't slacken for a moment until the final closeup.

Don't start on your vacation with a shabby suit case or traveling bag. Look over our line, then you will buy a new one. Benj. Brown.—Adv.35tf.

Live Stock Notes

To make the hog house safe, scrub it with boiling lye water. The lye will cut the dirt.

Horses like alfalfa stems. Refuse from the cattle racks is very acceptable to horses.

Hogs can be fed economically and do well even without pasture, but they need a great variety of food.

Sheep follow their leader and diseases follow sheep. If the master does not follow proper prevention practices.

Hog raisers find the market hard to please; a fact which makes hog raising an unsafe business for indifferent men.

Good management of the sheep flock requires careful advance planning. Prepare now for the lambing season. Look to your sheds and equipment.

In most cases the cause of undersized and stunted colts is the lack of proper rations, which is a condition that should not exist where feed-stuffs can be grown abundantly.

We have a full line of the very best suit cases, traveling bags and trunks. Get one before you start on your vacation. Benj. Brown.—35-tf.

Poultry Hints

Keep a good, strong padlock on the hen-coop door.

Six roosters with each 100 hens should give good fertility and hatchability with Leghorns.

Ground where last year's chicks died isn't good ground for this year's chicks. Move the coops and brooders.

The Orpington is an English general-purpose breed that is winning quite a place in America. Orpingtons have white skin and produce brown eggs—an unusual combination.

A. A. Holberg, assistant poultryman at the Minnesota college farm, saves himself work in cleaning dropping boards by keeping them covered with a layer of fine sand. He says it keeps the boards more sanitary, too.

STOMACH WORMS IN SHEEP ARE MENACE

Of the internal parasites common to sheep the stomach worm is a real menace to the farm sheep industry. While the parasite is found in sheep of all ages, lambs are principally affected. The older sheep, although showing no symptoms of the parasite, are usually responsible for the spread of the disease.

The worm is thread-like, usually somewhat coiled, about an inch in length and from a reddish to dirty white in color. The parasite may be found in the fourth stomach of infected animals at any time of year. The pest is transferred to healthy animals through pastures. The eggs, which are excreted from infected animals through the feces, hatch in from twelve to twenty-four hours. In ten to fourteen days the parasites reach the embryo stage, crawl to a blade of grass where they are eaten by the sheep.

There are no visible diagnostic symptoms by which one can distinguish the disease from other internal parasite diseases. A post-mortem examination of a sick or recently dead animal will show the presence or absence of the parasite. If present, the worms will be found near or imbedded in the walls of the fourth stomach. In general, the symptoms of internal parasites of any kind are a dullness or lack of thrift in the animal followed by diarrhea.

Eradication requires a combination of rotation of pastures and medical treatment. Infected pastures may be made safe by keeping sheep and cattle off from them for a year. Burning over the pasture or cropping it one season is also satisfactory. Oftentimes, infected flocks that can be moved every two or three weeks to non-infected pastures show marked improvement.

There are three different medical treatments that may be used satisfactorily, namely: the coumat, creosote, the nicotine sulphate, and the blue vitriol or copper sulphate treatment. In case any of the treatments are to be used, the flock should be fasted from twelve to twenty-four hours before treating and for four hours afterwards.

Clean House Essential for Success With Pigs

A clean hog house is the first requisite in connection with raising a healthy crop of pigs, says the Nebraska Agricultural college. Merely scraping, shoveling and sweeping the dirt out of a shed does not make that shed safe for new-born pigs. Round-worm eggs and fifth-born disease germs which are the sources of our most destructive pig troubles are microscopic in size and thousands of them may be contained in the dirt and filth which can only be removed by washing. The only way to destroy worm eggs is to boil them. A good disinfectant will destroy the germs which cause bull-nose, mange, pig typhoid, etc. To make the hog house safe, scrub it with boiling lye water. The lye will cut the dirt. Then spray all posts and walls with a solution of liquid cresols (30 to 1) and put in fresh clean bedding.

Dehorning Makes Stock Farming More Pleasant

Feeders shipped to market often sustain losses from fighting in crowded cars when not dehorned. In short, dehorning is one of the little jobs that makes farming more pleasant and profitable and one that should be done when there is least danger of the wounds becoming infected. Flies tend to irritate the exposed cuts and sometimes cause trouble. Extremely cold weather is also unfavorable. Consequently, the humane and economical method is to treat the buttons when they are first found on the head of the young calf.

You travel in comfort and enjoy your vacation if you have a wardrobe trunk. The very best and the more medium priced. Benj. Brown. Adv. 35-tf.

H. J. TIMMER, Clerk.

W. E. BYERS, Auctioneer.

AUCTION SALE SEASON

Because of the late season, very few auction sales have been held so far this fall and very few are now listed in advance. This makes Right Now the most opportune time to get your date. As soon as the harvest is done many who want to have sales will not be able to get the date and auctioneer wanted. Do not put off getting your date until then.

GET YOUR DATES NOW

Come in the office and we will make all the necessary arrangements for you. We can get any auctioneer for you.

Auction Sales Profitable

Charlevoix county is exceptional in that but very few auction sales are ever held which are not successful sales. The farmers of this vicinity have come to look upon the auction sale as not only the most convenient means of disposing of their goods in case of removal but also the most profitable. It is not at all unusual to have someone who has just had a sale come into the office and say that they received a good deal more for their goods than they had figured they were worth.

It has also proven a very profitable way of buying stock, implements, etc. for stocking a farm.

Courier Ads Profitable

We believe that at least some portion of this success in sales is due to the fact that the Courier, which advertises practically all of the sales held in the county, has a circulation which covers the county as no paper or combination of papers does or ever has covered it. The fact that Charlevoix has several excellent auctioneers has much to do with the success of the sales held.

A common trouble in natural incubation is lice. Most hens carry a few lice upon them all the time. In the active hen the number of lice upon her do not increase rapidly, but in a sluggish, broody hen multiplication of lice increases very rapidly. To check this the bird must be dusted with sodium fluoride, or a good house powder before she is placed upon the hatching eggs, at least once during the hatching period, and again just before the chicks hatch.

POULTRY FACTS.

PROPER METHODS FOR PREPARING POULTRY

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A broad field for specialization by farmers in producing table poultry of prime quality is felt to exist by the United States Department of Agriculture. Most poultry, says the department, is shipped alive by producers because producers are not skilled in dressing and are not equipped to handle and ship the dressed poultry in good condition over long distances.

Shippers of dressed poultry will find it profitable as a rule to fatten the birds for a period of ten to fourteen days before killing, the department says. Requirements of the market to which the poultry are sent should determine whether the birds should be scalded or dry plucked, and also the style of dressing. It is extremely important that the birds be well bled and thoroughly chilled immediately after slaughter, to remove all body heat.

Failure to chill properly is often responsible for spoilage. In warm weather dressed poultry should be shipped packed in ice to prevent spoilage in transit. Grading for quality, uniformity, and size is desirable.

Shipping of poor quality birds in separate packages is also desirable when the quantity to be shipped is sufficiently large to make this step practicable, the department says.

It probably will not pay to fatten poultry that is in fairly good condition of flesh, before shipping them alive, because the shrinkage in weight of apically fattened poultry is likely to be heavy during the journey to market, the department points out. But if the poultry is very thin it will probably pay to fatten the birds for a few days or a week.

In shipping alive, producers are urged to grade the birds by age and kind, and so far as practicable to ship the different classes in separate coops. Overcrowding in coops, especially during hot weather, causes heavy loss. Feed should be withheld from the poultry a sufficient length of time before shipping, to insure arrival of the birds on the market with empty crops.

In shipping either live or dressed poultry, the department emphasizes the importance of determining the best days of the week for poultry on the market selected, and the planning of shipments to arrive on those days. Care should always be taken that coops or containers in which poultry is shipped are plainly marked with the name and address of both the receiver and shipper.

Further detailed information as to the proper methods of killing, plucking, chilling, packing and shipping poultry applicable to the use of producers, as well as brief descriptions of commercial methods, are given in Farmers' Bulletin 1377, entitled "Marketing Poultry," copies of which can be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, upon request of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Satisfactory House for Ducks Is Easily Built

The essentials of a satisfactory duck house are a good, tight roof, light sides and back, and ample ventilation. A very good type is a simple shed-roof house, four feet high at the back and seven at the front, ten or twelve feet wide and whatever length the size of the flock would require. Provide a raised floor covered with sand, and kept liberally covered with litter. As for materials build the framework of dimension stuff, and if strict economy in first cost is essential, cover the entire building, roof and sides, with prepared roofing. Leave in the front a door, and windows the full length of the house. Half the windows should be glass, and the other half protected with burlap or muslin to keep out drafts and rain or snow, but allow for ventilation. The windows should all be arranged so that ventilation may be increased or diminished as the need changes with weather conditions.

Give Chickens Free Run Whenever It Is Possible

It is better to fence the garden so that the chickens cannot get into it than it is to fence them in close quarters to prevent them from eating the crop. What is true with the garden is true with all crops that might be injured by the birds. Fence such crops in, and let the chickens range whenever possible. Birds need green feed and exercise if they are to stay healthy. Confined use of a single run for chickens causes the ground to become "fowl-alk" and heavily infested with parasite eggs.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. A Real Treat for Nature Lovers

"Where shall we take a little drive, this evening?"—or, "Where shall we go Sunday afternoon?"—Those two questions have been asked and answered many hundreds of times in the families of Michigan residents—judging by the visitors we have been glad to welcome to the

It has been a real delight to realize that so many hundreds of householders, so many families, have had a true regard for the attractiveness and beauty of trees and flowering plants. It would be a treat for you to come to the nursery, enjoy a walk through the greenery and examine the evergreens of countless varieties and the flowering plants.

If you are planning on Fall planting for hedge or shrubbery, by all means, you should come now and make a selection. But it is not necessary to be a buyer to be welcome at the Charlevoix County Nursery. We are nature lovers here and like to have others enjoy what we enjoy too without any obligation to buy.

WHAT NOT TO DO WITH CARMOTOR

Worn Pinions and Differential Bearings Are Result of Poor Driving of Auto.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

Rear axles today as a whole are unlighty well made but they would give far better and longer service if the driving were properly done.

Quick engagement of the clutch, heavy overloads, even though for an instant, harsh application of brakes on rough roads, and lack of lubrication are some of the causes of worn pinion and differential bearings and worn gears.

Cause of Unpleasant Noises. The average car has an adjustable driving pinion and differential unit. When new these bevel gears operate so that the gears mesh in one certain way. If a bearing wears and allows the pinion to change its mesh, or if the differential bearings wear and allow the whole unit to shift away from or toward the pinion, there is bound to be a noise produced and noise of an unpleasant character.

Gears Not Running True. The bearings, if they are of the ball type with ball separators or cages, may show a breaking down of the cage. Pieces of the cage fall between the gear teeth, chipping them and causing more noise. The bearings themselves then allow more freedom of movement of the differential or pinion. It is absolutely necessary that the two gears remain in a fixed position, and as soon as there is an unusual noise from the axle, it is a warning that the gears are not running true or that there is solid matter between the teeth.

cast shows a gain over the previous month, the prospective crop being 33,110,000 bushels. There have been local attacks by leaf hoppers and blight but moisture has been ample in most sections and the outlook is for a good yield. The crop in 1923 was estimated at 35,796,000 bushels, having been somewhat larger than that of the current season.

The nation's potato crop now appears to be about the same as last year, the estimate being 412,761,000 bushels.

Beans: Since the August report, the crop has sustained considerable injury in some of the heavy land sections from excessive rainfall. Blight and anthracnose are quite prevalent although fair weather late in August arrested the development and effect of these diseases to some extent. The condition has declined to 68 per cent, representing a crop of 5,492,000 bushels, or a little over a million bushels less than last year. The crop is slow in maturing which, with the prevailing diseased condition, will cause a rather heavy pick.

Hay: The tame hay crop is estimated at 4,062,000 tons which is 150,000 tons more than produced last year. Much difficulty has been experienced in curing and housing the crop because of cool weather and frequency of rains in all except the southeastern counties, and a large quantity is of poor quality as a result. The estimated average yield of timothy is 1.3 tons per acre; clover, 1.4; clover and timothy mixed, 1.48; and alfalfa, 2.3.

Sugar Beets: The condition has dropped to 83 per cent, now being the same as one year ago. In some sections the ground has been too wet. While a large growth of tops has resulted the root growth has been below normal. Blight was also reported from some sections. The estimated production is 1,174,000 tons.

Clover Seed: The outlook for clover seed is not as promising as in many other years. The rainy season has promoted a heavy plant growth in most sections, but the heads are not filling well. The present condition is rated at 70 per cent. The acreage inquiry will be made next month.

Pasture: Pastures show a condition of 88 per cent or 10 per cent above the average. They are in excellent condition except in the southeast district where a scarcity of rainfall has existed for some time, causing them to dry up to the extent that feeding of live stock has been necessary in some local areas.

Fruits: Apples show a lower condition than last month, being rated at 46 per cent of a full crop.

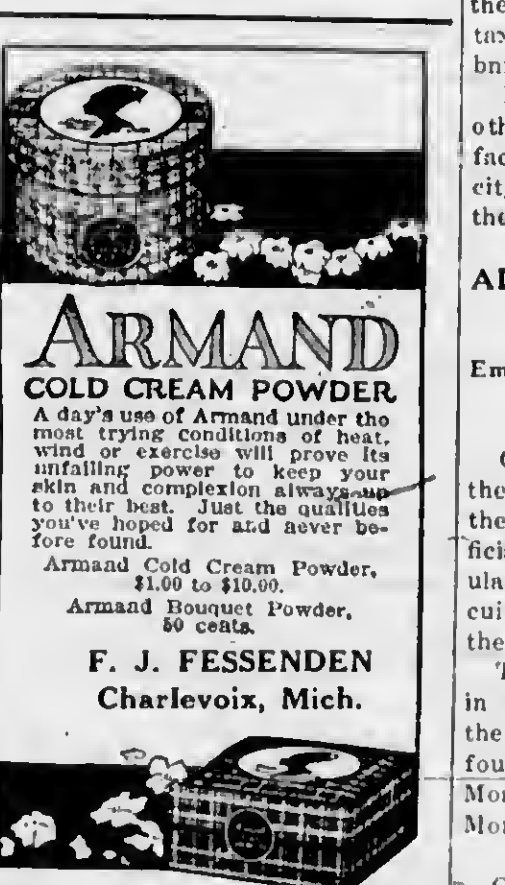

The peach crop is principally in Allegan, Oceana and Mason counties this year and totals only 29 per cent of a full production, or 464,000 bushels as compared with 1,125,000 bushels in 1923. The crop is late in ripening.

Pears are also light although Kiefers promise a good crop in many orchards.

Grapes show an excellent outlook for quantity and quality, but the crop will be very late in maturing and unusually favorable weather is needed to save all of it.

Vacation time calls for new trunks, bags and suit cases. We have a wonderful assortment to choose from. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 35-tf.

FARMERS PROBE INTO TAXATION

THREE COUNTIES SAVED TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND

Investigators Found Farms Discriminated Against By Assessors

Twenty-five thousand dollars less taxes will be paid by rural tax payers of Calhoun, Ingham and Washtenaw counties as a result of investigations which farmers of those counties made as to the relative assessed valuation of farm, village and city property.

Careful investigations were carried out in five counties and in each instance the average rate of assessment was found to be higher for farm land and buildings than for any other class of property within the county. Upon the presentation of this evidence before the equalization committees and boards of supervisors at their June meetings, equalizations were granted in all five counties, but in Kalamazoo and Monroe counties appeals have been taken to the State Tax Commission, so the final saving to the farmers of those two counties cannot be definitely announced as yet.

Farmers making these comprehensive investigations which resulted in at least partially satisfactory equalizations were all Farm Bureau members and acted through their County Farm Bureaus. Proceeding in accordance with a plan worked out by the Michigan State Farm Bureau, and with the assistance of the state organization, local workers in five counties obtained from official records on file in the offices of the Register of Deeds and County Treasurers, impartial and authentic figures regarding the average rate of assessment of various classes of property within each of the counties studied. The results secured show that without exception farm lands and buildings were assessed higher than village property and on a still higher level when compared with city property in the same counties.

Summing up the hundreds of real estate transactions taken at random and absolutely impartially from official records, with valuations totalling several million dollars, the results show that the average ratio of assessment to the actual sale price for the various classes of property in all the counties, was as follows:

Farms.....83.1 per cent
Villages.....73.7 per cent
Cities.....69.4 per cent

Farmers Present Facts

Armed with the convincing facts regarding each individual county, farm bureau representatives went before the equalization committee and the entire board of supervisors in each of these counties, presented their findings and pleaded for an equalization. As noted above, the final result is still hanging in the balance in Kalamazoo and Monroe counties, but the equalizations granted to the other three counties, while not all that the facts in the case would have demanded; still mean a saving of nearly $25,000 to rural taxpayers each year. This will be divided up as follows:

Calhoun.....$11,933
Ingham.....5,178
Washtenaw.....7,702

How Relief Was Granted

In Calhoun county the board of equalization decreased the rural assessment; in Washtenaw county city assessments were raised; in Ingham county a combination of both methods was employed. While this decrease in the assessed and equalized valuations of farm property and the increase in city valuations will not affect the local and township taxes paid by the farmers in the various townships, it will materially influence the proportion of the state and county taxes to be paid by the rural and urban districts of these counties.

It would appear that farmers of other counties might well get the facts as to how farm, village and city property is being assessed in their localities.

STEAMER SOUTH AMERICAN BURNED

Great Lakes Passenger Ship Total Loss at Holland Dock

Fire early last Tuesday destroyed the steamer South American, one of the largest Great Lakes passenger ships, while it was at its dock in Holland. Explosion of over 500 gallons of fuel oil shortly after the flames were discovered, wrecked one side of the ship and forced Captain A. E. Anderson and the crew to make a hurried departure. Several narrowly escaped.

The captain leaped into the water from the quarter deck and swam to shore. A portion of the oil container was hurled against a house 500 feet away by the blast. The boat will be rebuilt immediately.

Many Charlevoix Folks Have Found the Way.

Is a dull, nerve-racking backache wearing you out? Do you feel older and slower than you should? Are you tired, weak and nervous; find it impossible to be happy, or enjoy the good things around you? Then there's something wrong and likely it's your kidneys. Why not get at the cause? Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Your neighbors recommend Doan's. Read what this Charlevoix resident says:

Daniel Himebauch, 107 W. Upright Ave., says: "I had a lame back and felt bad a good many times with my kidneys being weak and acting irregularly and I had to get up three or four times at night to pass the secretions, which were highly colored and contained sediment. A few boxes of Doan's Pills, bought at Metcalf's Drug Store, fixed me up in a fine way."

FALL FOOT-BALL SCHEDULE IS OUT

Some Of The Old Timers Are To Play Again

While there may be some changes, plans for the 1924 foot-ball season at C. H. S. are sufficiently definite to publish the following schedule of games, kindly furnished us by Coach Floyd Alldread:

Mancelona at Mancelona—Oct. 4th.
Traverse City at Charlevoix—Oct. 18th.

East Jordan at East Jordan—Oct. 25th.

Petoskey at Petoskey—Nov. 1st.
Boyne City at Boyne City—Nov. 8th.

Cheboygan at Cheboygan—Nov. 21st.

On October 11th, the home team will probably play Harbor Springs, but this will be definitely settled later.

The new coach has already had his men out for practice a couple of times and believes that he has a promising bunch of material to work with. Cunningham, last year's star, and a number of others of the old guard are expected back in the harness next week.

THINGS OTHER FOLKS LIKE

A most delicious salad and one easily made is prepared with a package of lemon gelatin.

Add the boiling water to dissolve the package, then when cold stir in may diced vegetable, or such vegetable as cabbage with a bit of pineapple and celery makes a nice combination. Serve it molded in small forms on lettuce with a spoonful of rich, highly seasoned salad dressing on the side of the salad.

Baked Slice of Ham.—This is a little different from the usual way of serving it. Take a thick slice of ham cut from the center. Place in a baking dish and cover with four medium-sized onions sliced, a plate of tomatoes and a sprig of parsley with a piece of bay leaf. Bake slowly two hours. Make a gravy from the liquor in the pan and serve with baked potatoes.

Sour Cream Pie.—To one cupful of sour cream add one-half cupful of sugar, the yolks of two eggs well-beaten, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of cloves, a pinch of salt, one-half cupful of raisins chopped fine. Line a pie tin with pastry, fill and cover. Bake in a hot oven long enough to cook the pastry, then lower the heat, to bake the custard. If lined the pie may be made with one crust and covered with a meringue.

Orange Layer Cake.—Take one-third of a cupful of shortening, add one cupful of sugar gradually, beating well; one beaten egg, one cupful of milk added alternately with one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour sifted well with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder; flavor with orange and bake in two layers about twenty minutes in a moderate oven. Spread whipped cream thickly between the layers and on top cover with orange frosting.

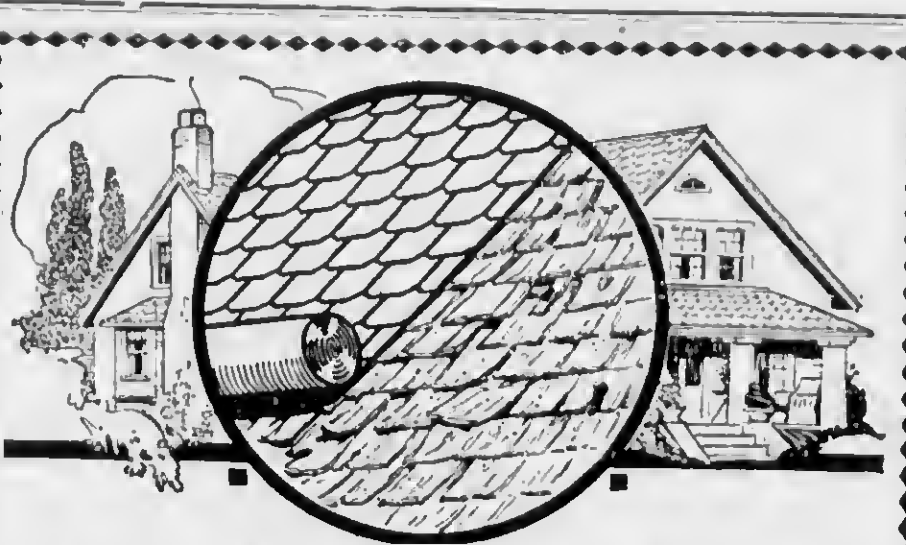

An orange filling is delicious for the cake above. Use an egg well beaten, a tablespoonful of flour mixed with one-half cupful of sugar, add a cupful of boiling water and cook until smooth and the starchy taste of the flour removed. Now add grated rind and juice of an orange and spread on the cake when cold.

BOAT RIDE ON PINE LAKE MUCH ENJOYED

Miss Parker's Guests Pass a Pleasant Evening

Miss Virginia Parker entertained about 18 of her young friends last Wednesday evening with a boat ride on Pine Lake, W. H. Francis' launch, the Olympic, being chartered for the occasion.

Under the chaperonage of Miss

Esther Babcock and Dr. Vernard L. Miller, the merry party left the dock at about 8:30 p. m. and a very enjoyable evening commenced. The weather being a trifle chilly, however, it was voted to eat the picnic luncheon provided on shore and the party finally returned to the Parker home on State street where the outing was most pleasantly concluded.

Taking Toll of 41 Lives and Millions in Damaged Homes and Crops

The young tornado that hit this section Sunday night and Monday morning must have been a hang-over of the storms that did so much damage in Minnesota and northern Wisconsin Sunday, following a late summer heat wave, according to latest reports.

Ten people were killed at Thorpe, Wis., six at Sanborn, Wis., and one each at Milwaukee, Wis., Eveleth and Nahtolet, Minn. In the Twin Cities, hundreds of trees were blown down, many damaging homes. Telephone, telegraph and electric power and light wires throughout Minnesota and northern Wisconsin were damaged, wire communications being badly hampered. Besides the 41 reported dead from these two states, more than a score of people were injured. At Chicago, the thermometer dropped from 90 to 50 degrees between mid-afternoon and midnight Sunday accompanied by a driving rain. One heat prostration was reported earlier in the day and several thousand swimmers at Chicago beaches hurried home, shivering, to dig out their fall overcoats and wraps.

In Michigan, one man was killed in Grand Rapids by a falling sign-board and two men were electrocuted at Hart by a high-tension wire. In Detroit, a 40 foot tree crashed into the top of a passing car, while falling, and seriously injured two men, one of whom may die.

Property damage throughout the region visited by the storm will run up into the millions.

Terrible havoc was wrought in the fruit crop of Charlevoix and adjacent counties in the path of the storm. Hundreds of bushels of apples, pears and plums were on the ground Monday forenoon, blown down in the heavy wind. Those fruit owners who picked their fall fruit last week proved themselves wise and also good judges of weather.

People who drove through the country Monday morning reported many shade trees blown down, as well as many trees in the forest. The Michigan Bell Telephone Company reported wires down Monday in Big Rapids, Cadillac, Cheboygan and East Jordan, and some trouble was experienced with local toll and farm lines. The Western Union lines suffered no serious damage in this vicinity.

Sunday was one of the warmest mid-September days on record. The mercury stood at 76 in many thermometers most of the day and in the evening there was only a slight cooling off, the wind switching around to the northwest towards morning, Monday and by six o'clock Monday there was considerable difference in the temperature. A tremendous downpour of rain started Sunday afternoon, soon reaching almost the proportions of a cloudburst. The wind rose at about the same time and continued unabated until late in the evening when a fresh deluge began and soon the warring of the elements reached a frantic pitch which slackened but little during the night. Lake Michigan was whipped into a white fury and vessels stayed discreetly in port.

Has Been Elective Subject Here for Past Three Years

The Petoskey high school has announced plans for five classes in Bible study for Mondays of each week. Pastors of the various Petoskey churches will contribute their services as instructors for the prescribed state course. Credit is given to all who successfully complete the year's course. This is the second year of Bible study in the Petoskey high school. Last year the classes were taught in the churches.

While no definite program along these lines has as yet been introduced in Charlevoix schools, Bible study has been an elective course for the spring semester for the past three years and during that period it has been a regular practice to read from the Bible at each Monday morning's exercise. It is probable that some program similar to that adopted in Petoskey will be taken up after the first of the year.

WOMEN'S WEAR SHOP TO OPEN

J. B. REDPATH WILL LAUNCH NEW ENTERPRISE

Will Specialize Solely in Women's Wearing Apparel—Not Dry Goods

J. B. Redpath of Charlevoix, has leased the building which has been occupied for the past few summers by Little Will, the jeweler, for a period of ten years and will open, on or about the 15th of November, an all-year-round and up-to-date women's wearing apparel shop.

The new venture, Mr. Redpath assures us, is not to be considered as in any sense a dry-goods store but will specialize in women's wear, carrying in stock those items which Charlevoix people have in the past felt that they had to visit other towns to purchase in order to find anything to their liking.

The shop will be fully equipped in the most modern way, as respects show-cases, fittings, etc., and will be under the management of E. J. Smith, who was formerly with J. L. Crane and is thoroughly familiar with the business he is to conduct.

An endeavor will be made to treat both resorter and townsman alike in the matter of service and to keep the morale of the business up to a high standard during the long winter months, as well as in the busy summer season, both in point of styles and stock.

It is a wonder that some such attempt as this has not been made before. A great deal of money has gone out of Charlevoix to nearby places as well as to the mall order houses and department stores of the larger centers for goods that Charlevoix women have been unable to find on Charlevoix counters, or to find at standard prices. There is no reason in the world why this should be. If there is any reason at all it is because in every line of business there has been too much dabbling in the other fellow's specialty and where inadequate and incomplete stocks are carried in different and unrelated commodities in any one store it follows that that particular merchant is going to see people going past his door to a shop that specializes sufficiently in one or possibly two particular lines to be able to keep in stock all sizes, designs and grades of those specialties and cater to every class of trade and pocketbook.

SOME FOLKS SAY THAT A DOLLAR WON'T STRETCH--WE KNOW BETTER

IF YOU DON'T BELIEVE IT, TURN OUT ON DOLLAR DAY AND SEE THE MIRACLE WORKED

You Never Can Tell What Can or Cannot Be Done Until it is Tried and Dollar Day is Going to Be a Good Time to Settle the Matter to Your Satisfaction

How many cents in a dollar? One hundred, dear teacher. Not always, Waldo my child—on Dollar Day (Saturday, September 27th) each round, shiny simoleon will be worth one hundred fifty coppers. You see, the merchants of Charlevoix are going to inject a little rubber into our good old dollars so they will stretch a bit—just enough to give us that feeling of satisfaction that comes when we get the best end of the bargain. And the merchants enjoy it too for it gives them a chance to start some of their summer stocks rolling in the right direction and us an opportunity to indulge in some of the good things the resorters have been buying all season.

Saturday morning the procession will start toward. Every country back road and hard-bitten turnpike will rumble under the impact of thousands of tires and the rattle of the Ford will mingle with the purr of the Dodge and the smooth whine of the Buick. Old hog-nosed Overlands of pre-war vintage will jostle their sleeker brethren of 1924, and aristocratic dis-wheeled beauties will whiz disdainfully by their humble sister, Lizze, trudging patiently along under her homely burden of Pa, Ma and the Kids. Here and there along the road—pathetic sight!—an occasional Pierce Sparrow lying in the ditch, its poor little wheels waving helplessly in the air, worsted in the fierce and pitiless struggle for one half of the road or—put it more accurately—both halves! Now and then, as a fat team of Clydesdales interpose their adipose bulk athwart the procession an insistent chorus of Klaxons and cuss-words rises in weird harmony to our ears through the gasoline-laden atmosphere. They are all on their way to Charlevoix where King Dollar reigns for a brief span, hurrying to do him homage.

And at the day's end, when the last strains of the Ellsworth band, which has been secured to play here on Dollar Day, die away the homeward journey begins. Hearts and pockets are lighter, but strapped to the running board or piled on the tonneau floor what a medley of good things. Can't you shut your eyes and imagine what the folks are saying, after hollering, "Home, James" and settling back in the cushions?—"And, my dear, what do you think? I got five bottles of that wonderful vanilla that I had so much success with for a dollar at—'s grocery." "Did you?" Well you ought to see the aluminum sauceman I picked up at the hardware store—just what I wanted and it would have cost me a dollar and a half easy if I had bought it last week." Or—"Gee, Bill, into Blank's they give you twelve ten cent plugs of Old Soak chewing for one buck, whadaya know about that?" "Oh, heck, that's nothin', I got three packages of razor blades for a dollar from that red-headed feller at the drug store." And so it goes. Well, "aw reservoir," as they say, we'll see you on Dollar Day.

ROBBERS GET PRISON TERM

Petoskey Judge Gives Long Sentence to Highwaymen

Circuit Court Judge Frank Shepherd, of Emmet county circuit court, sentenced a number of offenders during the recent court term, including the two men convicted of slugging a summer guest and stealing his car to Jackson prison for terms of from ten to twenty years at hard labor. The pair were Austin Down, who pleaded guilty, and Harry Loague, who was convicted by a jury.

The Courier is of the opinion that the sentences meted out by the Emmet county judge are in entire accord with the views of the public in general. Should all such cases be handled with the same severity, the activities of such men might be curbed and the highways made safe for the people.

Build New Shop

CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Merry Party on the Kane's 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kane celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Monday evening, September 15th, at their farm home in Hayes township, Charlevoix county.

Mr. and Mrs. Kane came from Genesee county forty-two years ago and have lived on the same farm ever since. They have five children, ten grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Their daughters, Mrs. H. R. Zaus, of Los Angeles, California and Mrs. D. L. Trafford, of Traverse City, and the latter's son, Glenn, of Chicago, Ill., and the sons, Robert, of Boyne City, and Otto, who lives at home were there to attend the celebration.

Other relatives were present from Flint, Grand Blanc and Fenton. Other out-of-town guests were there from Chicago, Ill., Grand Rapids and Manitou Island and about twenty-five neighbors and friends.

The honored couple received many useful and beautiful gifts and then, to finish up the celebration, their son, Otto, was married at five o'clock in Boyne City to Miss Clara Winnick of Hayes. They arrived in time to partake of a bountiful chicken pie supper.

It was a remarkable affair and one that will be long and pleasantly remembered by those who attended.

Wednesday, October 8, is the date when J. Leahy, the Optometrist, will visit Charlevoix for the last time this fall. Call early, as he will be here but one day.—Adv. 39-12.

DAIRY-ALFALFA DRIVE GOES ON

Eight Counties Listed for Intensive Campaigns

Special dairy-alfalfa campaigns, conducted in many Michigan counties during the past three years, will be continued this fall, according to announcement just made by extension specialists at the Michigan Agricultural College.

Eight counties are listed for the 1924 work, with a possibility that more will be added later. Starting in Mecosta county on October 6, the college campaign teams will eventually reach Ionia, Ogemaw, Alpena, Eaton, Saginaw, Branch and Lapeer counties, ending in Lapeer on December 24.

The dairy-alfalfa campaigns, which are handled on an intensive plan in the counties covered, carry information about farm crops and better dairy practices to the back doors of the farmers of the sections visited. Great practical results have followed similar drives held in former years.

FEDERATION OF CLUBS MEETING

WOMEN GATHERED IN FORCE AT PETOSKEY NOW

Mrs. Dorian M. Russell, State President, Presides Over Several Hundred Delegates

With the assistance of Mrs. Dorian M. Russell, Grand Rapids, state president of the Michigan Federation of Women's clubs, who arrived in Petoskey Monday morning, the committee on arrangements completed plans for the state meeting which opened on Tuesday in that city and will continue until Friday noon.

The formal opening of the convention was scheduled for 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, with Mrs. Russell and Mrs. A. R. Clark, the Petoskey president, in charge. The address of the evening was given by Eben Mumford, professor of sociology at Michigan Agricultural college at Lansing, on the subject, "Where City and Country Meet."

The visitors were welcomed by Mrs. Clark for the club women and by representatives of the city and chamber of commerce, with a response by Mrs. Russell for the state organization.

Preceding the addresses, a patriotic and historic scene was put on under the supervision of Mrs. A. D. Phelps. Musical numbers were given by Mrs. Norman Risk and Miss Glee Baker, with accompaniment by Miss Myrtle White, and Mrs. Leon Chichester, accompanied by Mrs. Blanche Stone Bain.

At 6 o'clock at the Hotel Perry the Petoskey board of directors entertained the state board at dinner.

During the day, business, preliminary to the convention proper, was taken care of. At 9 o'clock, the board of directors met at the Hotel Cushman.

A number of prominent speakers are scheduled for the remaining days of the convention, which promise to be of unusual inspiration to those interested in civic work and especially in the part women are playing in present-day affairs.

PIFF-PAFF HAS A MOTLEY CREW

"Skipper" Bob is to Command New Training Ship

A group of the younger business and professional men of Charlevoix have recently organized what might be called an understudy for the Charlevoix Yacht Club. These gentlemen have purchased on shares from J. H. Hilton of the Belvedere Club the latter's 27 foot sloop, "Piff-Paff" and will sail it until they find their sea-legs, after which they are thinking seriously of purchasing a new craft of the R type to enter in the next Chicago to Mackinac race, or Pine Lake regatta.

The members of this new organization are Robert Bridge, who will act as skipper, Irving Hallett, George Beeman, Archie Livingston, Kaye Butters, Harley Ochs and Dr. W. W. Mitchell. Whether they enter the races later on or not, they intend to follow the next one in the "Piff-Paff." More work for the life-saving crew!

Dance at Marion Center Grange Hall, Friday evening, September 26. Good music. Good order. Everybody welcome.—Adv. 39-11 pd.

BEST FISHING OF THE SEASON HERE

REMARKABLE CATCHES HAVE BEEN MADE RECENTLY

Nine Steel-head in One Catch, Twenty-six in Four Successive Days Are Records

Quite a number of our summer people who had planned to leave Charlevoix on the conventional date set by custom and the opening of schools for their return home, have stayed to enjoy the Indian summer which has apparently commenced and the remarkable fishing afforded by the recent flocking of perch into Round Lake from Lake Michigan and the surprising appetite for minnows displayed of late by the steel-head or rainbow trout.

Last week, during the first few days, anyone pausing on the swing bridge and looking straight down at the water at a point just under the edge of the bridge might have seen thousands of small perch heading into Round Lake. Since that time larger perch have followed the little ones and these latter have been accompanied by large numbers of minnows upon which they feed.

As a result, the fishing of late has been phenomenal and both power and row-boats have been in great demand while the docks along the shore line have been well patronized by enthusiasts of all ages and both sexes.

Among the resorters, John W. Keiler and his son, Leo, of Michigan avenue, deserve special mention. The senior Keiler recently caught a three pound perch. He claims it the largest perch he ever saw. It was certainly a record breaker for a perch. Mr. Keiler, Jr., and wife, caught eight steel head in one day, seven two days in succession and four the following day, making 26 fish in four consecutive days' fishing.

Harry Webster, who takes care of the railroad bridge, has the honor of having taken the largest steel-head caught this season. This big beauty, which was for a time on display in Wood Brothers' window before being sent to Chicago for mounting, measured 27 inches from nose to tail and weighed 10 lbs. and 11 ounces. Earlier in the summer he landed one weighing nine pounds.

Kenneth A. Usher of the Courier force carried off the honors for the largest catch in a single day so far this season. He hauled nine steel-head into his boat last Sunday weighing from 2 1-2 to 5 pounds apiece.

And the fishing is likely to get better—both steel-head and perch. In fact, the time that the perch really begin to bite in dead earnest is about three weeks from now.

Many people from Petoskey and neighboring towns are coming here daily to try their luck in local waters, the news having spread to disciples of Walton near and far.

The people of this vicinity are beginning to realize that the fishing in nearby waters is one of our greatest assets. Everything possible should be done to keep it up to the mark and there is much that can be done. For one thing, the sooner the state prohibits spearing for any kind of fish in the inland waters of the state the better it will be for the sport in general. Uncountable numbers of steel-head and rainbows are speared each year in the south arm of Pine Lake and Jordan river. People who use a spear are seldom scrupulous about what they spear nor the number they take and many instances have come to light and—probably many more that haven't where steel-head have been speared during the spawning season.

Young O'Leary Dies

Henry O'Leary, Jr., a former resident of this city, died at a Detroit hospital recently from the effects of an operation. Mr. O'Leary, who was about 37 years of age, was employed as barn boss for a Detroit bakery. He never married and his father and sisters, Mary and Lena, who live in Detroit, are his only surviving relatives.

RHUBARB IS IN SEASON

Rhubarb, or pie plant, is so common in the garden that it hardly needs any comment. It is especially good for us in the springtime and forms a fine base to combine with strawberries, raspberries and other wild fruits when canning time comes.

To can two quarts of rhubarb with one quart of berries use sugar as usual; if it is liked rich, plenty of sugar; the fruit will be hard to tell from the entire berries when canned, as the rhubarb has a way of being swallowed up in the flavor of the more delicate fruit.

As canned, or conserve, or preserves, the two combine equally well. Those who enjoy greens tell us that the addition of a few leaves of rhubarb adds much to the kettle of spinach or mustard and beet greens.

Rhubarb Conserve.—Take two pounds each of sugar and rhubarb, two oranges, one lemon, one-half a box of raisins—the seedless variety—one small pineapple and a cupful or two of nut meats. Cut up the rhubarb, add the sugar and set it away over night. Cut the orange and lemon into bits, extending the seeds; cook with the raisins and rhubarb until thick; add the nuts just before taking off. Pour into glasses and seal when cold with paraffin.

Rhubarb Pie.—Cut the rhubarb into small pieces; do not peel, if tender, as the beautiful color lies in the skin. Fill the lined pie tin with the fruit; add a tablespoonful of flour, well mixed with one-half cupful or more of sugar; add bits of butter and a grating of nutmeg or the juice of an orange and a hit of the rind, if liked. Cover with top crust and bake in a moderate oven. Served as a sauce for a supper or luncheon dish, stewed rhubarb is most tasty. Add the sugar when the fruit is cooked, as it takes less to sweeten.

Honey Tea Cakes.—Take one cupful of honey, one-half cupful of sour cream, two eggs, one-half cupful of butter, two cupfuls of flour, a scant one-half teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

OBLIGATIONS TO YOUR TOWN

There is a debt you owe to your home town but whatever the bill is none will be presented to you for payment. If you do not realize the size of it, nobody will try to tell you. You know what the town has done for you, and you should know better than anybody else what you ought to do for the town.

Two questions may serve to bring the issue home to you.

When your wife and children were critically ill, was it the doctor from some great city who pulled them through?

You never ever thought of calling him. Your first thought was of the home doctor, and he saved the lives of your dear ones.

When you lost your job, who gave you credit and tided you over the winter?

It certainly wasn't the store in the city that advertises "bargains" for the country shopper. The merchant of Charlevoix stood by you then, as he has for others, and as he will again some time when the emergency arises.

If these things have not happened to you, they have happened to your neighbors, and you know about them. Mere money cannot pay for disinterested service such as the doctor and the merchant render under the circumstances. And these instances are not cited with the idea of wakening a feeling of obligation toward those individuals who render us signal service on extraordinary occasions, but they are brought up rather, with the view of making every man, woman and child realize his partnership in the community and his responsibility in that partnership which means so much to him.

The doctor and the merchant are not the only men toward whom others in the community owe this obligation to maintain the community as a self-sustaining entity. They are simply given as examples of how the proposition works out.

Happiness and contentment bring about also a rich social life. You get together with your neighbors during moments of relaxation from your day's toil and enjoy intercourse with them. Clubs and organizations unite you in bonds that hold you together for one purpose or another.

A score of other things might be mentioned, but space forbids. There are the material things that minister to the comfort and well-being of the people. Among them are paved or macadamized streets, concrete sidewalks, corner lights, police protection and a fire department; electric lighting for the home, water, sewer and similar improvements and conveniences.

The stronger the community spirit the more of these there are. The taxes you pay settle the bills for the things already acquired; the weight of your co-operation with the progressive leaders assures other improvements in the future.

Electric light globes, all sizes, shapes and colors. We handle the kind that give long service. Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 37-ff.

PEDDLER OR MERCHANT

The housewife usually regards the peddler who comes to her door as a nuisance. But half the time she encourages him by the upside-down process of "buying something to get rid of him." She finds it easier, in the individual instance, to buy a package of bad needles or a scant basket of berries or a rubber apron which turns out to be a second, than it is to listen to a stream of talk and force herself to argument as to why she should not buy.

Yet if all the housewives of Charlevoix or any other city were to unite in refusal to buy of the itinerant salesman for a year, they would find themselves left, long before the year was out, in peace and quiet to attend to their home duties without interruption and to do their marketing according to their own good judgment.

By itinerant salesmen is not meant the farmer who makes his pilgrimage to his regular customers with his farm produce, honey and apple-butter, or the self-respecting agent for known magazines who lives in the community and serves a regular clientele. What is meant is the peddler from no one knows where, here today and gone tomorrow, selling inferior goods on the strength of an appeal to unwise sentiment.

In one prosperous small city often victimized by this type of person, the merchants got together and issued a statement which may well be heeded in Charlevoix:

"Numerous complaints are being received from housewives who report that they have lost money through purchasing merchandise from unknown house-to-house peddlers. Professional swindlers who

A HARMFUL "SCHEME OF TAXES" FOR HIGH AND LOW RICH AND POOR

TO BE VOTED ON IN MICHIGAN IN NOVEMBER

This Is a Matter That Concerns You, Whether Your Income Is Large or Small

1. The voters of Michigan are interested, far more than they realize, in a proposed amendment to the Michigan constitution to be adopted or rejected at the election in November. If adopted, it will subject every resident of Michigan having a net income of from $5,000 to $4,000, to an annual income tax of from 5% to 10% above the federal income tax, but with no deduction of such tax before computing this newly proposed tax. It is also over and above, and without deduction at any point, of income taxes imposed by other states applicable to citizens of Michigan whose income is derived from such other states.

2. The amendment is launched, under an initiative provision, on the theory that members of the legislature cannot be trusted, that the whole subject must be placed beyond their control. It is an example, without a precedent in any state of the Union, of complete distrust in our form of representative government.

This is not the time or place to discuss the wisdom of the adoption by Michigan of a state income tax system. It is enough at present to discuss this particular proposed amendment, which cannot be changed in a single word before election day in November, and if then adopted, which cannot be changed in any respect without a vote of the people of the State at large. No matter how well the direct legislative representatives of the people, chosen by the voters to serve as such, may be convinced of the importance of some amendment or modification, no matter if all of them vote therefor, no matter how general the demand for the change, such representatives will have no power to act. It is one thing to convince a legislature or a tax commission of the necessity of an amendment; it is another thing to convince a majority of all the voters of the state.

Not More Taxes, But More Economy Needed

Those who prepared the amendment and got the necessary signatures to launch it, speak vaguely of "big business," when endeavoring to justify it, of the difficulty experienced at one or two sessions of the legislature, in getting an income tax adopted against its influence. Perhaps if they had shown in that connection some acquaintance with the experience of other states having state income tax laws, if they had proposed an income tax fair to all concerned, less extreme in its exemptions, in its rates, and in its features of double taxation, less injurious to the state—perhaps if they had taken care to show no selfishness in their aims, and had been more attentive to those things which preserve the prosperity of the state,—they might not have been defeated in their efforts before the legislature. They are now proposing to take a short cut, to get the necessary votes in November by an appeal to selfishness and cupidity.

Amendments to the constitution, history shows, have had results quite unexpected by their promoters. It is not more tax money that Michigan wants, but more economy in expenditure.

An Appeal to Class Prejudice

3. The proposed amendment is an appeal to selfishness and cupidity. All whose income is less than $4,000 are exempted. The idea is that all such persons will vote for the proposed amendment, in the belief that they are putting taxes on others and thereby benefitting themselves. Perhaps that idea is correct; but no one who studies the proposition, believes that. There are among those whose income is less than $4,000, many who know what is unfair or unwise; who see beyond their noses; who know that all that glitters is not gold; who do some thinking before they vote; who know that the consumer of all manufactured articles and all agricultural products pays all taxes that enter into the cost of production of such articles; who will think that a new tax of 10% on all those engaged in selling clothing, groceries, houses, household necessities, etc., will be passed on to buyers. No farmer, for example, thinks that if a special tax, collectible through him, is imposed on every bushel of wheat or other product he sends to market, he would be the one to stand it finally.

4. If the idea that all with incomes below $4,000 will vote for the amendment, is correct, on the other hand, it means class against class, which in itself is a bad thing for the State, and which raises a lot of questions. Doubtless some regard one who has an income in excess of $4,000 as a fit subject to tax specially, no matter whether he owns a home or not, nor what is the size of his family, nor how many outside of his immediate family he has to support, nor how far he is accustomed to contribute to churches and charitable organizations. In the proposed amendment the single man is treated the same as the man with a large family; the man with a home, the same as a man without a home; the generous man the same as the close man; and no distinction is made between "earned" and "unearned" income, which is now an important feature of the federal law. If the man who is able to manage successfully a large industrial plant employing a large number of men and who is paid a salary commensurate with his ability, is taxed on that salary in Michigan, and in no other state, at the same rate as the man whose income is derived from wealth accumulated by others,—does anyone believe that the residents of Michigan of small incomes are not affected unfavorably by that state policy?

Proposal Is Entirely Too Arbitrary

5. It is un-American. It did not originate with the chosen representatives of the people, but with self-appointed spokesmen, a coterie of individuals, doubtless well-intentioned, but with no "workingmen" in that it will help them. It is quite apparent from the proposed amendment, as we shall see, that this coterie has given this big and difficult subject scanty study, that they are not accustomed to expressing their intentions as accurately as constitutional provisions demand, that the State may suffer from their proposal even though their intentions are honorable. It would be easy to convince any one of them—assuming he is a fair-minded man,—that it should be changed in this or that particular; but, as stated, a change in a single word is not possible before it is voted upon in November. Every income tax law ever passed, soon needed amendments to prevent evasion and injustice,—and although originally it was the work of the best writers and the best economic experts, Experience is a great teacher. There is no kind of law which so often needs change to prevent evasion and injustice, as a tax law. The American way of dealing with such matters is to have hearings before a committee, before the thing is done, where all the principal interests may be heard, where errors may be pointed out. That way is seldom failed to produce right results. The way adopted in this case is without precedent.

It Works Injustice and Is Unwise

6. It is unjust. It is excessive in two important directions: (1) The exemptions are excessive, and they will react. States that have adopted income taxes, have learned that unless exemptions are very limited, leaving the mass of the people interested in appropriations involving the use of tax money, extravagance is usually the result.

(2) The percentages are excessive, unprecedentedly so, and will be resented and resisted for that reason particularly. Those who proposed them did not understand their effect.

It is unjust because it is severe and is not discriminating. It imposes double taxation. The proposed tax includes income from securities held, and income from all kinds of property, real and personal; but the securities and other property which produce the income are themselves left subject to taxation as real or personal property, as heretofore.

(a) Real estate taxes are now taking a large part of the net income from real estate; and clapping this proposed income tax on top of real estate taxes, and on top of the federal income tax, is bad business for a lot of people. It certainly means higher rents.

(b) The income from municipal bonds, for example, held by residents of Michigan, is not taxable under the federal law, but will be under this proposed amendment, no matter from what state the bonds come nor when they were issued, even Michigan municipals. The State of Michigan, and every county, township, city, and school district in the State, when it needs to borrow money, will have to pay a higher rate of interest than heretofore, or sell its bonds outside the State. It will be the only State in the Union so handicapped. Does anyone believe the farmer or the "workingman" will not be affected unfavorably by this?

(c) The State has received large sums paid in lieu of personal property taxes, on mortgages and on bonds. They never produced much tax revenue before. This additional revenue was clearly the object of the law. Millions of dollars of mortgages and bonds have paid this substitute for a personal tax upon them. Does any honest man believe it fair for the State to include this proposed income tax on the income from such mortgages and bonds? That would be dishonest on the part of the State; but there is nothing on this subject in the proposed amendment to provide otherwise. Its language would cover such income.

(d) The income of residents of Michigan from dividends of Michigan corporations, are to be considered similarly. Under the working of the proposed amendment, such dividends will be taxed the same as any other income. The corporation has to pay all Michigan taxes against corporations before it can declare dividends. Dividends are paid out of the

This Is the Proposed Amendment

Section 2. The legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule of taxation, except for property or specific taxes, and taxes shall be levied on property as shall be prescribed by law. (To this point the provision is old. From this point on, it is new.) The legislature shall provide by law a scheme of taxes upon the net gains, profits and incomes of all citizens and inhabitants of this state, from whatever source said gains, profits and incomes are derived, which tax shall be graduated and progressive as follows:

There shall be an exemption of $4,000 per annum of all incomes. Incomes of from $4,000 to $20,000 per annum shall be taxed at the rate of 5 per centum. All incomes above $20,000 up to and including $40,000, shall be taxed at the rate of 6 per centum. All incomes above $40,000 up to and including $60,000, shall be taxed at the rate of 7 per centum. All incomes above $60,000 up to and including $80,000, shall be taxed at the rate of 8 per centum. All incomes above $80,000 up to and including $100,000, shall be taxed at the rate of 9 per centum. All incomes above $100,000 shall be taxed at the rate of 10 per centum.

The income tax law, herein authorized shall be administered by a board of state tax commissioners. All monies paid to a board of state tax commissioners under the provisions of this amendment shall be paid into the state treasury and shall then be credited to the general fund of the state, and shall be used for defraying the general expenses of the state government and for the payment of principal and interest on state bonds.

On or before the first day of September of each year, the auditor shall deduct from the total amount directed by the legislature to be included in the state tax, for that year, the amount of money received under the provisions of this amendment and credited to the general fund of the state for the current year and the balance, if any, shall be deemed to constitute the state tax to be apportioned among the various counties of the state in accordance with the provisions of the general tax law.

balance it has left. This is double taxation in the case of all residents of Michigan. All that a person would have to do to escape it is to take up his residence in some other State, many times only a few miles away. Henry Ford and his family, for example, could by this course escape about $8,000,000 of annual taxes under this amendment. His company, if this amendment applies to corporations, would first pay an annual tax rate of about $4,000,000 thereunder, but that would be followed by another tax on the dividends thereof, as income, against the family as stockholders. Does anyone believe that the farmer and the laborer would not be affected unfavorably by this foolish policy?

Treats Resident Stockholders Unfairly

(e) From time out of mind, Michigan stocks owned by residents of Michigan, have been non-taxable in Michigan as personal property. Every State follows the same rule. It is based on the fact that the corporation itself is taxed on all property in Michigan. This amendment would put an end in effect to that salutary policy, by taxing the income therefrom, consisting of dividends, as well as the corporation itself. It will surely keep industries from locating in Michigan, unless their stockholders are non-residents of the State.

(f) The drafters of the proposed amendment, overlooked the important difference between normal taxes and surtaxes, which is worked out intelligently in the federal law, but not given any consideration in the proposed amendment.

(g) Wisconsin has had an income tax for many years, and has long recognized the injustice of taxing both the income and the source of the income, and does not do so. Wisconsin's income tax is now generally accepted there; but it is felt by many intelligent observers that Michigan industries are suffering from it, that industries are moving to adjacent states, that new enterprises have been deterred from opening in that state.

These features of the proposed amendment would surely injure Michigan and its citizens generally.

7. It is without precedent in all the states. 33 states have no income tax at all. A few states have moderate income tax laws. No other state exempts so many citizens. No other state starts at so high a percentage. No other state reaches a percentage so high. Wisconsin, under LaFollette, has been experimenting with this subject many years. The maximum state income tax there is six per cent. This proposed amendment would make Michigan's maximum ten per cent.

8. It will seriously affect churches and charitable institutions. It will close some of them. One may be ever so generous to such institutions, his taxes will be computed without any allowance therefor. Under the federal statute, a person has the benefit of charitable contributions, thereby encouraging them. Not so this proposed amendment.

It will seriously affect other benefactions. A man may have a large family and may be the sole means of support of any number of other worthy and dependent persons. It would make no difference in the tax under this amendment.

May or May Not Include Michigan Corporations

9. Most business in Michigan is now done by corporations. The drafters of the amendment thought they were using words which would make the tax a personal, individual tax; but as said above, they are not experienced in expressing their intentions in words. As drawn, it may tax Michigan corporations at the same rate as individuals. It applies to all "citizens and inhabitants." There is nothing in the Michigan constitution or laws making it clear whether these do or do not include corporations. It is certain that for some purposes, corporations are citizens and this amendment does not say individual citizens and inhabitants. It does not say anything indicating that it is confined to individuals. Religious and charitable corporations are not excepted. The legislature, composed of the chosen representatives of the people for most purposes, cannot interpret the constitution. If within all Michigan corporations must pay this tax in addition to a federal tax of 12½%; and this Michigan tax would probably be computed before the deduction of the federal tax.

On the other hand, it is said by some that corporations are not covered by this amendment. If so, the effect of it is different; but it is still bad enough. Do you want the corporations exempted from such a tax? That is possible under this amendment.

(h) A non-resident corporation doing business in Michigan would clearly not be subject to the proposed tax, even though continuing to do business in Michigan. It is clearly an "inhabitant" of the State in which it was incorporated. Could its Michigan competitors continue to do business? What is to hinder their reincorporating under the laws of another state?

(c) The law surely covers partners and partnerships. Do the people want to draw a distinction between them and corporations, to the disadvantage of the former?

Would Cripple Michigan Industries

10. (a) It will be a loss to Michigan, industrially and otherwise. Why should an industry be established in Michigan if its tax law against corporations or their resident stockholders is unpalatable, when other states impose no such tax? For the same reasons, why should an industry already located in Michigan stay here? There are many states which do not so tax. They are bidding for industries. 10% is a severe tax. It will often result in inability to pay dividends, the mainstay of all industries. The dividends when declared will immediately be taxable specially at 10%, and thereby be substantially reduced. The proposed amendment would make no difference in respect of dividends, for example, which are only 2% of invested capital and those which are 40% thereof. That is not the way to get capital for new or old industries in Michigan. It would often cripple Michigan industries, by preventing their meeting competition in other states that treat their industries more favorably.

Where do incomes below $4,000 originate? Do not many depend on thriving Michigan industries?

Would Drive People Out of Michigan

(b) There are thousands of individuals who now call themselves residents of Michigan, but who can just as well call themselves residents of some other state which does not tax its citizens both on income and the source of it. There are thousands of farmers who would need only to take up their residence in some other State, a few miles to escape the effect of this proposed amendment. Their declaration as to their residence will determine it. In this country no taxpayer need submit to excessive or unjust taxation by a state. He can and will move himself, and if necessary his property, out of the state.

(c) It is perfectly clear, however, that this amendment would not apply to an individual non-resident of Michigan, even though all his income derived from property in the State of Michigan. People who are hard hit and feel that they are treated unjustly, will become non-residents.

Will Cause Much Litigation

Litigation is inevitable. Heretofore income tax laws have been framed and amended so as to cover the multitude of questions that arise. When the words are not clear, what is wise and just is not the determining factor, but what is the meaning of the words used. Much legislation will be necessary. What are "net gains, profits and income"? The Michigan legislature has not the power to define a clause in the Michigan constitution and without special constitutional grant it will have no such power. Usually "net income" means gross income less deductions. But what deductions? The law usually defines them with great particularity; but not so here. Does income include all dividends, even of corporations which have already paid all the taxes on its property and business? Does it include all interest on mortgages and bonds, even those which have paid the special tax? Does it include the rental value of a home owned? Does it include corporations? What corporations? Churches and charitable corporations? What rent paid for a home is a deduction? What depreciation? What proportion of a great number of expenditures usually amortized in annual installments? What contributions to charitable and religious organizations? A multitude of other questions.

Encourage Extravagance

12. It will encourage extravagance in State Government. It is proposed to raise millions in additional tax money. No department is put under new limitations. Real estate taxation is not limited; nor personal property taxes; nor special taxes. The result will inevitably be extravagance in state affairs. The majority of the people will presumably not be interested any longer in economy at Lansing. Enacting tax laws expressly to hit the "rich" is contrary to justice and equity, and any injustice done by a community always reacts on the doers, to their injury.

The amendment is a clumsy attempt to cover in a few words, with few interests represented, a plan that involves a variety of subjects, that requires many carefully drawn paragraphs to prevent injustice.

If the amendment is adopted, it would probably require 500 new employees of the State to attend to the handling of these taxes.

If a State income tax is what the people of Michigan want, there is a simpler way, a wiser way, a fairer way, a way that will cause less injury to the State, a way in harmony with the federal law and the needs of the State, a way that can be amended without much delay, in particulars that prove unjust in practice.

DRIVERS ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY

Auto and Wagon Meet Head-on At East Jordan

A serious accident occurred on the fair ground road, at East Jordan, late Friday night of last week, when an auto ran into a team and wagon.
Alonzo Shaw, driver of the team, received a cut over the right eye, one hand disabled and was otherwise injured. James Doyle, driver of the car, received minor injuries. Both horses legs were broken and had to be killed. The auto was badly wrecked.

The accident came at the close of fair activities. Mr. Shaw was engaged in hauling concession material from the grounds to the west side depot. He had delivered a load and was headed back to the grounds. A heavy Marmon auto owned and driven by James Doyle of Detroit, and occupied by several other men, left the fair grounds and headed for the city.

DODGE BROTHERS REDUCE PRICES

Causes Surprise as Advance Seems to Be in Order

In view of the upward trend in automobile prices, considerable surprise was occasioned by Dodge Brothers recent announcement of a reduction in prices of their special type cars.

Dodge Brothers were able to do the unexpected, according to the factory announcement, on account of the increased volume of their purchases of special equipment for the special type cars.

Dodge Brothers special types consist of the standard cars equipped with accessories which produce the utmost in comfort and convenience and appearance of the car. Among these are steel disc wheels, five balloon type tires, nickel-trimmed radiator, nickel plated bumpers, automatic windshield wiper, rear view mirror, scuff plates, cowl lights and moto-meter with lock. A special body stripe is also provided.

Four Dodge Brothers cars are affected by the reduction—the special touring car, special roadster, special
"A" sedan, and special 4-passenger coupe. The "B" sedan and the business coupe have also been added to the line of special types.

As the reduction was made possible by economies effected in the purchase of equipment used exclusively on the special type cars, the standard types are in no way affected, according to Benj. Brown, local dealer. The prices of all standard types remain unchanged.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday and Friday, Sept. 25 and 26

Paramount presents POLA NEGRÍ in "SHADOWS OF PARIS" with scenes of intense dramatic emotion and whirlwind Apache dancing. An unrestrained woman. The belle of the Apache underworld and of Parisian Society at one and the same time. Cast includes Adolph Menjou, Charles DeRoche and Huntly Gordon. A thrilling story of Paris upper and underworld. Also two reels of H. C. Witwer's gems of the screen, the Telephone Girls in "SQUARE SEX."

Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 27 and 28

Paramount presents a production De Luxe with GLORIA SWANSON in "BLUEBEARD'S 8TH WIFE." A fine drama of love, passion and Superb gowns. Here is a picture bound to make your heart quicken to its startling climaxes—your eyes dance to its exquisite gowns and settings—your voice rings loud and long with enthusiastic praise. It's Gloria Swanson's best—that makes it the best screen entertainment anywhere. Also a two reel Sunshine comedy, "THE WEAKLING."

Monday and Tuesday, September 29 and 30

Metro-Goldwyn presents "RED LIGHTS," with Marie Prevost, Ray Griffith, Alice Lake, Johnny Walker, Dagmar Godowsky and Jean Harshelt. A mystery melodrama from Edward E. Rose's stage play, "Hold Tight." You can never be sure what's going to happen next in this thrill-a-minute mystery sensation. An enjoyable picture that you will place among the films that have thrilled you the most.

Wednesday, October 1

Paramount presents Wm. S. Hart in "SINGER JIM McKEE," Bill Hart's second big picture since his return to the screen. Filmed in the picturesque Serra mountains, a background of the most beautiful scenes ever screened. When it comes to western melodrama, Hart's are trump, and here again the two-gun king shoots straight to your heart. Also a one reel Universal comedy, "A MOVIE FANTASY."

MICHIGAN DAIRY-
MEN WIN DIPLOMAS

Many Association Herds Pass 300
Pound Average

Three hundred and eight-four Michigan dairymen, owners of herds in state cow testing associations which have passed the 300 pound mark in butterfat production for a year, have earned recognition by the national dairy exposition, and will be granted special diplomas if they register at the exposition in Milwaukee the last of September.

Of the 1425 dairy herds in cow testing association work in the state during the year from July 1, 1923, to July 1, 1924, nearly a third, of the 384 which have earned the diplomas, reached the coveted goal of 300 pound production. This percentage is said by dairy officials to be an unusually high one, reflecting credit on the dairy industry of Michigan.

Many of the farmers who own "300 pound" herds are planning to attend the dairy exposition in Milwaukee from Sept. 27 to Oct. 4, according to A. C. Baltzer, extension specialist in dairying at M. A. C., who is arranging details of the trip.

We have a full line of the very best suit cases, travelling bags and trunks. Get one before you start on your vacation. Benj. Brown.—35-tf.

AT THE MOVIES

You've Been Waiting for This
The Pola Negri of "Passion" has returned.

In the Herbert Brenon Paramount production of "Shadows of Paris," which comes to the Palace Theatre next Thursday and Friday, the star once more comes into her own. She is quite her old self as Claire, leader of the Apache bands of the Parisian underworld. Then there is Charles de Roche as her Apache lover, who is called away to war and falsely reported killed; Huntley Gordon as Raoul whom Claire, posing as a Polish war widow, marries; and Adolphe Menjou as Raoul's secretary and friend—all are featured and all give excellent accounts of themselves.

The story is one of the upper and lower world of Paris, the playground of the entire world. It is a colorful and appealing tale, an adaptation of the French play, "Mon Homme," by the author of "Kiki."

Gareth Hughes and Vera Reynolds head the strong support.
Gloria Swanson Coming Gloria Swanson's new Paramount picture, "Bluebeard's 8th Wife," which will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, is said to be one of the most powerful screen dramas produced by Paramount this season.

Miss Swanson has the role of Mona de Briac, a French girl whose parents are in financial difficulties. Their last straw is to marry Mona to a rich man. John Brandon, an American multi-millionaire, played by Huntley Gordon, is chosen as the intended husband. The marriage takes place and many thrilling incidents follow.
The climax of the picture is unique. The supporting cast is excellent and includes, among other prominent screen artists, Charles Greene,
Paul Weigel and Robert Agnew.

Advance Notice No. 1
One of the greatest mystery plays of the year was "The Rear Car," by Edward Rose. The play ran for a long period at the Majestic Theatre in Los Angeles with Richard Bennett in the role of "the crime deflector."
It was so successful that it was immediately taken east. Many were of the opinion that it was the best mystery play since "The Bat."

The Goldwyn company made the screen version of this mystifying piece. "Red Lights," as the screen story is called, was directed by Clarence Badger, and has in the cast many of the screen's best artists, including Raymond Griffith, Marie Prevost, Johnnie Walker and Alice Lake.
Raymond Griffith assumes the role of "the crime deflector."

The consensus of opinion among the film producers is that the American audience prefers first of all good clean comedy. Its second choice is the mystery drama. In "Red Lights," which is coming to the Palace Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, the mysterious complications keep a tense interest throughout, and hold the audience in a state of suspense until the very last scene. During the production of the stage play members of the audience shrieked and gasped at the thrilling situations.
The screen version, "Red Lights," promises to present much more of a thrill as the different scenes can be made more realistic than they could possibly have been on the stage.

The greater part of the action transpires in the rear car of the Continental Limited.

Modern highway transport has undoubtedly done more than any other single factor in making life on the farm brighter and easier.

A farmer must be able to move his products rapidly when the demand is active, especially if perishable, and this element of time is of vital importance to the modern farmer.

Flower lovers come and see my flowers. I have the finest collection of dahlias in the state—over 100 varieties. One and one-half miles east, 1 1-2 miles south of Ironton Ferry. Joel Johnson.—Adv. 35-t6.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert VanEnen, of Zeeland, spent Sunday at the home of the latter's brother, H. H. and J. H. Elzinga.

Rev. C. E. Cliff, district superintendent of the Holiness church, will conduct quarterly meetings at the Phelps Holiness church on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Coeling, of Grand Rapids, visited at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Coeling, from Saturday until Monday.

Rial Davey, who has been spending the past six weeks with relatives here, left last week for Grand Rapids enroute to his home at Denver, Colorado.

J. H. Elzinga was at Fisherman's Paradise, near Bellaire, on Saturday, conducting the ceremonies incidental to the barbecue which was held at that place.

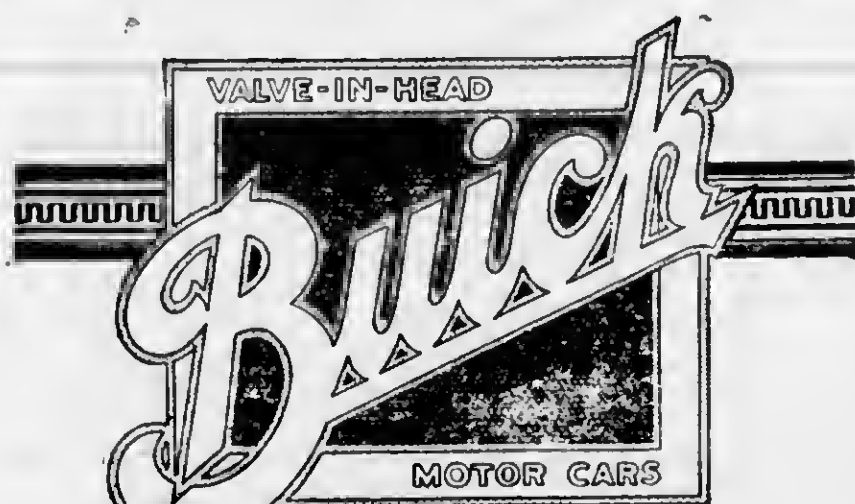

Rev. Conklin, the M. E. minister recently assigned to this charge, preached his first sermon at the M. E. church here last Sunday evening and made a very good impression on his congregation. He and Mrs. Conklin returned to Grawn on Monday.

FAMOUS TURKEY CASE AIRED IN COURT

Defendant Assessed Fine of $25.00—May be Carried to Higher Court

The locally famous "turkey case," which has been the subject of local gossip for the past year, was brought to a head in Justice VanderArk's court room last Friday before a large and appreciative audience. This case was the outcome of trouble over turkeys which started in August of last year when Mark Carney, living in Charlevoix county near East Jordan, lost quite a number of turkeys and which he later claimed to have found and identified at the Irving Eaton farm, one mile west of town.

Mr. Eaton's son-in-law, John Addis, is a neighboring farmer of Mr. Carney and it was alleged by the latter that the turkeys had been hit into a double play, Carney to Addis to Eaton. The case had been started twice before by Mr. Carney but had been dismissed on technicalities, and Friday was the first time it had been fought out in court.

Criminal proceedings, with Mr. Carney as complainant, were brought against Mr. Eaton, who was charged with larceny and also with receiving stolen property. Prosecuting Attorney H. E. Wellman represented the plaintiff, while the defendant's aide of the case was taken by attorney Thomas D. Meggison.

The charge of larceny was dropped when the arguments were given to the jury, who, after a short deliberation, brought in a verdict of guilty to the other charge. Mr. Eaton was assessed a fine of twenty-five dollars and court costs, but it is understood the case will be appealed to circuit court.

PLAYED AT THE TRAVERSE FAIR

Fills Day Engagement with Satisfaction to All

The Ellsworth band played on Tuesday of last week for the Northwestern Michigan Fair held at Traverse City. A big hit was scored, the band getting many compliments and a two day contract for the 1925 fair.

This has been a very busy season and we will venture to say more jobs have been played than by any other musical organization in this part of the state.

The band has always tried to give the public what they desire in music, and in so doing have accumulated a large library of music which has kept the boys practicing many long hours to conquer. The band plays at Charlevoix September 27, Dollar Day.

ATWOOD

Jim Zylstra has a new Essex Six. Look out!

Several attended the fair at Traverse City last Wednesday and Thursday.

Henry Klooster, wife and two daughters, Alice and Sarah, are in Grand Rapids and Holland, visiting relatives and friends.

John Joliffe and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stafford, of Charlevoix, were Atwood visitors the first of the week. They say things have changed around old Atwood in the past five years.

Mrs. Brown and son of Huntington, Ind., who have been her visiting the former's sons, Frank and Clifford, will return home sometime this week. They were much pleased with Atwood and vicinity.

A good sized crowd attended the Cliff Brown auction sale on Friday last. Mr. Brown expects to go to Detroit soon. Sorry he is going to leave. He has rented his farm for one year to John Triplett.

Rev. Conklin, the new M. E. pastor, preached on Sunday morning, leaving a very good impression. The Rev. and wife came to us well recommended. Let each one of us, regardless of any church affiliation, do our very best, then we all will enjoy the very best. Take the churches out of any community and what have you left.

"IF YOU WOULD HAVE HONEY"

Honey eaten as it comes from the comb is one of the most easily digested sweets and contains healing and healthful qualities which make it especially good. Grated horseradish and honey, well mixed, makes a most effective cough remedy. Cakes, cookies and such foods retain their freshness much longer if sweetened with honey rather than sugar.

Honey Ginger Snaps.—Take a pint of honey, three-quarters of a pound of butter, two teaspoonsful of ginger; boil together five minutes, then cool. When nearly cold add flour to make a stiff mixture; roll very thin and bake quickly.

Crackerjack.—Take one cupful each of brown sugar and extracted honey; boil until it hardens when it is dropped into water. Remove from the heat; stir in one-half teaspoonful of soda; add all the popcorn it will take, with a handful of shelled peanuts. Press into a greased dripping pan and mark into squares.

Soft Honey Cake.—Put a teaspoonful of soda into a measuring cup; add five tablespoonfuls of hot water, then fill up the cup with extracted honey. Take one-half cupful of softened butter and one egg, beat well; add two cupfuls of flour and a teaspoonful of ginger; stir all together and bake in a slow oven.

Potato Cake.—Take two cupfuls of mashed potato, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of honey, one cupful of butter, one cupful of sour milk, four eggs, two teaspoonfuls of soda, one-quarter cupful of grated chocolate, one teaspoonful each of nutmeg and cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, two cupfuls of flour, one cupful of nut meats and two cupfuls of raisins. Cream the butter; add sugar, then honey and the beaten eggs, chocolate, milk, soda and mashed potato with the other ingredients. Turn into a well-greased and floured tin and bake in a moderate oven.

STRUCK BY CAR

CHILD MAY DIE

Was on Way to School Friday When Accident Happened

Harley Adams, of Petoskey, young son of Berney Adams, of Willis avenue, is in Petoskey hospital with his head crushed, his right arm broken, his right leg broken and suffering from other injuries which physicians fear will prove fatal. The lad, about ten years old, was enroute to school last Friday afternoon and was attempting to cross Emmet street when struck by a Hudson automobile, the driver of which did not stop, witnesses say.

The child had been riding from his home toward Central school and had gotten out of the car owned by Frank Foster, parked on the east side of Emmet street. He ran around behind the car in an attempt to make a hurried trip across the street and evidently stepped directly in the path of the oncoming car. Witnesses have failed to disclose whether the car was a touring car or sedan or to give the car number.

Latest advices state that the boy died at the Petoskey Hospital last Sunday.

EAST JORDAN

STORE BURNS

Smoke and Water Cause Loss Monday Morning

Fire in the basement of the Hite Drug Store at East Jordan, occurred at an early hour Monday morning of last week and caused considerable loss through fire, smoke and water.

The blaze was discovered about 4:00 a. m. and evidently originated in or near a paper bailer. The entire building was permeated with an intense smoke, causing quite a loss to the drug store stock.

Prompt work on the part of the fire department prevented the spread of a nasty blaze.

Origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Hite had recently given the basement a thorough overhauling and had bailed all loose paper.

The residence of Mrs. Boswell and her stock of millinery on the second floor of the block received its share of the smoke.

You travel in comfort and enjoy your vacation if you have a wardrobe trunk. The very best and the more medium priced. Benj. Brown. Adv. 35-1f.

FIND WONDERFUL ROADS IN NORTH

LOCAL FOLKS SWING WIDE CIRCLE AROUND U. P.

Visit Principal Towns of Lumber and Mining Region Noting Interesting Features

As mentioned in last week's local column, a party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hamilton left here on Sunday morning, September 14th, in their cars heavily laden with camping equipment, for a week's tour of the Upper Peninsula. The route chosen was one that would take them in a sweeping circle from south to north thence west and south and east to their starting point. The trip was a remarkable one from several points of view and a reasonably detailed account of their experiences and what they saw along the road may be of interest to Courier readers.

The party crossed the straits at Mackinac City at 12:30 o'clock on the state car ferry, St. Ignace, and were about an hour in crossing. From St. Ignace they drove to the summer home of Dr. Kenyon, which is situated on a point about a mile west of the little fishing village of Epoufette and just west of the lagoon where so many of Charlevoix's summer visitors go to fish. This is also the place where the tame, buck deer demoralized a party of Charlevoix hunters some three years ago. Here they stayed for two nights and a day, or until Tuesday morning, September 16th, when they pulled stakes and went on their way, driving as far as the farm home of William Eccleston, the father of Guy Eccleston, former assistant cashier of the Charlevoix State Savings Bank. Here, instead of putting up their tents, the party moved into a vacated school house and spent the night. "A. J." of the Courier bagged two wild ducks which they enjoyed together with real honest-to-goodness cream from the Eccleston cows and vegetables fresh from the Eccleston garden. Not content with this gracious hospitality, their host presented them with a can of preserved strawberries to top off the meal.

Our tourists left the Eccleston place on Wednesday morning, traveling north and west to Germfask and from there across the pine plains to Seney. From Seney they kept on north through 12 miles of sand plains into the hardwoods, which continued practically all of the distance until they reached Grand Marais. Here they found numerous attractions—beautiful little lakes and a fine auto tourist camp. Grand Marais is one of the oldest towns in northern Michigan. In conversation with one of the natives, the folks learned that the county was named after Governor Alger, one of Michigan's early governors. There seemed to be considerable feeling among the town's population over the fact that Alger came in there as a lumberman, built the mills and the railroad into the territory and, when the timber was gone, pulled out taking the railroad with him and leaving the prosperous, growing town stranded high and dry without means of communication with the outside world.

The people seemed perfectly contented, however, with their beautiful little village, the chief industries of which are fishing and blueberry picking. They ship out thousands of crates of blueberries during the berry season and, in fact, they claim there is more money in this business than in any agricultural pursuit in which they could engage. They seem glad that the lumber is gone and are very

THIS SCHEME MIGHT WORK— LET'S TRY IT

Claiming that motorists are becoming contemptuous of the standardized "Stop, Look and Listen" signs at rail crossings and street intersections, a correspondent suggests that crossing warnings be "jazzed up" a bit to attract attention. Here is what he suggests:

"Come ahead. You're unimportant."
"Try our engines. They satisfy."
"Don't stop. Nobody will miss you."
"Take a chance. A train can hit you only once."
"Thousands get by safely. You should worry."
"It's all right. There's a doctor around the corner."

optimistic, believing that the town will "come back" eventually and become a beautiful resort.

From Grand Marais our tourists back-tracked on M-77 for six miles and slept Wednesday night in a deserted shack, putting up their beds. Next morning the water in their wash-basin was covered with a film of ice as thick as a pane of glass. The place where they camped was an old, deserted cabin that had been used by hunters. It was originally built by a priest of the Roman Catholic church, back in the early lumber days, and used by him as a headquarters. Of late years, it has served as a rendezvous for nimbros of the district. It was a spooky, old place, much enjoyed by the male members of the party but looked askance upon by the ladies, who ere they found sleep imagined themselves surrounded by porcupines, bears, mountain lions and all sorts of wild creatures. One could almost imagine that he could see the forms of the long-departed hunters in the old bunk built into the wall at one end of the room.

From here the party traveled almost due west on a one way road through the hardwoods and pine plains for 42 miles to Munising. The hardwood trees are beautiful—just as nature left them, untouched by axe or saw. They couldn't help but notice the contrast, after approaching within twelve miles of Munising, on entering a tract where lumbering operations were being carried on.

CONVENTION A SUCCESSFUL ONE

PRAISE FROM DELEGATES

State Federation of Women's Clubs
Has Membership Approaching
Seven Million Mark

The 30th annual convention of State Federation of Women's Clubs, held in Petoskey last week, was a very successful one.

The women from Petoskey and nearby cities who assisted as hostesses deserved and received much praise from the 600 delegates who were entertained. Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, who acted as chairman of the platform committee, and Mrs. Adah Beeman, were the official delegates from here and the county and will give reports later.

The programs were crowded with inspirational and enjoyable affairs. This is a great organization with over 60,000 members in Michigan and six million in the nation. Some of the important field work may be judged by the 23 resolutions passed, a few of which are endorsement of a world court, prohibition enforcement, the abolishing of personal classification in civil service, Indian Bureau reorganization, prison labor reform, child labor amendment ratification, making clean journalism profitable, a constructive alien policy, the home economics bill, an appreciation of the primary election law, a plan to control the cutting of Christmas trees, private reforestation of waste lands, the removal of legal disabilities of women, the works of the state conservation department in preventing fires.

Speakers of authority in each line presented the subjects.

James Wyers, for the past year in charge of the Standard Oil Company's local station here, has purchased the cigar store and billiard room of Lemieur & Pearl, who have operated in the Madison building on Bridge street for the past three years.

Mr. Wyers, the new owner, took possession of the store on Saturday afternoon of last week, and immediately began to make interior improvements, which, when completed, will greatly add to the appearance of the store.

A successor to Mr. Wyers as manager of the oil station has not been announced as yet, but this will probably be done before the week end.

ST. JAMES MEN ON MISSING SHIP

FOUR COUSINS GO DOWN WITH STEAMER CLIFTON

Ship Last Heard From Off Mackinaw City Sunday with Cargo of Crushed Stone

The whaleback steamer Clifton, manned by 28 men, was lost in the big storm of Sunday, September 21, and is now lying at the bottom of Lake Huron in some unknown spot.

The Clifton is owned by the Progress Steamship Company of Cleveland, Ohio, and left Sturgeon Bay, Saturday, September 20, with a cargo of crushed stone bound for Detroit. She was last seen when passing through the straits of Mackinaw City early Sunday, September 21. The severe storm which resulted in a 58-mile gale started shortly after noon, after the boat had entered Lake Huron. The boat was heavily laden, and it is believed it sank so quickly that the crew was unable to man the life boats.

Efforts to locate the stranded or disabled whaler were started as soon as she failed to arrive at her destination on schedule time. North and south bound boats were notified to watch for floating wreckage or some trace of the missing boat. Aeroplanes were dispatched from Mt. Clemens, who skirted both the Michigan and Canadian shores.

Wreckage of the Clifton, then missing a week, was picked up last Sunday about 45 miles south of Alpena by the fishing tug Falcon. The wreckage consisted of a section of the cabin and the cabin door bearing the name of the ship. The tug reported that the location of the ill-fated freighter was certain from the wreckage. She found a large amount of wreckage, it is said, but picked up only enough to identify the boat. No bodies were found.

Ten of the crew were Michigan men, including four from St. James, Beaver Island. The balance of the crew hailed from Wisconsin. The boat was captained by Emmet E. Gallagher, of St. James, Beaver Island. Joe Scheid, wheelman, Peter Burns, wheelman and Anthony McDonough, second mate, were also from St. James. Capt. Gallagher is a son of John C. "Salty" Gallagher, a well known Beaver Island resident. Burns, Scheid and McDonough were cousins.

Another report states that wreckage from the missing boat was found about 70 miles from Goderick on the Detour-Goderick course. Searchers picked up the forward end of a pilot house. The pilot house clock and searchlight were attached. The clock registered four o'clock. It is believed in marine circles that the missing bodies will be picked up on the Canadian shore, and a thorough search will be made there.

Fell Off Shed Roof

George Block, who lives about three miles south of Charlevoix, on the Norwood Road, suffered severe injuries to his back on Friday last, when he fell off the roof of a shed he was building. George fell a distance of some nine feet, striking on his head. He will be laid up for some time from the severe shaking up he received, but to date no serious effects have shown up.

WILL VOTE ON 3 AMENDMENTS

IMPORTANT PROPOSITION SUB-MITTED FOR OUR APPROVAL

Proposed Income Tax Affects All Incomes Above $4,000—Children Must Attend School

At the general election to be held in this state on Tuesday, November 4, 1924, there will be submitted to the electors three proposed amendments to the constitution of the state, as follows:

A proposed amendment to Article XI of the constitution relative to compulsory attendance at a public school of all children between the ages of seven and sixteen years until they have graduated from the eighth grade, and to read as follows:

"Section 16. From and after August 1st, 1925, all children residing in the state of Michigan between the ages of seven years and sixteen years, shall attend a public school until they have graduated from the eighth grade."

"Section 17. The legislature shall enact all necessary legislation to render said section 16 effective."

The effect of this proposed amendment, if adopted, will be to make it compulsory for all children in the state between the ages of seven and sixteen years to attend a public school until they have graduated from the eighth grade.

A proposed amendment to Article X of the constitution authorizing the enactment of a graduated income tax law, and to read as follows:

"Section 3. The legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule of taxation, except on property paying specific taxes, and taxes shall be levied on such property as shall be prescribed by law. The legislature shall provide by law a scheme of taxes upon the net gains, profits and incomes of all citizens and inhabitants of this state, from whatever source said gains, profits and incomes are derived, which tax shall be graduated and progressive as follows:

"There shall be an exemption of $4,000 per annum of all incomes."

"Incomes of from $4,000 to $20,000 per annum shall be taxed at the rate of 5 per centum."

"All incomes above $20,000 up to and including $40,000, shall be taxed at the rate of 6 per centum."

"All incomes above $40,000 up to and including $60,000, shall be taxed at the rate of 7 per centum."

"All incomes above $60,000 up to and including $80,000, shall be taxed at the rate of 8 per centum."

"All incomes above $80,000 up to and including $100,000, shall be taxed at the rate of 9 per centum."

"All incomes above $100,000, shall be taxed at the rate of 10 per centum."

"The income tax law, herein authorized shall be administered by a board of state tax commissioners."

"All monies paid to a board of state tax commissioners under the provisions of this amendment shall be paid into the state treasury and shall then be credited to the general fund of the state, and shall be used for defraying the general expenses of the state government and for the payment of principal and interest on state bonds."

"On or before the first day of September of each year, the auditor general shall deduct from the total amount directed by the legislature to be included in the state tax, for that year, the amount of money received under the provisions of this amendment and credited to the general fund of the state for the current year and the balance if any shall be deemed to constitute the state tax to be apportioned among the various counties of the state in accordance with the provisions of the general tax law."

The effect of this proposed amendment, if adopted, will be to authorize the enactment of a graduated income tax law.

A proposed amendment to Article V of the constitution dividing the state into senatorial and representative districts, and to read as follows:

"Section 2. The senate shall consist of thirty-two members elected for two years and by single districts. Such districts shall be numbered from one to thirty-two inclusive, each of which shall choose one senator. The House of Representatives shall consist of one hundred members elected for two years and by single districts. Such districts shall be numbered from one to one hundred inclusive, each of which shall choose one representative."

"Section 3. The secretary of state, the attorney general, and the lieutenant governor, acting as a board of review, shall on or before the first day of April, 1925, and every eighth year thereafter, divide the territory of the state into thirty-two senatorial districts. Such districts shall be numbered from one to thirty-two inclusive, each of which shall choose one representative."

RENOMINATED FOR THE LEGISLATURE

FRIENDS OF GAS TAX BILL RE-TURNED TO HOUSE

Forty-one Reps. and 15 Senators Who Voted for Gas Tax Are Primary Victors

Enemies of the gas tax are attempting to make great capital out of the fact that a few of those who voted for the gasoline tax at the 1923 session of the legislature, failed to be renominated at the recent primaries. They are attempting to convince the public of the fact that these few exceptional cases are indications that the sentiment in Michigan has changed on this great issue of reform in the matter of financing our highway construction and maintenance.

Since the facts in the case are so very opposite to what these gas tax foes are attempting to prove, it is very interesting to get a bird's-eye view of the results of the primaries all over the state, in order to see what the feeling really is toward those men who championed the gas tax in the 1923 session. Here are the facts:

Out of the 80 members of the 1923 House of Representatives, who voted for the gas tax, 41 were renominated at the primaries this year. A large proportion of the balance were not candidates for re-election. Of the 18 representatives who opposed the gas tax, only 5 were renominated this fall. If these former members who have been renominated are all re-elected, which in most cases will be true, there will be in the 1925 legislature 41 representatives who voted for the gas tax last year and only 5 who voted against it.

In the senate, the conditions will be even more favorable to gas tax legislation. It will be remembered that on the final gas tax vote in the senate in 1923, 19 fearless senators resisted all the pressure brought upon them by political factions and special privileged classes, and voted for the Warner gas tax bill.

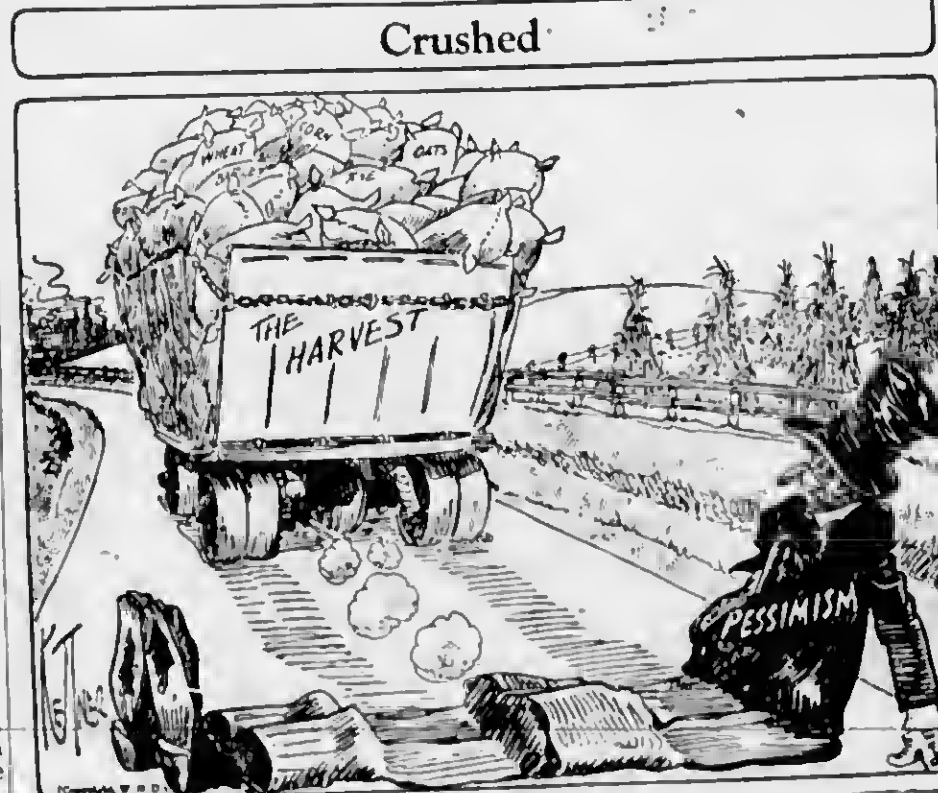

The leader of the gas tax supporters, Senator Wm. M. Connelly, of Spring Lake, representing Muskegon and Ottawa counties, failed in his campaign for renomination. This fact was heralded by the opponents of the gas tax as indicating that his stand on this issue was not popular with his people, but there is little evidence that anyone voted against him because of his gas tax stand. Senator Connelly comes from Spring Lake in Ottawa county and his opponent was popular in Muskegon county, and as Muskegon county has a considerably larger population than Ottawa county it is not remarkable that Senator Connelly should have received the short end of a very close vote.

But let us see what happened to the other 18 gas tax supporters in the senate. One ran for prosecuting attorney in his home county, one ran for congress, and one ran for governor. This leaves 15, and every single one of them was renominated. Such convincing evidence of the popularity of the gas tax can not be side-stepped or denied.

Among the 11 senators who voted against the gas tax only 5 of them were renominated. If all of these former senators who have been nominated to succeed themselves are re-elected, we shall have in the 1925 senate, 15 who have previously voted for the gas tax, and only 5 who voted against it. As 17 is a majority in the senate, it is quite evident that a gas tax bill will pass during the coming session, as of (Continued on page 4)

WASHINGTON LETTER

Clem Shaver, John Davis' campaign manager has thrown a bomb into the Democratic camp. "If the election were held tomorrow no one of the three presidential candidates would receive a majority of the votes in the electoral college," said Shaver this week in a burst of frankness, talking to a group of newspapermen.

Chairman Shaver's assertion is a flat contradiction of the numerous statements put out in his name by the Democratic publicity men, in which they claimed everything in sight for Davis and insisted he was no good in the Democratic machine. No doubt, Chairman Shaver told the truth as he sees it when he spoke for himself, and not through his publicity bureau. Only a week ago attention was called in this correspondence to the folly of national chairmen "claiming everything in sight," and while it is hardly to be supposed that influenced Mr. Shaver to tell the truth for once, it is at least refreshing to get the honest opinion of a national chairman, even it is disruptive his party machine. Of course the truth is that no one believes the extravagant claims, least of all those who, through paid publicity agents, make them. And the further truth is that no one knows how the election would go were it held tomorrow.

That Davis is making no converts is obvious. But how many is La Follette making? That no man knows. However, with Clem bailing up the silly claims of his publicity bureau and Mrs. Clem telling the plain truth about Chas. Bryan's indefensible attitude toward Defense Day, John W. is having his troubles.

La Follette and Wheeler, with that recklessness born of the knowledge that they will never be called upon to make good, are making the most ridiculous promises—promises which will probably fool the fools, while they make intelligent men laugh. For instance, in his campaign book La Follette promises, by public control of water power, to furnish the farmer with "electric current for 35 cents a day, equal to the labor of 5 men a day, and a four-horse team." Every intelligent man knows that that is not only impossible but preposterous; that the great cost of electricity is its distribution, where maintenance of wires and loss by leakage constitute by far the most tremendous factor of expense; that until science has devised some method of cheaper distribution no man and no government could distribute electricity in the amount indicated for 35 cents, or even $3.50 a day; that were such a thing possible the demand from the proprietors of small shops and factories for cheaper electricity would become so tremendous that there would be no resisting it. And intelligent men who analyze the profit and loss sheets of the big electrical power companies know that they are not making inordinate profits at existing rates—and they employ the most expert engineers in the world. But then, if one is never to be called upon to make good his promises and he is counting on appealing only to those too ignorant to analyze those promises—Why not promise everything in sight?

As Nicholas Murray Butler points out, there never was a time when the people of this country needed so strikingly to recall their history lessons as during this campaign. Every republic ever established has either failed entirely or degenerated at times into revolutionary anarchy except the United States. And the United States has lasted because of the great wisdom of the farmers of the constitution and the intense respect which the people have had for that wonderful instrument. The constitution provides for three distinct, co-ordinate branches of the government, the executive, legislative and judicial and that system has endured because it has proved successful in protecting the rights of minorities. Minorities in this country do not undertake to start revolutions when they are beaten, as they are in the older republics in this hemisphere, and as they have in the older republics of the past, because they know their rights will be protected and that if their views are correct they will ultimately prevail. La Follette would lay the axe to the foundation of the constitution by giving to congress power to overrule the supreme court. His proposition is so revolutionary that, while it appeals to some who are too impatient to make a long fight for their opinions, it repels thinking Americans with love of their country and respect for the constitution in their hearts. That, as Dr. Butler points out, is why La Follette obviously thinks it necessary to devote so much time and so small amount of falsification and misrepresentation to defending this plank in his platform. It is only natural, of course, for the Socialists and the I. W. W.'s to support La Fol-

AT THE MOVIES

Picture Has Wide Range

A picture with a wide range of scene and a story of great human interest is "His Children's Children," Sam Wood's Paramount screen version of Arthur Train's successful novel, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. The cast is an extraordinary one and among the featured players are Bebe Daniels, Dorothy Mackaill, James Rennie and George Fawcett. The principal supporting players include Mahlon Hamilton, Warner Oland, John Davidson and Joe Burke.

Queer twists of the law, which make a divorced man a bigamist when he crosses the state border, and otherwise stir up unusual, but accurate complications, have been used by Rupert Hughes to enliven the plot of his great divorce film "Reno," which comes on Monday to the Palace Theatre, for two days.

Into the lives of two young couples who have tried divorce as a cure of some of matrimony's ills, Rupert Hughes has injected a series of mix-ups, which, though new to the screen, have their parallels in many American homes as a result of forty-eight divorce laws which differ widely from each other in the forty-eight states of the country.

Much of the picture was photographed in Yellowstone National Park, with the spouting geysers as a striking background for the dramatic fight which takes place near the steaming crater of one of them. To say more of the remarkable climax to the picture than that it will both thrill and surprise would be to rob patrons of some of the enjoyment of the picture.

Fairbanks Jr. Youthful Star
Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., to all intents and purposes, spent his first two weeks as a screen star in the heart of the Turkish Empire. Under the direction of Joseph Henabery, the youthful star was busily engaged in making the Turkish episodes of "Stephen Steps Out," his first venture as a star in Paramount pictures, which comes to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday. The picture is based on Richard Harding Davis' story, "The Grand Cross of the Crescent." Theodore Roberts is featured and Noah Beery, Harry Myers and Frank Currier head the supporting company.

No one in Charlevoix who suffers backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this twice-told story of a Charlevoix resident. It is confirmed testimony, telling of a lasting benefit from Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. It's evidence that no man or woman in Charlevoix can doubt.

Mrs. Chas. Hyers, 207 Park Ave., says: "I had trouble with my kidneys and felt tired out and languid all the time. My back ached continually. I bought Doan's Pills at Metcalf's Drug Store, and began using them. They soon relieved the trouble."

Mrs. Hyers gave the above statement October 5, 1916 and on May 4, 1920, she added: "The cure Doan's Pills brought about in my case has proven to be permanent."

PEOPLE WOULD PAY IF RAILROADS WERE GOVERNMENT OWNED

Third Party Plan Would Take Revenue From States Involved.

If the railroads of the United States should be taken over, owned and operated by the government, the vast taxes now paid by the people, according to Will H. Wood, member of congress from Indiana and chairman of the Republican National Congressional committee, Mr. Wood has made a careful analysis of the situation, noting the tax payments by the railroads to the several state governments last year.

If the roads were owned by the government they would be tax free just as the post offices now are. The states would still need the money, just as they do now, and as a result additional taxes would have to be levied on the citizens.

Mr. Wood's complete analysis follows:

"Robert M. La Follette, the Socialist-third party candidate for President, is trying to convince 6,000,000 farmers that the surest cure for their ills is to bring about government ownership of all the railroads in the country; that, if this is done, transportation rates of all kinds would be immediately reduced.

"There are a lot of things, however, that would transpire if this scheme were carried out, that Senator La Follette is woefully silent upon. He is not telling the farmers that the government pays no taxes on its properties and that it would pay no taxes on the railroads of the country if it owned them. He is not telling them that the railroads are paying into the various county and state treasuries of the United States more than $300,000,000 annually, which sum would have to be paid, in large part, by the farmers, once the government began the ownership of the railroads.

"Take the state of Wisconsin for instance: Last year the railroads paid the state of Wisconsin $7,321,976 in taxes. In the state of Minnesota the railroads paid, last year, a total tax to the state of $8,425,982. In Iowa they paid $6,849,767; in Kansas, $6,739,346; in Indiana, $13,004,627. In these five states alone the railroads paid $42,331,694 of the public tax burden. I have taken the figures in the above named states because they are largely agricultural and in the event that the government became the owner of the railroads of the country the farmers of these states would have to bear the greatest part of the burden in paying these additional taxes.

"In the state of Iowa if the La Follette scheme were carried out, it would mean an increase of $32 in taxes on the annually levied against each farm in the state, or $2.84 for each man, woman and child in the state. In Kansas the burden would be $40 against each farm, or $3.30 for each resident of that state. In Minnesota, where Mr. La Follette is making a strong appeal for votes, he would take away from the farmer, under the government ownership plan, a tax income now paid by the railroads and place it as an additional assessment of $17 against each farm in the state, or $3.50 against each person residing in that commonwealth.

"I am told that, in one county in Montana, the total tax paid by the railroads amounts to 25.51 per cent of the entire levy. In midsummer of this year there was $100,102 of the total tax assessed in that county delinquent, upon which a penalty had been laid. This is convincing evidence that this county was already taxed much more than it was able to pay. Yet Mr. La Follette would take away 35 1/2 per cent of the tax revenue of this county, now being paid by the railroads, and place it as an additional burden upon the individual taxpayer.

"In my own state of Indiana, the railroads pay $13,004,627 in taxes annually. The total tax of the state is $124,895,700. The railroads share of this tax is over 10 per cent. If Mr. La Follette's scheme were put into effect, the individual taxpayer of Indiana would have to pay this additional sum of $13,004,627 each year. In Maryland the railroads pay annually $713,335 in taxes, a very substantial item in the total of the taxes paid in that county.

"The figures that I have given, applicable to the five agricultural states named, differ only in degree from those that might be given for every other state in the Union.

"Not only would the farmers be burdened by the payment of these additional taxes, should the government become the owners of the railroads, but they would also have an additional burden to bear, the size of which it is hard to ascertain, in the shape of deficits occurring in the operation of the railroads of the country for maintenance, extensions and upkeep.

"Some idea of what this burden would be, may be had, however, by recalling the experience during the period of government operation of the railroads under the management of William G. McAdoo, when the amount of the deficit over the earnings of those railroads taken over by the government was more than a million dollars a day, exclusive of the payment of exorbitant salaries to an army of officers.

"The farmers of this country, before they accept the panacea of government ownership of railroads, which is but a forerunner of the socialistic state, will do well to 'Stop, Look and Listen.'"

BRYAN OGRE LOOMS IF VOTERS SUPPORT LAFOLLETTE TICKET

Coolidge or Chaos Is Sole Choice of Citizens as Deadlock Menace Threatens.

LITTLE DOUBT WHO SENATE WOULD NAME

Analysis of Situation Shows Danger of Nebraskan Going to White House.

Coolidge or chaos. That is about what the coming election resolves itself into. A vote for Davis is a vote for Bryan. It is generally believed that Davis cannot possibly muster the necessary majority of the electoral votes to be named President. A vote for LaFollette is a vote for Bryan. It is not claimed by the most enthusiastic supporter of LaFollette that he could by any remote chance be elected. What he could do, however, is throw the election into the congress, with the chances favoring the naming of Bryan as vice president. The house being unable to give a majority to any one of the candidates for President, as it is at present organized, the senate, under the Constitution, would elect a vice president and the vice president elected by the senate would become President on March 4. That is why a vote for Davis or LaFollette is a vote for Bryan, and a vote for Coolidge is a vote for Coolidge.

The official counting of the electoral votes is not done until February. The Twelfth amendment to the Constitution provides as follows for the conduct of the congress in case the electoral college makes no choice:

Constitutional Provision.

"And if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as President, the house of representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the house of representatives shall not choose a President whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the vice president shall act as President, as in the case of the death or any constitutional disability of the President."

"The person having the greatest number of votes as vice president, shall be the vice president. If such a number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the senate shall choose the vice president; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of senators and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice."

Meets in February.

Complying with this provision of the Constitution, when the time comes in February for the Presidential electors to report, and it is discovered that there is no majority choice for President, then the house and senate will begin to huddle. But this official report of the electors does not occur until a month before it is time for the next administration to take office.

From election day, November 4, until some solution of the tangle is found—and the untangling of the knot cannot come before February—the country will be facing the possibility of a deadlock, or the putting of a man into the highest office of the land who was not voted for as President, who was not even selected by his party for President.

If LaFollette could secure enough votes to keep Coolidge from having a majority of the electoral votes, throwing the election of the President into the house, the house and senate would act independently of each other in their votes. That is, the senate does not await the result of the effort of the house to elect a President before proceeding to the selection of the vice president.

Vote Is by States.

As each state, no matter how large its population and its representation in the house, has only one vote, it is obvious that those states having a majority of representatives of one political faith will cast the vote of that state for their party nominee. As there are 48 states, and a majority of all of them is necessary to the selection of a President, a successful aspirant must have the votes of at least 25 states.

It should be emphasized that it is the present house of representatives and the present senate that vote for President and vice president in the event of the election being thrown into the congress. New congressmen and senators elected this fall will have nothing whatever to do with it.

The present house of representatives is so made up that there is little likelihood it can make a choice. Democrats make up a majority of the delegations of 20 states, while 23 state delegations have Republican majorities. In 5 other states the representation is evenly divided, and those states would have no vote to cast. Those states are Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire and New Jersey.

Some Not Regular.

The 23 states showing a nominal Republican majority might not all vote for Coolidge. There are a few where the Republicanism of some representatives is open to question, and if LaFollette should carry those states, it is not unlikely that their votes in the house would go to LaFollette, despite the Republican label borne by such congressmen. Should any of these states vote for LaFollette, or if the states should vote as they line up on paper—20 Democratic, 23 Republican, and 5 unable to vote, no choice could be made, as 25 states are needed to elect the President.

Attention would then center on the senate. Here the state rule does not apply. Each senator of the 96 has a separate vote. For a quorum, two-thirds of the 96 must be present, or 64, and for a choice of vice president, a bare majority, or 49, is necessary.

However, in the senate only two candidates for vice president having the highest showing in the electoral college may be voted for, and this would narrow the choice down to General Dawes and Governor Bryan.

Present Situation Important. As the present senate would select, the situation there now is important. There are nominally 51 Republican senators, but this number includes LaFollette of Wisconsin and Brookhart of Iowa, and others who of late have seldom voted with the Republicans. Forty-three senators are listed as Democrats, and two, Ladd and Frazier, are listed as Farmer-Laborites.

If Bryan can hold the 43 Democratic senators in line and get the votes of the two Farmer-Labor senators, this would give him a nucleus of 45 votes. By securing four of the so-called Republicans, such as Brookhart and LaFollette, this majority would put into the White House a man for whom the American people had not voted for President, and who would be a minority choice.

If Bryan could secure only the 43 Democratic senators, the two Farmer-Labor senators, and three such men as LaFollette, the election would be deadlocked, and the country thrown into a state of chaos never before faced. Throwing the election into the congress would of itself have a terrific effect upon business and industry the country over, causing a wave of depression which would affect everyone, as this would cause months of uncertainty before a choice by the congress was attempted. If, on top of this, the senate should get into a deadlock as the house is certain to, the depression might easily become a panic, with terrific and far-reaching results.

Other Possibilities.

There is the outside chance, in the event of Coolidge failing to receive a majority of the electoral votes, that when the matter came to the senate, such Democrats as Glass of Virginia, Bruce of Maryland and Underwood of Alabama would vote for General Dawes, the Republican nominee, rather than put such a man as Bryan in the White House.

A large body of thought in the United States holds to the opinion that the whole purpose of LaFollette is to throw the election into the congress, where he and his followers probably would wield the balance of power, and this small group would name the next President of the United States. Naturally, this would put that President under heavy obligation to the LaFollette group, and he as its leader, would exercise tremendous power, even though his followers represent the smallest fraction of the makeup of the United States senate.

The summing up of the situation is this:—Voting for LaFollette is voting for Bryan.

Voting for Davis, by the same analysis, is voting for Bryan. Voting for Coolidge is voting for Coolidge.

FARMER NOT AID IN ORGANIZATION OF THIRD PARTY

International Labor Unions Excluded From LaFollette Convention All Except Own Followers.

RADICALS IN POWER BAN SOIL TILLERS

Blacklist Includes Their Defenders in Congress.

LaFollette was entered in the race for President by an aggregation of national and international labor unions. The public, and particularly the farmer, had no voice whatever in his so-called nomination. There has existed for over three years an organization known as the Conference for Progressive Political Action, composed of 16 or 18 national and international labor unions, the majority of them railway labor organizations.

The officers of this Conference for Progressive Political Action are on the whole the national and international officers of the labor organizations composing the conference. The chairman or president of this conference is William Johnston, president of the International Machinists' union, and the director of the railroad strike in 1922. Mr. Johnston was recently candidate for governor of Rhode Island on the Socialist ticket. The headquarters of this conference is in the Machinists' building, Washington, D. C., a building owned by the International Machinists.

This conference held its annual meeting in St. Louis in February, 1924, adopted a platform, pledged itself to launch a third party, and adjourned to meet in Cleveland July 4 for that purpose. The convention in Cleveland on July 4 was therefore nothing but the adjourned meeting of the Conference for Progressive Political Action. The delegates to the Cleveland convention were merely delegates from the labor organizations comprising the Conference for Progressive Political Action, plus a few scattering delegates from the Socialist party and a few radical organizations such as the League for Industrial Democracy. The Conference for Progressive Political Action established its own rules regarding whom it would admit as delegates and these rules were so framed that no one not in hearty accord with the views of the labor organizations comprising the conference was admitted. Out of approximately 1,000 delegates, less than 25 were farmers or representatives of alleged farmer organizations.

The officers of the Conference for Political Action were the officers of the convention. William Johnston, Socialist leader, was the temporary and also the permanent chairman. After organizing the convention, a resolution was drawn up and sent to Senator LaFollette asking him to lead in a fight for a third party. Not a single farmer or representative of a bona fide farmer organization signed this petition.

The so-called platform adopted at this convention offers absolutely nothing to the farmer. It consisted practically altogether of a recital of the alleged grievances of organized labor and a demand for the enactment of their legislative program. Not a farmer was a member of any of the committees of this convention, neither the committee on resolutions nor credentials, nor organization, nor nominations. The chairman of each of these committees was an official of some international labor organization. The personnel of these committees were either officials high in international railway labor organizations or officials high in the Socialist party, and other radical organizations.

The convention went on record in behalf of the candidacy of LaFollette. LaFollette was officially notified of his nomination by a committee appointed by Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and no member of this committee was a farmer. LaFollette acknowledged his nomination in the form of a letter addressed not to the people of the United States or the farmers of the United States, but to the American Federation of Labor.

The campaign committee handling the LaFollette-Wheeler movement is the National Committee of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, plus a number of Socialists. The addition of Socialists to this committee was demanded by the Socialist party as the price of their support of the ticket. This demand was made at a meeting of the committee held in Washington July 21, at which time representatives of the Socialist party were present and insisted that they be given 10 per cent of the committee. Their demand was granted. There is an executive committee of 10 handling the inside stuff of the LaFollette-Wheeler campaign. No farmer is on this committee. The campaign headquarters of the LaFollette-Wheeler movement is 408 Machinists building, Washington, D. C.

The Conference for Progressive Political Action issues a weekly publication known as Labor. The farmer has no part in it. It is managed and edited wholly by representatives of labor organizations. It is their official campaign publication.

YOUR SPECIALTY

What do you do the best? And are you doing it for a living?

A story is told of the man who was on a fishing trip. He was after salmon trout and he couldn't get them. His method was deep trolling, with his hook about 100 feet down. But make the lure as attractive as he would the fish simply wouldn't bite.

After five days of effort the fisherman gave an Indian a bit of change to show him what was the matter. The Indian shortened the line to 75 feet, cut off the tail of a minnow and tied it in among the hooks to make the thing a little more attractive and behold, eighteen salmon trout were landed in a day.

Was the fisherman chagrined because an Indian, ignorant in many of the things which the white fisherman understood well, had been able to do what he had tried unsuccessfully for five days? Not a bit of it. "He ought to be able to catch fish," was his comment about the Indian. "That's all he ever does."

Specialization gets the results, and it is not so modern as we are accustomed to think. It has only been put into practice the last decade or so more than it was previously.

It has always been true, however, that the thing a man liked to do the best was the thing he could do the best. That is the reason some men are carpenters and others are bankers. It is not necessary to tell some men that they ought to do the thing they are naturally adapted for. Most young fellows looking around for a job naturally try first to get work they like, and unconsciously they are heading toward the work they can do the best.

But there are a great many other men who are pointed toward life pursuits for other reasons. A boy goes into a store because his father is in a store and believes that is a good occupation for the lad. Another chap lines up for the law and another for medicine because father is a lawyer or mother always wanted her son to be a doctor.

It follows that there are many misfits in such cases as these. Many a man is selling calico or shoes when he would be a world beater driving a truck and there is more than one carpenter who would have made a great success in some profession.

People who belong to an older generation are likely to call the present educational systems "faddy." Maybe they are, but the manual training and business courses that have been added in recent years are greatly widening the opportunity for determining what the young folks are best adapted to, and the education young folks get will be much more valuable to them if it develops at the same time the thing they can do best and inclines them toward that thing.

The youth at Hastings who was fined $25 for stealing a horse blanket little expected to have such a wet one thrown on him.

A large coal pile at Bay City is reported burning. Many of us, doubtless, are soon to discover that we have escaped such accidents by getting in the fire-proof kind.

The recent fall in the price of gasoline is said to be due to the law of supply and demand, so it is only a question of time until some candidate will claim that his party passed this law.

A man at Lansing was nearly shot by a revolver in the hands of a 3 year old boy. Another warning that boys of this age should not be permitted to enury a revolver without a license.

People in this state are drinking 40 per cent more coffee than they did 12 years ago, according to figures just issued. It must be that some have acquired a taste for having a little of it in their liquor.

A bad habit once formed is not soon shaken off. Thus, a newspaper writer at St. Clair, speaking of a fellow who was apprehended while crossing the river with a boat load of liquor, calls him a "scofflaw."

Voters at Eaton Rapids turned down the proposition to buy a new fire engine by a margin of 58 votes. If the old engine is pretty fast, it isn't safe to take a chance on a new one, as you might not be able to heat it to the fire at all.

Thieves ransacked an entire house at Kalamazoo in the absence of the owner, and took nothing but an overcoat. This is thought to indicate that it is going to be a severe winter for the owner, unless he can afford to buy another.

A series of pear-grading demonstrations is being held at the Benton Harbor public market by the state department of agriculture. We had always supposed there were just two grades—Number 1, No Pears and Number 2, Pears.

Ninety-five per cent of the business men of Ishpeming have petitioned to have motion pictures shown on Sunday. It being the motion pictures shown on shopping days that make the tired business man tired.

A Niles husband obtained a divorce on the plea that his wife developed a habit of hurling at him any article she could lay her hands on. The flat irons weren't so bad, but when she began with the biscuits, he rightly felt that she was going too far.

The danger involved in picking up a stalled automobilist on the road has been greatly exaggerated. Thus three men picked up a stranger who said he had run out of gas a mile beyond Kent City and was starting to walk back for some, and after getting him into the car robbed him of $39 at the point of a revolver and threw him out.

course, many of the new senators ran on gas tax platforms.

The above facts which are taken from a summary recently made by the Michigan State Farm Bureau convincingly refute the arguments advanced by those unfriendly to the gas tax who have been seeking to show that the citizens of Michigan by their vote at the primaries indicated a declining interest in favor of the gas tax. The actual facts as presented above show that a gas tax will undoubtedly be enacted during the coming session of the legislature.

CATCH ROBBER AT CHEBOYGAN

Blows Several Safes and Robs Office. Captured Late.

Because station agent A. J. LaLonde, of the Michigan Central railroad at Cheboygan decided to make a midnight visit to his office, the man who is suspected of having blown several safes and robbed several buildings in Cheboygan is in jail in charge of Sheriff Slade.

Tuesday night the stranger, who refuses to tell his name or where he is from, is believed to have visited the D. & M. passenger station, the Michigan Central freight station, the Standard Oil offices and the S. A. Gains produce building. From the safe blown open in the Detroit & Mackinac railway passenger depot the man secured about $30 in cash, and about an equal amount from the Michigan Central. He secured nothing from the Gains offices and nothing from the Standard Oil offices.

Agent LaLonde upon opening the door of his office detected the odor of an explosive. He discovered the safe door blown off and the drawers rifled. He searched the building and called Sheriff Slade. The officer visited the railroad stations and saw a stranger board the southbound Michigan Central passenger train. Officers at Gaylord were notified and took the man from the train.

They found in his pockets a bottle of nitroglycerine, a revolver, fuses and caps, search light and other tools of a safe blower. When questioned the man put officers off with remarks that were intended to lead them to believe the man was insane.—Petoskey Evening News.

Charlevoix Co-ops Operated at Profit During Last Year

Members of the Charlevoix Co-operative Association are jubilant of the excellent showing made by their institution the last year, the financial statement read by Manager Clarence Meggison revealing the fact that the institution had been operated at a profit during the last fiscal year.

The following clipping taken from the Michigan Pointe Growers' Exchange was mailed to us for publication, and shows that the eyes of all associations of this character are focused upon the operations of the Charlevoix association:

"The annual meeting of the Charlevoix association took the form of a celebration. Twenty gallons of ice-cream, furnished by Director John Struthers, were consumed by the members and their families who came out to hear the unusual announcement in the financial report that the association had actually turned the corner and for a year had been operated at a profit. Clarence Meggison is the manager."

Hurtful to Battery:

Using impure water for re-filling.
Using the starter for too long a time.
Using the horn frequently and with long blasts.
Neglecting to refill the battery at correct intervals.
Leaving lights burning brightly with the engine cut off.
Leaving the car parked for a long period with the lights burning.

M. A. C. OPENS UP FOR ITS 67TH YEAR

With Increased Enrollment, New Buildings and President

The Michigan Agricultural College opened its doors to the young men and women of the state on Wednesday, September 24, for the 67th consecutive year since the college's founding in 1857.

Early enrollment which indicated one of the largest freshmen classes, as well as total attendance, in the history of the college featured the registration on Monday and Tuesday. Agricultural engineering and home economics continued to prove the most popular courses for entering students, although the new liberal arts and applied science divisions drew many registrations.

Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield, newly installed M. A. C. president, welcomed the student body of its arrival, addressing a convocation in the gymnasium Wednesday morning.

Rapid progress on the college's big building program proved the outstanding feature for the returning students. The new library has been finished during the summer and is ready for use by the student body; the college Union building is rapidly nearing completion; work is under way on the new horticultural greenhouse and building, while a revised landscape plan is being worked out on the campus.

D. & C. BOATS TO RUN NEXT SEASON

Reliably Reported They Will Again Be Placed on Route

The following, clipped from the Cheboygan Democrat, will be read with considerable interest by Charlevoix residents as well as our summer friends:

"We have it on reliable authority the D. & C. boats to be put on the north Michigan run again next summer will include Cheboygan in their regular stopping places. The boats will also stop at Mackinac Island, St. Ignace and then extend their trip to Chicago, instead of making the terminus at St. Ignace as heretofore. It is quite likely the boats will also make Alpena a regular port of call, as the freight business both at Alpena and Cheboygan ought to be considerable and can be made extensive if the boat lines will only give the service. The introduction of these boats again will no doubt quicken the upper Michigan resort business and revive things on the Island immensely."

P. M. CUTS TRAINS TO TWO EACH DAY

Intent Seems to Give Service Only to U. S. Mails

Charlevoix as well as other points on the Pere Marquette railway south, where served by but the one railway, have been placed on what we may term as the annual "fall and winter train service." In other words, north and south trains have been cut to the minimum. Just at the present time we are being given two trains every 24 hours, one south at 2:21 p. m., and one north at 3:56 p. m.

If you want to get out of town at any other hour during the 24, you can walk or crank up the flivver and utilize the good roads.

The Pere Marquette claims the running of trains on the northern division is a losing game from October to May or June, and we presume they are about right in this respect. There will be little traffic as long as the highways are open. After the snow comes, possibly we may get another train north and south. This is just our opinion, however.

In the meantime keep your car in running order and your gas tank filled.

You travel in comfort and enjoy your vacation if you have a wardrobe trunk. The very best and the more medium priced. Benj. Brown. Adv. 35-1f.

MEMBERS MET IN THE COUNCIL ROOMS

Association of Commerce Members Plan for Better Charlevoix

Members of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce held a snappy meeting in the council chambers last Wednesday evening, some twenty being present.

Activities of the past season were gone over and an effort to outline a plan of work for the 1925 season was made.

Committee reports of work accomplished during the present year showed that a great deal of real constructive work had been accomplished, especially in the advertising line. Another meeting will be held soon.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday and Friday, October 2 and 3

A Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan production, "SLAVES OF DESIRE," adapted from the immortal story "The Magic Skin" by Balzac. The show window of Paris life—gay boulevards, sidewalk cafes, the drawing room of a notorious vampire and the magic spell of an evil talisman. Balzac's great story has been brought to the screen in a lavish manner, the cast including George Walsh, Bessie Love and Carmel Myers.

Saturday and Sunday, October 4 and 5

Paramount presents "HIS CHILDREN'S CHILDREN," with Bebe Daniels, Dorothy MacKail, James Rennie and George Fawcett, with an all-star support. The strongest, truest indictment of American society ever written. A sensational exposure of New York's wealthy families and the kind of lives their children lead. Few pictures are so tremendously gripping, so brilliantly acted, so gorgeously produced. The story of every woman's husband, her home and the happiness of her children. From the sensational novel that startled the book world, with one of the strongest casts ever assembled. Also a Cameo comedy, "PARIS LIGHTS."

Monday and Tuesday, October 6 and 7

Goldwyn presents "RENO," a thrilling, sensational motion picture marvel, written and directed by Rupert Hughes. Here's a drama that's crowded with breathless action—the never-told tale of divorce—it winds a dramatic course all over the United States, ending in a smashing climax on the perilous brink of the Giant Geyser of Yellowstone Park. It's a stirring photoplay, rich with wisdom, humor, truth—told frankly and fearlessly. Also a two reel Educational comedy, "A PERFECT 36."

Wednesday, October 8

Paramount presents Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in his first picture, "STEPHEN STEPS OUT," with Theodore Roberts. A chip off the old block—that's young Doug. Can he act?—like a veteran. Pep—tons of it. Smiles just like his dad's. He's the clean, breezy, typical American boy and you'll like him. Better step out for this one. It's good. Also a Universal comedy, "WHITE WING MONKEY."

GOVERNORS By Frederick L. Collins in the Woman's Home Companion.

A. J. Groesbeck of Stollwagen & Groesbeck, Attorneys-at-Law, Dime Savings Bank, Detroit, Michigan—I shall always think of him by his full legal title—is one of the three best governors upon whom I have stumbled in my gubernatorial marathon from coast to coast. He is a credit to an asset to the great state over which he presides. But he is indubitably a lonely soul.

Most lawyers are that way. There is something about their training which makes them think all men guilty until proved innocent. But some of them conceal their true natures under sweet smiles. They practice law apologetically, as they would burglary or arson. They try not to suspect every man they meet of harboring an injunction against them; they sometimes think without "whereas" and smile without an "in-somuch." But not so the governor of Michigan. He always looks you over as if you were a prisoner in the pen, and he stands with one hand behind him as if he were about to whip out a habeas corpus, or hurl a calf-skin volume of revised statutes at your head. He is the kind of man to whom you say something particularly pleasant—and find to your dismay that you are smiling alone. In brief and to wit, he's a lawyer.

And he glories in his shame. He pulls his black hat onto his bullet-like head, clamps the brim over his heavy eyebrows, sinks his neck into his back and squares off his great shoulders as if he were going to hit you in the jaw. Then he's ready to say good morning. I wouldn't say that he perked up much over the greeting. I had to pinch myself to make sure he didn't say "What do you want?" And I rather think that down in which we now so bibbly call the subconscious mind that's what he does say when he looks out so beligerently on a sociable world.

But as a human being, he improves on acquaintance. At first, I couldn't tell him from the other bound volumes on his legal shelves. But after we had been together for an hour or two, the governor felt that he could safely smile—and with the unfolding of that smile came the opening of the Groesbeck book. I knew right away that if fate had only been kind to him, and made him a coroner or an undertaker—any profession, in fact, in which he could dare to let himself go—"A. J." would have been just as good a fellow as he is a governor. Moreover and I feel sure that this is true, he would never have been what he is today, a bachelor.

I wouldn't say that any woman could do much with him now. The shell of his bachelorhood is thick and durable. But certainly someone should have tried—someone should have made a man, who smiles as intriguingly as "A. J." does, smile more often. He isn't had looking—when he smiles. He has less hair than Jack Dempsey, but many of the great athlete's physical perfections. And his eyes are quite remarkable, bulging, like his head, but bright as the brightest dollars you ever saw, and fiery as the well known coals. It seems too bad that those coals seldom glow except well, except in his enthusiasm for the state penitentiary.

Of course, the governor comes naturally by his interest in penitentiaries. He spent six years in jail.

"My father was a miller, a saw-miller," he explained in the softer mood that followed the first smile, "and he did very well at it. But after a while he had financial reverses which forced him to give up milling and try his hand at jailing. He had always been interested in politics, especially in the political fortunes of Grover Cleveland who was the big national figure of that day; and fell heir as a good party man to the office of sheriff of Macomb county. There weren't many prisoners in father's constituency, and the sheriff's job was not a heavy one but it carried with it one great perquisite; the right to live in the jail. And that's what we did. Father, Mother, my two sisters, my three brothers and I. You see," the governor concluded, without committing himself to the joke, "I was brought up in sort of political atmosphere."

"Better begin your career in jail," I ventured "than end it there."

The governor must have heard this just before, but he actually laughed out loud, and I knew that from that moment we were to be friends.

"Mother used to say," continued the governor, "that nothing could happen to the Groesbeck family that would seem very bad after that early experience. Sometimes, when things looked pretty black, she would exclaim: 'What's that to us! And then, to the amazement of strangers, she would add: 'We've already spent six years in jail.' As a matter of fact, mother rather enjoyed living in the jail and working with the prisoners, and I have often heard her tell her friends that the last four years in the new jail were the happiest period of her married life."

The first two years must have been pretty bad. The old "pen" at Mount Clemens was built on the principle of giving the prisoners the star-boarder rooms in the front of the house and parking the sheriff and his family in the first floor rear. The cellar was damp, the ventilation inadequate, the view disheartening.

The governor was right. He was brought up in a political atmosphere—in the jail and later at Ann Arbor, where he attended the university for a year. "I didn't stay any longer," he explained, "because I didn't have any more money." At Ann Arbor, in the heat of Campus political discussions, young Groesbeck found that, in spite of his Cleveland adoring father, he was at heart a Republican, and it was with that party that he allied himself on his arrival in Detroit.

"I had more than an average citizen's interest in political affairs," Governor Groesbeck told me, "but I never expected to run for public office. I do not regard the governorship as an honor to be coveted in the sense that it is an opportunity to exercise power. I regard it as a job. If I had been figuring on running for office, I'd never have gotten into the fights I did. But I was always one of these fellows who could be depended upon to turn to and work, and that kind usually gets plenty of work to do. So finally I became chairman of the state committee, then attorney general, and finally governor. I have never run for anything yet, where I wouldn't just as soon wake up the day after election and find I didn't have to tackle the job. That's the way I felt about my present office. But," he added with a return of that boyish smile, "it's a nice job to do."

It's a nice job to have done; the record "A. J." is leaving on the state house books at Lansing. He found the finances of one of the richest of our commonwealths in the poorest of conditions. In three years he put them on the fiscal feet. In the same period he reduced the tax levy from twenty-one millions to approximately fifteen. And he did the job by applying common sense to the people's business.

"During my four years as attorney-general," he told me "I was amazed to find that the heads of the various departments never got together to talk over the business of the state. Each went off in his corner and spent all the money he could get to help the work of his own department. Nobody knew where the other fellow was going. There was no way by which even the governor could get a proper perspective on the whole job to be done. There was no co-operation, no team play. This seemed to me all wrong. So when I became governor, I decided to change it."

"We had a good legislature that year. They worked hard to give me the laws I needed. And between us we straightened out the whole thing. The state of Michigan now has a board of activities—a board that meets every week and controls all the activities of all the departments."

"Suppose you, Collins, had something you wanted the state to do. You couldn't go to some isolated official and get him to do it without the knowledge of the rest of us. You would have to appear before our board, where everything you said, and everything we asked you would be put down in black and white. And when you got your answer you'd know that your proposition had been considered by the responsible heads of state and solely in the interests of the state."

"Suppose I was a state official and wanted something done?" I asked. "The same thing would happen. You'd have to come and argue for what you wanted, just like the other citizen. Of course, the politicians didn't like this system very well, and at first there was a good deal of kicking; but now I think it is the general opinion that the plan works well, anyhow, that's my opinion."

The governor had forgotten he was a lawyer. In his enthusiasm he had committed himself irrevocably. And he was having a wonderfully good time. Talking about bonds of directors and department heads may not be your idea of a good time, but it's the governor's. Mention "tax levy" to this big, surly boy and his round eyes pop as yours might if you stumbled over a Murillo in your front attic. The words "highway construction" make his bald head wrinkle pleasantly, and "penitentiary" causes his great nose to shake with prideful pleasure. He's a human being after all, is "A. J." And he's very much in love—with his "nice job."

The governor has never had much time for anything but jobs. People don't live in prisons because they want to—whether they go there by the judge's decision or the voters'. And the loss of fortune which sent the elder Groesbeck into the sheriff's job sent the younger Groesbecks out to peddle papers and contribute to the family support in various similar ways. The governor had to work hard to get himself to Ann Arbor; and he had hardly gotten there when he had to leave and work harder still to get a foothold in Detroit.

The governor hasn't forgotten those days of youthful privation. His heart goes out to the young wards of the state. And he is never too busy to make a speech or lead a procession for their benefit.

Every year at Christmas time, the governor of the state reverts to his own newsboy days—and helps the modern generation of paper vendors raise about twenty-five thousand dollars for the city's poor. The Good-fellows' Campaign—it is called; and "A. J." surely proves—in spite of his aloofness and apparent coldness—that he belongs in the front ranks of good fellowship!

The governor makes light of his early labors. He speaks of life at the jail as if it were one sweet song. He even gives those days credit for much of his subsequent success.

"I suppose father's library at the jail was largely responsible for making me a lawyer," reminisced the governor. "It was one of those country libraries that all minor officials have, composed of government reports, treatises on civil and criminal practice, in fact, all the dull things that are distributed free. I was a great reader. I had to read something. So I read these books—and became a lawyer."

Groesbeck succeeded in his profession. He associated himself with good attorneys; and in time became a very good one himself. But he did not confine himself too closely to the law. I imagine he made his first big money by putting through the inter-urban railway between Detroit and Flint; and later he acquired a fair amount of Detroit's increasingly profitable real estate. He bought a

SOULLESS CORPORATIONS

It goes without saying that a Corporate executor or trustee will render satisfactorily the business service expected of it. But it is doubtless often wondered:—

Is it possible for a Corporate Executor or Trustee to serve like the departed member of the family concerned would serve, in other than purely business ways?

It is. The success with which it does so depends partly on the assistance it has had from the departed member and has from the remaining members of the family—on the attitude of those to be served; more, on the make-up of the corporate force, on the spirit which dominates the Corporation. But it is possible; it is more than possible.

The Michigan Trust Company's active force is now composed of 80 men and women, giving their entire time to its service, devoted to such service, and not only willing but anxious to render such non-business service, in the name of the Company and in its interest as conservator of many family interests. They all know that its interests are their interests; its successes their successes. Among them are fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, uncles, aunts, even grandparents—each one with a heart, each one competent to lend a hand in this family non-business service; as occasion arises, to be a friendly aid and adviser, so far as is desired, in all that concerns widows, children, nephews, nieces, and others interested in the estates in its charge, large and small, in matters of all kinds, financial and otherwise. Such interested persons are urged to make themselves known at its office; they will always be cordially welcomed, will always find new or old friends, to give them information, advice and assistance, patiently.

Let the testator do his part in preparing the way; let the remaining members of the family put themselves in the attitude of reception; and The Michigan Trust Company, through the members of its force, will show a spirit of helpfulness and do its part, not only as business manager but as friend.

Every member of The Michigan Trust Company force expressly and individually joins in this invitation and statement.

President.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS
It is necessary to plan our meals a day or more in advance if we furnish our tables well and economically.

Stuffed Steaks.
—Instead of the usual hamburger steak try preparing them thus: Season the meat after grinding it and put a little into as many greased pan pans as needed; on this place a layer of seasoned bread crumbs—they may be seasoned as for poultry stuffing if desired—then cover with another layer of seasoned meat. Bake in a moderate oven. Turn out on a hot platter, garnish with parsley and serve with a tomato sauce if desired.

Roll Jelly Cake.—Take three eggs, beat lightly; add one cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Stir in gradually one cupful of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in a dripping pan in a moderate oven. The pan should be lightly greased. Turn the cake out on a towel wrung from cold water. If the edges are crisp and crack trim them. Spread the cake with jelly and roll in the towel while still warm.

Nut Sauce for Ice Cream.—Boil until it threads a pound of maple sugar and one-third of a cupful of water; add one-half cupful of almond meats coarsely chopped and serve hot poured over vanilla ice cream. Maple syrup may be used with brown sugar if the maple sugar cannot be obtained.

Steam a quarter of a cupful of raisins, two tablespoonfuls each of sliced citron and candied cherries; cut the fruit into shreds with scissors before steaming, add to the custard and freeze as usual. If one cuts up the fruit the day before and soaks it in orange juice to cover, it is most delicious, soft and well-flavored.

Krimmel Torte.—Put one-half pound each of dates and walnuts through the coarse part of a meat grinder, or better, chop in a wooden bowl with a quarter of a pound of figs; add three tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs, the yolks of six eggs well-beaten, then the stiffly beaten whites with one-half cupful of sugar. Bake very slowly in layers. Put together with whipped cream.

Don't start on your vacation with a shabby suit case or traveling bag. Look over our line, then you will buy a new one. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 35tf.

Women Not Swayed by False Pledges

They Believe Firmly in Coolidge, Says Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, National Leader.

Reputable women are not allowed to let their emotions to run away with them. There will be no split in their ranks. Promises held out by LaFollette and the Socialist-Third party, had no appeal for them. They will vote for Coolidge. This is the manner in which Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice chairman of the Republican National Committee, sums up the outlook for November 4th.

Mrs. Hert says that without exception reports of Republican national committeewomen from every state are the same in one respect. They all say that women are for Coolidge because they believe in him as a man. They know of the high principles for which he stands. They have watched his record during the past year and see that he is a man of conviction, and at all times stands for that which he thinks is for the good of the majority. They say that women appreciate his firm stand for an economical administration—the fact that he has evaded no issue, compromised no principle. They know that President Coolidge and the Republican party stand for protection. This means much to the woman in industry and the wife of the working man.

Flower lovers come and see my flowers. I have the finest collection of dahlias in the state—over 100 varieties. One and one-half miles east, 1-2 miles south of Ironton Ferry. Joel Johnson.—Adv. 35-16.

Improved Fruits Increase Trade

American Farmers Adding to Income From Various Crops Sold Abroad.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Each year adds to the income which American farmers are realizing from various crops which have been introduced from foreign countries and developed and fostered by the United States Department of Agriculture and the various state experiment stations. Some of these crops have been here for so many years that we are inclined to look upon them as our own. Most of them, however, got their start in some other country.

Raisin Industry Grows.

Take, for example, the raisin industry of California which has grown to such great size in recent years. Varieties of grapes were introduced from Europe and tried out under Pacific coast conditions. For many years the department has maintained experimental vineyards in various parts of California. Within the last three years it has acquired titles to two vineyard tracts, one in Napa county, and one in Fresno county, which are exclusively devoted to the problems of grape culture in that state. Research work by the federal department and the state experiment stations, along with others, have helped greatly in making it possible for raisin producers to develop the product which is now an important factor in our export trade with a number of countries. According to the Department of Commerce, for the eight months ending with February, 1924, more than three millions pounds of raisins were marketed in China, which is more than four times as many as were marketed in that country for the same time the preceding year. The trade with Japan is about twice as great as that with China, and Canada, which is our biggest purchaser, used practically thirty million pounds of our raisins during the eight-month period in 1924. Within the same time the United Kingdom took about fifteen million pounds.

Apple Developed.

The apple may be taken as another example of a fruit, not native to this country, which has been developed to a high state of commercial perfection. It is largely because of plant introduction and improvement, together with development of effective cultural methods, including the prevention and control of destructive diseases and insect pests, that it has been possible to build up an extensive trade in this fruit, a trade which is increasing greatly. The export of apples in the eight months ending with February, 1924, was 4,719,371 boxes and 1,688,114 barrels, a movement much in excess of that in 1923, according to the Department of Commerce.

Although the apple was not indigenous to this country, so far as the list of modern varieties is concerned those which figure extensively in our commercial trade are practically all of American origin.

Soil Requirements for Good Crop of Soy Beans

Soy beans are very similar in their soil requirements to the common bean but are frequently grown on poorer land for soil improvement purposes. For feeding purposes, they can best be handled as a hay crop, planting from six pecks to two bushels per acre with an ordinary grain drill on clean ground. If ground is weedy, drill in rows twenty-eight inches apart, and cultivate, using one bushel of seed per acre. For hay, soy beans should be cut when the pods are formed and beginning to fill. They can best be cut with a mowing machine. The crop is cured for hay in much the same way as alfalfa is hauled, allowing to wilt in the swath and throwing into windrows or small cocks for curing.

GOVERNORS

By Frederick L. Collins

big house for himself and family in a choice section of the Grand Boulevard; but his business instincts prevailed over his domestic ones, and he cut up his own home into apartments and built another apartment house on the corner of the lot.

"A. J." is well-to-do. He is rated by Detroiters at not less than half a million. He doesn't need public office for his own pocketbook.

Curiously enough, the governor's official life has been marked by a series of conflicts with the men and interests with which he was most closely connected in his earlier business and political career. "That's one reason," he said "why the governorship is less popular than the senatorship. I thought I knew what the governor meant. I had seen other chief executives torn by their friends' demands for all sorts of special privileges from appropriations from the state treasury to low numbers on their license plate. But from what I afterward learned I think he had in mind especially his struggles with the highway problem.

"A. J." has a gang of convicts building a state highway between Detroit and Lansing. He is enthusiastic about what they are doing. He believes that the state should keep its prisoners steadily employed, for their sakes and for the state's. But he doesn't indulge in any dreams about making the prisoner self supporting. Other governors see in convict labor a solution of all their penal problems; especially expense. But Governor Groesbeck refuses to be led astray by his interests in convicts.

"Too many of them are ill. Too many are lazy, and too many are bad." That is the way he summed them up; and then he added: "It is impossible to expect the good ones, who will work, to support all the others. It can't be done. But the state can and should provide work for all its convicts who are capable of performing it."

Groesbeck's interest in prisons is not a perfunctory thing. He doesn't hesitate to spend as much time as necessary within the prison walls. Not long ago, reports came to him of revolting moral conditions in a state industrial school. Most governors would have appointed an investigating commission. "A. J." jumped into his car, took a stenographer with him, arrived unexpectedly at the institution, took testimony from the inmates until two in the morning and fired the whole school management.

"I found the superintendent of one of our institutions," he told me, "sitting in his office with his feet on his desk. Before him stood a line of inmates who had come to ask some special favors or changes in their conditions. As each one approached the desk, the old man snarled, 'Well, what do you want?'"

The poor fellow would state his case. The old man would shake his head in denial. Then the next one would speak up only to have his request turned down. The big bully with his feet-on-the-desk was having the time of his life. Well, he had a lot of political friends. Some of them helped to kill my motor license bill. They'll try to kill anything else I try to do. For that old man isn't working for the state any more."

The governor and his sister live together in the ground floor apartment of the large brick house that used to be the Groesbeck mansion. "All you'll see," said Governor Groesbeck as he suggested running out to the house in his car, "is a little apartment. One of my governor friends was telling me not long ago that his state paid him ten thousand dollars a year, gave him an executive mansion and made him an allowance of fifteen thousand dollars a year to run it. But Michigan pays its governors only five thousand a year—and they eat themselves."

It is a little apartment. There is a certain dark solidity about the Groesbeck home that accords with the appearance and character of its owner. The heavy mahogany woodwork bespeaks strength and elegance rather than beauty; and the substantial furniture has obviously been selected on the same basis. There are almost no family portraits; and few signs of the governor's occupancy.

"A. J." makes no apologies for his continuing bachelorhood. In his youth, he never cared for dancing and society. In his early business life he was too busy to think about girls. And now, in his honorable middle years he lives in a world of his own creation. Perhaps, if someone could convince him that romance needed a new administrative code or that the relations between man and woman needed a thorough overhauling with a view of putting them on a business-like and constructive basis maybe "A. J." could be persuaded to look into the matter. He might consider it "a nice job to do." But as for love for love's sake, the good looking young governor of Michigan is too—well, it's my opinion that he was born to be a lonely soul.

Officially however, "A. J." has few equals. He is honest above the breath of suspicion; thrifty in the administration of the people's money as if it were his own; brave in the face of friend and foe; clean, frank, direct, conservative, constructive—the kind of a man we so seldom elect, and always should re-elect.

erations are now in progress. Here, modern lumbering methods were in use and waste reduced to a minimum. Every stick is used and the brush is stacked in neat piles instead of being scattered around after the fashion of the old time lumber woods. Also, the cut is made close to the ground so that but little stumpage is left. From there the party entered the old choppings, where the stumps are at least four feet from the ground on an average and nothing but the best logs taken out. The tops lay just where the trees had dropped, making a continuous jungle of tree tops, mingled with second growth of maple and birch.

Our tourists' first sight of Munising was from the grove at the top of the line of hills that lie in rear of the town. From here the view beggars description. The town nestles at the foot of the hills at the end of a long and narrow bay of enchanting beauty, the uplands that surround it covered with birch, maple and scattering hemlocks. From the town they drove to the tourist camp, which is two and a half miles from Munising and located on one of the horns of the bay, near its mouth and opposite Grand Island, which lies directly in the channel between the two points of land. Here on Thursday noon, September 18th, they ate their dinner in a beautiful grove of jack-pine and birch right on the shore of the bay. From here one can look across to Grand Island and up through the channel to another small island, Lake Superior stretching before one in all its majestic grandeur as far as the eye can reach.

steps. Our travelers visited several stores there and asked about the town. They learned that while the people of Munising appreciated, after a fashion, the fact that they were living in a very beautiful place, still, they had no idea of making the most of it and attracting the tourist's attention to the beauty spots of the neighborhood. One of the prettiest places near the town was the falls above the hydro-electric power plant. At this point there are three distinct falls and there is one place where, as at Niagara, you can walk right in back of the falls and the water is falling down over you.

There are nice homes and stores in Munising and the streets are well kept up. Our party left there Thursday afternoon, headed for Marquette. The highway, the railway and the river follow the valley out of Munising. The road is tarvia-topped with a curve about every forty rods. It must have cost the state considerable money to put up the "Curve Ahead" and Cross-road signs, as every one is marked. This valley is filled with mostly second-growth hardwood and there is some first growth timber still untouched there. As one travels along on Upper Peninsula road, he can't help wondering what lies around the next curve, as it is impossible to see any great distance ahead. The road, under discussion, winds around and in some places is built right along the brink of a sheer drop of considerable distance to the valley below—sometimes fifty and sometimes a hundred feet. Presently, you leave the woods and enter upon a region of scattering farm and small communities.

The Charlevoix tourists traveled the last fifteen or sixteen miles into Marquette over a perfect tarvia road, passing the forbidding brown-stone bulk of the state prison on the way. Here they saw, grazing nearby, the pfisoa herd of some forty or fifty Holsteins. The party continued on through Marquette to the tourist camp where they slept Thursday night. Both the camp at Munising and the one at Marquette are furnished with stoves and electric lights and are very attractive places to camp. Marquette is planning to have ready for next season an elaborately equipped tourist camp, with rest room, community kitchen and bathing and boating facilities. The city is also building a new hydro-electric power plant and dam, the pond above the later being used for boating. Sand is being drawn from a nearby hill to make a beach for bathing opposite the camp.

In short, Marquette is after the tourist business, realizing most keenly what it will mean to them. Every place our tourists visited in the city they were asked where they were from and where they were going and were advised to see this or that point of attraction before leaving Marquette. Among such places, they visited the state park on Presque Isle, Presque Isle, which is in fact a promontory rather than an island, is at the end of a narrow neck or strip of land which widens out to form the Isle. The park, which is maintained by the state of Michigan, is circled by a fine gravel drive winding through second-growth timber, mostly jack-pines, hitches and aspens, with a few hemlocks, for a distance of some two and a half miles. Every point of interest is marked. In some places there, the ground rises from sixty to eighty feet above the lake level and one may stand upon a cliff edge, facing a sheer drop to the water far below.

At various places of vantage about the island, tables and benches for the convenience of picnickers and tourists are located. One of the park keepers informed our party that there were from 75 to 80 deer on the Isle. They caught a glimpse of some nine or ten before leaving the place. Near the entrance to the island or promontory, a dancing casino, refreshment booths and a place to rent boats are located. There is also a bathing pavilion, although the waters of Lake Superior are rather chilly the year around, as a rule. They have a menagerie there, as well, with a collection of owls, eagles, pheasants and the largest black bear that members of the party had ever seen.

Among other interesting sights in and around Marquette are the two big iron ore docks, said to be the largest in the world, with huge barges loading alongside by means of automatic machinery from trains of dump cars which are continually being shunted back and forth as they are loaded and unloaded.

Leaving Marquette, our tourists journeyed on over a wonderful road to the mining town of Negaunee, where they again found well-kept streets and a prosperous looking homes. Every inch of the way into Negaunee was over tarvin-topped roads, through mile after mile of second-growth timber. From Negaunee they continued to Ishpeming, which is a town of about the same character as Negaunee, but perhaps a trifle larger. The road between the two cities is lined with huge rock formations. On leaving Ishpeming, the travellers passed the spot where stands a beautiful stone monument, commemorating the discovery of iron ore. Mining is the principal industry in this region. Everywhere along the route you see mine buildings, dumps, derricks, ore trains and all the varied miscellany of equipment that one expects to see in mining districts.

From Ishpeming the party proceeded to Humboldt over a monotonously and marvellously perfect tarvia-topped highway leading through a sparsely settled region, given over to farming—wherever soil enough for cultivation can be found on top of the rock (and the farms are surprisingly good for all that). With a passing glance at Humboldt, our tourists headed south for Iron Mountain, stopping at a point about half way between the two towns—a small resort known as Sawyer's Lake, where they spent the night of Friday, September 19th, in a hangar rented for the short duration of their stop-off.

Saturday morning they entered Iron Mountain, another thriving town, which serves as a distributing point for a wide territory and is the largest town in that region, with saw-mills, mines, beautiful stores and prosperous homes. As the travellers were now on the home stretch, they spent but little time here and kept on to Escanaba, a railroad center of some 15,000 population with extensive lumbering and other industrial interests. It is also the stronghold of organized labor for the western end of the northern peninsula.

Eight miles beyond at Gladstone on little Bay de Noc, the party made their last bivouac en route, putting up for the night at the tourist camp which is located on the shore of the bay in a small grove of birch and jack-pine. This was the most completely equipped tourist camp that they had visited on the entire journey, it having a community kitchen, lights and water on tap throughout the grounds and every convenience, but, being located along a main travelled road, their slumbers were disturbed by the continual "whoosh, whoosh" of passing cars which continued throughout the night without let-up. It seemed that all of the folks in Escanaba visited Gladstone that evening and the good people of Gladstone returned the visit pronto, everyone seeming to be in a deuce of a hurry.

Sunday morning the tourists made the run to Manistique through the older part of the upper peninsula a district of fairly prosperous looking farm lands, dotted here and there with little hamlets and villages. The farms displayed some excellent buildings and there were some prime orchards.

In Manistique our travellers found another industrial town. Here is the terminus of the great Ann Arbor car ferry line and, while the boats could not be seen on account of the fog that had settled down over everything, the deep-throated whistles could be heard from time to time as the big vessels ploughed their way heavily to and from Frankfort. At about ten o'clock it started to rain and the party continued on to St. Ignace, soon running into a terrific storm. When they reached Rexton Sunday night the wind was steadily increasing in violence and a council of war was held, it finally being decided to put up there for the night. The party was influenced in this decision by the fact that their road from Rexton led for at least twenty miles through the hardwoods, where it was safe to assume that trees would be falling. They realized their wisdom Monday morning as they drove on towards St. Ignace. M-12 runs through mile after mile of hardwoods in the Cut River district and here trees lay across the trail on an average of every twenty rods. Practically all of the road men in that section were on the job that morning, clearing the fallen timber from the highway.

The adventurers finally arrived at St. Ignace at eleven o'clock and, after a twenty-five minute wait for the ferry, started across, reaching Mackinac at 12:30 p. m. They were home in Charlevoix at four o'clock, having covered, according to their speedometers, a distance of 755 miles for the trip.

Among matters which the travelers found especially worthy of comment on the trip were, first, the roads. All roads in the upper peninsula are either now or are being covered with tarvia and most of them are nearly as smooth as floors, especially those stretches between Iron Mountain and Gould City and through the territory lying between Marquette and Negaunee. East of Gould City, the roads are either of gravel newly constructed or old gravel being made ready for the tar.

Next, the road signs. The state has spent an enormous amount of money on the proper marking of curves, bridges, railroad and highway crossings. The signs are well made and are put up with a view to their becoming a permanent and important part of the landscape. Tourists using only ordinary judgment and a mere modicum of common sense may keep free of accident.

Thirdly, comes the marked hospitality and courtesy of the people. From the officials on the car ferries to the park keepers and citizens of the towns through which they passed, all seemed actuated by a sincere desire to be of assistance to the visitor and to contribute to the pleasure and satisfaction of their passing guests. And this attitude is bearing fruit, as witness the fact that the tourist traffic, according to the conservative estimates of business men of that region is 50 per cent greater this year than last and was 50 per cent greater last year than the year previous. They are planning next season on an even heavier tourist business and the upper peninsula, with all its beautiful drives and scenery, its splendid roads and many points of interest, stands an excellent chance of coming into serious competition with the southern peninsula resorts.

districts shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory with regular boundaries following the county, city, or township lines as nearly as possible and shall contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of registered and qualified voters. The secretary of state, the attorney general, and the lieutenant governor, acting as a board of review, shall on or before the first day of April, 1925, and every eighth year thereafter, divide the territory of the state into one hundred representative districts. Such districts shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory with regular boundaries following the county, city, or township lines as nearly as possible and shall contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of registered and qualified voters. Provided, that in the formation of such districts no township shall be divided thereby.

"Section 4. On or before the first day of January, 1925, and every eighth year thereafter, the clerks of the several counties, cities and townships shall cause to be filed with the secretary of state a certified statement of the number of registered and qualified voters resident therein at the last presidential election."

The effect of this proposed amendment, if adopted, will be authorize a division of the state into senatorial and representative districts by a board of review consisting of the secretary of state, the attorney general, and the lieutenant governor.

TOUR THE NORTH- WEST IN A DODGE

DR. AND MRS. FRANK WILKINSON
SON HAVE FINE TRIP

Pass Through Fourteen States and Visit Many Interesting Places En Route

Dr. and Mrs. Frank H. Wilkinson of this city have recently returned from an automobile tour of the north-west which consumed a period of about two and a half months, during which time they traveled approximately eight thousand miles, a distance representing nearly a quarter of the world's circumference.

Dr. Wilkinson left here on July 3rd last in his car, a Dodge touring model of 1923, for Fort Snelling, Minn., where he was booked to enter the Reserve Officers Training camp. At the close of the camp, on July 20th he was joined there by Mrs. Wilkinson and the couple started on their long journey westward over the Yellowstone Trail, through the Dakotas to Montana and the Yellowstone Park, where they spent ten days, taking a side trip to the famous Grasshopper Glacier and did a little mountain climbing. The glacier is about 12,000 feet above sea level and during the glacial period many thousands of years ago a vast number of grasshoppers were evidently caught in a storm, became paralyzed and their bodies to the number of many millions imbedded in the ice of the glacier. One may pick up bits of wings, heads and legs everywhere about the surface of the glacier and certain strata of the huge ice pile are fairly black with the massed remains of the entombed hoppers. Peculiarly enough, these grasshoppers, who were evidently destroyed while passing over the mountains during some great insect migration, apparently do not differ in any material respect from our modern grasshopper. At the altitude which the Wilkinsons visited it takes an hour and a half to boil potatoes which have been put on the fire after the water starts to boil, so rarefied is the atmosphere.

They also managed to get in quite a little fishing while in the park. This they found excellent, as the streams are fished but little. The doctor noted quite a few varieties of trout, unfamiliar to our streams, including the peculiar cut-throat species, which have a slash of blood red coloring just back of the gills, giving them the appearance of having their throats cut. In western Montana they found the familiar brook trout of Michigan waters. And—speaking of fisheries—at Bozeman, Montana, they met Dick Finucan, who is employed at the hatchery there. It was at Bozeman that they took in a rodeo, or, rather, a species of entertainment made familiar and famous in latter day literature.

From Bozeman the party continued over the passes of the Bitterroot mountains and by the way of Wallace and Cour De Lene, Idaho, to Spokane, Washington, where they spent a couple of days sight seeing, passing through the vast stretches of Washington wheat lands en route, the crop, as they found, having been pretty hard hit by the long dry spell, some of the yields not averaging over ten bushels to the acre. The wheat growers make use of the combination harvester in reaping their crops, the machine cutting the grain, threshing it and bagging it in continuous operation as it moves along, drawn by a string of twenty horses, a gasoline engine operating the machinery. When the travelers came to the irrigated sections of the state they noticed an immediate and marked difference in the looks of the soil and crops. These districts were in good shape. Nearing Seattle, they passed through several of the national forests, where they found immense stands of Douglas fir, the trees ranging from four to six feet in diameter at the butt and reaching skywards, straight as a plumb line, from two to three hundred feet above the ground. They come second in size to the immense Sequoias of California.

At Seattle, a town with which they were very much impressed, they found the vessels of the Pacific fleet assembled and the city's population and officialdom engaged in a week of entertainment for the officers and men of Admiral Koonitz's squadron, which consists of some eight or ten battleships, several cruisers and a number of destroyers, colliers and other minor craft. While there they witnessed a cutter race on Lake Washington between the picked boat crews of twelve different ships of the fleet. Lake Washington is an inland lake near Seattle, connected with Puget Sound by a canal. It is accessible to ships of deep draught which enter it, on their visits to Seattle, to remain at anchor a few days until the fresh water has dissolved the barnacles accumulated by long contact with salt water.

From Seattle they drove south some hundred fifty to two hundred miles to Tacoma, where they visited the Mt. Ranier-Tacoma national park and two of the glaciers, the Misqually and Paradise, exploring the ice caves and noting more vast tracts of Douglas fir. Thence they returned to Tacoma and continued southward to Olympia and Portland, Oregon. The doctor says that the three last named cities did not appeal to him, especially Olympia, which did not appear to amount to much, but he found Seattle booming and both he and Mrs. Wilkinson were delighted with this big bustling coast city, which during the last quarter century has developed through its vast surrounding resources and advantageous geographical location to a city of first class proportions.

CAR IS WRECKED ON WAY TO GAME

FIVE FANS BOUND FOR MANCELONA ARE INJURED

Machine Turns Turtle After Striking a Patch of Loose Gravel Near Alba

Five possibly over-enthusiastic football fans, travelling in a Ford touring car to the scene of the Mancelona-Charlevoix game last Saturday, came to grief on the highway about a half-mile this side of Alba. They saw a doctor instead of the game and are now bearing the more or less serious marks of their mishap.

Donald Swinton was driving, with Earl Crandall beside him, while Norman Shanahan, Mark Smith and Ralph Burns occupied the rear seat. They were bowling along at about twenty-five miles an hour when their car struck a spot of loose gravel, slewing violently to both sides and finally turning turtle twice.

The boys in the rear seat were thrown out and two of them, Norman Shanahan and young Burns were seriously injured, Shanahan suffering a dislocated left elbow, a bad scalp wound, a severely gashed hand and a bruised hip and Burns received a cut over the head that rendered him unconscious for several minutes. The other fellows were badly bruised and shaken but not otherwise injured.

The car lost two wheels and was badly jammed up. A passing car took the accident victims to Alba, where a doctor was found to dress their wounds, while the car was being repaired at a nearby garage. Six stitches were taken in Norman's hand, which, with the resetting of the dislocated elbow, he suffered without an anesthetic. They returned to Charlevoix in their car later in the day and are now attending school as usual, fortunately not being forced to lose any time on account of their injuries.

This is young Shanahan's third automobile accident, in each of which he has received more or less serious injury.

The dangers of loose gravel cannot be too emphatically emphasized to the car driver. Even traveling at moderate speeds, it presents a menace to the automobilist of the first magnitude and there is but little hope of getting back on an even keel again after the wheels once begin to skid in the treacherous stuff.

SPORTSMEN ASK CHANGE IN LAWS

WILL ASK COMING LEGISLATURE FOR 10 CHANGES

Michigan Congress of Game Associations Advocate Laws That Will Be Beneficial

The Michigan Congress of Game Associations which held its annual meeting in Grand Rapids, Tuesday, October 7, advocated ten changes in Michigan game laws.

Sportsmen will ask the coming Michigan legislature to adopt the ten changes listed below:

1. That a four day open season on ring necked pheasants be declared for the years 1925 and 1926; shooting period to be the last two Thursdays in October and the first two Saturdays in November; the bag limit to be three male birds in one season.

2. That the congress work out a feasible tag system law for the protection of partridge.

3. That a protection on black and brown bear be declared, and that an open season similar to that on deer be declared; the bag limit to be one bear per person and that the use of bear traps be prohibited in the state of Michigan.

4. That a bag limit of five be placed on the different species of bass, (small and large mouthed), also all the different species of pike; five of each in possession at one time; no size limit on any of these species; this measure to be uniform throughout Michigan.

5. That the bag limit on all pan-fish, such as perch, blue gills, rock bass, calico bass, be reduced to twenty-five in any one day, and twenty-five in possession at one time; no size limit on any of the species, this measure to be uniform throughout the state.

6. That the bag limit on brook, rainbow and German brown trout be placed at fifteen of the combined species in one day, and twenty-five of the combined species in possession at any one time; no size limit on any of these species, this measure to be uniform throughout Michigan.

7. That the use of spears be prohibited in all the waters of Michigan at all times.

8. That all fishing except the different species of trout (speckled, rainbow and brown) be prohibited from April 1st to June 15th inclusive, in all inland and tributary waters.

9. That a combined fishing and hunting license be issued for resident hunters and fishermen, twelve years or over, who are citizens of the state, to be sold at $1; alien and non-resident license fee $5.00 for fishing only.

10. That the fish and game laws of the state be simplified and codified.

HOSPITAL NOTES

SPORTSMEN ASK FOR ANGLERS' LICENSE

U. P. Anglers Make Fight for Passage of Bill

The Upper Peninsula Sportsmen's association is again renewing its agitation for an anglers' license and will endeavor to secure the passage of such a bill through the next legislature. A license fee of one dollar to be imposed on all fishermen is quite generally favored by upper peninsula sportsmen.

The opposition to the angler's license is said to come from the industrial centers of lower Michigan and it has been suggested that this opposition can be met if the license is required only of those who take game fish. The men in the factory towns do a great deal of fishing for suckers, hulkheads, perch, carp and other non-game fishes, and it is thought that if the licenses cannot be passed except as limited to game fish, it is better to take it in that form than not at all, provided of course, that the proceeds of the licenses are devoted to stocking game fish. By this plan the men upon whom the tax is laid would be directly benefited by the proceeds. It is to be kept in mind that women and children would not be affected by the proposed legislation and that if possible an effort will be made to place upon aliens a license fee equivalent to at least the non-resident tax. —Newberry News.

C. H. S. LOSES ITS FIRST GAME

GAME WITH MANCELONA SAT-URDAY HARD FOUGHT

Both Teams Seemed Weak on the Offensive Though Their Defense Was Good

Saturday, the Charlevoix high school foot ball team journeyed to Mancelona for the first foot ball game of the season.

The game was hard fought, as is indicated by the score, but it does not give as much credit to the local team as it deserves.

Mancelona was playing its third game, thereby having a decided advantage of knowing what to do under fire, while Charlevoix had to find that out, it being our first contest.

During the first half Charlevoix kept the ball well advanced on Mancelona's territory, never once passing the 50-yard line into Charlevoix's ground. Mancelona could not gain an inch through our line and Charlevoix could not gain through the Mancelona line. The first half was a punting duel between Jones and the Mancelona fullback, with Jones having the best of the argument, placing his punts to better advantage. Both teams played a wonderful defense but the offense was ragged and neither team seemed to be able to penetrate the other's line for any substantial gains. First downs were made on very few instances by either team.

During the second half of the game Mancelona resorted to forward passes and, being in possession of a sure and accurate passer, they were able to complete pass after pass until the ball neared the goal line, when Charlevoix would hold and immediately take it away from Mancelona and get it out of danger. Mancelona made the lone score in the last three minutes of play by dropping a field goal from the 25-yard line. This was the only scoring during the game.

The Charlevoix team, considering the number of men who were playing their first game, put up one of the best fights that could be asked of them. With practice to iron out the mistakes, Charlevoix should have a good team as long as that determination and team-play is always kept in mind.

There will be no game this week, but on Friday afternoon, October 17th, C. H. S. will play Traverse City here. Turn out, fans, and give your team hearty support.

MAKE PLANS FOR 1925 COUNTY FAIR

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Work of Past Year Reviewed and Books Balanced—Decide on Four-Day Fair

Charlevoix County Fair officers and directors met at the People's State Savings bank parlors in East Jordan last Saturday afternoon, September 27th, for the regular fall meeting says the East Jordan Herald.

The past year's work was reviewed and the books balanced. Plans for the 1925 annual exhibit were reviewed. Committees were appointed and superintendents of the various divisions named.

It was decided to make next year's exhibit a four-day fair, instead of five as in the past few years. Dates for the 1925 Fair were left with the executive board to be decided upon later.

The basis of awarding school students free tickets was changed to a basis of average standing for the year. City pupils will be required to have an average standing of eighty-five per cent in all subjects, and rural pupils eighty per cent in all subjects during the school year. This is considered a better basis than the old one based on attendance.

Many other matters of importance were discussed by the directors and officers. Bad weather cut down the gate receipts for 1924, but the finances of the association are in the best condition they have been in years. Saturday's meeting was harmonious and the forty-first annual exhibit for 1925 presages good.

Let Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

Save Your Car

THE batteries and starting motor of your car are the headquarters of its emotional system. A heavy engine wears out the batteries, just as it would wear out your patience and your strength should you try to turn it over with a crank.

It is not so far-fetched as it may seem, to compare engine mechanism with human mechanism. Every one who drives has remarked the individuality and responsiveness, or lack of it, in the car he handles.

Red Crown Gasoline increases engine responsiveness. It vaporizes at a low temperature and burns completely to the end of the piston stroke.

It relieves the strain on your starting motor and batteries. This is one of the many economy features in Red Crown. Red Crown makes batteries last longer and give better service.

The "satisfaction" service of Red Crown lies in your thrill at the ready response when you touch the starting motor—at the flexibility of your engine and the steady flow of sustained pulling power.

Satisfaction Plus Economy—in this unusual combination lies the true reason for Red Crown popularity. And remember this: permanent satisfaction in a gasoline lies in never changing. Use Red Crown all the time. It's easy to do so, for Red Crown distribution is nearly 100% perfect. You can find it everywhere and everywhere the same.

M. E. CHURCH

Sunday, October 12.

We begin the sabbath with service at ten-thirty. Hear the pastor preach. This Sunday the theme will be "Religion and Its Application to Everyday."

Text: Pure Religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to keep oneself unstained from the world.

The invitation is to members and friends of the church.

Sunday school is recognized inter-denominationally as the best means for all round Bible study. The organization is so constructed that people of all ages can cooperate. Infants are recorded in the cradle roll, small children in the beginner's department, boys and girls in the intermediate, young people as Juniors and those of riper years as seniors. There is a place for everyone in one of the Sunday schools of our city. Then why not find your place? At the hour of twelve noon, right after church, mingle with the others and remain to Sunday school.

The Junior League work demands our careful attention. Here instruction is given in the bible, song and prayer. Leaders are trained and workers are discovered. At promptly three o'clock the superintendent will meet the boys and girls for the best kind of cooperation in junior young people's work.

Years ago the various kinds of young people's societies were organized into what we now know as the Epworth League. The four departments are severally presided over by vice-presidents, while the president is over all. The Epworth League provides training in recreation, social service, missionary activities. The meeting here convenes at six o'clock (note the change in the hour). A competent leader will challenge everyone attending to make this the one interesting service of the church. "Come and see."

Evening worship now begins at seven o'clock. An audience of eighty folks started us off last Sunday night. That was fair. Some who read this notice weren't in any church last Sunday evening. We will

FAVORS CO-OPERATIVE PRINCIPLE

HOOVER TALKS ON MARKETING TO DAIRYMEN

Tells American Federation Future of Agriculture Depends on Co-operation

I wish on this occasion to discuss certain phases of cooperative marketing, and to lay before you for your consideration some suggestions that I feel would make for the advancement and the improvement of our whole marketing system. Please observe that this is a strictly non-political topic.

I wish to state at the outset my firm faith that the future of our marketing of agricultural products lies in the larger development of the cooperative principle. I believe the time has come when we must take strong and definite steps in its further development.

When we consider the substitution of the new agency of distribution for the old one, we are considering a business proposition not any emotional or a political one. The word "cooperative" carries no magic in the sale of goods; it must justify itself as a purely commercial operation. The success of any marketing agency must rest at once on the foundation that it can mobilize economies in distribution which are not open to its competitors and that it can show equivalent skill in administration. The agricultural cooperative when rightly adapted to its work, can secure certain advantages in distribution which no individual competitor can amass.

We should not mislead ourselves into thinking that cooperation is the complete solution of the problem of marketing all agricultural produce. Nor is the form of cooperative organization the same in any two commodities. Moreover, the American system is not to be built successfully upon the experiences of Europe, where marketing is mostly of a local character, and where our great distances between producer and consumer are unknown.

Our marketing system is most wasteful, but to improve, its organization we must build from our own experience and in a way fitting to each commodity and community. To my mind the whole problem of improved marketing is elimination of waste. For a reduction of waste of materials and motion between the farmer and the consumer is a gain to both of them. But the method for its conservation must be worked out for every community and every commodity.

In order to develop the suggestions of certain steps in marketing system which I propose to lay before you, I shall address myself to the perishables—that is, dairy products, fruits and vegetables. Even they vary greatly in the character of the required organization. But they do illustrate most vividly certain factors which apply in lesser or greater degree in other agricultural produce.

If we examine the subject from a waste point of view we find the major wastes as follows:

1. The waste of an unnecessary number of purchase and sale transactions, that is, an unnecessary number of links in the distribution chain and an unnecessary number of different chains from the same center of production to the same center of consumption.
2. The waste in transportation of inferior and unsaleable products.
3. The waste in decay arising from delayed movements and repeated handling.
4. The waste from inadequate facilities for expeditious handling, both in transportation and at terminals, and the waste in unnecessary transportation through blind consignment and cross-hauls in search of consumers.

facilities for expeditious handling, both in transportation and at terminals, and the waste in unnecessary transportation through blind consignment and cross-hauls in search of consumers.

5. The waste from uncontrolled distribution by which local gluts and famines are created, with consequent destructive fluctuation in price levels and stimulation of speculation.

6. The waste from the destruction of agricultural capital itself through inadequate return by crowding the market in periods of slight over-production.

7. The waste in cost of speculation and hazards in distribution produced by all of the above, because either the producer or the consumer must pay through larger margins to cover such risks.

Cooperative marketing has been developing for many years, and any study of it will show that it has succeeded just so far as it has eliminated some of these wastes. But I do not know a single cooperative that has been able to save more than a part of them. If we can set an organization going which will eliminate all the wastes, or any large part of them we shall have brought about a revolution in our distribution system.

What these wastes amount to cannot, of course, be determined. Some figures throw a little light on their volume, even in some of their minor phases. In 1923 the railways paid over $10,000,000 for deterioration and losses in course of shipment of perishables. Something like 4 per cent of the rates were thus paid out, and the freight rates are just that much higher because of these damages. This is but a fraction of the damages from deterioration alone, and there are other even larger wastes in transportation itself because of unnecessary haulage and delays, due to the fact that our present system requires a vast amount of reconsignment. A car of melons, for instance, reconsigned four times, traveled 3100 miles over indirect lines, and after 36 days on the road arrived totally decayed—when it could have been sent to its destination direct in 10 days at a saving of a thousand miles of transportation and the saving of the entire value of the shipment. I should guess that the total freight paid by the perishable industry could be reduced at least 20 per cent if these wastes alone were eliminated. This is but one category of waste out of seven.

Now there are several steps in organization which I believe must be brought into action if we are to accomplish these purposes. These steps in my view comprise a greater confidence among the producers in the organization and administration of co-operatives; a much enlarged vision as to the use of standardization of quality, and government inspection and certification of it, as a method of simplifying commercial transactions; a larger measure of unity in control of distribution; the conversion into alternative by-products of occasional seasonal surpluses; the elimination of that small, yet very irritating, amount of irresponsibility among terminal marketing distributors; and finally the improvement of terminal marketing facilities.

Nor do I believe that these things can be wholly accomplished through co-operatives alone. While the co-operatives can carry the distribution chain up to the terminals, it is my belief that for a great number of years to come at any rate, the distribution of produce at the great terminal markets will rest in the hands of commission men and wholesalers; and that we need to mobilize their interest and service also in building up a better marketing system.

Of the points I have mentioned standardization and government certification before shipment can be made to serve a commercial purpose far greater than has been hitherto conceived. The value of standardization, both in the assurance of reliable qualities in goods to the consumer, and in the elimination of the waste and fraud in shipment of inferior and unsaleable products, is well recognized. In the dairy industry it has proceeded further than in most others and that experience is the great warranty for its extension.

But a larger benefit from standardization even than this will come to the producer if we can so establish confidence and guarantee standards of quality that actual purchase and sale transactions will be consummated more extensively at the door of the producer than at the terminal. Here lie the most important economies. As long as products are not standardized and confidence established in them they must be sold subject to inspection by the buyer. At this point then is always room for contention. When this dispute takes place thousands of miles from the producer and out of his control it can only lead to a certain amount of repudiation and fraud. If by degrees we can bring the point of transaction back to the producer, he would have an infinitely larger voice in price. Furthermore, if the sale takes place at the door of the producer, it will, nine times out of ten, originate from some particular terminal market, and the problem of transportation will thus be greatly simplified because the commodity will move directly to its point of destination. Standards will help to relieve the market of surplus production by excluding from distribution the lower grades. In the long run I do not believe that anybody can prepare commodities into standard grades except co-operatives, or that anyone can guarantee those standards except by government certification. A multitude of independent shippers cannot do it, no matter how hard they endeavor to build up a multitude of special trade marks.

If we are to eliminate local gluts, famines, reconsignments—all of which entail waste and risk—we must develop a unity of control in the shipping of these commodities by which they can be supplied more directly to the markets as they are consumed. Any student of our present marketing can point out terminals every week where a surplus has been piled up through many independent agencies shooting at the same mark, and these parallel with famines in other markets. This again is a step beyond the usual conception of cooperative marketing organization. Co-operatives have hitherto been more largely concerned in the elimination of unnecessary links in the distribution chain than in the regulation of flow. There are some co-operatives, such as the citrus growers, who do regulate the flow, but even in this case there is no unity of action between California and Florida, and they repeatedly drown some market. Thus there is a unity of interest between co-operatives far removed from each other who deal in the same market.

Our production in all perishables is greatly influenced by the season. Naturally we must maintain orchards, vineyards, gardens and dairy farms upon a basis that will supply us in average seasons. A good season brings overproduction and, often enough, demoralization to the whole industry. There lies right here a great human problem.

These occupations of specialized and intensive agriculture have built the finest communities, the highest qualities of home and civilization upon our continent. They involve large capital per acre. Periodic overproduction spells their ruin. I can see but one solution. The perishable production in excess of demand, or at least the inferior grades in such cases, should be converted into more permanent by-products and other outlets found. But the by-product invariably yields a lower return than the main product. The burden of participating in this partial loss can only be distributed if all the producers will enter into cooperation. If they will not, a fair price for their main product is destroyed, with every excessive season.

I expect these latter suggestions will be set upon by someone with the charge that they would result in an unbearable monopoly controlling prices. But there is a self-governing control of prices in agricultural products which distinguishes them from all others. It is even more vivid in the case of perishables than in other agricultural commodities, for when produced they must be sold and sold quickly or they spoil. Any attempt to increase prices of perishables over fair levels immediately results in a decrease in consumption; and in all agricultural commodities higher than fair prices at once stimulate production. There can never be a combination of farmers than can rob the public. No agriculture can set up artificial barriers against the long-run effect of supply and demand; for increased production stands ready for action, with advancing speed at every cent advance in price over the fair return to the farmer.

Knowledge that pays!

You gain a degree of satisfaction just in knowing things—what Einstein believes, how radium burns, which kings are still holding thrones. Yet such knowledge gives you little more than just that satisfaction.

By reading advertisements, you gain knowledge that pays—that pays you definitely in time, money comfort and convenience.

Each week in these pages, advertisers tell you of products devised to make you happier. They seek to arouse you to improvements that will enrich your home, lessen your work.

By reading the advertisements, you can know where to secure the best and most serviceable for you. You can avoid inferior goods and uncertain shopping. You can save.

Read the advertisements. You owe it to the advertisers who are trying to serve you—and to yourself.

TEAMWORK FOR OUR TOWN
In every city, town and hamlet we may find strong competition in business, differences in politics and religion, social rivalries and personal antagonisms—and these will probably always exist to a greater or less extent.

But there is one common ground on which all should be willing to meet, laying aside personal grievances and prejudices—that is, where the common welfare of "our town" is concerned.

In other words, no matter how much we may disagree and fight among ourselves, we should stand up for our town against all opposition.
This sort of teamwork is what makes a town worth while, insures its progress and a better understanding among its people.

By joining with an enemy or rival in some movement for the betterment of the community, we often find him to be a pretty good sort of fellow, after all.

Development of a strong community spirit is essential to community advancements and no personal feelings should be permitted to stand in its way. Loyalty and teamwork are the things that count.

AUTOMOBILE TOLL OF LIVES

Fourteen hundred killed in one disaster would shock the nation, yet approximately that number, 1,398, to be exact, met death during the first eight months of this year in New York state alone through automobile accidents, without exciting any particular attention.

While medicine and surgery are working wonders in the saving of human life, the grim toll of the automobile mounts higher and higher each year.

Most of this terrible sacrifice is entirely unnecessary, being caused by reckless or incompetent drivers.

The pity of it is that so many of the victims are merely passengers in the wrecked cars, killed and maimed through no fault of their own.

If irresponsible speed maniacs destroyed only themselves, there would be less cause for grief, but unhappily they often escape, while helpless victims pay with their lives for the folly of these criminally careless drivers.

PIONEER BUSINESS MAN HAS RETIRED

John Fagan Sells Out to Lemieur and Alexander

Philip Lemieur, former partner of Hiram Pearl in the cigar and tobacco business, and Ed Alexander of East Jordan, who formerly conducted a cigar store and pool room in East Jordan, have purchased the stock and fixtures of John Fagan and took possession of their new venture on Tuesday, October 7th. Mr. Fagan retains ownership of the building.

Mr. Fagan and son, Arthur W.
Fagan, will probably leave some time later this fall for Santa Monica, near Los Angeles, California, where Arthur is contemplating the opening of a photography studio.

Mr. Fagan came to this city about thirty years ago and was for a time engaged in the fishing business. The cigar store and pool room which has just changed hands has been conducted in its present location for the past twenty-five years.

Dress yourself in all-wool clothing and you will be comfortable in cold weather. See our line. Benj. Brown.

sions which had to be dispelled.
Human nature and inhuman nature both remain unchanged and they are our masters."

SOME SIMPLER CAKES

During cold weather when such cakes may be made and kept, the following will be enjoyed:

Pork Cake.—Shiner together for two to three hours one cupful of malasses, two cupfuls of chopped dried apple, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg.

To one cupful of salt
pork, entirely fat, chopped very fine, add one cupful of boiling water. Add to the malasses mixture with one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of raisins, three well-beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar and just flour enough to make of the desired consistency. Bake in a moderate oven.

Lightning Cake.—Break the whites of two eggs in a half pint measuring cup, add softened butter to make half cupful, then all the cup with milk and water. Add to a bowl with flavoring and beat with a Dover egg beater for seven minutes, after adding one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one cupful of sugar, and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted three times. Bake in a sheet or layer tins.

Quick Cake.—Put one-third of a cupful of softened butter into a bowl, add one and one-third cupfuls of brown sugar, two eggs, one-half cupful of milk, one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful each of nutmeg and cinnamon; beat all together with a wooden spoon for three minutes, add one-half pound of dates stoned and cut into bits.
Bake thirty-five minutes in a baking sheet. Ice with plain frosting and serve cut into squares.

Orange Cake.—Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar gradually, two eggs well beaten and one-half cupful of milk. Add one and two-thirds cupfuls of flour sifted with two and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Flavor with orange and bake in a sheet. Cut in halves and put together with orange filling and cover with orange frosting.

MISS McCANN EN- TERTAINS FRIENDS

Merry Party Spends the Week-End at Norwood

Miss Irene McCann of this city recently entertained twelve of her young lady friends at the home of John H. McCann in Norwood, which was formerly the Van Dusen property, purchased by Mr. McCann about a year ago and which has already been the scene of several delightful social affairs.

The guests spent last Saturday and Sunday in the various enjoyable activities common to week-end parties, exploring, hiking and having a general good time and all voted Miss Irene a wonderful success as a hostess.

The party, which was chaperoned
by Miss La Rue Pennell, campfire guardian, consisted of the Misses Dorothy Swope, Lila Heise, Geraldine Halverson, Virginia Parker, Doris Krulik, Marian Bartlett, Gwendelyn Genet, Mildred Parker, Lucile Usher, Alice Usher, Shirley McCann and Irene McCann.

NEW PALACE THEATRE
Attractions for the coming week

Thursday, October 9
Wm. Fox presents John Gilbert in "JUST OFF BROADWAY," by Frederick and Fanny Hatton. A drama of secret service and interesting love affair with plenty of action. A story of two souls caught in the net of New York and Paris night life.

Friday, October 10
Paramount presents "THE NEXT CORNER," with Conway Tearle, Lon Chaney, Dorothy Mackaill, Ricardo Cortez and Louise Dresser. The story of a youthful wife who played with fire and was caught in the flames. A theme of sensational surprises, building to an astounding climax. A Sam Wood production.

Saturday and Sunday, October 11 and 12
Hal Roach presents "THE KING OF THE WILD HORSES"—Rex—the most magnificent animal that ever enacted a drama of love and hate—of loyalty and devotion. The most dangerous horse in captivity in the screen's most sensational drama. A picture that stirs the emotions to the very depths—that thrills the heart to the core. A picture that will scar your brain with a memory. A thrilling, throbbing story of wild horses and racing hearts, with Edna Murphy, Leon Barry and a splendid cast. Also a two reel comedy drama, "The Telephone Girl" in "FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE," and a Neeley Edwards comedy "JAIL BIRDS."

Monday's show has been discontinued for the season.

Tuesday and Wednesday, October 14 and 15
Goldwyn presents the Emmett J. Flynn special production, "IN THE PALACE OF THE KING," with Blanche Sweet, Hobart Bosworth, Pauline Stark and Edmund Lowe, with an all-star support.

GIGANTIC—In the size of its massive castles and towering turrets.

MAGICAL—In the beauty of its glorious scenes of medieval magnificence.

STAGGERING—In the sweep of its multitudes of sturdy knights and courtly beauties. You will see history's great procession. Soldiers who braved death for a kiss; princesses who defied convention for love; kings who sent armies to ruin for fame; adventuresses who plotted the overthrow of empires. F. Marion Crawford's famous novel and play of an age that lived to love has now been re-created into a photodrama of beauty and breath-taking magnificence.

system that shall so move supplies from the producer to the consumer as to prevent local or momentary glut and famine, with all their destructive influence. That is orderly marketing. Long-continued over-production has its own remedy and will take care of itself.

One of our great difficulties is the lack of adequate terminal facilities. The volume of perishable goods moving in the country has nearly doubled in so short a period as ten years. And the physical set-up of our wholesale terminal markets has not kept pace.

In one city the insufficiency of terminals so restricted the flow that probably twenty thousand fewer carloads of perishables were sold than would otherwise have been possible. This constriction made higher prices to the consumer and lower prices to the producer. In other cities the lack of facilities has resulted in splitting the wholesale market into a considerable number of widely separated markets, and often enough there is a congestion of one kind of perishables in one wholesale market and a scarcity in others. The prices vary widely and do not truly represent either supply or demand. Moreover, if we are to secure greater commercial values from standardization, as I have outlined, these standards must be accepted and maintained in the terminal markets.

And if we are to secure an elimination of irresponsible commission houses we must set up some method by which responsibility can be determined. I am not one who believes that the wholesaler or commission man at the terminals could or should be eliminated. At least this can not take place for a great many years to come and then only through the gradual expansion of the cooperative into these functions. I do not know of any, even of our highest developed cooperatives, that have not found it advantageous to maintain the private distributor and wholesaler at the terminal markets. He performs a vital economic function, and responsible men do it with great competence. The cooperatives should be represented in these terminal markets directly in contact with the terminal distributors. A better organization among wholesalers and commission men in the terminal markets would be of great assistance in the whole marketing problem. A unity of action amongst them in the development of better terminal facilities, in the elimination of irresponsible men from their profession, in the acceptance of standards, and in a willingness to arbitrate conflicts as to consignments would greatly advance the whole marketing problem.

Now this discussion has been directed primarily at the perishable products, as I have said. Some of the things that I have stated, however, apply equally to grain and livestock and other agricultural produce. Their problems, however, are more divergent, and solutions must be found for each of them based on this divergence.

The whole of this seems to me to resolve itself into how we are going to secure wider and sounder organization. Six months ago after prolonged investigations by the department of commerce I made certain proposals in this direction which were later incorporated with other ideas into the Capper-Williams bill. It is the plan which I presented at that time that I wish to recount on this occasion.

I am no believer in governmental compulsion as a method of attempting to build up any kind of human activity. Compulsion is an implement for the stopping of wrongdoing. Rather are we to succeed if we set up such helpful and sound organization that people are attracted by self-interest to join in the effort. I believe therefore that we must devise machinery for the development of organization, the joining of which would be purely voluntary and the advantages of membership in which would be such as to swiftly secure within their ranks the preponderating marketing of particular commodities, and would set in action the forces for the elimination of waste which I have indicated.

The plan I offered at that time was somewhat as follows: First, that we should create a federal marketing board, this board to be comprised of certain cabinet officers, a majority of its members, however, to be ultimately chosen by the cooperatives which joined the plan and a minority from certain terminal marketing associations to be organized under the general plan. In addition to general concern with the marketing of agricultural produce I proposed that this board should have the following functions:

That the board should provide a staff of men skilled in the organization and administration of cooperatives who could give skilled advice on needs and methods. That the board should have authority to establish standards in cooperation with producers and the department of agriculture; to cooperate with that department in amplifying inspection and certification to the end that all interstate goods could be shipped on standards certified to by federal authority. That it should cooperate in the distribution of such market information as will lessen the chaos in shipments. That it should cooperate with the department of commerce in export questions. That it should represent marketing problems before the interstate commerce commission, the federal trade commission, etc.

In order that we should create larger confidence amongst the farmers in the cooperative idea and in the administration of cooperatives, I proposed that the board should be authorized to grant federal charters to cooperatives on certain minimum conditions. These conditions are in addition to the requirements of state laws, that the cooperatives would adhere to standards and federal inspection on interstate commerce, that they would submit to periodic inspection and report on their accounts and financial methods. I would not make these charters compulsory but purely optional with the cooperative. This is no reflection on the management of cooperatives; on the contrary, in discussing this question with many cooperative managers all with whom I have discussed it since that it would strengthen the standing of the cooperatives and assist them to increase their membership and induce them to "stick together and fight it out." Moreover, one of the foremost difficulties of the cooperatives is the infant diseases which afflict them, and the high degree of early mortality from badly designed plans—and skilled advice will often save their lives.

The board should be authorized to approve the formation of clearing houses, for joint action in control of shipments between different cooperatives in a single commodity, and I would authorize the cooperatives to take private shippers into these clearing houses if cooperatives so wished, provided of course that the private shippers adhere to the rules.

The object of this is to provide the opportunity for more unity of control and more orderly shipment of these commodities.

The board should be authorized to give charters to associations of distributors, including representatives of cooperatives, in our different terminal markets, making it a condition of such charter that no one shall become a member who has not established to the association his financial reliability, who does not agree to abide by the standards and federal inspection, and who does not agree to independent arbitration of any dispute between themselves and the shippers.

I believe that if such associations were set up in terminal markets we would then have an organism that could undertake the systematic negotiation and arrangements with municipalities and railways necessary for the improvement of terminal facilities. I believe these associations could also be helpful to cooperatives and shippers in general in the development of consumption and of orderly distribution, and I believe that this mobilization of the cooperatives and the terminal distributor would give much strength in advancing improvements. I would again make this purely optional with the terminal associations, using no compulsion in the matter.

Now it may be questioned whether we should get anywhere with purely optional enlistment under such a board. I believe that we should. I believe that the additional standing which the cooperatives would secure in relation to the farmers would strengthen their organization. I believe that the much higher standing terminal wholesalers and commission men would have with the cooperatives and private shippers would lead them to set up terminal marketing associations and join their membership.

I conceive that we should here have started at work certain remedial ferments. First, we should have secured a great advancement in dealing in these commodities upon standards and government inspection. We should thus gradually eliminate much of the wastes which lie in deterioration in transit because of the more direct movement between producer and consumer. I believe we should have made a start at greater unity of control over the flow of these commodities toward markets and thus a reduction of glut and famine. I believe we should have the cooperatives and terminal market mobilized so that national and local questions could get attention.

The essence of such an organism as I suggest is cooperation within the distribution system itself. It represents in its every part a mobilization of the best of the practical experience of our different marketing agencies by a mobilization of their forces of betterment. The government relation to it is not as a buyer and seller of commodities, not the "government in business," but a relation of purely friendly assistance in the development of better practices in marketing. The steps taken by our government in the creation of national banks and the federal reserve system are ample precedent to those who object to something new.

There are other steps that I believe could be taken by such a marketing board with the growth of experience—all of which would make for lessening losses and wastes, and for more orderly marketing. There are adaptations that could be made to start currents of improvement in other branches of agricultural marketing. But we cannot take these steps unless we first have the organism through which such plans can be sifted and developed.

Conservative Investments

RECOMMENDING A SECURITY AS CONSERVATIVE. WHAT DOES IT MEAN? WHAT DOES IT NOT MEAN?

Whether or not a security is a conservative investment, is always or largely a matter of opinion—of belief—of discretion—of judgment. Is there back of it good character—substantial financial responsibility—extended business experience—and a valuable reputation to be protected? These are fundamentals.

There are different classes of investment securities:

1. United States Government obligations. The highest class, the lowest yield. For those who require only a small yield.

2. The bonds of a State, one of the United States, and those of the principal cities of the United States. Also for those requiring only a small yield.

3. Other "municipals," in grades slightly lower, bearing slightly higher interest rates—obligations of counties, smaller cities, villages, townships, school districts, etc., within the United States. To be bought only from a responsible concern acquainted with the laws of the particular State and the methods of the particular community as to payment, etc.; the indebtedness of the municipality and the assessed value of its property; and having a competent legal opinion—always important matters. Also for those only whose requirements are met by a small yield.

4. Another class of investors, very numerous, requires A LARGER YIELD. The buyer takes some degree of risk; therefore he gets more yield.

5. In this class of securities are those of foreign national governments, of foreign cities, of foreign industrial concerns. Often safe, but to be bought with caution. No general rules to guide. How long has the government existed? How firmly established? How far are its people under a stable government, conducted in an honest manner? What chances of a political revolution, and what is likely to be the result?

6. American securities: industrials, public utility securities, individual and corporate real estate mortgage securities, various forms of collateral securities, timber securities, etc. Many of them may be properly termed "conservative" investments.

7. These create the need for many dealers. HEREIN IS A PERIL, THE CONSTANT NEED OF CAUTION. Most of the worthless or poor securities floated, are bought from concerns with little or no reputation to preserve.

8. The Michigan Trust Company has been successfully engaged in the business for 35 years, in one community. Members of its present staff have been in its service many years. Not one of them means to have obligations offered for sale, over its name, as a conservative investment, UNLESS HE HIMSELF WOULD BUY THE OBLIGATION TO A SUBSTANTIAL AMOUNT FOR PERSONAL INVESTMENT PURPOSES.

9. Its recommendation of a security as conservative, is the recommendation of an old Michigan concern, of large financial responsibility and of extended business experience, with a valuable reputation to preserve. It does not intend to sell any bonds on misunderstanding, much less on any false pretense. Its recommendation of a security as "conservative" means, first, that it has purchased the same itself, believing it to be a suitable obligation for sale, over its name, as a conservative investment; second, that it believes (a) that the obligor is of good standing and reputation in the community of the headquarters of the business and that the purpose of the issue is laudable; (b) that such business has the reputation of being well managed; (c) that all payments of principal, interest and sinking fund, will be made when due, and that there will be no serious trouble or expense to the holders; and (d) that the security and responsibility back of the obligation will be ample to enable the holders to enforce actual payment in full in case of default. However, it never guarantees these things, nor marketability; and it never agrees to take a security back. There are reasons, stated in our circular on this subject.

THERE NEVER COMES A TIME, IN BUYING SECURITIES, WHEN IT IS UNIMPORTANT WITH WHOM AN INVESTOR DEALS.

Ask for our circular, stating these points more fully.

* "King of Wild Horses" Claims to Be Novelty

An actor never before seen on stage or screen and without previous experience is said to walk off with all acting honors in "The King of Wild Horses," Hal Roach's unique and sensational feature drama, which comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

This actor is Rex, a registered Morgan stallion who, but a few weeks before Fred Jackman started direction of the picture, was as wild and dangerous as a man-eating tiger.

Rex proved to be a born actor. He has personality—a fiery spirit that the camera caught. He worked through scenes in a maze of mountain caverns and walked narrow ledges where one false step meant death hundreds of feet below. For the climax of the drama he went through a genuine forest fire that singed his flowing mane and tail.

Edna Murphy, Leon Barry, Charles Parrott, Pat Hartigan and Sidney De Grey comprise the cast in support of Rex in "The King of Wild Horses," which was written by Hal Roach.

One of the most worthwhile screen offerings of the year is Goldwyn's Emmett Flynn production of F. Marion Crawford's novel, "In the Palace of the King," say all advance reports from its showings in other cities. It will be seen in Charlevoix at the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday, with one of the most notable casts of the season. Blanche Sweet and Edmund Lowe play the two lovers. Sam de Grasse, Hobart Bosworth, Aileen Pringle, Pauline Starke, Ena Gregory, William V. Mong, Lucien Littlefield, Charles Clary and many others have important roles.

The story of Crawford's novel is well known; it has been read by hundreds of thousands and seen in play form by countless others. King Philip II of Spain opposes the marriage of his brother, Don John, to Dolores, daughter of one of his generals. He sends Don John to suppress an uprising among the Moors, hoping his brother will never return for he is jealous of his popularity. The King has decreed that Don John marry an English Princess. His brother returns victorious and is stabbed by the King in a jealous quarrel. Dolores' father assumes the guilt and, to save his life, Dolores, who had been hidden in her lover's room, confronts the King and threatens him into pardoning her father. Don John recovers and the King consents to his marriage to Dolores.

This compelling love story has been told with vigor, dramatic fire, colorful sets and costumes and with all of Emmett Flynn's fine feeling for human drama amid picturesque and spectacular surroundings. It is one of the big pictures of the year from every point of view. The photography is a thing of beauty; the production on a magnificent scale, direction and acting all that could be desired.

TOURING THE NORTH. WEST IN A DODGE

found very beautiful and fully up to its much advertised reputation. For a good portion of the way, this gigantic product of modern road engineering skill is blasted out of the solid rock. In places it is flanked by huge cliffs or palisades from twelve to fifteen hundred feet in height, along the foot of which the road winds, overlooking the most beautiful stretches of the majestic Columbia River valley.

From the Dalles in Oregon they traveled for a hundred miles over one of the worst roads in the whole trip to Warm Springs, the home of Lou See, where the latter has a crossroads store on an Indian reservation. Here they spent three days and fished with Lou in the Deschutes River. The doctor says that Lou is an A-1 fisherman and had the edge on him as to the number of fish caught.

From Warm Springs, the travellers backtracked to the Columbia River highway and continued east to Boise City, Idaho, and from there to Pocatello, thence on to Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah, where they stayed a couple of days, saw the Mormon temple and went bathing in the Great Salt Lake. Leaving Salt Lake City, they kept on east to Colorado Springs. Now, Colorado Springs to us stay-at-homes seems a long ways west but to the returning travelers it seemed but the next step to home.

In Colorado they encountered a terrible stretch of gumbo, as slippery as soft soap and the clinging propensity of a boa constrictor. Chains were worse than useless and it was impossible to travel out of low gear for long distances. Once, the doctor felt that one of his wheels was slipping. He got out to investigate and found it so matted with mud that it was locked fast and would not turn. He finally had to chop the crusted mess out of the wheel with a hatchet before he could go on, and then every few miles it was necessary to repeat the operation.

They did not neglect to make the 18 mile drive to the top of Pike's Peak over the highest automobile highway in the world, rounding hairpin loops at dizzy elevations. The top of the Peak is two and a half miles, or 14,000 feet above sea level, only 250 feet below the altitude of Mt. Ranier, which is the highest peak in the United States. They made the run from the foot of the mountain in three hours. There had been a snow-fall the day before but the road had since been snow-plowed and they were able to make the grade without mishap, and found the experience well worth while.

From Colorado Springs, they followed the Pike's Peak Ocean to Ocean Highway by the way of St. Joseph and Hannibal, Mo., crossing the Missouri river at St. Jo and the Father of Waters at Hannibal, the birth place of Mark Twain, America's great humorist. From there on their journey lay through territory of the middle west too familiar to Michiganders to call for special comment. During the greater part of the trip, Dr. and Mrs. Wilkinson camped along the way, sleeping in the car with an auto tent put up for storage of provisions and baggage. If the weather looked stormy and threatening they would put up at the nearest hotel. Most of the summer was pretty warm along their route and a good many days the thermometer registered into around a hundred degrees. Outside of four punctures, they had no car trouble to speak of and only one blow-out.

The doctor says the trip is his ideal of a profitable and restful vacation. They passed through fourteen states of the union and had an opportunity to visit the stores and places of interest in towns along the route, talk with the people and gain an insight into conditions and the character of the country and people impossible to one traveling by rail. The total expense of the trip, too, was not excessive in the light of the pleasure and benefit obtained, it being, in the neighborhood of $600, of which possibly a trifle over one fourth was spent for gas and oil.

Large Silage Corn and Common Field Variety

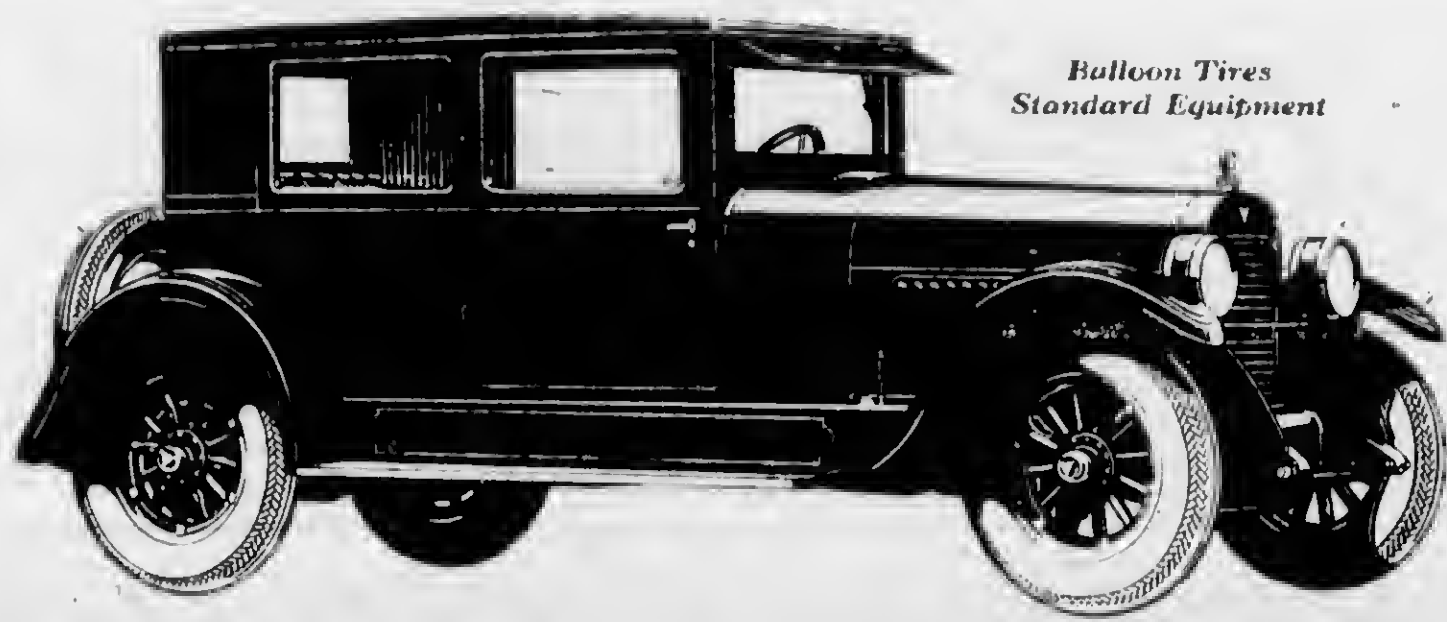

Large, late silage corn and common field corn for silage have been compared in feeding tests with dairy cows, at the Ohio experiment station. The Blue Ridge silage corn yielded more dry matter per acre than the Charge field corn, but the Charge produced more grain and seemed a little more palatable than the larger variety. In all the feeding tests the Blue Ridge silage proved more efficient for milk and butterfat production. But the Charge produced the larger gain in weight. The results of the five tests indicate that there is much less difference per acre between the large silage varieties and the ordinary field corn than is commonly supposed.

Pure Bred Sires Signs Are Being Distributed

Upon request of live stock owners, or extension workers applying in their behalf, the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, has distributed 4,500 farm signs "Pure Bred Sires Exclusively Used on This Farm." These signs are lithographed on waterproof cardboard and resemble a metal label. To be eligible to receive and display the sign, farmers must use pure bred sires exclusively for all kinds of live stock kept, as shown by enrollment in the "Better Stock Better Stock" campaign. This plan of live stock betterment is conducted jointly by the various states and the United States Department of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Lying, reckless, extravagant and inexcusable lying, seems to be the chief stock in trade of La Follette and Wheeler and of Davis' chief arguments in this campaign. Either they have no real issues, or they are counting on truth never being able to overtake falsehood, or both. This is the problem the Republican campaign managers say they are compelled to meet. How can they prevent the voters from being hopelessly deceived?

La Follette, advocating government ownership of railroads, says Canada has solved the problem of cheap rates by government ownership. He says Canada has restored pre-war rates without reducing wages and changed a deficit of $37,000,000 into a surplus of over $20,000,000. Lies, all lies—and La Follette knows it. The deficit in 1921 was $56,000,000—not $37,000,000. In 1923, after two years of government ownership, the deficit was $51,000,000—instead of a surplus of $20,000,000. And the Canadian government has not restored pre-war rates. Rates are 30 per cent higher than pre-war rates. The Canadian taxpayers paid that $51,000,000 deficit. If the United States government took over the American railroads, with their far more extensive mileage, and did as well as the Canadian government has been able to do, the taxpayers would have to pay a deficit of $600,000,000.

La Follette declares that railway rates have added $4,500,000,000 a year to the cost of living. This is false and La Follette knows it is false. The total gross receipts of the American railroads in 1920, the year of the highest rates, was only $6,100,000,000 and even La Follette is not big enough fool to believe that included an increase of $4,500,000,000. And since 1920 there have been many reductions in rates. Some of the railroads are paying fair dividends to their stockholders now, but the only roads which show any profit are those which have made tremendous reductions in cost of operating since the roads were turned back by the government.

Senator Wheeler can lie as fast as La Follette—and does. He has been telling audiences that the government owned vast naval reserves and that the Republican administration "gave away" the people's oil "in return for campaign contributions and a special bribe to a cabinet officer." Wheeler knows he is lying. He is merely seeking to take advantage of the ignorance of his audiences. He knows that not an acre of oil land, nor a gallon of oil, was "given away." He knows that of every barrel of oil taken out of the naval reserves the government got its full share, a more generous share than private owners can secure from those who drill their lands. He knows that the only question at issue is whether it was wiser to take the oil out, refine it and store it where it would be of use to the navy in an emergency—or whether it was wiser to leave it in the ground to be drained off by the Standard Oil Co., the Pacific Oil Co., and other private owners of land—not only surrounding the naval reserves but in numerous instances scattered through the reserves in alternate sections.

Wheeler attacks Gen. Dawes in connection with the transaction between his Chicago bank and the Lorimer bank and reads to his audience part of a court decision requiring the Dawes bank to pay a certain sum to the creditors of the defunct Lorimer bank. But Wheeler does not read that part of the court decision which asserts that Dawes' action was "unquestionably honest and sincere." Like La Follette, Wheeler knows he can't make a campaign on the facts, so he does not hesitate to lie and deceive—insofar as the uninformed character of his audiences make the latter possible.

Another "unmitigated liar"—the term is that used editorially by the Baltimore Sun (Democratic), not by our correspondent—one Gaston B. Means, has been furnishing more fertilizer for Wheeler's filth factory. Means repudiated his testimony designed to incriminate former Attorney General Daugherty—then he repudiated his repudiation. As the Baltimore Sun truly observes, "Nobody cares what Gaston B. Means says. If he had not repudiated the letter Mr. Daugherty gives out, he has proved to be so unmitigated a liar that nothing he says carries the slightest weight, unless there is corroboration of it." Probably the Sun forgets that not only Wheeler's charges against Daugherty, but in large part John W. Davis' charges against the honesty of the Republican party are based on "what Means says," or did say at the Wheeler investigation.

FORMER PASTOR HERE LOCATED IN FLORIDA

A copy of the Whosoever-Will Tidings, a very neatly printed little leaflet containing much of interest, has recently come to our attention. It is the class organ of the Whosoever-Will Bible Class of the First Baptist church of Saint Cloud, Florida, of which the Rev. B. Atchinson, formerly pastor of the Charlevoix Baptist church some ten or twelve years ago, is teacher and pastor.

Rev. Atchinson is building a new church in Saint Cloud and has been very successful in building up a large and earnest congregation of worshippers. We are glad to hear from him again and to learn of his prosperity, success and good health and join with his old time friends here in wishing for a continuance of the same.

STATE GAME WARDEN IS ON THE JOB HERE

Patrol Boat 4 Came Today to Enforce Closed Season

Michigan Patrol Boat No. 4 of the state conservation department arrived in the harbor this noon from Harbor Springs. Her skipper, Warden C. M. Smith, says that he and his deputy, A. F. Hudak, who forms the crew of the No. 4, will be operating in these waters for the greater part of the fall, with a side run into Lake Huron possibly later on.

The open season for lake trout closes Thursday, October 8th, at twelve o'clock midnight. It does not reopen until November 4th. All nets must therefore be removed from the waters of the state before midnight tomorrow, providing the weather permits, or the owners will be liable to prosecution. The No. 4 is here to see that the law is strictly complied with locally. The closed season corresponds with the spawning period of the trout and must be observed in letter and spirit if our fisheries are to be preserved.

LAD ADMITS HIS CAR STRUCK BOY

Ray Washburn in Court for Not Giving Aid to Harlan Adams

Chief of police Lou C. Holm, Monday, September 29, placed under arrest Ray Washburn, charging him with failing to stop his car and render aid to Harlan Adams, the lad who died some days ago from a fractured skull after being struck by Washburn's car. In Justice Montgomery's court Washburn, who is 17 years of age, pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $15 and costs.

Chief Holm had been at work on the case since the accident, running down many clues without learning the name of the driver of the car. Saturday night he overheard a conversation between several lads in a local barber shop in which the case was mentioned. From this clue Chief Holm learned the name of the driver of the car.

Washburn had little to say in court in pleading guilty to the charge. He declared that he was not driving the car—an Elcar belonging to his family—at a high rate of speed. He said he did not see the Adams boy until the car had struck him. He became frightened he said and kept the car under motion.

Failure of an automobile driver to stop and render aid after striking and injuring a person is made a misdemeanor under the Michigan law.—Petoskey Evening News.

SAD MISTAKE ENDS IN PAINFUL DEATH

Husband of Former Norwood Girl Drank Carbolic Acid

A letter received by Mrs. Mary Cooper of this city from her friend, Mrs. L. M. Parr, of Winnetka, Ill., contains an account of the sad death of the latter's husband, which occurred on August 29th at his home in Winnetka—a peculiar case of accidental poisoning.

In the words of Mrs. Parr: "Mr. Parr passed away August 29th, soon after we got home. His foot got better, then he was not feeling well. One morning I went down to work and at four o'clock I got a message to come home at once. He went to work and about 3:30 p. m. was feeling so badly he went to the doctor. The latter told him to go to the drug store and get some castor oil and a bottle of carbolic acid (the acid to be used in curing a case of hives from which Mr. Parr was suffering at the time). Told him to take the oil and wash his body with the acid. He came home and Mrs. Kelly, whom we stay with, was in the kitchen making a pie. He talked and joked with her and fixed the oil with orange juice to take, but he made a mistake and took the acid instead of the oil. Took about three ounces. All he said was, 'Mrs. Kelly, I make a mistake. Call the doctor.' But he had taken so much he only lasted a few minutes. I never even got home."

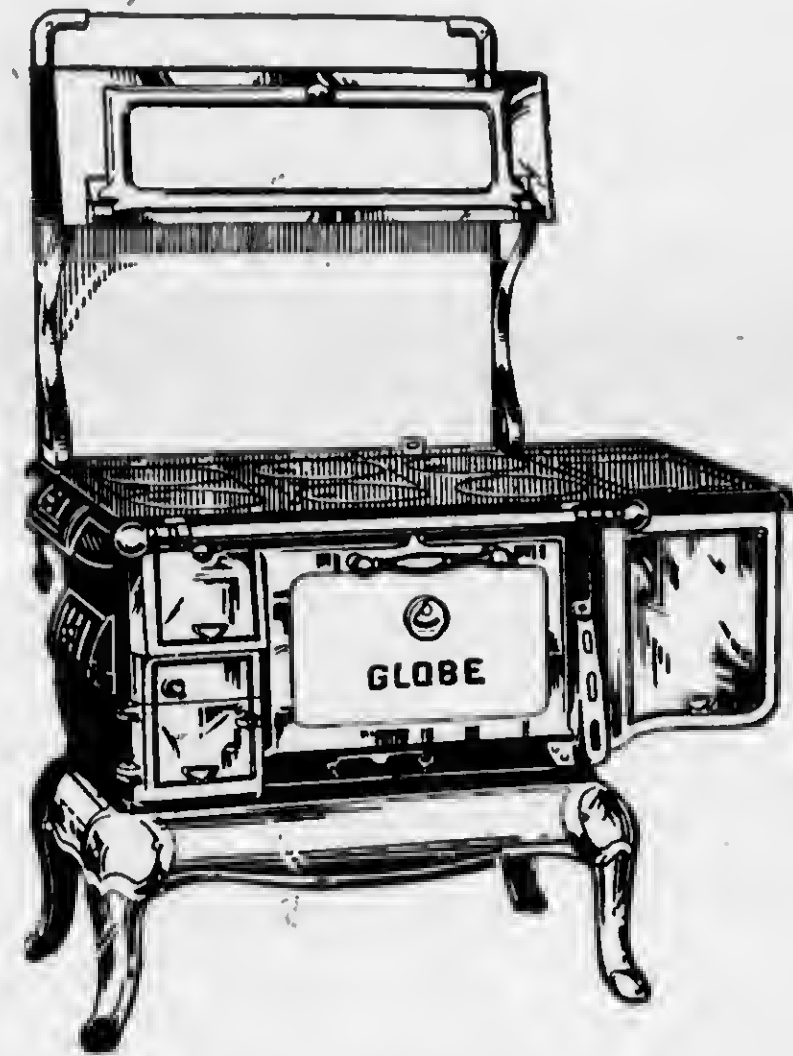

Mrs. Parr and her husband had been married only a year. She will be remembered here as Miss Lula Jackson of Norwood, who some six or seven years ago was clerk in J. L. Crane's dry goods store. Her home at present is 112 Church Road, Indian Hill, Winnetka, Ill.

EXTRAORDINARY INTRODUCTORY OFFER

The Globe Sentinel Range

An unusual value in an all cast iron rust proof construction range. We have cut the cost by cutting the size—not the quality. The Sentinel Globe cooks perfectly, bakes quickly and evenly, heats well, is economical in the consumption of fuel and is easily cleaned.

The Sentinel Globe cuts your fuel bill by getting all available heat from every pound of fuel. The fire-box, with full slotted linings, insures perfect combustion. Soot, smoke, and gases do not go out the chimney as black smoke, but are turned to heat in the fire box. Ashes accumulate slowly and clinkers will not form.

Made in a variety of styles and finishes: Blue Enamel, Gray Enamel, and the Nickel finish can be furnished either with white enamel, or plain high closet.

YACHT STANDARD REPAIRING HERE

Hull of Chicago Craft Badly Strained in Storm

The gasoline yacht, Standard, which figured as the victim of storm and wave off Skillogalee during the week of September 1st, has been left at the yards of the Brady Boat Company for a complete overhauling between now and next summer.

The owner, Albert H. Meads, left here as planned with Mrs. Meads and the mechanic, Harry Lester, on September 13th, bound for their home in Chicago, but, when a few miles out of the harbor, several unsuspected put back into port. It was found that a portion of the Standard's frames were rotted and her bottom was badly warped by the terrific pounding which she received during the storm in which she drifted helplessly for twenty-one hours. The hull will have to be practically rebuilt and Mr. Brady has been given carte blanche to make whatever other repairs he finds necessary.

SEASON AT AUTO CAMP IS CLOSED

OVER THIRTY-FIVE HUNDRED PEOPLE ITS GUESTS

Camp Records Show That 778 Cars Parked on the Grounds Since June 12th

The city auto park wound up its season's business on October 10th, when the last camper, a Thompsonville man, left with his family.

Since the opening of the camp on June 12th, 778 cars have stopped at the camp, averaging better than four persons to a car. At a very conservative estimate, fully 3,500 people have used our beautiful little auto camp this season and almost without a dissenting voice pronounced it to be the finest, most attractively located and most sanitary that they had visited in their travels over the country. And they came from every state in the union, so this is high praise. Many expressed their surprise that no charge was made for the service of the camp and this is, indeed, a feature that deserves attention another year. Other camps charge their patrons for the use of the grounds and facilities and it seems that we should follow suit and make our local camp at least partially self-supporting.

Caretaker Hugh L. Brady has done fine work in cleaning up the camp, cutting the underbrush and clearing the ravines. He will be on the job for at least a week longer and will continue the operation of putting the camp in A-1 shape in the spring. The trees and small bushes that line the bank on the shore road are a trifle thick at present and obstruct the view of the lake. This will be cleared up, only such trees being left as serve to beautify the grounds and provide shade.

Many favorable comments were made by the campers on the fine ovens provided for their use and the water and lighting systems. These, it seems are well in advance of what are furnished in the average camp.

All visitors were registered on their arrival at the camp and the time of their departure noted. Many left the camp after a short stay and returned later in the season for another visit.

The average length of stay was two days. About 25 parties availed themselves of the full time limit of two weeks. The largest number of cars in camp on any one night was 37, with 163 people.

The camp, which comprises 7 acres, and is as beautiful and slightly a spot as can be found along the north coast, has amply justified its existence. It bids fair to grow more popular, year by year, and its natural attractions will be assisted in bringing the people here by a judicious use of Charlevoix booklets and literature which will be sent to the home addresses of the tourists that have registered at the camp during the past season.

VETS ARE SLOW IN APPLYING FOR BONUSES

Only 1,300,000 applications out of a possible 4,500,000 have been received for the soldiers' bonus and veterans who intend to apply for the adjusted compensation were urged to do so without delay by Maj. Gen. Robert C. Davis, adjutant-general of the army, in a statement recently.

Of the applications received 850,000 have been examined and about 400,000 have been passed and certificates for the amounts forwarded to the veterans' bureau, which will make payments or otherwise compensate the veterans as the adjusted compensation law provides.

"It is imperative from the standpoint of economy in administration," said Gen. Davis, who is in charge of the machinery for handling the applications, that those veterans who intend to avail themselves eventually of the benefits conferred by the act should make their applications now."

The war department is now ready, he added, to receive, verify and certify an average of 30,000 or more applications daily, whereas applications are now coming in at the rate of about 10,000 a day.

Applications require only the signature of the veteran or the relative or other person applying under his name, and his fingerprints in case of living veterans.

FIRE HIT TWICE DURING THE WEEK

One False Alarm and the Other a Complete Loss

Fire visited Charlevoix twice this week. The first alarm sounded at about one thirty Monday afternoon. Someone passing Nell's Restaurant on Bridge street saw smoke issuing from the building and called up the department. It developed that meat was being smoked in the meat market next door and the wind was driving the smoke up around the other building.

The next alarm was at seven o'clock Tuesday morning. The farm home of Frank Novotny, about four miles out of town on the East Jordan road, caught fire, either from within, or on the roof from a chimney spark and burned to the ground in about a half hour. All of the contents were saved, however, and the house, which is an old structure, was, we understand, amply covered by insurance. There was but little chance of saving the house, as, although the department responded promptly, the flames had enveloped the entire upper story of the two-story frame structure by the time the firemen reached the scene.

FIRST GAME HERE IS VS. TRAVERSE

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17TH, IS THE BIG DAY

Fewer Games Are Scheduled for Charlevoix This Year But They Will Be Picked

The first football game to be played in Charlevoix this season will be played on Friday, October 17th, at three p. m. It has been arranged for Friday afternoon because of a very urgent request by the Traverse City athletic manager, acting in behalf of a demand on the part of the Traverse City citizens. He argued that the business men of Traverse City as well as those of Charlevoix would be enabled to attend if the game was scheduled for Friday.

The local boys have been given strenuous practice and many new plays during the past two weeks. We feel that they have the old pep and fight of years ago. They are now in splendid condition to meet their opponents in a contest with the old pigskin.

The Charlevoix athletic association is making an ardent attempt to make athletics in the local school a success from a financial point of view as well as a success in the light of physical and mental improvement. It is a very difficult task to manage an athletic association, in a town whose population does not exceed that of Charlevoix, so that it will sustain itself. Bearing these facts in mind, the management has scheduled only choice football and basketball games to be played in Charlevoix this year. The local fans will note that the games scheduled are not as numerous as they have been heretofore, but it is hoped that a larger number of Charlevoix people will avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing the games in which their own boys and girls participate.

To date there are but two games of football to be played here. They are with Traverse City and Boyne City. Negotiations with Harbor Springs regarding a football game here this fall have been under way for some time. Although to date our efforts have been without result, however, it is very probable that in the near future the anticipated game will materialize.

We have advertised our Friday game very extensively in our local school and town, as well as in Petoskey, East Jordan and Boyne City.

A banner crowd is expected and we take this opportunity through the press to solicit your presence as a booster and rooster. Come to our game. We are featuring this one.

Reverend Allburt of Petoskey will act as referee and Mr. Speltz of Boyne City will act as umpire. Other officials will be secured later.

Later advices are to the effect that C. H. S. will play Harbor Springs here on November 15th.

Diphtheria Victim

Wallace Nekvasil, aged four years and three months, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nekvasil, of Marion township, died a week ago Tuesday following an attack of diphtheria. The funeral was held on October 9th, with Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating, with interment at Brookside. As far as is known, this is the only case of diphtheria in the county.

RAILROAD ASKS MORE BUSINESS

GENERAL SLUMP IN BOTH PASSENGERS AND FREIGHT

President Alfred of Pere Marquette Railroad Quotes Some Convincing Figures

In an appeal for more business Frank Alfred, president of the Pere Marquette railroad, has issued a bulletin telling of the falling off in railroad transportation receipts during the past few years due to the arrival of the motor truck and motor bus.

President Alfred's appeal and the figures he quotes to prove his point, follow:

If I may be permitted to drive a message home to the people in the territory served by this railway, I will revert once more to the menace of the motor bus and the motor truck. In doing this I am prompted by the interest aroused on this question by the previous bulletins.

The experience in other sections shows that sparsely settled communities, in the end, cannot hope to have both the motor and railroad transportation service. With the winter months coming on it might be well to give some thought to the future. The figures, which appear below, tell the story:

For the year ended June 30, 1913, we handled 5,666,058 passengers, our trains performing 3,737,958 train miles.

For the year ended December 31, 1923, a new fiscal year having been adopted in this interval, we handled 2,441,140 passengers, our trains performing 3,301,793 train miles.

So our passengers decreased 57 per cent while our service was cut down only 13 per cent.

In 1913, we handled merchandise in less-than-car-load lots amounting to 1,038,809 tons, while in 1923, we handled but 522,627 tons—or a shrinkage of nearly 50 per cent in the volume of this business.

Likewise in 1913, we were hauling 151,122 cars loaded locally, in 1923, only 89,391 cars, or a decrease of nearly 41 per cent in 10 years.

So the railroads, as far as local business is concerned, seem to have reached a situation not unlike that of the farmer whose soil becomes exhausted. The crops become less and less each year. In the case of the railroads, as in the case of the farmers, new methods are therefore necessary. Greater support of the railroads on the part of the traveling public and the farmers can save the situation.

It will pay you good dividends in the form of continued operation of trains during the winter months and the retention of the present level of farm values.

Infant Dies

Betty Jane Ranger, 15 month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ranger of this city, died very suddenly on October 8th in St. Louis, Mo., where she had gone with her parents to spend the winter, toppling over without warning in an attack of heart trouble. The remains were brought to this city last Friday by the bereaved parents and the funeral held from the home of Roy Ranger on Belvedere avenue, Rev. C. W. Long officiating. Interment was at Brookside.

MISS PARSONS IS NOW MRS. A. DANE

Ceremony Took Place Last Saturday In Charlevoix

A beautifully arranged home wedding took place in this city on Saturday, October 11th, at noon when Marion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Parsons, of the Belvedere terrace was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur Dane, of Detroit.

Rev. Harry Allburt, of the Presbyterian church of Petoskey, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives. Following the wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Dane left for a motor trip and will make their home in Detroit, where Mr. Dane is employed as engineer of the Huron Cement Company. The out-of-town guests were Mrs. C. Dane, of Alpena, mother of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Robinson, of Alma, sister and brother-in-law of the bride.

With the exception of the time she has spent at college and in teaching at Alpena, Mrs. Dane has lived among us from childhood. Both she and the bride groom have the heartiest congratulations and best wishes of their Charlevoix friends, among whom the Courier desires to be included.

WILL ENFORCE TUBER GRAZING

STATE VEGETABLE INSPECTOR HERE THIS WEEK

Potatoes Should Be Culled Before They Reach the Warehouse

State Inspector, W. G. Lensen, who has charge of potato grade inspection in the Grand Traverse region, was in town today on his first tour of inspection.

Potato grades will be more rigidly enforced this year. The general run of potatoes is better as to size and also growers and shippers are familiar with grade requirements. It is only by sorting strictly to grade that Michigan potatoes can compete with potatoes from seventeen other competitive states where the U. S. grades have been adopted.

Growers are urged to assist by leaving culls on the farm. Such practice will save time at the warehouse.

The attention of buyers is called to the fact that the proper time to set under-grade stock out is when it is being placed in the house. They will thus avoid a heavy shrinkage when sacking for shipment.

All sacked and bulk shipments must be properly marked to indicate the grade. Standardization improves market conditions. Shipping culls and otherwise poor quality injures the reputation for Michigan potatoes and is reflected in prices and demand.

The potato grades will be rigidly enforced through shipping point and terminal inspection and otherwise and persons who violate the grade requirements will be subject to prosecution.

Mr. Lensen, who is fruit and vegetable inspector, connected with the bureau of foods and standards of the state department of agriculture, is in the city now and will be here from time to time during the season to see that the regulations are enforced. He will have important announcements to growers and buyers to make from time to time through the medium of the press and will also cooperate in any way that will make for better conditions in the potato market as it affects those locally interested.

DON'T FORGET THE S. S. CONVENTION

Three Sessions at Congregational Church Next Thursday

The Sunday school workers of Charlevoix and vicinity are reminded of the county Sunday school convention to be held in the Congregational church here on Thursday, October 16th. A fine program is planned and visitors, as well as delegates, are welcome. Sessions begin at 9:00 a. m., 1:00 p. m. and 7:00 p. m., respectively.

There will be luncheon at noon and supper at 5:30, served at the church.

UNCLE LOUIE AT A BOHEMIAN SPA

DRINKS HEALING WATERS AT CARLSBAD AND WALKS

His Letter to Michigan Tradesman Details the Daily Routine There

"Uncle" Louie Winternitz, who spends his summers in Charlevoix at the Beach Hotel, lives in Grand Rapids and winters wherever fancy dictates (usually in Florida), has been over at the Carlsbad Spain Bohemia for some time past, drinking the health restoring waters and seeing the sights.

In a letter written to the Michigan Tradesman under date of August 26th and appearing in its issue of October 1st, Mr. Winternitz gives an interesting account of daily life at the Spa, which our readers may enjoy:

"Every country and every city has peculiarities and points of interest of its own. I wrote you once before about the brass band which is utilized here in place of a call bell, that you are invited to be at the springs at 7 a. m. and sip from one to three cups of the healing waters and walk about fifteen minutes between drinks. It would be much better if they would keep step to this nice music, but some of them are in a hurry to get to the rest rooms.

Another line up is at the various bakeries. They have the most inviting stores and out of every 500 guests you can wager that 498 will select their baked food. One has to have dry toast, one wafer (a la Nabisco), one graham roll, one roll with poppyseed and another with caraway seed. Some want salt rolls and other rye rolls or even rye bread, but not many eat this here. The next line up is at the fruit stands. There you can get everything in that line and the next and last lineup is in the coffee house. Most everyone goes to a different garden and has his own waitress. I have a nice one and her number is 25, so when she sees me coming, she gets my haag coffee ready. I fetch my graham roll and two peaches and we have a pair. If it is cold or damp we are furnished with a woolen blanket. Anything for comfort. My breakfast costs the equivalent of 42 cents in U. S. money. Everybody is happy. The newspaper boy brings my New York Herald, Chicago Tribune and a local paper for a tip of 1-2 cents and you can stay and listen to the music until 10 a. m. Then out for the constitutional walk. At noon we have a vegetable lunch and in the afternoon we have another concert. Dinner is served from 7:30 to 9:30 and then you go to bed if you are old. The younger ones go to the American bar and dance until 2 to 3 a. m.

I sent to-day a box of local bread stuff to the Fleischmann Co., N. Y., to show them the great variety of rolls and toast the bakers manufacture for the patients here. Most of the visitors are put on a bread, vegetable and fruit diet. Some get plain bread, some rolls with sugar, some with salt, some graham. I have been here now for three weeks and lived on such a diet and am getting along O. K.

FOWLER'S BUS LINE

GIVES GOOD SERVICE

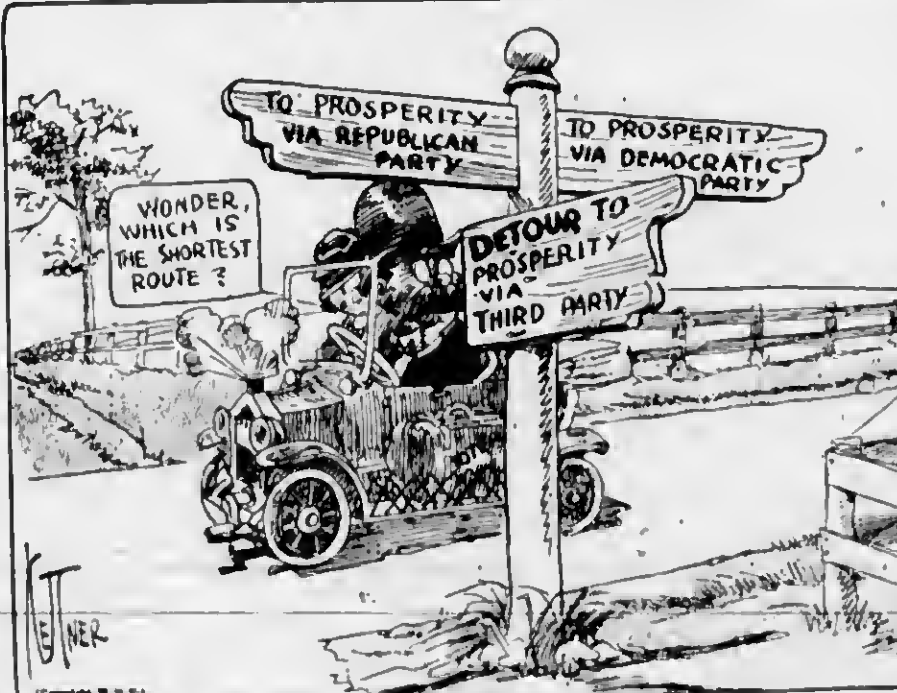

Two Trips Made Daily Except Sundays to Petoskey

Although train service between this city and Petoskey has been reduced, the Fowler bus line is making two regular trips between these points each day, except Sunday, leaving Charlevoix at 7:40 a. m. and 12:40 p. m. and departing from Petoskey at 9:00 a. m. and 3:30 p. m., also making connections with trains north and south on the G. R. & L. with the exception of Sundays.

The Pennsylvania lines have a train southbound at 8:45 a. m., at 1:50 p. m. and northbound at 3:05 p. m. Their early morning train from the south arrives in Petoskey at 5:45 a. m., making it possible to get to Charlevoix on the bus shortly after ten o'clock in the morning.

The South Side Circle of the Congregational church will hold a rummage sale on Friday and Saturday, October 24th and 25th, in the building north of Mont Wither's restaurant.—Adv. 42-2.

CLARION

Mrs. Jessie Planck was the guest of Potosky friends on Monday. Mrs. Dorris and son, J. H. Dorris, also Kenneth Hall have returned to Flint.

Mrs. Viola Hally, of Flint, was the guest last week of Mrs. Julia Hime.

Lester Kent is carrying mail on the rural route during the absence of E. R. Everts.

J. W. Colden went to Charlevoix on Monday, to attend the meeting of the board of supervisors.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Padgett and children returned Friday from a two week's visit with relatives at Watervliet, Mich. and Hartford City, Ind.

Mrs. Alice Pardee, of Potosky, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kent, of Alden, and Mrs. Mary E. Johnson were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Kent, on Thursday.

A pot luck supper was given at the home of Mrs. D. B. Hinkley on Saturday evening, in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Planck, who leaves this week for her home at South Bend, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hass have received from their mother, Mrs. Sarah E. Hass, now at Elkhart, Ind., an account of the celebration on September 26th, of the one hundredth anniversary of the naming of Christiana Creek, at Elkhart, in which Mrs. Hass, as a descendant of Michael Mitchell, one of the pioneers, was privileged to take an active part.

The celebration was the greatest Elkhart had ever known. The parade in the morning was over two miles long, taking an hour and ten minutes to pass the reviewing stand. In the afternoon, a large birthday cake weighing 620 pounds was placed mounted by 125 candles was placed on a large platform where were seated 125 persons, descendants of the pioneers.

As Rev. A. N. Ogilvie called the names, each stepped forward and received a candle from the cake. The cake was then cut into 3500 pieces and distributed to the spectators. In the evening a pageant was given, illustrating events at Christiana Creek from the coming of the first white hunters and trappers to the present time. At least 25,000 people were present at the celebration.

"BOB'S BUNKEM" IN TOTAL COLLAPSE WHEN HIS CHARGES ARE ANALYZED

Appeal to Class Prejudice by Accusing American Business of Monopolistic Conspiracy Not Supported by Facts.

By Wm. M. BUTLER,
Chairman Republican National Committee.

Washington.—Senator LaFollette, opening his campaign with a speech on Labor day, pictured the American people as being in a terrible plight, and offered a bill of particulars. He also proposed his remedies. His speech was an appeal to class prejudice. The "facts" upon which his speech was based have been subjected to careful scrutiny, and his allegations do not stand up.

He said a gigantic monopolistic conspiracy of American business is sucking the blood, morals and pocketbooks of the American people. The truth is the Republican administration has fought monopoly and preserved free competition, as proven by the actual price of necessities. Examining Mr. LaFollette's speech in detail, how does it square with the facts?

1. "Exactly what do we mean by the 'system'?" asked LaFollette, and answering his own question, he said: "We mean the combination which rules the coal industry of this country and which fixes the price of coal to the consumer."

The fact is that in the bituminous coal industry, which comprises 85 per cent of all coal production, there is no single corporation or group which controls more than 5 per cent of the total output. Eight thousand independent operators are in active competition, half of them selling coal for less than cost; bituminous prices are lower today than in 1910, though wages are 100 per cent above pre-war.

2. He said: "We mean the banking combine which, through its control of the federal reserve board, arbitrarily fixed interest rates and controls credit in the interest of the big monopoly system. It initiated four years ago a policy of deflation, causing a shrinkage in farm prices since 1920."

This deflation was inaugurated and carried out under the Democratic administration. Interest rates were at once lowered when the Republican administration came into office. Furthermore, the Republican administration appointed a farmer on the federal reserve board and created the intermediate credit system for the farmer's special benefit.

Mr. LaFollette forgets that there has been a steady increase in the prices to the farmer, as well as an increase in the purchasing power of his crops, ever since the Republican administration reversed the policy of the Democratic administration, which placed the farmer in the economic situation that he was in in 1921 and later. This is shown by the following index numbers of the average price of agricultural products and the index numbers of the purchasing power of the products as published by the Department of Agriculture:

Wholesale Prices for Farm Crops.

Year	Index	Purchasing Power
1913	100	100
1921	109	67
1922	112	69
1923	116	72
July 1924	155	83

3. Mr. LaFollette said: "The consumption per capita of such a staple food as bread is very much less than it was a few years ago. . . . It means that there are many people in the United States today who are hungry for bread."

Bread consumption has been decreasing in the United States in recent years, but Mr. LaFollette distorts the reason. Every nation decreases its consumption of bread when it increases its consumption of meats, fruits, sugar and other palatable foods demanded by a higher standard of living. Senator LaFollette attempts to conceal the increased consumption of other agricultural products. Under the low standards of living in Europe the consumption of breadstuffs amounts to 60 per cent of the total diet as against 20 per cent in the United States.

The following table shows the increase in consumption of foodstuffs per capita in the United States in important lines compared with wheat:

	Wheat	Sugar	Lard	Beef	Pork
1912-14	319.2	85.9	166.9	66.0	82.9
1923	308.0	106.3	183.4	70.4	107.8

4. He said: "We mean the meat-packing combination, which fixes the price of the products of the farm, etc."

There are about 700 independent competing packers in the United States. Three of the "big five" to whom Mr. LaFollette refers, have had to entirely renege their business due to enormous losses; and one is in the hands of a receiver. The five have earned less than 1 per cent on goods handled during the past four years.

5. Mr. LaFollette said tariffs must be reduced. He attacked the whole Fordney bill and demanded all-around reduction.

Take the tariff off dairy products and you destroy that industry; take the duty off wool and you destroy the sheep industry; take the tariff off California fruits and nuts and the American growers are at the mercy of the Mediterranean growers. And so on down the list. Take the tariff off manufactured goods and the American workman is at once in unrestrained competition with the swarted labor of Europe.

Mr. LaFollette said:

6. "The farmer in this country receives an average of only 40 cents of the dollar paid by the city consumer for farm products while the farmer of Denmark receives an average of 80 cents."

He neglects to state that the farmer in Denmark is within 125 miles of all consumers while in the United States there is an average of 1,200 miles between farmer and consumer.

7. He said: "We mean the sugar monopoly," etc.

The wholesale price of sugar at New York since the 1922 tariff was passed has averaged a little over 6 cents a pound; the average, for three years before the war was a little over 4 1/2 cents; an increase of 30 to 35 per cent. The average increase in the price of all commodities has been 45 per cent. Seventy per cent of Cuban sugar (our chief supply) is controlled by four or five groups which operate on foreign soil beyond reach of our Sherman anti-trust law. But for the competition of American beet sugar these four or five groups would control absolutely the price of sugar in the United States. The Republican tariff has preserved and fostered the beet sugar industry. The Cuban groups want to destroy the tariff on sugar; so does Mr. LaFollette.

8. He said: "We mean the transportation monopoly," etc.

The railroads of the United States during the last four years have never earned more than 5 1/2 per cent of physical valuation, and on an average have earned less than 4 per cent. There cannot be much extortion in these earnings. Remember, labor costs 70 per cent of railway operating costs. The average railroad wage is now 90 per cent above pre-war yet the railroads, by great economies of operation, have held rates on agricultural products to a point only 42 per cent above pre-war level. Agricultural needs a reduction in freight rates, but that does not justify a misstatement of the facts. The only way for Mr. LaFollette to bring about the gigantic rate reduction he talks about is to reduce the wages of railway employees, and if he does that he will decrease consumption of the farmer's produce.

9. He said: "We mean the oil monopoly, which dictates prices on gasoline throughout the land."

The average pre-war price of gasoline was 16 cents; it is now 19 cents, an increase of about 19 per cent. Remember the average advance in all commodity prices was 45 per cent.

10. Mr. LaFollette charges that the Republican administration failed to enforce the laws against combinations and monopolies.

The fact is congress during this administration passed bills to correct evils attending meat packing and stockyards, and the dealing in grain futures. Under this same administration 40 suits were brought to check violations of the anti-trust laws, and 47 of them have been cleared up; this is a greater record than was made in the previous ten years. The Federal Trade Commission has found 30 per cent more cases of unfair trade practices during the present Republican administration than in any previous four years.

Senator LaFollette said:

11. "We mean to conserve those natural resources and to make available to the people at cost the light, heat and water which can be developed from the water power sites now owned by the government."

What Mr. LaFollette really wants is government development and operation of public utilities. The government has never been able to operate public utilities as cheaply as can private enterprise. What Mr. LaFollette means, but is afraid to say, is socialism.

The federal water power act, in force since 1920, insures permanent public ownership and control of power sites on public lands and power privileges in navigable and international streams, which contain 85 per cent of the water power resources of the country.

Mr. LaFollette did not on this occasion mention his proposal of two months ago about government ownership of railroads, nor his proposal that congress should override the Supreme court. Under government ownership of railroads would be given employees the right to strike and disrupt all transportation whenever they wanted an increase in wages, or would he suppress strikes among government employees and thus thrust all of the railway employees in the country into entire subjection to congress for their fundamental living standards?

In the case of the plan to let congress override the Supreme court, it would be interesting to know whether the various minorities in the United States are prepared to sacrifice their right to freedom of speech under the present Constitution and subordinate such right to the will of a congress should majority.

12. "The farmer in this country receives an average of only 40 cents of the dollar paid by the city consumer for farm products while the farmer of Denmark receives an average of 80 cents."

HAS COMPLETED A YEAR'S WORK

COW-TESTING ASSOCIATION HAS PROGRESSED

Organization Fills Real Need in the Dairy Business of This County

The Charlevoix County Co-operative Cow Testing association has completed its first year's work and has been reorganized again for another year.

During the past year, many steps on the improvement road have been made by some of Charlevoix county's dairymen. Most of the 24 members were able to find cows in their herds that would not come up to their standard, so they were sold for beef.

The total number of cows in the association, sold for beef or otherwise disposed of, because of inability to produce butterfat, reached 35. This number is almost ten per cent of the number of cows entered on the testing records of the association.

The association helps to improve the herd by culling out the poor cows, but the good, pure-bred sire, which is encouraged by the cow testing association, helps to build the future herd. This association has been very fortunate in having all pure-bred sires at the head of their herds. In several herds where a pure-bred sire has a daughter on test at the same time with her dam, a big improvement can be seen in the daughter over the dam, proving that the sire is improving the herd. All of the high cow in butterfat production for this year have been sired by pure-breds. The two highest were sired by the same sire.

After the poor cows have been culled out and the herd bred up by the use of a pure-bred sire, the owner must prepare himself to feed the cows in order to get the best results. Here again the cow testing association comes to his rescue by helping him to ascertain how much the cow is producing; then a balanced ration, according to the production, is given.

tion, is fed. Several dairymen were able to save materially on feed by being shown how much to feed. All the dairymen in the association are growing alfalfa or sweet clover hay for the cows and 23 of the 24 members have silos to feed from.

During the first part of the year, two large leaks were found in a couple of separators by testing the skim milk for butter fat. When fixed, their repair saved from eight to ten dollars apiece for their owners.

The average production of the 232 cows in the association for one year's testing was 292.9 lbs. of butter fat and 7,547 lbs. of milk. This is a good average and will rank high among the cow testing associations of Michigan. The feed cost per pound of butter fat was 24 cents and the feed cost per 100 lbs. of milk, testing 3.88 per cent butter fat, was 93 cents. The feed cost is about one half the total cost of production.

Seven herds were able to show an average of the cows completing the year of over 300 lbs. of butter fat. Art Shepard heads the list with his herd of seven pure-bred and grade Holsteins. Their butter fat average is 433.9 lbs. and 11,749 lbs. of milk, during the year. This is an enviable record for a dairyman to make, when you will only find 13 individuals in the 232 cows tested that are even able to reach the 400 lb. of butter fat class. George Meggison's five grade and pure-bred Jerseys took second place for butter fat production, their average being 395.8 lbs. of butter fat and 7,532 lbs. of milk. The average butter fat test of this herd was 5.2 per cent.

The cow having the highest milk and butter fat production belongs to Art Shepard. His seven year old grade Holstein produced 13,675 lbs. of milk and 511.46 lbs. of butter fat. The second and third highest cows are also found in Mr. Shepard's herd. The grade Holstein that was third highest butter fat producer in the testing association was offered for sale for $75 during the first part of the year. Her owner did not realize how good she was, but no one offered to buy her and now, when her year's record is complete, she is no longer for sale.

The lowest butter fat producer in the association produced 102.5 lbs. of butter fat and 2,315 lbs. of milk. The high cows for butter fat production, according to age, are as follows:

Owner	Name of Cow	Breed	Milk	B. F.
Under 3 years Old
Ed. Jensen.....	Elmgrove Pride De Kol.....	P. B. Hol.	11,679	423.84

WASHINGTON LETTER

The most interesting political development of the past week has been establishment of the fact that the Bryans, William J. and Bro. Chas., are not playing square with John W. Davis. The temptation to Wm. J. Bryan to throw the election into the house and senate, growing out of the knowledge that the senate undoubtedly would finally elect his little brother Chas., has proved too much for one who knows that despite his repeated efforts to be president himself there is now no possibility of his achieving his ambition, but that he might put his little brother there and that if he did, the once Peerless Leader could exercise as much power as if he were president himself. As Secretary of State to his brother's presidency, Wm. Jennings Bryan would be closer to being actual chief executive than he can ever be in any other way. Out on the west coast, accordingly, Wm. J. gave an interview urging "progressives" in states they believed La Follette and Wheeler could carry more easily than Davis to vote for La Follette and Wheeler and, of course, to vote for Davis in states they believed he could carry. When they discovered this interview the friends of Davis took fright and took the once peerless one to task, so he promptly made a speech urging all progressives to vote for Davis. But, the Davis leaders are now asking each other, while Bryan may refrain from any more public utterances of this kind, how much influence will he exert privately on those still susceptible to his leadership?

There is evidence that Chas. Bryan is playing the same game. The "pressure of public duties as governor of Nebraska" has been his excuse for not making a real, honest-to-goodness campaign for Davis. He has been called to the Chicago headquarters, where the riot act was read to him. And he has promised to be good. But will he? He has promised to make speeches for Davis wherever he may be needed. He has assured the Davis leaders that he will play fair and, to hide the evidence of a split in the party, the leaders have assured the dear public there is nothing to the reports of disloyalty and friction—assurances which the intelligent portion of the dear public will take cum grano salis.

La Follette is posing as a martyr because the California courts have ruled that his electors can appear on the ballot only under the socialist caption. Just why La Follette, who is and long has been a socialist posing as a Republican, should so seriously object is hardly clear, unless, it is because he believes he can make some political capital out of the martyr role. Nevertheless, it is unfortunate that the law should be such that the courts could not give him his own way. No one deprecates the necessity under which the court found itself more than President Coolidge. "I recognize that it is the privilege of our voters to support anyone they wish at the polls, and I feel that the law should not be drawn for the purpose of preventing such action," said Mr. Coolidge when told of the situation and he expressed the same view regarding the situation in Louisiana.

La Follette is trying to disarm criticism of his attack on the constitution, his proposal that a majority of congress may over-rule a majority of the supreme court, by saying he is only for a constitutional amendment so providing. But La Follette insists that when the supreme court declares a law of congress unconstitutional, the court usurps the power of congress. Now suppose La Follette, holding that view, were elected president and the supreme court declares a law of congress unconstitutional. La Follette, believing its declaration a usurpation of power, could not in conscience uphold the court. The court has no power to enforce its mandates. That rests with the president, the commander in chief of the military forces. Thus it would become the sworn duty of La Follette to repudiate the decision of the court, because that would be upholding the constitution, according to his conception of the constitution, which, in his inauguration oath, he had sworn to uphold. Suppose congress passed, over the president's veto, a law abolishing public schools and providing all schools must be taught by Catholics, and the court pronounced the law unconstitutional, La Follette would be in duty bound to uphold the law.

THE "OLD RUGGED DOLLAR"

In this temporary Klan wave the Catholic church is fortunate in the attitude of the Methodist church and its leaders. The Methodist church, in the sense of organized strength, is the nearest competitor of the Catholics. The Klan movement seems to have brought these two great religious bodies more closely together which, from a religious viewpoint, at least, furnishes some spiritual comfort. In Chicago the other day the Methodists dedicated their greatest church edifice and Mayor Wm. S. Dever, a Catholic, gave one of the principal addresses. Bishop Thomas Nicholson of this M. E. area, speaking in Detroit this week said this:

"I am not here to stir up religious bigotry, but rather to help every church that follows Jesus Christ. I am here for a closer understanding, a more real brotherhood of man."

You will find a few preachers in the Klan for profit but if you will take the time five years hence to check up the whereabouts of this second rate clergy who now are attracted by the sensational you will find them either out of the conference entirely or filling stations in keeping with their lack of poise and judgment. The Methodist church, in fact no church, can afford to sit by and see the Master's religion so wantonly abused for profit. The time has not yet arrived in this country when $10 buys personal character, which in the last analysis is the basis of all that is genuine whether it be in the realm of religion, business or politics.

Henry Ford's weekly magazine, The Dearborn Independent, very aptly says that:

"There is no place in the United States for religious enmities. There is a very large place for religious differences, religious activities and religious temper. The truly religious person is usually glad that another person has any religion at all, in these days of thoughtlessness and license; but people who are readiest to fight about religion have least of it. What is meant by the term 'religious prejudice' is not always clear. Every person has a prejudice in favor of his own religion, which privilege he ought not to begrudge to others in favor of their own. It is difficult to see how anyone can be prejudiced against another's religion, since so seldom does he know what it is. The whole matter usually resolves into plain ignorance and suspicion. Ignorance can be dispelled by knowledge, and by that means suspicion disappears also.

There is no kind of Christian activity anywhere, under whatever name, that clashes with another kind of Christian activity. And the Christian spirit is the same in every age and clime."

YOUNGSTER THROWN FROM MOVING AUTO

Daughter of East Jordan Postmaster Victim of Bad Spill

Jeon, little three year old daughter of Postmaster and Mrs. W. A. Stroebel, was thrown from an auto near the Loeb Farms on Saturday of last week and received serious external injuries.

Mrs. Stroebel, with her children, was driving to Charlevoix Saturday noon for a visit with friends.

The little girl was standing in the rear of the closed car and evidently had her hand on the door lock. A jar of the car unlocked the door and threw her clear of the car onto the stone road. When picked up she was unconscious. The accident happened just beyond the Loeb Farms. Mrs. Stroebel carried her to the car and drove to a nearby residence, where a physician was summoned. He found the insides of both hands badly lacerated, also one of the legs, and a scalp wound. There were no bones broken or internal injuries. The little one was taken to Charlevoix and later brought to her home.

While suffering from the painful injuries, it is considered miraculous that the child was not fatally injured.

SIXTEEN ATTEND WOLVERINE MEET

W. R. C. Delegates Have Good Time At Convention

Sixteen members of the local Women's Relief Corps drove to Wolverine last week in three car loads to attend the district corps convention, held there on Wednesday and Thursday, October 8th and 9th.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected and the place of next year's meeting fixed for Cheboygan, Mrs. Dr. Collop, of Wolverine, being chosen as president of the 1925 convention.

Mrs. Powers, of Harbor Springs, presided over the sessions last week and Dr. Collop, of Wolverine, delivered the address of welcome. In the evening, a very interesting "campfire" or program was given by children from the 1st to the 6th grades of the Wolverine schools.

Everybody had a good time and there were no mishaps on the trip, outside of the fact that all three of the cars got punctured on the return trip and one got stuck in the sand near Wolverine and had to be pulled out.

YOUNG H. S. BOY KILLED BY AUTO

William McDonald, Age 7, Struck by Machine Near Farm Home

William McDonald, the seven-year-old, of Five Mile Creek, was instantly killed early Tuesday evening of last week when struck by an automobile driven by Fred Gasco, Indian, also residing near Five Mile Creek.

The little boy was with his father repairing the family car in the front yard of their farm home on the shore road. He evidently started across the road as the Gasco car approached, running at considerable speed. The force of the blow caused terrible injuries to the lad.

A coroner's jury was empaneled and visited the scene.

This is the second violent death in the McDonald family in the last few years. Another son, George McDonald, age 11, was drowned three summers ago while at a picnic at Seven Mile Point. Besides the parents the lad is survived by a brother, Leon, age 9, and a sister, Eva, age 5.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday, October 16

Goldwyn presents "THE DAY OF FAITH." Another "Miracle Man." Arthur Somers Roche's powerful story will hold you spellbound. It is bigger than words—it is radiant with belief in the goodness of human kind. The portrait of the society girl who plunges her life into a whirlpool of peril for the sake of an ideal is one of the greatest characterizations you have ever seen on the screen. It is being hailed as a heart story even greater than the "Miracle Man." Also a two reel Mermaid comedy, "HIGH LIFE."

Friday, October 17

Paramount presents Dorothy Dalton in "THE MORAL SINNER." Adapted by J. Clarkson Miller from the play "Leah Kleschna" by C. M. S. McLellan. A Ralph Ince production. Also the Mermaid comedy, "HIGH LIFE."

Saturday and Sunday, October 18 and 19

Paramount presents Wm. S. Hart in "WILD BILL HICKOK." Bill Hart is back to the screen after a vacation of nearly two years, in his new picture production of the west, with a great cast and Pinto, the famous Hart pony. Back with a bang! Same old two-gun man—more popular now than ever—in a sizzling tale of the fighting, riotous days of the early west. Founded on fact and written around the greatest gunman that ever lived. In a story written by himself and loaded with the kind of thrill stuff that made him famous. Also two reels of the Fast Steppers, featuring Billie Sullivan in the 5th race, "THE HOT DOG SPECIAL."

Tuesday, October 21

Metro-Goldwyn presents a Marshall Neilan production, "THE RENDEZVOUS," with Conrad Nagel, Lucille Ricksen, Elmo Lincoln and Sidney Chaplin. You'll be thrilled—every moment of this great picture packs a surprise. A wonderful love story of a peasant lass and a Yankee soldier boy, staged against the thrilling background of Russia in upheaval. If you like action, don't miss the stirring photoplay. Also the first of the two reel wonder features, the Go-Getters, in "GETTING GOING." Starring George O'Hara, hero of the "Fighting Blood" and Alberta Vaughn, heroine of "The Telephone Girl" comedies. The concentrated essence of American jazz, pep and fighting spirit. More punch than a Jack Dempsey knockout.

BACKWARD SEASON HURT MOST CROPS

QUALITY RATHER THAN QUANTITY DEPRECIATED

Lack of Sunshine and Warm Weather During Growing Season Held Responsible

The cold and backward season has delayed the maturing of late crops. Notwithstanding the absence of a general killing frost during September, but few crops have reached a normal maturity. While the yield is quite satisfactory in most cases, except some of the fruits, the quality of many is not up to the average, according to the October report issued by L. Whitney Watkins, commissioner of agriculture, and Verne H. Church, agricultural statistician, U. S. bureau of agricultural economics. A lack of sunshine and warm weather during the growing season is responsible for this condition.

Corn: Very little corn has matured in northern counties but a considerable portion is in fairly good condition in the southern half of the lower peninsula. It is estimated that the state's total production will be approximately 44,346,000 bushels, the smallest since 1917. Last year's crop was estimated at 58,167,000 bushels. The present condition is 62 per cent as compared with 83 per cent last year and a ten-year average of 79 per cent. Cutting did not begin until the closing days of September.

The outlook for the nation's crop has declined still further during the month. The present estimate being 2,458,809,000 bushels, about 600,000,000 less than in 1923, and the smallest production since 1913.

Oats: The season was unusually favorable for oats and threshing returns exceeded expectations. An average yield of 42 bushels per acre, or a total production of 63,546,000 bushels, is indicated. This yield has never been exceeded and was only equaled by the bumper crop harvested in 1915. Last year, 48,396,000 bushels were produced in the state. The grain is heavy but some was discolored by rains during harvest. The quality is rated at 94 per cent.

The United States' production is estimated at 1,509,409,000 bushels, the largest since 1918. Last year it was 1,299,823,000 bushels.

Barley: The crop is estimated at 4,536,000 bushels as compared with 3,600,000 last year. The average yield is placed at 31.5 bushels per acre, the largest on record. The quality is reported as 94 per cent as compared with an average of 89.

As in the case of oats, more or less of the grain was discolored by rains during the harvest period.

The combined production of all states is placed at 200,953,000 bushels. This is an increase of slightly less than three million over last year.

Spring Wheat: The average of spring wheat is reported as 19 bushels per acre, or a total crop of 152,000 bushels. The crop in 1923 was estimated at 120,000 bushels. The quality is rated at 85 per cent of normal, as compared with a ten-year average of 80 per cent.

Later reports have increased the estimated production of spring wheat in the United States to 266,456,000 bushels, or about 53,000,000 more than last year's.

Buckwheat: The crop has ripened slowly and unevenly which will lower the average yield to some extent. Present indications are for a crop of 841,000 bushels as against 753,000 in 1923. The present condition of 79 per cent is eight per cent below that of one month ago, but five per cent above the ten-year average.

The total crop for the country is estimated at 15,076,000 bushels as compared with 13,920,000 last year. Clover Seed: Reports indicate that much of the crop did not fill well, hence a reduction in acreage to 94,000 as compared with 105,000 in 1923 and 150,000 in 1922. The present condition of 71 per cent is five per cent below the ten-year average and promises a crop of only 127,000 bushels.

Potatoes: Early potatoes and early-planted late varieties are yielding well. The late crop is slow in ripening and has been injured by blight in some sections, as a result of which the yield may be disappointing in some localities. The present condition of 86 per cent represents a total production of 33,911,000 bushels as compared with 35,796,000 bushels last year. The quality of those harvested to date has been excellent. The percentage of hollow and small potatoes is much less than last year.

While the increase over one month ago has been very slight in the state, the total increase for the country as a whole amounts to nearly eleven million bushels, the October 1 reports indicating a total crop of 423,508,000. This quantity has been exceeded only twice, in 1917 and 1922. Beans: Favorable weather during the last half of September permitted growers to harvest much of their crop in good condition. The injury by anthracnose proved to be less serious than expected and the pick is not as heavy as anticipated. The tabulated returns from growers indicate an average yield of 11 bushels per acre from the harvested acreage, which is believed to be about eight per cent less than the planted, or 511,000. This gives a total production of 5,621,000 bushels, as compared with 6,532,000 produced in 1923. The average pick is reported as 6.5 per cent.

The total production for the United States is estimated at 12,782,000 bushels, the average yield being 9.2 bushels per acre.

Hay: The estimated production of tame hay is increased to 4,412,000 tons owing to the addition of late cuttings to the season's crop. Last year's crop amounted to 3,912,000 tons. The quality is 88 per cent of normal. While there is much high grade hay, there is also much that was damaged by rains during the slow process of curing this year. The average yield of clover is placed at 1.45 tons per acre and of alfalfa 2.35 tons. It is estimated that 69,000 tons of wild hay were cut from 54,000 acres.

ASK HELP ON BEST FEEDING OF SWINE

In response to requests of farmers for information on rationing for hogs, the specialist in swine at the New York college of agriculture at Ithaca has prepared the following suggestions:

For brood sows, he recommends one part of hominy, cornmeal or ground barley, one part of ground oats, one part of bran, 5 per cent of chopped alfalfa and 5 per cent of fish meal or tankage. For the fish meal or tankage, skim milk may be substituted at the rate of two pounds for each pound of grain.

For growing pigs, this formula has been found good: One part of hominy, cornmeal or ground barley, one part of finely ground oats, one part of middlings, 5 per cent of chopped alfalfa, 10 per cent of fish meal or tankage; for the latter may be substituted three pounds of skim milk to each three pounds of grain.

For feeding pigs on dry lot after they reach around 125 pounds in weight, two pounds of hominy, one part of middlings, 5 per cent of fish meal or tankage, 10 per cent of fish meal or tankage may be used. For the fish meal or tankage, three pounds of skim milk to each pound of grain may be substituted.

In all the above rations, good pasture in season may replace the alfalfa.

Some farmers fail to realize that minerals are important in swine feeding. A good combination is 10 pounds of ground limestone, 10 pounds of salt, 20 pounds of charcoal and 10 pounds of bone meal. These may be kept before the pigs at all times.

Fall wheat, dwarf-cock rape, red and sweet clovers, and alfalfa all make excellent pastures. About an acre of pasture will be required for every 12 to 18 pigs.

Tuberculosis Is Serious Menace to Farm Animals

Tuberculosis is one of the most important contagious diseases of cattle, swine and poultry.

The germs of the disease are passed out of the cow's body from the mouth and nose, in the manure, and in the milk.

The germs are taken into the body of healthy animals through the nose in breathing and through the mouth in food or water.

Tuberculosis is introduced into the herds and flocks by purchase of diseased animals, or by feeding mixed raw skim milk or whey. Bad sanitary conditions favor the spread of the disease in the herd.

The use of milk from tuberculous cattle causes a portion of tuberculous in man.

The introduction of the disease into the herd may be prevented by making sure that the skim milk and whey fed has been properly pasteurized, and by adding only tuberculin tested cows to the herd.

Tuberculous can be detected with a high degree of accuracy by the use of the tuberculin test, and can be controlled if the animals found by the test are removed from the herd and premises properly cleaned and disinfected. The state and federal governments are expending large sums in helping dairymen rid their herds of this disease. Any veterinarian or county agent can give more information about the work, say the animal husbandry men at the state college at Ithaca.

Mineral Supplements of Big Importance to Hogs

Studies made by the Ohio station show that all grain rations for growing swine require mineral supplements. The breaking down of swine, the development of rickets symptoms, lameness and paralysis have been found to result from insufficient mineral nutriment. Rations containing sufficient milk or tankage or leguminous roughage, however, do not require mineral supplements. When swine are fed on cereal rations there is urgent need for the element calcium, and possibly for phosphorus. In addition, these may be efficiently supplied by a half and half mixture of precipitated calcium carbonate and precipitated bone flour. Other less efficient carbonates and phosphates are available.

Mixing the mineral nutrients with the ration and allowing free access to mineral supplements as well, will tend to increase the development of the skeleton with swine intended for breeding purposes. When swine are self-fed there is a tendency to put on more flesh than skeleton to correspond, unless mineral supplements are fed mixed with the grain.

Clint Blanchard, of Phelps, was in town on business on Tuesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Slaby, of Traverse City, visited friends here on Sunday.

Roy Best, of Alden, visited his sister, Mrs. Wm. G. Patterson, the first of the week.

George Taylor, of New York state, is visiting at the home of his mother, Mrs. Robt. White.

Mr. and Mrs. August VanDerArk are the parents of a baby daughter, born on Friday of last week.

Miss Irene Klooster, of Jamestown, Mich., has been visiting relatives here for the past ten days.

Koo Klooster has purchased the Blue Store owned by Mrs. Ida Weiss and expects to start work soon on extensive repairs and alterations on the building.

The Banks Township Marketing association has received about eight carloads of potatoes to date. The work of grading has been greatly lessened this year by an electric grader which the association recently purchased.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Dobbin, of Muskegon, have been spending a short honeymoon at the Koo Klooster home here. They were married at Muskegon on Wednesday, October 8th. The bride was formerly Miss Jeanette Hooker and is a niece of Mrs. Klooster.

Albert Miles was badly shaken up and slightly bruised on Saturday afternoon, when his team ran away as he was driving in town near the Klooster & VanDerArk store. He was thrown from the buggy but held to the team until one of the reins broke. The buggy was demolished and the team ran to the F. H. Skow barn, where they were captured.

DOYLE BLACK WINNER IN CONTEST

Awarded First Cash Prize in Field of Sixteen

The following shows the results of the boys' pickle growing contest put on this year by the Libby, McNeal & Libby station here. The results obtained by the boys are considered exceptionally good in view of the fact that the past summer has not been a good pickle growing year.

A feature of the contest is the closeness of the race for first place, there being but twenty-four cents difference between Doyle Black in first place and John Kooyer, who finished second. The test was made with each contestant planting and caring for 1-8th acre of land and the prizes were ten, five and two and one half dollars.

Following is the line up in their respective order: Doyle Black, $25.76; John Kooyer, $25.52; Glenn Black, $24.78; Henry Ruis, $22.07; Peter VanDerArk, $21.13; Erwin Eaton, $19.51; Edw. Youngdike, $16.94; Harry VanDerArk, $16.10; Erwin Kinner, $15.73; Geo. Tjapkes, $15.51; Edw. Kinner, $15.22; John Tjapkes, $14.95; Gerrit Drenth, $13.80; Peter Drenth, $13.80; Will Tillotson, $10.29; Walter Gaunt, $9.18.

BIG FISH INN SOLD TO LIMA, OHIO MAN

New Owner Plans on Making Extensive Improvements

Following negotiations lasting over two weeks, a deal was closed on Friday in which L. Van Skiver, proprietor of Big Fish Inn, sold the Inn together with the surrounding property, boats and hotel fixtures to John H. Allgire of Lima, Ohio.

Mr. Allgire, although new to the hotel business, is an experienced business man, who intends to use in his new venture the same ability which has made him a success in other lines of work in his home city.

Following the purchase, the place was closed and the new owner left on Tuesday of this week for his home at Lima, but plans on being in Ellsworth about April 1st to start work on the erection of several cottages.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Skiver are visiting friends at Charlevoix at present and have not yet fully decided where they will make their future home.

POULTRY

LITTLE CHICKS NEED CAREFUL ATTENTION

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

The artificial method of brooding chickens consists in supplying, artificially, heat as nearly as possible like that furnished by the hen under natural conditions. The temperature of a hen is about 104 degrees F., but as hens seldom sit closely on chickens, the latter do not receive this degree of heat.

Heat adapts their methods of brooding to conditions, such as outside temperature, size of the chickens, and wet weather, and the operator of an artificial brooder must meet these conditions as nearly as he can. Some of the most important faults in the management of brooders are overcrowding and lack of ventilation and the failure of chickens to get sufficient exercise. The brooder should supply the proper temperature, be readily adapted to meet the changes in weather conditions, be easy to clean, and be well ventilated.

Chickens are usually left in the incubator from 24 to 36 hours after hatching, without feeding, before they are removed to the brooder, which should have been in operation for three or four days at the proper temperature for receiving chickens. A beginner, says the United States Department of Agriculture, should try this brooding system carefully before he uses it. After being placed in the brooder the chickens can be given feed and water. Subsequent loss in chickens is frequently due to chilling received while taking them from the incubator to the brooder. In cool or cold weather they should be moved in a covered basket or other receptacle.

Brooder houses should have from 1/2 to 2 inches of sand, dry dirt, cut clover, or chaff spread over the floor and in the brooder pen. The floors should be cleaned frequently, as cleanliness is essential in raising chickens successfully.

When chickens are first put into the brooder they should be confined under or around the hover by placing a board or wire frame a few inches outside. The fence or guard should be moved farther and farther away from the hover and discarded entirely when the chickens are three or four days old or when they have learned to return to the source of the heat. Young chickens should be closely watched to see that they do not huddle or get chilled. They should be allowed to run on the ground whenever the weather is favorable, as they do much better than when kept continuously on cement or board floors.

Practical Suggestions for Getting Clean Eggs

The increasing number of graded eggs that are shipped makes it necessary that every practicable means be employed to keep eggs clean. The greatest help, outside of clean straw on the floor and in the nests, is a screen shutting the hens off the roosts during the day. A screen made of poultry netting is lowered in the morning and remains down until time for the hens to go to roost. Cleaning the dropping boards daily will not help so much as the use of one of these screens.

An added advantage is the fact that a hen on the floor is encouraged to activity. The hens that spend any great portion of their time on the roosts are fit subjects for colds and roup.

The practice of placing perches a foot or so above the dropping boards leads to soiled feet, soiled perches and soiled eggs. The hens, instead of walking on the perches, walk on the dropping boards and their feet become badly soiled.

Gathering eggs twice daily is also a help in producing cleaner eggs. By all means supply a plentiful number of nests. Eggs laid on the floor are invariably soiled. A nest may have eight or ten clean eggs in it and the entire number may be soiled by the hen laying the next egg.

THIRD AMENDMENT HAS BAD JOKER

NO MOIETY CLAUSE LIMITS RE-PRESENTATION

Under Its Provisions Wayne County Might Have 35 Per Cent of Both Houses

When the voters go to the polls Tuesday, November 4th, they will be confronted with three proposed constitutional amendments. All three are of unusual importance. Two of them, those referring to an income tax and the parochial school issue, have been given wide publicity and are probably pretty well understood. Very little is being said, however, about the third proposed constitutional amendment which refers to the vitally important matter of legislative reapportionment.

The reapportionment amendment which will appear on the November ballot has but one good feature to commend it. It would substitute in the portion of the constitution dealing with this subject of reapportionment the words "registered and qualified voters" for the word "individuals" used in the constitution at present. This change is one which we all agree should be made and one which the farm organizations of the state have been demanding for some time.

However, behind the smoke screen of this one meritorious provision there lurk dangerous features of the most menacing nature. The worst of these is the failure of the proposed amendment to include any sort of a moiety clause or any limitation on the representation from any one county in either branch of the legislature.

In brief, this provision would work as follows: If Wayne county should have 35 per cent of the "registered and qualified voters" of the state, this county would have 35 per cent of the members of both senate and the house. Such a condition would be absolutely contrary to the well established principles of government upon which this nation and most of the states are established. In our national government we recognize that areas and political units should be taken into consideration as well as population totals in apportioning our legislative representatives. For instance, the state of Delaware with 223,000 people and New York with 10,385,000 each have two United States senators at Washington.

A large number of the states have enacted the same principle into their fundamental constitutional law. Practically every state which has one or more great cities has taken steps to limit the representation from these metropolitan areas in either one or both of the legislative chambers. By these safeguards the state as a whole protects itself against being dominated by any congested centers of population.

The moiety clause in the constitution as it exists today offers some such protection in regard to the make-up of our Michigan house of representatives. There are 100 representatives, so an exact mathematical division of representatives would allow one to each area having a ratio of one one-hundredth of the total population. But here is where the moiety clause steps in. This clause provides that any county having a moiety, or one-half of a full ratio, should have an independent representative. It is thus evident that passage of the proposed amendment will take away the independent representation now enjoyed by several counties and will group two or three such counties together to form districts. In the more sparsely settled regions these districts will be very large, making it difficult for a man to fairly represent his district in an intimate and intelligent way.

It is evident that if Wayne county should have 35 per cent of the representatives in each branch of the legislature we would have a rule of an organized minority, instead of the rule of the majority. Thirty five members of the house from one county who would get together and caucus and all vote alike could practically control legislation, especially if the same condition existed in the senate. A representative of a congested city area can find out on short notice what his constituents think about any issue, while if a man who is supposed to represent the same number of constituents scattered over several counties, it is much more difficult to find out accurately what his people back home think.

A further provision of the proposed amendment which merits careful consideration is that which provides for taking the whole matter of apportionment out of the hands of the legislature and turning it over to a board consisting of the Secretary of State, the Attorney General and the Lieutenant Governor.

At the last annual meeting of the state farm bureau board of delegates a resolution was passed urging that reapportionment be made on the basis of citizenship rather than total population, recommending that the moiety clause be retained and extended to apply not only to individual counties, but to groups of small counties as well and favoring the limitation of the number of lawmakers from any one county to five senators and sixteen representatives.

Much more might well be said about this situation, but we trust that the above is sufficient to insure that this matter will have the earnest and intelligent consideration of every voter. Again we say, this is a matter of the most far-reaching importance and should not be passed over lightly.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The annual district convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Congregational church on October 22nd and 23rd, beginning on Wednesday p. m. at 1:30 o'clock.

The afternoon session will be occupied with reports of unions, a talk on the Women Voters' League, a memorial service, songs by the White Ribbon Recruits and general matters of business.

At six o'clock a banquet will be served at which will be delivered the address of welcome and the response thereto. Miss Margaret J. Bilz, of Spring Lake, will be present and will deliver the address of the evening on "God's Great Tomorrow." Musical numbers will also be rendered.

Members of the union and their families are expected to attend the banquet.

MANCELONA NOW SHIPS FERNS

TONS OF THEM GO OUT EVERY DAY TO CITY FLORISTS

Finest Come From Northern Michigan
Where They Grow in Hardwood Timber Lands

When the 'sweet young thing' in Chicago, St. Louis or New York City receives her gift of flowers from him, with its beautiful ferns mingled with the blooms, one wonders if she realizes where these ferns really come from. If she realizes they are not grown in the greenhouse or the greenhouse gardens where the flowers are raised, she may study awhile but probably never guess they come from this pretty little northern Michigan village.

The most beautiful, attractive ferns come from the hardwood timber lands and the country around this village, particularly the hilly region and valleys are filled with ferns—just the right kind, too, for use in making those flowers appear more beautiful.

While the city girls admire them many girls here are at work making the ferns into flat bunches—25 to a bunch—and packing them in crates—7,000 fern leaves to a crate—for shipment. Each crate of 7,000 ferns weighs about 125 pounds and is shipped by express to the big city florists. In addition to the bouquets the ferns help make more attractive the rooms and bowers for thousands of home and church weddings in the cities.

Picking of ferns in northern Michigan begins in August but does not get fully under way until late September. At the busy time of the season about a quarter of a million of ferns are shipped five days a week from Mancelona. Verne Culbertson has control of this unusual industry in this village and is considered one of the nation's largest fern shippers. The ferns are brought in from the woods and carefully sorted, there being at times close to a million fern leaves in the stock house where the packers work.

Ferns are also shipped to cities from the mountains of Vermont and from Massachusetts and New Hampshire but the finest ones—those with the most delicate coloring and leaf formations come from Michigan.—Mancelona Herald.

AT THE MOVIES

William S. Hart in "Wild Bill Hickok" Will Delight Fans
William S. Hart in "Wild Bill Hickok," directed by Clifford S. Smith, is an announcement that will have familiar ring to the motion picture world. In the good old days, beginning in 1914, Clifford S. Smith directed this famous star in no less than forty-five pictures. Twenty-two of these were two-reelers and twenty-three were five-reel features. These were the Western productions that made Bill Hart world-famous as the king of western heroes.

Few theatergoers have forgotten "The Aryan." Many critics still refer to this picture as one of the best ever screened. What western memories are awakened by "The Disciple," "Hell's Hinges" and "The Apostle of Vengeance!"

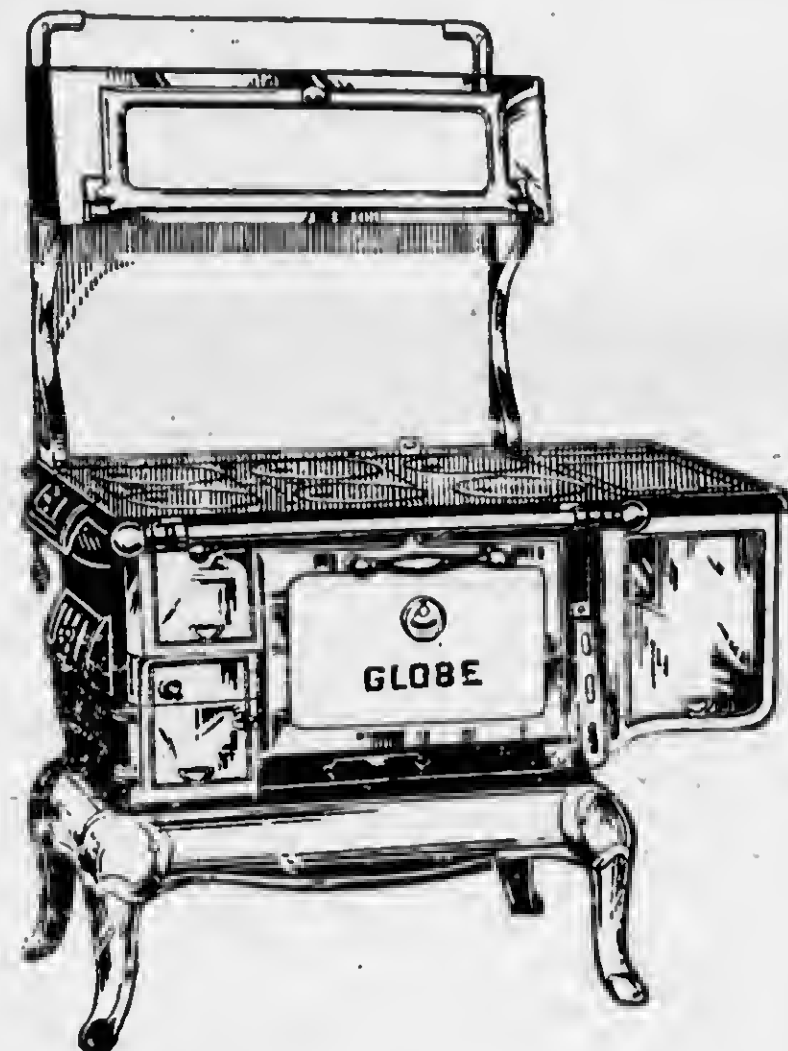

With the return of William S. Hart to the screen under contract to make nine specials for Paramount release, the star has formed a new organization, which however, is composed almost entirely of old Hart stand-bys. Entrusting the direction of his future productions to his successful co-worker of early days, he has again hit upon an ideal combination, as Smith is ranked a leader in the making of western pictures.

"Wild Bill Hickok" marks the director's debut for Paramount release. It will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Ethel Grey Terry plays opposite Mr. Hart and heads an excellent supporting cast. The feature is said to be one of the most thrilling of Mr. Hart's long repertoire.

Marshall Neilan has centered his undoubted directorial talent in producing a motion picture with a Russian locale in "The Rendezvous," which is coming to the Palace Theatre on Tuesday, heralded as a film fit to rank in entertainment quality and artistry with the other fine pictures Neilan has made.

In keeping with the Goldwyn company's policy of producing big pictures, the cast of "The Rendezvous" is a strong one. Conrad Nagel plays Lieutenant Stanford a dashing young

BUSY SESSIONS CLOSED ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Hospital Got a Nice Appropriation While Tourist Bureau Fared Slim

The sessions of the Charlevoix county Board of Supervisors, which commenced Monday morning, October 13th, with Hon. William J. Pearson, of Boyne Falls, in the chair, and closed Saturday afternoon, were productive of the usual amount of routine business and some important appropriations and measures, among which were the following:

An electric washer, a new kitchen range and a dozen mattresses were purchased for the sheriff's quarters and the jail.

George McMullin appeared before the board in the interests of George R. Hemingway, proprietor of the Charlevoix County Nurseries, relative to the widening of the road from the east approach of the Ironton, ferry to the foot of Riffenburg hill, asking the board for their consideration and financial assistance. The matter is now under advisement.

The board appropriated the sum of $1,800 for the furtherance and promotion of extension work by the Charlevoix county agricultural agent.

An appropriation of $1,000 was made for the purpose of assisting in the maintenance of the Charlevoix Hospital for the coming year.

They also appropriated from the general fund to the County Agricultural Society the sum of $2,000 to assist in carrying out county fair work during the coming year.

A safe was ordered purchased for the judge of probate's office.

The sum of $1,100 was appropriated for the use of the County Park Commission for permanent improvements to the Whiting County Park and the June appropriation of $500 for this purpose was also ratified and ordered paid.

The County Park Commission was also authorized to make arrangements with the state conservation department for the erection of a steel fire tower in Whiting Park, to be used by the fire warden as an observation tower.

The Michigan Children's Aid Society was awarded an appropriation of $350 and the hospital school for crippled children at Farmington, $350.

The name of Jacob E. Chew was placed in nomination to serve as superintendent of the poor for a three year term. A unanimous ballot was cast, electing Mr. Chew to that office.

W. L. Fuehrer was nominated and unanimously elected county school examiner for a term of two years.

D. F. Meech, W. F. Tindall and Herman Goodman were nominated to serve as county election canvassers for a period of one year. A unanimous ballot was cast.

The chairman appointed each supervisor in his respective city, ward or township a member of the committee to care for indigent soldiers and sailors.

The name of S. M. Rose was presented to succeed himself as park commissioner for a five year term. He was elected by unanimous ballot.

The name of W. H. White, of Boyne City was placed in nomination to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of F. O. Barden as a member of the County Park Commission.

WHITE'S ANSWER WAS NOT SO SLOW, WHADDEYOU THINK?

William Allen White, of Emporia, Kansas, famous novelist, whose hat is in the ring for the governorship of his state, recently had a biblical tilt with Lody who telegraphed him, asking him when he was going to grow up. She quoted Paul: "When I was a child I spake as a child; but when I was a man I put away childish things."

White's answer read: "One greater than Paul said: 'Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom as a little child shall not enter therein.' But, so long as Paul is your favorite, try First Corinthians, verses 34 and 35. Not that I believe it, but you might play it on your phonograph and washing machine."

The verses tell women to remain silent on public matters!!!

He was elected by unanimous ballot.

A tax fund of 2 1-2 mills on each dollar of assessed valuation of Charlevoix county in 1924 was voted to be raised; the fund to be known as a county sinking fund, the moneys so raised to be used for the purpose of retiring county road bonds and federal aided bonds, the paying of the interest due on said bonds and for no other purpose unless authorized by the County Sinking Fund Commission.

The county clerk was authorized to rent the county property, on Mason street and collect rents therefrom monthly in advance.

A county road tax of 3 1-2 mills on the dollar was assessed against the taxable property of the county for the construction and maintenance of roads for the years, 1924-25.

Projected road work for next year includes the following:

Completion of the East Jordan and Peninsular road in Eveline township; estimated cost, $5,420.

One half mile of road from the Mancelona road to the East Jordan and Central Lake road in South Arm township; estimated cost, $2,000.

One mile or more on the Marion

VOTED THE BEST-EVER CONVENTION

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS NEWLY ENTHUSED

Fine Program Delights and Able Speakers Emphasize Importance of Work

The County Sunday School convention met in the Congregational church here last Thursday, the churches of the city uniting in the entertainment.

Some fifty delegates were present, including most of the ministers of the county and large audiences listened to the inspirational programs in the afternoon and evening.

Some questions regarding proposed changes in the organization were discussed and referred back to the schools for final vote. The old officers were asked to continue until the 1925 convention, which will be held in the spring, as the association cannot function to advantage until the vote is taken.

Rev. George A. Weaver, a missionary of the American S. S. Union, addressed the convention on, "The Field and Its Needs." This gentleman has been working for thirty-three years in Charlevoix and four near-by counties, organizing and overseeing Sunday schools in rural communities. It is a great work, which may be very much increased if the Christian people of the county will give time to supply leadership in communities where it is lacking.

Miss Maud Aldrich gave inspirational addresses both afternoon and evening on young people and social welfare. People from all over the county who are interested in Sunday school work, assisted with addresses and musical numbers. This was undoubtedly the finest Sunday school convention ever held in the county and all the workers must have gone home enthused with the value of the work they are doing and with new ideas and aims to be carried out.

Mrs. Dan Swartz, who has recently returned to her town home from her farm near the city brought a couple of curiosities into this office last Saturday in the shape of a spray of wild raspberries and one of blackberries, picked by herself and Mr. Swartz along the Boyne City road on Friday last week, October 17th.

The berries are many of them ripe and of good size and stand as mute testimony to the remarkable fall weather we have had to date. The sprays are now on display in Fessenden's window.

FINANCES NOW IN O. K. CONDITION

HOSPITAL IS ENTIRELY FREE FROM INDEBTEDNESS

Good Management and Liberal Support are Responsible for This Fine Showing

The handsome appropriation made by the Board of Supervisors at their meeting last week of the sum of $1,000 for the use of the Charlevoix hospital affords us an opportunity to mention the progress that has been made by this valuable institution during the past year and the very gratifying financial condition that has resulted from excellent management and liberal support.

The new addition is now practically completed and its equipment installed. Certain items of equipment are of course needed to bring the mechanical facilities of the hospital up to the best standards and these will be purchased from time to time as the need for them arises.

Much assistance in a financial way has been received from our summer visitors. Among the largest contributors are the Belvedere Association, the Chicago Club and Northside Welfare Association. With this aid and the very gracious bequest of the late Windsor F. Aldrich, the hospital has been enabled to meet the entire indebtedness incurred by the construction of the new annex, and to pay off other obligations as well, so that the institution is at the present time free from debt.

During the past six months, the receipts from operations and care of patients has been sufficient to adequately care for the ordinary or running expenses of the hospital, which has therefore been self-supporting for the period named.

In addition to this, products of the hospital garden have been sufficient to supply the needs of the nurses and patients and throughout the latter part of July, all of August and September and so far this month the superintendent has not found it necessary to make outside purchases of vegetables. One hundred seventy-five quarts of cucumbers, beans and other vegetables have been canned for winter use.

However, there are some items that the management would be glad to have supplied by popular donation, such as canned fruits: jellies, jams, etc. Apples and potatoes are also highly acceptable. A committee has been appointed to collect these donations and will start to make its rounds before very long.

Among the contributions of materials made to the hospital during the past few weeks, that of the Chicago Club is especially noteworthy. R. W. Rolleson of the Club, on one of his visits to the hospital was particularly impressed by the need of adequate stores of linens, bedding, etc. He formed a committee among the ladies of the Club to see what could be done about supplying this need and, as a result, $500 was raised and materials as follows purchased at very favorable prices through Mr. Scott of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., the Chicago department store, who is also a member of the Club: 12 dozen sheets, 12 dozen pillow slips, 12 dozen bath towels, 12 dozen hand towels, 3 dozen dimity spreads, 6 dozen napkins, 140 yards dish towel and 30 wool blankets.

ONCE DOOMED TO SERVE 99 YEARS

ARMENIAN LECTURER TELLS OF TURKISH CRUELTY

Himself a Victim of the Ottoman Fiends, He Paints Vivid Picture of Atrocities

Nearly 40 years ago, V. K. Beshgetoor, an Armenian by birth, stood before a Turkish judge and received a sentence of 99 years in a Turkish dungeon. He was chained to two Turkish soldiers in that prison, all this because he had undertaken to publish a small, semi-weekly paper, written by hand for all his subscribers. However, by the liberal use of "bakshish" (present, or gift or tip) his escape was made possible and he came to America and has lived in Michigan for 32 years. His four children are all graduates of Alma college and the three sons, who also served in the American army during the world war, have taken university courses and his daughter is now a third year medic in the University of Michigan.

Mr. Beshgetoor has been in Charlevoix in the interests of the tens of thousands of orphan children in the

V. K. Beshgetoor

Bible lands, as well as the vast hordes of refugees whom Near East Relief is endeavoring to care for. He says it is impossible for us to realize the ghastly horrors of the war and its aftermath, because we are so far removed from it. If in America more than 50,000,000 people would perish, the very bit of property destroyed, the young women carried into slavery, children to be kicked off to die like flies by the millions and the rest of the people driven away to a foreign land where they were not wanted and where there were no means of caring for them—if such a condition can be imagined—that is precisely what has taken place in Armenia in proportion to their population.

Near East Relief is chartered by congress for one purpose only and that is "relief." It knows no politics, nor sect, nor nationality. It faces the facts and not a theory. It has today over 40,000 orphan children under its care and who are under twelve years of age and thousands more under fourteen years of age. The plan is not only to care for their physical needs, but to train them under American personnel and ideals as the future nation of those countries.

Mr. Beshgetoor will occupy the Congregational pulpit next Sunday morning and that of the Church of God in the evening. He will tell the story of this great philanthropy which America is carrying on in the Bible lands.

BOYS' CAMP SITE GIVEN PETOSKEY

Recipient of 40 Acre Tract of Wooded Land

Petoskey is to have a permanent Boys Camp. This has been made possible by a gift to the Boys Camp department of the City Wide Work committee of forty acres of land on the west shores of Walloon Lake. The site was presented by Mrs. Harriet S. Harper, of Pasadena, California, and is to be a memorial to her father, the late H. K. Daggett, former Petoskey merchant and church and Sunday school worker.

The camp will be called "Camp Daggett."

The deed to the property is now held in trust by Watson Snyder and B. H. Cook, of Petoskey, until the Boys Camp division of the City Wide Work committee can incorporate and become legal holders of the deed. Mrs. Harper has asked that permanent improvements be made on the property, such as camp buildings and an athletic field, and that the city make the fullest use possible of the place.

DISTRICT W. R. C. TO HAVE TAG DAY

ELECT OFFICERS AT WOLVERINE MEETING

Annual Convention Proves a Delightful Affair—Delegates are Chosen

At the annual district convention of the Women's Relief Corps of the 12th district of Michigan, Cheboygan won the contest for entertaining the 1925 district convention. Wolverine this year entertained royally those women who have long been handed together for mutual helpfulness. Martha McCabe, of Bay City, department president of Michigan, and Mrs. Leota Powers, of Harbor Springs, district president, handled the convention business.

The camp fire night proved one of the most enjoyable parts of this year's sessions with the entertaining drills by the school children and flag presentations to the Wolverine school. The annual memorial service to the departed members was beautifully given.

These officers were elected and installed: President, Lizzie McKillop, Wolverine; senior vice president, Susan M. Beebe, Harbor Springs; junior vice president, Louise Averill, Petoskey; secretary, Evald Norton, Wolverine; chaplain, Sarah C. Benson, Cheboygan; patriotic instructor, Mrs. E. Harrington, East Jordan; press correspondent, Lucia C. Mealey, Cheboygan. The delegates to the national convention to be held in Grand Rapids in 1925 will be Mrs. Olive Newland, of Charlevoix, with Mrs. Sadie Staley of this city as alternate.

The twelfth district includes a large part of northern Michigan.

TOOK HIS BODY TO SAINT JAMES

Remains of Joseph Scheid Found in Saginaw Bay

The body of Joseph William Scheid, aged 22 years, one of the victims of the wreck of the whale-haek steamer, Clifton, which sank in Lake Huron during the storm of Sunday, September 21st, with her entire crew, was brought to this city Tuesday and transferred to Fred Sendenberg's fish tug, the Agnes, to be taken to the home of the deceased in St. James, for the funeral and interment.

Scheid's body was recently picked up in Saginaw Bay, by the crew of the Angeline. He was a nephew of Captain Emmet E. Gallagher of St. James, master of the Clifton, who went down with his ship, and a cousin of the two other Beaver Island boys lost in the wreck, Peter Burns and Anthony McDonough. Scheid, who was a wheelman on the Clifton, was unmarried, as were the others from St. James.

His cousin, Anthony McDonough, second mate of the Clifton, was a salt-water sailor, having made the voyage to China some ten times and visiting Sumatra and Java in his travels.

The Rebekah Circle will serve a Halloween supper at the I. O. O. F. hall, Friday evening, October 31, at 6:00 p. m., until all are served.—Adv. 42-42.

G. H. S. PUTS UP GAME FIGHT

THOUGH OUTCLASSED, RED AND WHITE UNDISMAYED

Traverse Earns Score of 27 to 6 In Season's Toughest Scrap to Date

Before a booming, a razzing and a thrilled crowd, Charlevoix high school football team made its first appearance of the season on the south side gridiron last Friday afternoon against a team larger and faster than the wearers of the Red and White.

Only two men in the first strong lineup weighed more than 175 pounds—namely Captain Burns, 185 pounds, left guard, and Brown, an end, 177 pounds. The rest of the outfit makes up in speed and intelligence what it lacks in weight.

Behind our line no more weakness was apparent than the Rock of Gibraltar might show one of these days. Jones and Cunningham showed the old time stuff and many times they brought cheers from the spectators by their long runs.

October is the month in which champion football teams are jolted and, although we were beaten, we put up one of the gamest fights that the fans have seen for years.

The weather was slightly warm for the players but was ideal for the spectators. The largest crowd ever witnessing a Charlevoix game was present.

The game was fast and from the beginning Traverse was forced to use their first strong men, with Johnny Norris as their bright light.

Captain Burns won the toss and elected to receive. We could not gain, so Jones was called upon to punt. After the punt, Traverse started a grand march towards our goal. The gains were due chiefly to the line's failure to shift fast enough. Norris carried the ball over for the first touchdown.

Captain Burns again decided to receive, when Traverse held C. H. S. was forced to punt. Jones here demonstrated his ability to punt and the pigskin rolled over the Traverse goal line, touching the Traverse safety man as it rolled. Hallett was first to see the mistake and luckily fell upon the ball for the first touchdown of the season. Although Hallett's kick was good, the extra point was not counted because he kicked before the referee's whistle was blown.

Again in the first period did Traverse score, but they had to work hard in doing so. The first period ended with Traverse City in possession of the ball on our twenty yard line.

Soon after the second quarter, Traverse rushed over for their third touchdown of the game. C. H. S. then held and there was no more scoring in the first half. In this period, the defense work of Glasgow was featured.

In the second half, Charlevoix started some classy plays that put the ball on Traverse's thirty yard line. (Continued on page 4)

MEANEST MAN IN TOWN IS SKUNK POISONING DOGS

The dog poisoner is at work again. Several valuable animals on the north side are victims of his fiendish art and one dog in the valley was saved only by the speedy application of first aid methods. Strychnine was the poison used.

The Courier has more than once had occasion to denounce this dirty form a villainy in its columns. It is hard to bring the perpetrator of this dastardly business to justice, owing to difficulty of detection but it is well for him to know that he has the contempt and detestation of not only the dog lover but of every honest and decent minded citizen. Judged by a standard of sheer meanness and cruelty, many of the higher crimes pale into insignificance.

If the dogs annoy this creature, whoever he or she may be, he has access to the law. He does not need to debate himself below the level of the poorest cur to get redress.

Make Each R.R. Crossing A Stop Street

Most Michigan cities compel motorists to bring their cars to a full stop before crossing any heavy-traffic street.

This law is universally approved. It saves time and averts accident. It is wise and fair.

Yet heavy motor vehicle traffic is far less dangerous to you than a railroad train. Speed is the very essence of Railroad service. A train cannot stop quickly. Nor can it turn out to avoid hitting you.

Six states have already passed laws, making stop streets out of Railroad intersections. The time may come when the State of Michigan will compel you by law to thus protect yourself.

But, why wait for law, when you have common sense?

Determine today that, from this time on, you will always bring your car to a full stop before crossing a Railroad track, anywhere—any time.

Everybody will approve your good judgment. Many will follow your example. And you will be relieved forever from the possibility of this, the most serious of common accidents.

The Spirit of Protestantism

THE spirit of Protestantism exhibits itself in Love and Tolerance.

A true Protestant grants his fellow-citizen the right to differ as he himself claims that right.

Protestantism stands for certain definite principles, but it does not display intolerance towards those of opposite views.

A Protestant hopes that others may see as he does, but if they do not he still remains neighborly and fair. He does not resort to legislation to force his convictions upon others.

Protestantism is opposed to every type of tyranny over the minds and souls of men. It stands for freedom of conscience and religion. It stands for freedom of thought and speech. It stands for freedom to learn and teach.

It cannot agree to a dictatorship of religion or education without violating its traditional spirit.

It does not believe that the state should establish a monopoly in education.

All who believe in the true spirit of Protestantism will work and vote against the School Amendment, which seeks to give the state a monopoly in education.

Passion must not be permitted to destroy educational liberty, which is one of the best fruits of the Protestant Reformation.

THREE per cent of Michigan's population of ten years and over cannot read or write. The nation's average is twice as high—six per cent.

Thirty states have more illiterates than Michigan.

There are 2,203 negro and 14,172 native white illiterates in Michigan.

These are United States Census Bureau figures. They disprove the claims of propagandists that there are more than one-half million people in Michigan who cannot read or write.

Michigan people are broadminded, tolerant, and educated. They are products of schools that are second to none in America.

Public, Private, and Church Schools have worked together in a program of state-wide education. Each deserves credit for the part it has played.

If Michigan were to adopt the School Amendment, private and church schools would have to be closed in less than nine months! Nearly 125,000 pupils would be thrown into an already overcrowded public school system. Chaos would prevail. Work would be disorganized. System would be destroyed. Taxes would go up.

Many children would be put on a part time basis.

Michigan's splendid record for literacy would be threatened.

Teach me that 60 minutes make an hour, 16 ounces one pound, and 100 cents one dollar. Help me to so live that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience, without a gun under my pillow and unharmed by the faces of those to whom I have brought pain.

"BABY TRUSTS"

Proud parents have visions of the babies growing up, becoming young men and women. Why should they not do an unusual thing in connection with that idea—create A TRUST FOR THE BABY, to consist of the payments, from time to time, large and small, that will result from the affection and economy of the parents and from the contributions of admiring friends and relatives; the principal and interest to be invested and reinvested by the trustee in bonds or mortgage notes drawing 6% or better, the whole to be accumulated until the baby shall have reached a stated age, and then to be used, in the discretion of the trustee or some other appointee, for any one or all of several designated purposes, for example: (1) expenses of a college or other education; (2) expenses of travel in lieu of or as a supplement to the same; (3) expenditures attending marriage or setting up a home; or (4) simple support and maintenance, whether married or unmarried, according to the ideas of the parents. This trust may be begun with $100 and subsequent payments of $50 will be accepted. When the income is not withdrawn and is reinvested, the accumulation grows with interesting strides. It will be a source of increasing pride to all concerned.

line. Here a pass (Hallett to Jones) brought the ball to the visitor's six yard line. But the breaks were with Traverse, as one of our men was not on the line of scrimmage and the ball went back to their thirty yard line from where we were penalized 15 yards.

Traverse at this point picked up new courage and carried the ball over for their fourth touchdown. This was the last scoring of the game, as C. H. S. then held and soon the game was at a close, with the score Traverse, 27, Charlevoix, 6.

C. H. S. goes to East Jordan to play next Friday and a hard battle is expected.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Friday, October 24

Paramount presents Pola Negri in "MONTMARTRE." Produced by Ernest Lubitsch, director of "Passion." The gay white way of Paris—rendezvous of pleasure—mad society and pretty Apache. That's the fascinating setting for the love-flaming story. Directed by the man who made Pola famous. Also a Neeley Edwards comedy, "FEATHER PUSHERS."

Saturday and Sunday, October 25 and 26

Tom Mix in "THE TROUBLE SHOOTER," with Tony, the wonder horse in a tornado of thrills. This is one of Mix's best pictures. Also a thrilling two-reel comedy, "HIGH POWER."

Tuesday and Wednesday, October 28 and 29

Paramount presents Zane Grey's story, "THE CALL OF THE CANYON," with Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Marjorie Daw. Another red-blooded drama of the western ranges, with a vein of jazz by way of contrast. This is one of Zane Grey's best stories. Also the second one of the Go-Getters, "IN THE KNICKER TIME." Pep, speed, thrills, fun, drama. All snugly packed into the two reel stories of the age.

"The Trouble Shooter" is Excellent Picture

In a career notable for good pictures, Tom Mix has done nothing more pleasing than his portrayal of "The Trouble Shooter," which comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

The story by Frederick and Sunny Hutton, deals with a western wire repairman for a big mountain power company.

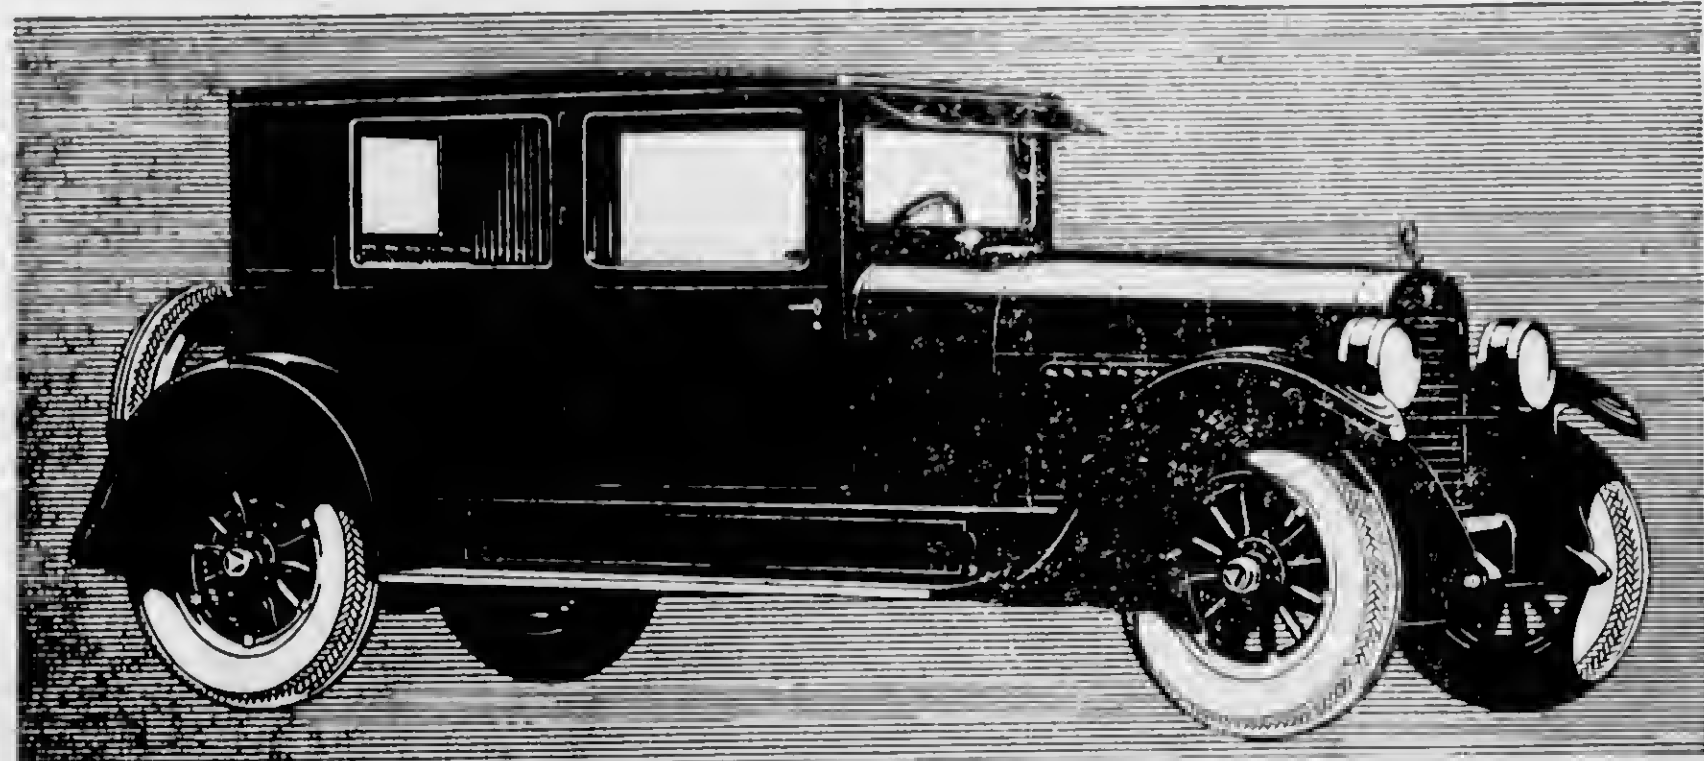

In the cast with the western stars are Kathleen Key, Earl Fox, J. Gunnis Davis, Howard Truesdale, Frank Currier, Mike Donlin, one time big league ball player; Dolores Rousse, Charles McHugh, and Al Freemont.

The picture was directed by John Conway and Mix never did better work, nor did Tony play up to better advantage.

The plucky little horse is with the cowboy actor in every thrilling scene and there are many of them.

Great Western Story is "The Call of the Canyon."

The bigness of the west and the nobility of its people, described as only Zane Grey can describe them, are shown in "The Call of the Canyon," Paramount's second Zane Grey production, which will be the big feature at the Palace Theatre for 2 days beginning Tuesday next.

At Exactly Open Car Cost

You pay exactly open car cost for the all-year comforts of the Coach. Hudson alone can build it. As the largest builder of 6-cylinder closed cars in the world, Hudson exclusively holds the advantages to produce this car and this price.

It creates the one important buying issue today. For no one who knows closed car comforts will be satisfied with an open car, with one-season utility, and diminishing resale value.

That is why the Coach outsells all rivals. Its leadership is not even challenged. Everyone knows it provides highest closed car value. Hudson invented the Coach and its development and experience make its value exclusive.

And even more important in your permanent enjoyment of the Coach, is the famous Super-Six chassis with performance distinction and long lasting reliability not excelled by any car regardless of cost.

The story is the latest written by this popular author. It treats of a phase of American life when the love of gaiety and extravagance followed in the wake of the great war. The part which the west and western people played in bringing America to a greater love of wholesome respectability and life in the out-of-doors, is admirably shown in this excellent picture.

"The Call of the Canyon" is said to be one of the best stories ever written by Zane Grey, and in the production of the picture, it is the original has been faithfully retained. Mr. Grey personally assisted in the search for locations as a background for the picture.

The photograph opens with the arrival from France of Glenn Kilbourne, played by Richard Dix, who finds his sweetheart, Carley Burch, portrayed by Lois Wilson, engaged in a gay life in New York. Disgusted with after-war extravagance, he leaves for Arizona to regain his health and his faith in mankind. Here he meets Flo Hutton, a role played by Marjorie Daw. Flo falls in love with Glenn and, feeling that Carley will never consent to live in the west, he is on the point of marrying Flo.

Carley Burch unexpectedly arrives in Arizona and a series of dramatic scenes follow in which Carley wages a battle of wits against Flo for the affections of Glenn. The bigness of the spirit of westerners is shown in the final dramatic scenes which are filled with suspense up to the climax of the picture.

On The Proposed Income Tax Amendment

THE REASONS MULTIPLY

It would destroy the very basis for the present Railroad Taxes, and Public Utility Taxes generally, for which the people fought for years in the days of Pingree, and enable them all to escape all taxes, except those levied locally under the general law, until this proposed amendment, if adopted, be repealed or amended by the people, at a general election.

Up to Pingree's time the State Constitution required a uniform rule for assessing taxes, as follows:

"Sec. 3. The Legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule of taxation, except on property paying specific taxes, and taxes shall be levied on such property as shall be prescribed by law."

After a long fight, it was amended by adding the following clause:

"Provided that the Legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule of taxation for such property as shall be assessed by the State Board of Assessors, and the rate of taxation on such property shall be the rate which the State Board of Assessors shall ascertain and determine is the average rate levied upon other property upon which ad valorem taxes are assessed for State, County, Township, School and Municipal purposes."

That clause is there today, and has been sustained by the courts, after protracted litigation. It is the only constitutional basis for millions of dollars of railroad and other public utility taxes, annually, which will have no basis whatever if this proposed amendment be adopted, for it puts the proposed income tax provision IN THE PLACE OF THE ABOVE PROVISION, NOT BELOW IT. The effect is substantially to reduce railroad taxes and other public utility taxes, which form the resource for a large part of the Primary School Fund.

Do the farmers want this gap filled by additional real estate taxes?

This proposed amendment is beyond belief, I agree. Several here would not believe it, when this discovery was made, until a trusted man was sent to Lansing to examine the proposed amendment. However crazy a proposal it is, it has been put under way and there is no way to escape its effect, if the proposed amendment be adopted.

I have the written opinion of a well-known and high class lawyer, a copy of which will be mailed on request. It gives the whole story and the writers have verified the facts.

A sorry mess the State will be in if the proposed amendment be adopted. TAKE WARNING, EVERY TAXPAYER.

CARNIVAL RECEIPTS FIFTY DOLLARS

School House Packed to Capacity Friday Evening

Nearly fifty dollars were the receipts from the carnival put on by the teachers and pupils at the school house last Friday evening. A short program started the hall rolling and following the program, spellers were busy announcing the carnival features, which included booths for the sale of candies and soft drinks, a regular "hot dog" stand and a stand for the sale of coffee. A fortune teller told the past, present and future in true Gypsy style, while a dog show held sway at one place and a chamber of horrors at another, and all over all a cloud of confetti was constantly falling. Little Ethan Edson was the clown and a drill in costume by Gwendolyn and Naomi Isaman drew hearty applause. A boys' band, which made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in harmony and a mouth organ solo by Lester Klooster were also features which added to the pleasures of the evening.

The financial receipts of the evening's entertainment will be used in the purchase of special school equipment. So those who attended will, in a way, receive a benefit in addition to the many laughs they enjoyed.

Methodist Church Scene of Enjoyable Affair

The M. E. church was the scene of a very enjoyable party on Wednesday evening of last week, the occasion being a reception for Rev. Conklin and family. A splendid musical program, in which Ellsworth, Atwood and Barnard each took part, occupied the earlier part of the evening, after which the basement parlors were thrown open and light refreshments served to the guests.

Rev. Conklin has made a decided hit with the entire community by his straight gospel preaching. The church is filled to capacity each Sunday evening and if he continues to deliver Bible messages in the future as he has during the few weeks he has been with us, we predict a Methodist organization for Ellsworth which will take rank with those of much larger places.

FAIRVIEW-BANKS

Mrs. H. DeGroot is on the sick list.

Farmers are harvesting sugar beets.

C. E. Beares, of Wright district, was in this neighborhood on Thursday.

Mr. Lewis, of Central Lake, Watkins man, was in this neighborhood Tuesday.

The Mexicans were in this locality last week, harvesting sugar beets for Harry DeGroot.

BROWN IS MAKING VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

Democratic-Congressional Candidate Visits City

Prentiss M. Brown, of St. Ignace, Democratic candidate for congress opposing Frank Scott, was here last week. He was accompanied by his manager, Michael Hoban. They are state that they find much dissatisfaction throughout the district with the result in the primaries. Mr.

BACK BAD TODAY?

Then Find the Cause and Correct It As Other Charlevoix Folks Have

There's little rest or peace for the backache sufferer.

Days are tired and weary—Nights bring no respite.

Urinary troubles, headaches, dizziness and nervousness, all tend to prevent rest or sleep.

Why continue to be so miserable? Why not use a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys?

Use Doan's Pills.

Your neighbors recommend Doan's. Read this Charlevoix case:

Hubert Ackert, mason, 107 W. Garfield Ave., says: "There was a constant ache in the small of my back and nights I couldn't get any sleep. My kidneys were sluggish and the secretions were scanty and burned in passage. I bought Doan's Pills at Metcalf's Drug Store and they fixed me up in fine shape. I haven't had any trouble since Doan's cured me."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney-remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Ackert had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Will Hold Special Election

A special election has been called in Boyne City to decide the question of bonding the school district for $25,000 to be used in the erection of a community hall. The proposed new building would be used for a high school gymnasium and assembly room, and would contain several class rooms and showers, lockers, etc. It is proposed to pay off the bonds at the rate of $5,000 a year.

W. E. Parmelee builds storm windows and sash.—Adv. 42-1f.

Hoban states that many Republicans are assuring Mr. Brown of their support. Many from the ranks of those who opposed Scott in the primary were wavering in their support of the Republican nominee who is a minority candidate, the vote against him being larger than the vote for him, but the opposition was split between these. Brown is a progressive Democrat. He has always been affiliated with that party but is said to be quite independent in his views. He believes that "blue" government is bad and says he will belong to no bloc or clique. He points out that there has been a financial bloc consisting of old guard politicians however, which has not gotten into the limelight and he does not propose to belong to it.

Mr. Brown is an able lawyer, has been prosecutor of his county ten years and made an excellent record in law enforcement. He is a member of the school board of his native city and enjoys, it is said, to a marked degree, the confidence of all his home people.

Careful observers state that Mr. Brown will run strong in the large centers of the district where he is well known. He realizes he has a big job on his hands and is covering every county in the district. His manager states he has a good show of being elected. Many ex-servicemen who do not like Scott's opposition to the adjusted compensation bill are supporting Brown.

Brown was the keynote at the Democratic convention held at Grand Rapids the first of this month. His address was the subject of much favorable comment throughout the state. Frank Sparks, of the Grand Rapids Herald said: "The keynote speech by Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace, was from a Democratic standpoint, a peach. Mr. Brown is one of the younger generation of Democrats, a candidate for congress against Frank Scott in the 11th district, and a real keynote. His speech kept the audience in storms of applause and cheering all through." The speech was published in the leading papers of the state.

BANK INSTALLS NEW SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES

Present Box Holders Are Asked to Change Over

Two hundred eighty new safe deposit boxes have just been installed in the vault of the Charlevoix County Bank. The boxes are all steel in construction and, in keeping with the vault and new building, are modern in every way and the latest thing in safe deposit boxes. The boxes now in use are of an older design and not numerous enough to supply the demand. Those who now hold boxes are requested to arrange to change to the new set. The old set of one hundred ten boxes will be removed from the vault as soon as the changes are made.

These boxes are ideal for keeping deeds, insurance policies, securities, jewelry or other valuables that one may wish to safe-guard against fire or theft. The boxes are fire-proof themselves and are located in the fireproof vault and protected from entrance by force by their own construction, the modern vault with its four-ton door and the burglar alarm that is always on the job. Each box has two Yale locks. The bank keeps the keys to one and the renter the other, neither being able to unlock the box without the other. With this safe-guard even the bank officials cannot enter your box nor can one, even with your key, without their permission.

There are three sizes of boxes. All are twenty-two inches long. The smallest are two inches high and five wide, the next three high and five wide and the large size are five inches by ten inches and twenty-two long.

Losses An Arm

Clarence Kidder, fourteen year old son of Archie Kidder of East Jordan, shot off his hand while hunting last Sunday afternoon. The boy attempted to stand his gun in a brush pile and it discharged. He was alone at the time and walked a mile and a half to his home. The arm was amputated below the elbow.

Cheboygan Robber Sentenced

Otto Gandyke, alias James McKee, of Grand Rapids, captured at Wolverine some days ago on a charge of blowing several safes in Cheboygan railroad offices, was sentenced by Judge Shepherd, in Cheboygan circuit court, Thursday, to a term of from five to ten years in Jackson prison. The man endeavored to escape by fashioning keys from pieces of steel but was caught before he could complete his get-away. He changed his plea of not guilty to one of guilty and was taken to prison Thursday night by Sheriff Slade.

REDPATH IS RE-BUILDING STORE

WORK OF REMODELING COMMENCED TUESDAY

Will Be Most Up-to-date Wearing Apparel Shop in This Region

Work commenced in earnest Tuesday morning on the new J. B. Redpath store. The entire interior must be remodeled and put in shape, ready for the opening date—December 1st, although Mr. Redpath states that if possible this date will be bettered.

The partition which now divides the building practically in half is being torn down and the completed store will consist of one main room, 64 feet in length and 19.9 feet in width. While there will be no dividing partition between them, the front and major portion of the store proper will be devoted to the general line of goods carried, while a space at the rear, some fifteen feet square, will be reserved for the women's ready-to-wear department.

As one enters the door, flanked on each side by show windows which will be deepened to five and a half feet, or more than double their present depth and backed by grilled paneling, a broad aisle, eight feet wide from counter to counter, and broken only by a couple of small display tables, leads back to the ready-to-wear department.

The walls of this forward section will be occupied, on either side by open shelving, and between these shelves and the aisle are to be located four show cases alternating with two short counters on each side of the aisle, making eight show cases and four counters in this department.

A big triple mirror with double door wardrobe cases on each side of it will be placed at the rear of the ready-to-wear space and both sides of this enclosure will be occupied by large glass-enclosed wardrobe cases, three on each side.

The rear end of the building, behind the ready-to-wear department, will be devoted to the freight and express receiving room and the office. An up-to-date ladies dressing room and toilet will open out of the ready-to-wear department through a curtained arch on the left hand side of the room as one enters.

The ceiling will be decorated in white while the walls of the store will be finished in an ivory shade. Very attractive electric lighting fixtures have been purchased and will be installed as the work progresses. The store equipment will be furnished by the Grand Rapids Show Case Company, whose representative will be in charge of its installation. This concern designed and furnished the fittings for what is acknowledged by those qualified to know as the most beautiful wearing apparel shop in the United States. It is located in a little town in Oklahoma and contains $750,000 of fixtures, designed for a wealthy man to whom money was no object but whose aim was to possess the finest and most equipped place of business obtainable.

Mrs. Redpath is now in New York, buying for the new concern, and will soon be back in Charlevoix with the latest lines of women's wear, and, as the season is late, she should be able to obtain some real bargains.

Chicken Dinner

A party of twelve ladies gathered at the farm home of Mrs. Clarence Heise at noon last Monday for their annual chicken dinner. Those present were the mesdames Violet Fralick, May Brady, Anna Moore, Nellie Chvatt, Abbie Powers, Jessie McClaine, Laura, Marie and Carrie Heise, Josephine and Olga Hendrickson and Dell Lemleu. Everything was done to make the day a successful one. Mrs. Heise proved a grand hostess and upon leaving the guests presented her with a purse to show their appreciation of her gracious hospitality.

FINE QUARTET COMES ON 10TH

IS ONE OF REDPATH BUREAU'S BEST FEATURES

Are Entertainers As Well As Musicians and Have Received High Praise

The first number of the fall and winter lecture course, the National Male Quartet, is presented by the Redpath Bureau, on Monday evening, November 10th, at eight o'clock, as an organization of the same high standards and attainments as the Chicago Glee Club and the Whitney Brothers Male Quartet.

The members of this quartet are, first of all, singers of rare ability, and they present the highest type of quartet music. But in addition to their musicianship they are entertainers par excellence. The National Quartet is offered to Lyceum committees as an organization which the Redpath Bureau is proud to guarantee fully and unreservedly.

Charles Cox, basso, is director of the quartet. His is a voice with a phenomenal range from F above to pedal C below. He is also a capital character comedian and his sketches form an unusually entertaining feature of the program. Mr. Cox was captain in charge of an entertainment division in the A. E. F. during the great war, serving immediately under General Pershing.

Charles W. Nicholson is first tenor. As a soloist, he is known for his renditions of sacred numbers from leading oratorios.

Stanley Graham is second tenor and pianist. His piano solos from such composers as Grieg, MacDowell and Debussy are a never-failing source of pleasure to the audience.

Maurice Ivins, baritone, features with solo numbers. His is a big, glorious voice, and his repertoire includes the best selections written for men singers.

Thurlof Lieurance, well known composer of "By the Waters of Minnetonka," says: "It was my good pleasure to hear the National Quartet at the Rotary Club of Lincoln, Neb., on September 1st this year. I can frankly say that this, undoubtedly, is one of America's best quartets, if not the best. They sing the best classics written for male voices. Besides being a fine singing organization, composed of fine fellows, they are excellent entertainers. No one who has ever appeared before the Rotary Club or at the University Convocation ever entertained like Mr. Charles Cox of the National Quartet."

Notice to Electors

Owing to urgent demands from a large number of Charlevoix citizens and from all parts of the county, I will comply to the demands made and will be a candidate for the office of County Treasurer, on the Republican ticket, at the general election November 4th. My name will not appear on the regular ballot, but slips that can easily be placed in their proper position on the regular ballot will be furnished for use of voters. Thus the matter is in the hands of my friends.

I will appreciate your active support and vote.

Yours truly,

Joseph Wm. Flanders.

GAVE LIBERAL- LY TO S. ARMY

DRIVE GOES OVER THE TOP HERE FOR FIRST TIME

Receipts Exceeded Quota by Nearly Twelve Dollars—A Fine Showing

A. E. Hamilton, campaign organizer of the Salvation Army, wants to thank the people of Charlevoix for the fine assistance in the matter of time and money given the Army during the past week's drive in this city, which culminated in a tag day on Saturday, October 25th.

The work was in charge of Mrs. O. D. Hammond, chairman, assisted by the Misses Irene Bogart, Marjory Mitchell, Lela Wooley, Doris Hammond, Myrtle O'Neill, Virginia Wooley and Babe Blanchard and four Salvation Army lassies.

According to the statement of Robert Bridge, treasurer of the drive, the results of the campaign in this city were as follows:

Subscriptions $187.27

Tag Day 84.32

Tag Day expenses, advertising, prizes, etc. $271.59

Cleared $261.84

The above amount, as will be noted, is $11.84 in excess of the city's quota, which was fixed at $250.00, which is, of course, very gratifying to the Army officials and those of the townspeople who volunteered their aid, as well as to all of us who have pride in the proper meeting of our community obligations.

This is the third year that the Salvation Army has put on a drive here and the first year that they have gone over the mark set.

Prizes were won by the tag day solicitors as follows: Marjory Mitchell, 1st prize of $2.00; Lela Wooley, 2nd prize of $1.50 and Lela Heise, 3rd prize of $1.50.

Thus was a most worthy cause furthered in Charlevoix to help some mother's boy or girl who is "Down but not out." Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, has gone on record with a ringing declaration that, "there is no more fertile ground for the sowing and developing of the fundamentals of true Americanism than the support and encouragement of the Salvation Army. It has never ceased to instill true Americanism in the minds and hearts of those people who, because of their circumstances, this wonderful organization alone has been able to reach."

GOSH, BUT BOSSY HAD A MEAN LEFT

If You Don't Believe It, Notice George's Chin

George Block went to the Beavers last week for a load of cattle. He brought 21 head back on the Sanford and when in mid-lake one of the cows dove off the boat. In "jumping," however, Bossy stepped on a loose plank and the other end came up and hit George a stiff crack under the chin, putting him out of business for a few minutes.

This is the straight dope on the affair as far as we know, but some of George's friends are meanly hinting that it wasn't a cow but one of the hard-hitting natives that George ran foul of.

DOINGS OF THE CIRCUIT COURT

THIRTEEN CASES TRIED AT THIS SESSION

Ten Criminal and Three Divorces—Five Cases Continued Over the Term

Thirteen cases, ten criminal and three divorces, were disposed of at the October term of the circuit court which closed on Saturday of last week. In order of their trial they are as follows:

People vs. Winiford Baringer, breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny. Plea of guilty. Defendant awaiting sentence.

People vs. Roy Hariman, false pretences. Plea of not guilty. Court instructed respondent to obtain counsel.

People vs. Paul Helden, statutory rape. Plea of guilty. Defendant awaiting sentence.

People vs. John Allor, removing mortgaged property. Plea of guilty. Defendant awaiting sentence.

BUILDING NEW LUMBER STORAGE SHED

Lumber Company Also Sprucing Up With Red Paint

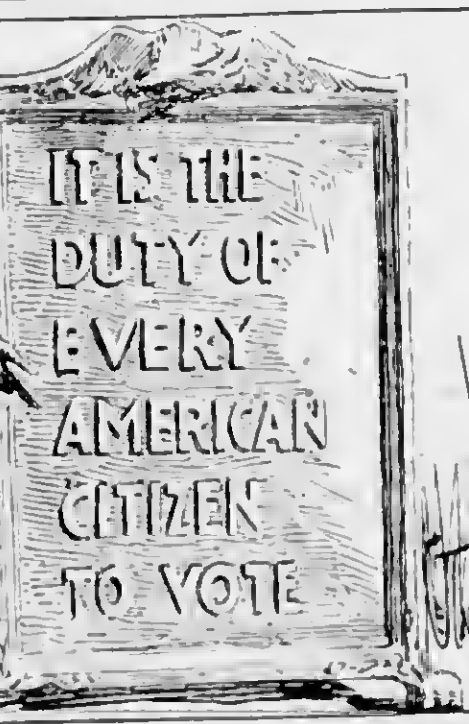

The Charlevoix Lumber Company is building a new storage shed for lumber on the rear boundary of its property on Round Lake.

The shed extends east from Bridge street for 120 feet and is 32 feet in depth. It is a double deck affair, the upper part to be used for finished lumber and the lower for common grades of build stuff and rough finish. A concrete wagon road runs along the shed for its entire length and will be housed over.

The buildings of the plant are also receiving a fresh coat of red paint this week.

MACCABEES INSTALL THE NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. Hammond is Now Commander of the Local Hive

The Ladies of the Maccabees held their regular annual installation of officers on last Tuesday evening, the 21st of October, the following members being chosen to occupy the chairs for the ensuing period:

Past Commander—Grace Genelt. Commander—Lethie Hammond. Lieut. Com.—Lottie Nowland. Record Keeper—Violet Fralick. Finance Keeper—Myrtle Mitchell. Chaplain—Lydia Alcox. Sergeant—Lillian Howe. Mistress at Arms—Edele Nowland. Sentinel—Julia Ackert. Pickett—Althea Pearl.

The installing officer was deputy Jennie C. Watson of Frankfort. Following the business session, a very pleasing program was carried out. There was a solo by Erma Carey, accompanied by Elizabeth Higman; a violin solo by Louis Bourissau, accompanied by Mrs. Harry Gebeau; a talk by Mrs. R. B. Armstrong in behalf of the newly formed League of Women Voters and an instrumental piece by Elizabeth Higman. Refreshments were also enjoyed.

C. H. S. LOST TO EAST JORDAN

HOME TEAM LACKED STRENGTH IN THE LINE

Red and White Goes to Petoskey Next Saturday and May Re-deem Itself

Friday afternoon proved to be an afternoon of surprise to football lovers and followers of the strong red and white, when East Jordan upset the dope and handed us a 13 to 0 defeat.

We went to East Jordan, determined to win, but, as one score indicates, we lost. The team did not show the same form they did against Traverse City a week ago, but was weaker—especially the line.

East Jordan scored in the second and third quarters, both touchdowns being due to the long runs and line plunges of Shaw, their quarterback. He also kept us from scoring with his long punts.

Charlevoix was apparently in a trance until the last quarter, when it looked for a time as if they were trying to change defeat for victory.

In this period, the ball was within scoring distance most of the time, due chiefly to the great work of Hallock and Jones and twice C. H. S. lost the ball on East Jordan's three yard line, which was the break of the game.

The game ended with East Jordan in possession of the ball in midfield. When you look over the record of the Charlevoix high school football team for the present season, it brings to mind an old but true proverb, "When it rains it pours."

We have a team, ably coached by Mr. Alldread, capable of winning football games, but, as long as the "breaks" remain with our opponents, it is almost impossible to win the old game.

C. H. S. meets the strong blue and white team of Petoskey on next Saturday afternoon and this will be the golden opportunity to redeem ourselves. Every man is going to Petoskey to win and a team that won't be beaten can't be beaten.

S. S. BRUCE SOLD TO A DULUTH FIRM

Will Ply Between Ashland, Wis. and Duluth, Minn.

The steamer, Bruce, long a familiar sight in these waters, is soon to leave us. She has been purchased from her former owner, Harry L. Oldham, by the newly formed Interstate Transit Company of Duluth, which is composed of T. H. Trelford and Captain E. Miller of that city.

The Bruce will be used in the coastwise fruit and freight haul between Ashland, Wis. and Duluth, Minn. Captain Miller is in the city this week, looking after the necessary repairs on his new purchase, which will consume about two weeks more. He has secured an engineer and crew from Duluth.

TO THRASH OUT THE INCOME TAX

FIGURES AS CHIEF SUBJECT AT GRANGE MEET

If Measure is Defeated at Polls, Farmers' Organization Will Continue Fight

Because of the state-wide interest in the income tax amendment sponsored by the Michigan State Grange, the gathering of Grangers from all over the state in Petoskey this week at the Cushman House, is one of the most interesting and important in the history of this great organization of Michigan farmers.

The income tax proposal is the paramount subject of discussion among the Grangers already gathered at Petoskey and it will increase in interest as the sessions of the Grange progress. Master A. B. Cook, of Owosso, touches off the subject in his annual address in that he calls attention to the fact that the Grange, during the last year, has centered its effort upon this measure, instead of spreading itself out over a number of subjects. He declared that the measure has been bitterly opposed by the monied interests of the state and that many untruthful statements have been broadcast in opposition to it. But he concludes that even if the measure is defeated on November 4, "that the fight has just started and the Grange will continue its battle until relief from present taxation methods has been brought about."

Following is the detailed program of the four-day convention: Tuesday, 10 a. m.—Call to order. Tuesday afternoon—Master's address and reports of other officers. Tuesday evening—Public discussion of the proposed state income tax amendment.

Affirmative: C. H. Bramble. Negative: Frank M. Sparks. Grand Rapids Herald. Discussion by others to follow.

Wednesday, 8:30 to 10 a. m.—Conferences and committee meetings: reports, resolutions and other business.

Wednesday afternoon—State lecturers open program closing with banquet at Cushman House at 6:30. Feature: speakers for afternoon and evening: Dr. Kenyon I. Butterfield, president M. A. C.; Dr. Lewis J. Michaels, department of agriculture; Congressman John C. Ketcham. Entertaining features by Emmet, Antim and Charlevoix Grange people.

Thursday, 8:30 to 10 a. m.—Conferences and committee meetings.

Thursday evening—Fifth and sixth degrees in charge of Bernice M. Curtis.

Friday, 8:30 to 10 a. m.—Conferences and committee meetings.

Friday—All day—Business. Friday evening—Installation of officers and farewells.

Special northbound train on the Pennsylvania lines brought the delegates Monday evening, October 27, about 9:00 p. m.

Special southbound train on same line will leave some time Friday after close of session.

TWO WISE MEN OF CHARLEVOIX

Went to Sea in a Fish Tug—With Apologies to Mother Goose

A local barber and a pharmacist have gone into the fishing business for a few weeks. Can you beat it?

Loaded down with numerous boxes of nets and other equipment of their new trade, Ted Pearl and Harley Ochs left their accustomed haunts last Monday morning for Big Rock Point, north of this city, where their stout craft, the fish tug, Susie L. of Beaver Island awaits them, tossing at her anchor.

These gentlemen expect to be gone some three weeks. They will probably have a bully time and we hope will catch "plenty fish." They will be envied by quite a few of us poor dubs whose vacations are over.

Mrs. Charles Townsend was called to St. Johns, Mich., a few days ago on account of the illness of two of her sisters, both of whom died within five days. Mrs. Townsend is expected home this week.

LOEB SCHOOL NOTES

Who—you.
What?—Hallowe'en social and entertainment.

Where—Loeb school.
When—Friday, October 31st.

Come and enjoy Hallowe'en with us. The program will consist of Hallowe'en plays, drills, dialogues, etc., after which refreshments will be sold. Try the fishing pond also and have your fortunes told. Proceeds to be used toward buying a teacher's desk for the primary room.

The fourth grade are decorating the sand table for Hallowe'en. The decoration is original, planned by one of the members of the fourth grade. It consists of a pumpkin house in a green forest inhabited by ghosts, goblins, witches, black cats, and owls.

The older boys have put up a flag pole and the flag is raised each morning except when it is raining.

The windows in both rooms are now full of pretty plants which have been given to the school.

Tests for the second month of school will be given this week. Next Monday we begin our third month of school.

There are forty-four pupils enrolled.

Everyone is enjoying the golfish which the teachers have in their rooms.

We are continuing the club meetings which began last year. We meet every Friday for fifteen minutes in the morning, having the meeting for morning exercises. The new officers are: President, Frank Erfourth; vice president, Richard Erfourth; secretary, Alice Orvis; treasurer, Edith Kling; librarian, Ester Case.

Notes are contributed by the eighth grade.

AT THE MOVIES

Charles Jones Goes Back to First Love

When Charles Jones made "The Circus Cowboy," his latest William Fox release, which comes to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday, he was a happy man. Not that Charles is an unhappy man ordinarily when he is working, but "The Circus Cowboy" brought back to him some interesting memories and he was unusually elated. Back in 1917 Jones spent two seasons under the big top as a featured rider in the wild west show of Ringling Brothers Circus and it seemed like old times. He thrilled at the idea of living the old days over. In the cast of "The Circus Cowboy" with Jones are Marian Nixon, Jack McDonald, Ray Hallor, Marguerite Clayton and George Ro-main.

"The Fighting Coward," produced by the man who made "The Covered Wagon," James Cruze, and featuring Ernest Torrence, Mary Astor, Noah Beery, Phyllis Haver and Cullen Landis, is coming to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

It's a story of a man and a young fellow who bluff everyone along the Mississippi, the "iden" being to convince folk that the youngster is about the most dangerous gun-fighter thereabouts. And the whole thing is just one long thrill.

Cruze has established for himself a reputation of being the one director today who can take a screen story, in this case an adaptation by Walter Woods of the stage play "Magnolia," by Booth Tarkington, and get out of it every possible element of humor. "The Covered Wagon," a tense western drama, as produced by Cruze had some of the finest comedy touches of anything ever made. And he's done even more with "The Fighting Coward."

You'll get a good laugh out of the scene where one of the characters engages another in a gambling game and relieves him of even his clothes.

Torrence is at his best in the character of Gen. Orlando Jackson, and Cullen Landis handles the leading man's role to perfection, while Noah Beery gives his usual excellent performance in a heavy role. Mary Astor and Phyllis Haver are well cast as the sisters, Elvira and Lucy.

And there's a thoroughly capable supporting cast.

ROAD BUILDING

ROAD CONSTRUCTION IS GREAT PROBLEM

(By C. S. LEE, Director Highways Information Service, New York City.)

The growth of "the good roads movement" in the United States and Canada since its organized inception in 1880, and with the great stimulus it received in the period immediately following the advent of the automobile and the appearance of the motor truck, has been so rapid, so extensive and so effective that highway construction today constitutes one of the greatest, if not the greatest problem in American economic life.

There are now 1702 organized agencies actively and directly pleading the cause of good roads. The agitation, to date, has brought about the construction of 34,000 miles of surfaced highways—raising the highway mileage of the United States to 2,178,532, and that of Canada to 255,000.

The automobile industry, fourth largest in the country, with 368 manufacturing plants, capitalized at $1,201,378,642, employing 325,000 workmen, having an annual output of 2,265,197 passenger cars and trucks valued at $3,504,814,620, and supplemented, as it is, by 1910 firms producing auto parts valued at $300,000,000 a year, together with 1,000 firms manufacturing annually 35,000,000 tires, valued at $1,000,000,000, is absolutely dependent upon highway improvement for its stability and upon increased road mileage for greater expansion. In addition 38,000 distributors of automobiles are involved, as well as 15,800 dealers in automobile accessories and 35,000 dealers in tires. So great, too, has the road-building industry become, in consequence of the demand for improved roads, that 7,500 contracting firms are now engaged in actual construction work. The roads are now traversed by 9,211,205 licensed cars and trucks, of which 3,000,000 are used on the farms.

Prior to 1880, when Amos G. Batchelder, late chairman of the executive board of the American Automobile association at Washington, with H. S. Earle of Detroit and other pioneer advocates, organized the League of American Wheelmen and began a thrust was looked upon with undiluted curiosity or amusement as something of "a nut"—a lunatic, but no doubt, well-meaning person who might be seen, but not heard. Usually he was promptly "sat down upon" by the lunatic taxpaying.

Opposition gradually melted away, however, as the campaign became more fully organized and extended. Since 1880 more than $3,000,000,000 has been spent for highway improvement in the United States and Canada. More than $1,000,000,000 is now available, and $1,500,000,000 additional will be necessary to carry out projects under contemplation. And yet, with all this, only a beginning has been made. Billions more must be expended before the country has anything like a highway system adequate to the traffic needs.

The great demand for good roads and the progress made in road building has evolved many types of hard-surfaced roadway, of which the bituminous are in greatest general use. The popularity of these types, especially those of the sheet asphalt, the asphaltic concrete and asphaltic macadam, is due to their long-wearing qualities, resiliency against traffic impact, dustlessness, noiselessness, cleanliness and low cost of upkeep. Brick and concrete roads have also developed with the agitation, as have the wooden block and granite block types. The most recent available figures give 42.11 per cent of the surfaced roads in the United States as being gravel, 25.22 per cent as of macadam, 17.16 per cent as of sand clay, 10.98 per cent as of asphalt and other bituminous materials, 3.01 per cent of concrete and 0.62 per cent of brick. The figures for the asphaltic and brick types—a total of 15.53 per cent—show the extent to which the city types of pavement have been adopted in the rural districts. The wooden block and the granite block types do not appear to have progressed as yet beyond the city boundaries.

Discomfort of Bad Road Soon Becomes Apparent

The people who travel poor roads month after month lose more in loss of time, in wear and tear of vehicles and stock and in worry and discomfort than they would have to pay in their share in the good roads fund. No one realizes this more than the person who travels a really good road after having been forced for months or years to travel very poor ones. The difference is so apparent and so striking that such a person at once becomes a good road booster.—Anniston Star.

Bar Signs From Roads

Advertising signs have been ordered removed from the sides of all roads that traverse the forest reserves of Arizona and New Mexico. District Engineer E. S. Wheeler will permit only roadside signs that have been placed by highway organizations or automobile clubs. There is suggestion that a bill be offered in the legislature prohibiting disfigurement by advertising of any state highways, as well as of the erection of billboards at intersections where they shut off the view and thus conduce toward accident.

Feeding Rye to Pigs

The evil effects which some people have experienced from feeding rye to pigs is not due to the grain itself, but to a parasitic fungus known as ergot, which is commonly found growing in the heads of rye. Rye that is badly infested with this poisonous product would be dangerous to feed in large quantities, otherwise rye is an excellent food for hogs. It will give best results, however, if mixed with other grains, such as corn, barley or oats, and ground fine.

RED CROSS IS URGING BETTER-HEALTH BATTLE

Tireless in Services Advancing Cause of Freedom from Human Suffering.

Not alone in preparedness for emergencies, but in a tireless offensive battle for better health is the American Red Cross nurse maintaining in peace time the high tradition of her war service. As in war, the same self-effacing service for humanity goes on its quiet, effective way content in its accomplishments, seeking no public acclaim. Enrolled in the Red Cross Nursing Service are 40,634 of these missionaries of health, nearly 1,000 carrying the message of a finer public health to as many communities and 1,100 teaching large classes in home hygiene and care of the sick. Exactly 100 Red Cross nurses are still on duty overseas, helping the struggle forward toward the high standard of American nurse efficiency in many countries.

In the Government services 3,117 enrolled Red Cross nurses are on duty with the Army, Navy, Public Health Service and the Veterans Bureau, while the entire active enrollment is maintained as a reserve for the Army Nurse Corps and available to the Navy in a national defense emergency. Nine hundred nurses were added to the roll the last year.

Red Cross nursing, however, has perhaps its finest expression out in the places laid waste by fire, flood and storm, and in the back reaches far from the centers of population. In every disaster the Red Cross nurse is first called for, first to respond, and the last to leave her post of duty among the suffering victims. In the isolated sections of Alaska, North Carolina, Virginia, Idaho, and among the bleak islands of Penobscott Bay, Me., her ministrations are making hard lives easier and working for a brighter future for the children. Her part in the human drama of the time is increasingly important, although it is subdued by the very nature of her work.

The policy of the American Red Cross to establish under Chapter control public health nursing services in communities lacking such facilities has been justified and this pioneering work is everywhere endorsed by authorities who are quick to take it over as a proper municipal function and a duty of taxpayers. The Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick program has further penetrated into the schools as a definite part of curriculum. During the year 29,000 school pupils took this Red Cross course. Three telephone corporations adopted it and graduated 960 employe students.

As good health depends upon right eating the Red Cross Nutrition Service continued to promote individual and community health, particularly the health of mothers and children. This service reached nearly 150,000 persons during the year and found work to do for several thousand Red Cross volunteer workers.

Red Cross Fighting First Aid Battle To Conserve Life

Reliable records establish the fact that more than 75,000 accidental deaths occur every year in the United States. The records show that 208 American citizens are killed every day; that 38 of these deaths are due to automobiles, 35 to falls, 19 to drownings, 16 to burns.

Facing such distressing sacrifice of life is the First Aid Service of the American Red Cross, fighting through education and demonstration to instill a consciousness of safety in the public mind and teaching approved methods which assure that competent hands will care for injured persons until the arrival of doctors. Trained service in the first few minutes is vital in serious accidents and saves many precious lives.

One of the most encouraging signs of the past year is the record of the Red Cross First Aid Insurance Car No. 1 which traveled 9,700 miles along trunk lines, stopping at 137 places. The car's staff of surgeons gave 911 demonstrations to audiences composed of 42,150 railroad men, 71,000 high school and college students, 13,900 industrial workers, 2,000 members of clubs, and nearly 18,000 policemen, firemen, and other municipal employes, a total of 147,000.

Red Cross First Aid certificates were conferred upon 13,865 persons who took the course last year, an increase of 4,000 over 1923. Telephone, gas and electric companies, public service corporations and other large employers of the country adopted the Red Cross course, and their team contests everywhere were witnessed by huge crowds with as much interest as develops at popular athletic games.

In the industrial field the growth of First Aid practice to fight to reduce preventable accidents and unnecessary loss of life has received wide recognition. The promise of an unprecedented advance in this fine cause lies in the evidence of the great strides systematic instruction in First Aid has made throughout the country through the Red Cross Chapters and the work of the experts in this service under direction of the national organization.

Sign the American Red Cross roll this year for humanity's sake.

VOTE "NO" ON THE INCOME TAX AMENDMENT

An Open Letter to the Editor of The MICHIGAN PATRON

In the October issue of the MICHIGAN PATRON there was published a full page advertisement on this subject over my name and the names of several well known and highly honorable citizens of western Michigan. For this you have rendered a bill higher in amount than that of any other paper. Your next issue comes rather too late to be a satisfactory medium for reply; besides—

The subject is a public question of a highly important nature. The opinions of those who signed this article were entitled to respectful treatment. The proposal, if a mistake, will be a most serious mistake. If adopted, it is bound to have indirect as well as direct effects upon the state and its "citizens and inhabitants" which you may some time find means all Michigan corporations, without exception. The discussion was temperate and worthy of consideration. Some of your readers may disagree with the arguments, but as a result of them may hesitate at least before casting a vote for the proposed amendment.

In spite of the fact that you accepted this advertisement, that you published it and mailed it to your readers, you nevertheless saw fit to publish on the opposite page a long article, for the obvious purpose of destroying the effect of the advertisement which you were willing to publish for free. The principal feature of your article was its manifest appeal to class prejudice, the resort of the politician having a weak cause. Your lawful right is not questioned, but you committed a most unethical act, without precedent, I believe, among newspapers.

But your readers are intelligent. They will read both pages and weigh the opposing statements with due thought. They will consider which side has dealt with the matter more fairly, more far-sightedly, more temperately; and they will lay aside all that smacks of sophistry.

Perhaps some of your readers value your legal opinions. I do not; nor do I admit the truth of your statements. Naturally your copy was prepared in great haste. It does not betray wearying depth of thought.

You say in bold display type, "The Michigan Trust Company, Grand Rapids, financing fight to defeat income tax amendment." This statement is utterly false.

I know of no reason why that company is not at liberty—indeed it has a duty—to take part in such an important matter as this. It has legal and moral responsibilities as guardian and trustee for the properties and incomes, large and small, of very many widows, children and others who know it and depend upon it and who would be affected seriously by the adoption of the proposed amendment. It has not, however, spent one cent in connection with the advertisements referred to, or otherwise in the subject matter, nor has it agreed to do so. A number of my personal friends, at my suggestion, have made contributions meeting a portion of the expenses incurred, and I will personally assume the balance of the expense, if necessary, as a contribution to public service.

Your article aims to champion the cause of the farmer and the "workingman," and at the same time it arrays what you call a "banking institution" against these classes. It seems you cannot conceive that any individual connected with such an institution would feel impelled by public spirited motives to act in the interest of his native state. Under our form of government men reach places of importance in all branches of our business life, as I have, from the very lowest beginning. They may be connected with a "banking institution," as you term the Michigan Trust Company, and still not lose their honesty, sense of duty or wholesome interest in public affairs. As your readers know, local bankers are as public spirited, generally speaking, as other men in the community and are honestly and deeply concerned in any tax law which in their opinion threatens the prosperity of the state. Most local bankers known to your readers, I warrant, are honorable and dependable. It is the same in the cities. Very often the banker knows more about financial and economic questions than those who are not in as close touch with them. The editor who attempts to gain adherence to his opinions by setting class against class, saying in effect that a hanker or an officer of a trust company is unworthy of confidence because necessarily opposed to the interests of farmers, is himself unworthy of his editorial position and automatically puts himself in a class with those politicians who, for individual gain, seek to create a feeling of unrest and discontent among the people. You ought to know that a bank or a trust company serves all classes, including a large number of farmers, and lives only as long as it retains the confidence of those who know it best.

I give your readers credit for intelligence, for the ability to discern the right from the wrong. You do not.

I repeat that the proposed amendment is an example of complete distrust in our form of representative government without precedent and without parallel in any state in the Union. I repeat that it concerns all citizens, whether they sweep up a factory or own the factory, whether they work in the shop, the office or the field.

I assert that it would increase rents and the cost of everything sold. It would continue present taxes on real estate and all kinds of securities; it imposes practically no limit thereon; and in addition would add a tax on the income of these holdings. It would cripple Michigan industries (1) by adding to all present taxes, state and federal, already burdensome, a new one upon all net income of industries, and, if incorporated, plus a new tax upon all dividends of stockholders residing in this state (2) by compelling such industries to compete with other industries in and out of the state owned by nonresidents not subject to this proposed tax. These factors are certain to increase prices.

It would drive people out of Michigan, because no taxpayer, personal or corporate, needs to submit to it. Removal from the state is all that is needed to escape this proposed tax. It is an unlimited example of double taxation, without parallel in any state in the Union—not even Wisconsin under La Follette and his followers. They had the sense to see that people will not endure double taxation.

It would encourage extravagance in state expenditure instead of economy.

It treats resident stockholders of Michigan corporations unfairly and new industries will settle elsewhere.

It would cause much litigation.

It is an appeal to selfishness and cupidity and will not work out in practice as its advocates would have the farmers and the "workingmen" believe.

PERSONALLY, I FAVOR AND HAVE LONG FAVORED A STATE INCOME TAX. I am so on record. But I am not in favor of one based on such clumsy constitutional drafting, one so unfair, so unjust, so unwise and destructive as is this proposed amendment. When the time comes I shall offer my assistance, in good faith, in preparing the right kind of legislative measure for an income tax. There is a far simpler way, a much fairer way, a more economical way—a way that will affect the state favorably. This proposed amendment will close that way and should be voted down.

Before you do more on this subject I advise you to ascertain the effect this amendment would have upon the PRIMARY SCHOOL FUND. It will interest your readers.

FREDERICK W. STEVENS.

STATE WHEAT KING CROWNED FOR 1924

Branch County Farmer Produces 4,000 Bushels of Quality Crop

With a record of having produced more than 4,000 bushels of exceedingly high grade wheat, Ralph Arbogast, of Union City, in Branch county, is being hailed as Michigan's wheat king for 1924. Those familiar with agricultural conditions over the state are convinced that Arbogast raised more good wheat than any other man in the state.

Eighty-eight acres of Red Rock, the well known variety developed by the late Professor F. A. Spragg, of the M. A. C. crop staff, were included in Arbogast's wheat acreage, twelve acres more being planted in an experiment with a new bald red wheat which is under trial at the Agricultural College. Forty acres of the Red Rock yielded 47 bushels per acre, another 40 acres producing 37.7 bushels to the acre.

The wheat, according to H. C. Rath, secretary of the Michigan Crop Improvement association and extension specialist at M. A. C., was all of good quality, weighing more than 60 pounds per bushel, being bright in color, and showing entire freedom from rye, cockle, chess and mixtures or weeds of any kind.

This exceptional wheat growing performance is said to be the result not only of the favorable season but also of Mr. Arbogast's cropping system, in which alfalfa and clover play an important part. A liberal use of acid phosphate and the use of pure seed of the most productive varieties are other reasons given for the Branch county man's success.

PETOSKEY HAS 3,178 REGISTERED

An actual count of the number of registered voters in Petoskey discloses the fact that there are 3,178 persons—men and women—registered as being eligible to vote in the coming elections. Of this number 1,735 are men and 1,443 are women.

In the first ward the women outnumbered the men by a count of one, there being 440 women and 439 men voters registered. The count is reversed in the other three wards and are as follows:

Second ward—men, 424, women, 383; third ward—men, 426, women, 312; fourth ward—men, 446, women, 308.

The count discloses that there are more men registered in the fourth ward than in the other three and also fewer women registered.

The total count in each ward follows: First 879, second 807, third 738, fourth 758.—Petoskey Evening News.

Brown-Solomon

The marriage of Miss Murgery Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brown, of Ironton, to Clyde Solomon, a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Solomon of this city, took place last Friday evening in Petoskey, at the Presbyterian parsonage, Rev. Harry Alburt officiating. The young couple are spending their honeymoon in Elk Rapids, where the groom is working on a line job for the Michigan Bell Telephone Company. They expect to be gone altogether about three weeks and will then be at home to their friends in this city. The bride, since her graduation from the high school last year, has been assisting in the dental office of Dr. W. W. Mitchell.

50,000 IN LIFE-SAVING SERVICE OF RED CROSS

Additional 50,000 Water Safety Experts Probable Gain of Summer Campaign.

A boy watched an expert give a class a lesson in the way to revive a person unconscious from water immersion. The next day the boy tried it on a bathing companion and saved his life. Such a boy justifies all the effort and the cost of the Life-Saving Service, American Red Cross official declare. The Red Cross method of restoring partly drowned persons is so simple that the continual large sacrifice of life must decrease as an informed public insists upon general instruction in prone pressure practice to induce respiration.

The Red Cross Life-Saving Service in every part of the country, summer and winter, is engaged in teaching this method as an integral part of swimming and life-saving. This service has grown from a single expert in 1914 to a corps of almost 50,000 active life-savers. In this tenth year of the work it is predicted that fully 50,000 more experts will be eligible for membership in the corps. This large accession in a single year is confidently expected as the result of the campaign among 22,000 troops of Boy Scouts under a plan to qualify at least two life guards in each troop.

During the past year 4,746 men, 3,374 women, 9,731 boys and girls successfully passed the rigid tests of the Red Cross—an increase of 6,331 over 1923. Intensive instruction is developing hundreds of qualified examiners for the Red Cross Life-Saving Corps, who supplement the teaching staff maintained by the national organization. The cause of water safety is therefore penetrating to new sections and eventually will cover all American territory.

Recognition of this Red Cross service for humanity is growing apace. At the request of the War Department every military training camp had life-saving instruction last summer. Municipalities have adopted the Red Cross course, public and private schools are offering it to students, business, civic and athletic organizations are promoting campaigns, and police departments are making it a part of the conditioning process for their recruits.

Volunteer life-savers throughout the country, the American Red Cross reports, are eagerly advancing the cause of water safety, 388 volunteers receiving medals for giving from 200 to 300 hours' service in two or three years. In addition 36 rescue bars to medals were awarded members of the Red Cross Corps who saved one or more lives during the year.

It is for the work and extension of life-saving that continued support through memberships is sought, and the American Red Cross urges all persons to join or renew membership during the enrollment campaign opening Armistice Day, November 11.

Red Cross Invites All Into Neutral Army of Service

There are 3,689 counties in the United States and more than 3,500 chapters of the American Red Cross. The chapter is the local unit of the national organization, formed to carry out the program, services and policies of the Red Cross. The industry of these 3,500 local units is a voluntary and steady outpouring of well-doing and sympathy which softens human suffering and distress wherever it arises. This work is absolutely neutral, for the Red Cross knows no race, no creed, no color.

The strength of the American Red Cross being in its chapters, the organization annually invites the people to join or renew their membership during a Roll Call which always begins on Armistice Day, November 11. "It is this annual enlistment of millions of Americans under the banner of the American Red Cross which makes possible the continued work of this great and democratic legion of mercy," says Judge John Barton Payne, head of the national organization. "Membership in the Red Cross is a privilege within the reach of everyone. The need for service grows more insistent each year. To keep pace with the demands which come from every section of our country, we must have the people's loyal support. Our capacity for service in the year to come will be limited only by the extent to which we receive support for our work in the coming Roll Call."

The invitation of the American Red Cross is unlimited. The enrollment period, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving, is everyone's opportunity to join.

A FAKE LABEL FOR A BAD PRODUCT

It would be something of an anomaly, outside of politics, that "Battling" Bob, whose courage is admitted, should lay claim to a party label to which he is unentitled; and fear a party label which properly belongs to him and his followers. The erstwhile Progressives have repudiated La Follette and his platform. The Berger-Debs Socialists have endorsed La Follette and his platform.

Two instances of the latter have been made public. The first is the Debs telegram, which reads:

"I think it wise for our party to make no nomination under the circumstances, but at the same time hold the Socialist party intact, adhere rigidly to its principles, and keep the red flag flying."

The St. Louis group of Socialists has gone on record in the following words:

"The Socialist party of America will support La Follette on the platform which he has given to the country, but the party will not lose its identity and will not modify or abandon its fight for Socialistic principles."

The Socialists well know that should La Follette, by any chance be victorious, they could keep the red flag flying, and they would not lose their identity. The fact is the election of La Follette would nail the red flag to the masthead, and the identity of the Socialists would be so completely established that the alias "Progressive" would cease to be necessary to enoble the timid voters. Four years under such an absolutism would be sufficient to wreak such destruction as would require more than a generation to rebuild. And during that generation the Socialist snipers could pour their withering fire into the ranks of the reconstructionists.

Fundamentally, there is little if any perceptible difference between the La Follette party and the Socialists. The Socialists advocate the abolition of private property in the means of production. The La Follettists endorse the words of their leader: "I am for Government ownership of the railroads and every other public utility—every one." By extension, it would be a very simple matter for them to declare all industries "public utilities," and if the supreme court should decide against them, they would, through their control of congress, reverse the decision of the court. The chief aim of the Socialists is "to gain political power in order to convert private property in land and capital into collective property, and use it for the common good."

The Socialists seek power by an appeal to class. They "look to the struggle of classes as the process for the realization of their programmes." That is precisely what the La Follettists are trying to bring about—creating discord by class and racial appeal. The greatest obstruction to the Socialist programme, should the class struggle put them in power, would be the supreme courts. And that is the branch of the government which the La Follettists would first destroy.

The vast majority of our people regard Socialism as a political plague, which should be isolated. So long as it remains isolated they have little fear. But it looks as if the La Follettists were trying to get the germs into the body politic by hiding them in a napkin.

THE SABBATH

"No age has ever been tempted to dissipation of its energies like this rich and complex age of ours," says Henry Churchill King, president of Oberlin college. "No age ever needed a more determined and thoughtful use of its Sundays. Even for simply deferring old age, it is well for one day of the week to rid the mind of lesser cares and keep the soul open to the uplifting and refreshing tides of life."

This may be, after all, the best argument there is for old-fashioned Sunday observance. The Sabbath was meant to be literally a "day of rest."

There is a story of a pioneer who a century or more ago traveled west from New England, in an ox cart, to settle in the middle west. It was a long, hard journey, and other people in the caravan were eager to get ahead. So they kept right on over Sunday. This particular pioneer declared that he would neither labor himself nor make his ox labor on the Sabbath, so he always made camp on Saturday night and did not start again until Monday morning. And he was the first to reach the new settlement.

If that pioneer were living today, he might be beating his competitors in business or professional work or art, by the same procedure, not only winning in the race, but preserving his peace of mind.

RED CROSS DUTY TO AID VETERANS

Spends Nearly Four Millions in Year to Lessen Burdens of Disabled Soldiers.

SERVES 63,700 IN HOSPITALS

Every Case Is Given Individual Service—Assists Families of These Men Everywhere.

Washington.—The need of individual assistance by ex-service men and their families from the Red Cross is as pressing today as it was immediately after the end of the World War. For six years this work has been foremost of all Red Cross services, and in emphasizing the steady public support of this work the Red Cross National Headquarters urges the largest enrollment this year during the membership campaign opening on Armistice Day, November 11. Nearly four million dollars of Red Cross funds spent for disabled veterans and their dependents during the year ended June 30 last presents some idea of the magnitude of this work. The current year, it is estimated, will call for still further disbursements of funds for the reason that the Red Cross, through more than 3,500 chapters in as many communities in the United States, has been called upon to help the ex-service men in making out their applications for the adjusted compensation granted in the so-called bonus law.

58,767 Soldier Cases a Month

The Red Cross work for the disabled soldier is designated "home service," for it gives individual attention to the man and his family approximating the interest and loving care of the home. Such service in the hospitals, camps, soldiers' homes and sanatoria, averaged 53,951 cases a month during the year. Assistance to ex-services men and their dependents averaged 58,767 cases a month. In addition, the Red Cross in the last twelve months provided 33,000 recreation and entertainment events in the hospitals and camps.

Thus the Red Cross, symbolized as the "Greatest Mother," still watches over these many thousands of men, comforts them, helps to lighten the tedium of their physical reconstruction, and in their homes lifts some of the burdens from their "own people."

Work in Communities Increases

The home service of the Red Cross was the most pressing duty of 2,609 chapters, an increase of 182 communities where problems affected by the war veteran's condition required solution through immediate and intelligent assistance. The chapters alone expended some $2,000,000 in this work.

The transient disabled soldier, usually suffering from disability or tuberculosis, is almost everywhere a grave problem. From national funds the past year $173,076.35 was expended in helping the chapters to care for these wandering men.

According to government report there are 4,800 veterans in civilian institutions, and in the national homes for soldiers the complications are increasing. The large groups of patients whose claims have been disallowed, of veterans of foreign wars, and the great number of men permanently resident in these institutions call for Red Cross work which cannot be avoided nor denied.

Definite Service to 73,700

Of a total of $4,500 ex-service men in hospitals and other institutions 73,700 were rendered a definite and specialized service by the Red Cross. In a single month 4,185 new cases were presented and a total of 20,125 was acted upon—figures which serve to illustrate the magnitude of the information and claim service engaging the attention of Red Cross workers. New veteran legislation amending the War Risk act which extends many additional rights to disabled ex-service men will reopen thousands of cases and require still greater Red Cross service.

When Congress granted a charter to the American Red Cross it charged the organization with the duty to act as "the medium of communication between the American people and their Army and Navy." This responsibility to the enlisted men and their families is met every year without restriction.

Serves Men on Active Service

The extent of this Red Cross activity during the last year embraced a total of 195,246 cases. There were 36,995 separate soldiers' and sailors' claims; 20,316 investigations of home conditions; 11,421 cases related to discharges, furloughs, etc. Assistance was given in 39,658 instances for personal, business or family problems; 744,220 visits were made to the sick or disabled, and nearly 40,000 letters and telegrams dispatched to the homes of enlisted men.

From June to September at the numerous military training camps the Red Cross provided information and home service to the trainees, also instruction in First Aid and Life-Saving. The entertainment and recreation events at the various Army and Navy hospitals reached nearly 9,500 during the year, and occupational therapy in nine Naval hospitals gave constructive and beneficial results and occupied the time of patients in the making of useful and ornamental things.

If you know it all, keep quiet and maybe nobody will find it out.

RED CROSS YEAR'S COST $21,366,255

Nearly $12,000,000 Devoted to Helping Victims of Great Japanese Earthquake.

OVER 3,000 BUSY CHAPTERS

Aid to Disabled War Veterans Paramount and Reaches Nearly $4,000,000.

Washington.—More than $21,000,000 was the total of funds expended in all activities of the American Red Cross during the last fiscal year, ended June 30, says a statement issued by the National organization. This expenditure was almost one-sixth of the amount of money disbursed by the Red Cross in the war year, July, 1917, to June, 1918. Of this extraordinary sum $11,631,303 was America's contribution to the Red Cross for relief of the Japanese earthquake victims. This was increased to $11,768,802 by appropriations from general funds of the Red Cross, and it represented probably the largest spontaneous outpouring of beneficence of a single nation in the history of this world.

Over 3,000 active Chapters expended during the year $4,869,000, the National organization disbursed $16,197,255.85, making the total $21,366,255.35—all for humanitarian work which reached practically around the world.

In announcing the year's record of American Red Cross industry the executive officials at Washington emphasize the fact that the extensive and never-halting work of the Red Cross depends almost wholly upon the nation-wide support of the organization from the memberships enrolled during the annual roll call which this year will be in progress from Nov. 11 to 27, when everyone is asked to join or renew their membership in the American Red Cross.

Soldier Service Paramount

Service in behalf of the disabled veterans of the World War and their families is a paramount obligation of the Red Cross. The organization, through its Chapters, is constantly in touch with this duty in 2,609 communities throughout the United States—the Chapters alone during the year expended in service for veterans about $2,000,000. The National organization expended $1,735,825—a total of $3,735,825 applied to assisting war sufferers toward recovery from disability and distress.

This work is constant in hospitals, sanitariums, camps, soldiers' homes, in the community. For example, in helping disabled men and women in places where they were transient residents $173,076 from national funds alone was required to help solve their problems. Every Red Cross service is ever at hand ready to meet the individual need of these men and women.

The enlisted men in the Regular Army, the Navy and the Marine Corps, with their home ties, mean a never-ending Red Cross service which figures cannot fully interpret. In this work a total of $687,285 was applied in meeting an obligation under the Red Cross charter which has been fulfilled for over 20 years.

Domestic Operations Extensive

In the past year Red Cross operations were almost wholly confined to continental United States and the insular possessions. Relief work following disasters called for immediate activities in 182 places and a total of $737,603.87 was spent in this service alone. In 22 major disasters trained workers were kept at the work of rehabilitation for many months.

In carrying on the health activities a total of $444,886.66 from Red Cross national funds, and $808,000 from chapter treasuries—approximately $1,252,886 in all—was applied, giving some idea of the extent of Red Cross service in the fields of public health nursing, nutrition instruction, and spreading knowledge of personal hygiene and care of the sick in the home.

For advancing the cause of human safety, the First Aid instruction, locally by Chapters and over extensive national territory by the Red Cross instruction car covering trunk lines, railroads, and in teaching water safety and increasing the membership of the Red Cross Life-Saving Corps, the total cost was $288,234.71, of which $216,234.71 came out of national funds.

Army of Over 5,500,000

The Junior Red Cross in the schools—with over 5,500,000 in its "I Serve" ranks—was added with $233,510.78 to which it is estimated the Chapters added some $277,000—a total of $510,510.78. In various other domestic activities the Red Cross spent $283,473.19, and the Chapters in their numerous voluntary services expended an additional $1,048,000 during the year.

Foreign obligations, aside from Japan, were met with national funds as follows: Relief of refugees in Greece, $200,887.18; Junior Red Cross projects, $99,579.75; League of Red Cross Societies, $165,000; other insular and foreign work, $221,855.31. The American Red Cross budget for 1924-25 is $1,647,790.85, or $568,236.95 less than the budget for this year ended last June 30.

In good deeds for all peoples in time of distress the American Red Cross never rests. Help this work with your membership dollar—join our Armistice Day.

DANGER!

Vote No—or Pay

Tax radicals in Michigan have succeeded in placing on the ballot, for your vote, next Tuesday, a Constitutional Amendment LOADED WITH DYNAMITE.

This Amendment proposes a State Income Tax which would, in its eventual result, deprive every wage earner in Michigan of from 5% to 10% of his—or her—income.

This Tax would increase your rent and raise the price of every article you buy.

Like every other Tax, it would be passed along to the eventual consumer, and would be finally balanced by a corresponding increase in living costs.

It Imperils Prosperity

Worse even than this would be the foul blow this Amendment would strike at Michigan Industry. For the manufacturer here must still compete for business in open market. Few other states have income taxes. None has a tax so cruelly severe as the one proposed for us.

Can the Michigan factory successfully shoulder this handicap?

Must it not eventually go under, throwing its men out of work, and increasing the tax burden of everyone else?

It Threatens Our Schools

The higher authorities, including the State's Attorney General and its Superintendent of Public Instruction, agree that this proposed amendment would have still another disastrous and even more immediate effect. It would surely reduce taxes paid by railroads, telephone companies, power companies, and other public service corporations.

It would go back to the old system of local assessment and local rates—the system which Pingree changed through his Equal Taxation fight, after these corporations had, for many years, escaped paying their share of taxation.

By this backward step, the Michigan Primary School Fund, into which such corporations today pay yearly the huge sum of almost $15,000,000, would surely be seriously depleted. In great part, the grade schools of Michigan are supported through this fund.

It Robs Your Church

Heavy, too, would be the penalty enacted by this amendment from Michigan Churches, fraternal societies and Charities. They are not in any way exempted from this tax. Therefore, for every dollar you contribute to them, from five to ten cents would go to the politicians to spend, if this amendment passes.

And remember, this is a Constitutional Amendment!

It becomes, if passed, part of Michigan's FUNDAMENTAL LAW, and almost impossible to change in any way.

Defeat It!

Let nobody delude you regarding the actual facts. Place no trust whatever in the loose phrasing of the Amendment itself. And don't confuse it, for one moment, with any other amendment presented for your vote. You will find this amendment the second on your ballot.

Determine firmly, right now, to carefully pick it out on Tuesday, and to vote an emphatic NO as your verdict on this State Income Tax.

Women Voters!

Your family needs your husband's earnings far more than the rich, mighty state of Michigan.

But the politicians want more of his money to spend and they will get it, if the Income Tax Amendment passes.

Vote NO on this amendment next Tuesday.

Keep this income where it belongs—where it can help support your family and make life easier for all of you.

Read this advertisement carefully and understand how you can make your vote—and your influence—count as they have never counted before.

ALFALFA EXCELLED CLOVER FOR STEERS

Alfalfa excelled clover hay as a roughage for fattening steers in a test conducted at the Wisconsin experiment station during the past winter. With 1,050-pound steers alfalfa proved superior to clover in rate of gain produced, feed requirements for gains and selling price when finished.

The steers were fed for 112 days and had an average daily ration of about twenty-seven pounds of silage, ten pounds of ear corn and six pounds of hay. The steers on the clover hay ration were allowed an average of 1.4 pounds of cottonseed meal daily, while the alfalfa-fed steers got but .86 of a pound of cottonseed per head daily. This difference was made to allow for the higher protein content of the alfalfa.

The steers on the alfalfa ration made gains of 2.20 pounds daily, while the clover ration produced gains of 1.88 pounds. On each hundred pounds of gain, alfalfa had a saving over clover of approximately 55 pounds of corn (on the shelled corn basis), 54 pounds of hay and 241 pounds of silage. The alfalfa-fed steers brought 10 cents more per hundred than the other lot when sold. The alfalfa lot made about $3 more profit per head than those fed clover, with corn at 60 cents per bushel, clover at $12 per ton and alfalfa at $19.40 per ton. The profit of the clover steers was doubtless cut down somewhat by the larger amount of expensive cottonseed charged against them.

Aside from the clover-alfalfa comparison, the experiment was interesting in showing that large steers can make gains of better than two pounds a day on ear corn, silage, hay and a limited amount of protein supplement.

Take Care of Sows Bred for Farrowing in Fall

Sows bred for fall litters are now on good pasture. A light grain ration is fed wherever the sows are not in reasonably good flesh. If they are on rape, clover or alfalfa, the grain may be of any sort. However, a quarter pound of tankage or oilmeal daily during the last month of gestation is a good investment.

It is most satisfactory to let the sows farrow at pasture, having sufficient movable houses or pens to furnish shelter for each. Both sows and litters do better than if confined to a small pen in a hog barn.

After farrowing the sow should be fed as before, increasing the ration later as may be necessary. Good pasture should be provided until snow comes—rape, alfalfa or fall rye. The greater thrift and vigor of the pigs will alone pay for the pasture. The grain it saves is clear gain.—H. C. Astby, University Farm, St. Paul.

Blue Grass Pasture Is Valuable in Fattening

Results of experiments at the South Dakota experiment station show that when pigs received all the tankage and shelled corn they wanted from the self-feeder for a period of 105 days, both in the dry lot and on blue grass pasture, there was a difference of .27 of a pound daily in the gain in favor of the blue grass pasture lot. Two other lots were fed under the same conditions but received barley as the grain ration and made a return of .17 of a pound more daily in favor of the grass pasture lot. These results indicate that blue grass pasture is very valuable in fattening pigs for market even if tankage and grains are supplied in abundance and the pig is allowed to help himself. A bulletin giving results in detail has been prepared which may be had by addressing James W. Wilson, Director Experiment Station, Brookings.

Thomas Meggison, who has practiced law in Central Lake for the past fifteen years, has decided to locate in Traverse City. He moved his office fixtures recently. His family expects to leave for Traverse City about the first of November. Mr. Meggison informs us that he will be in Central Lake at least once a week to take care of local business. His Traverse City office will be located in the State Bank building, recently occupied by Parm C. Gilbert, present circuit judge. Being located in a more central location is the reason given for his leaving Central Lake. The people of Central Lake are losing a good man and one who will be greatly missed in the community, but what is our loss will be his gain. ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Friday, October 31

Paramount presents "PETER THE GREAT," the romance of two royal lovers, is the Russian "Birth of a Nation." The story of the rise of Russia's greatest man; the man who as a boy toiled in the shipyards as a common laborer and fitted himself to be one of the greatest rulers of men the world has even known. Also an Edward Neeley comedy, "SHOULD POKER PLAYERS MARRY."

Saturday and Sunday, November 1 and 2

Tuesday, November 4

Wm. Fox presents Charles (Buck) Jones in "THE CIRCUS COWBOY," the combined thrills of the west and the big top. More romance than the west of '49, more thrills than a three-ring circus; a two fisted star in a two-fisted picture. Also a two reel Educational comedy, "EXIT CAESAR."

Wednesday, November 5

Paramount presents a Wm. DeMille production, "DON'T CALL IT LOVE," with Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Nita Naldi, Theodore Kosloff and Rod La Rocque. Two women love him—one a sweet everyday girl, the other a fascinating opera singer. Which did he choose? and was it love that decided the choice. Don't miss this deluxe drama of tangled hearts, society splendor and gorgeous love making. Also the two reel comedy, "EXIT CAESAR."

Mettus Rubingh Has High Herd and George Drenth High Cow for September

The work among the new members of the association brings the spotlight of interest to focus upon the cows whose ability has been proven rather doubtful. One aim of the association is to eliminate the unprofitable cow, because she is not worthy of the time and care that can be spent more profitably. After the cows are ready to be discarded the question arises, "Where are we to purchase better cows to replace those discarded?" or "How can we buy better cows of our friends whose cows are not better than our own?" The answer is as true as it is old: "breed them." Good cows are not for sale at any price, but good pure-bred sires, whose dams have excellent records are for sale at reasonable prices.

A movement to block and prevent (for prevention is ever so much better than a cure) the low producing type of bovine from ever gaining a foothold in Banks township and adjoining townships is under way in the form of a Jersey bull association, the bull's dam to have a record of five hundred pounds of butter fat or better.

DELECTABLE SUMMERY DISHES
For a nice occasion try this:
Coronado - Bavarian Cream—Soak two ounces of gelatin in cold water. Take one quart of ripe strawberries, crush, and mix with one pound of powdered sugar. Beat three egg whites to stiff peaks. Add the dissolved gelatin to the crushed fruit, then stir until the mixture is set. Mix lightly with the whipped cream, fill the molds and set on ice to harden. When ready to serve, dip the molds in instant hot water to unmold. Decorate with whipped cream and shrimps berries.

Scott Short Bread—Weigh two pounds of bread flour, one pound of butter and one and one-half pounds of sugar. Sift the flour and set the pan in the oven to warm slightly, stirring to expose it to the heat evenly. Cream the butter until it is waxy; add the sugar gradually, beating until the whole is well mixed. Use the hands to mix, adding the flour, squeezing and kneading until the ingredients are well-mixed. The better the mixing the finer the bread. Lay the dough on a lightly-floured molding board and press out the mixture with the hands into a sheet one-half inch thick. Do not use the rolling pin or add any more flour. Heat a sharp knife and cut into squares or oblongs, or bake in a sheet, prickling it well with a fork. Bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Cherry Betty.—Take fresh ripe cherries and well-buttered crumbs; put a layer of cherries, then of sugar and crumbs; repeat until the dish is full. Bake until the cherries are well done. Serve with a hard sauce.

Clabbered Milk.—This is a wholesome dainty which, once tried, will be often served. Set away a pan of good fresh milk with all the cream left on it, to become clabbered, or thick. Chill and serve with a sprinkling of grated maple sugar; or, if that delicacy cannot be obtained, the brown sugar will do. This is an exceedingly wholesome dish, which children, especially, should be taught to appreciate.

JERSEYS LEAD IN B. F. PRODUCTION

AUGUST AND SEPTEMBER TESTS SHOW UP THIS FACT

George Meggison's Herd Shows Highest Average for June, July and August

The first two months, August and September, of the second year's cow testing work in Charlevoix county have been completed and some interesting facts have been discovered on the monthly reports.

First, the Jerseys have been leading in the best average production of butter fat. There are only a small per cent of the cows entered on cow testing association work that are Jerseys, but they are making a record, as the following figures will indicate:

For the months of June, July and August, Geo. Meggison's 10 purebred and grade Jerseys have led the association for high average production of butter fat. In September, Walter Black's 9 grade Jerseys held the honor of highest average butter fat production, producing 34.2 pounds of butter fat and 692 pounds of milk apiece. The Orchard Bay Farm came in a close second for high butter fat average for September.

The cow having the most butter fat to her credit for the month of September, was a pure-bred Holstein, owned by the Breezy Point Farm. She produced 1360 pounds of milk containing 63.2 pounds of butter fat.

In comparing some of last year's records with this, a big difference can be seen. The difference is due largely to the care and better feeding before and after the cows freshen. In the herd of Jerseys owned by Walter Black is a 7 year old grade Jersey, that is making remarkable gains in butter fat this year over last. During the first three months she was tested last year she produced 87 pounds of butter fat, and this year during the same length of time she produced 141 pounds of butter fat, a difference of 53 pounds, and due to a better pasture and more grain from the time she freshened. The added cost was about $5.00 more for grain and alfalfa pasture. It looks like it might pay to feed the good cows a little more, and quit feeding the poor ones.

Sunday, November 2nd

10:30 a. m., pastor will preach. This service is well attended even though several of the more faithful ones are gone for the winter. Those remaining here will do the best possible service. Christ wants our work at home. Note this text and its comment:

Master, we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing; nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net. Luke v. 5.

How did our Lord deal with those men when he met them in the gray of the morning, and when, looking back on the night of their toil, they confessed that they had failed. In the first place, Christ sent them back to the very place where they had failed. Nothing in their circumstances was to be changed,—the same waters, the same boats, the same nets, they themselves the same men:

"How often in our lives have we pleaded with God in secret that He might send us back to a different kind of work than that which has engaged us! How often, like the apostle, have we besought the Lord with cries that He might remove something from us! And He has answered us as He answered His great servant, 'My grace is sufficient for thee; my strength is made perfect in weakness.'—John Hutton.

MR. MOSSINGTON'S PRIZE IS WHOPPER

Nearly Exhausted by Tussle with Huge Steel-head

Charles Mossington of this city, despite his years, is an ardent and faithful follower of the great Isank, patron saint of those who fish with rod and line.

One day last week, Sam Hamilton, standing on his dock in a contemplative mood, was aroused from his reveries, over the joys of next year's regatta banquet in the new "club-house," by a faint cry of "Sam," "Sam." Believing he was about to see the last despairing struggles of some unfortunate sinking for the third and last time, Mr. Hamilton grabbed a pike pole and rushed to the edge of the dock. There he beheld Mr. Mossington approaching the dock in a row-boat with feeble strokes and apparently in a much exhausted condition. Sam was sure there must be something wrong with the old gentleman when the latter murmured weakly, "Sam, come here quick," and, words failing him, pointed in a dazed fashion at the bottom of the boat.

Sam craned his neck over the edge of the dock and beheld the source of Mr. Mossington's heretofore unaccountable agitation, a big steel-head weighing at least eight pounds and very broad for its length. Its captor had got his strike just off the Aldrich boat house in Round Lake and the big fellow had towed him over to the island before Mossington managed to land him in the boat.

STATE ACTS TO SAVE FORESTS

Forbid Taking of Small Trees from Land with Unpaid Taxes

Farmers and landowners of Charlevoix county and other counties who each year remove evergreen and spruce trees from their property to sell at Christmas time will find their movements halted this year if their taxes are not paid in full. This declaration was made today by county treasurer H. C. Cooper upon receipt of a letter from Edgar Cochran, secretary of the state department of conservation.

The communication is addressed to all county treasurers in the state and calls attention to the law enacted in 1915 which gives county officials power to call upon the state for injunctions restraining property owners from removing any trees or natural growth which add to the value of the land if the owners are listed as delinquent taxpayers.

The letter explains action must be taken this year because of alarming decrease of trees due to removal and waste of thousands of evergreens during recent years. Mr. Cochran states a check has been made of the lands throughout the state and the major portion of properties from which the trees are being taken are lands where taxes are overdue.

SAILED THE SIESTA BACK FROM CHICAGO

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hamilton and Party Have Exciting Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hamilton, accompanied by Messrs. Bert Carey and W. E. D. Rummel, Jr., left last Thursday by train for Chicago, to sail back the 72-foot sailing yacht, Siesta, owned by Marion Haskell, from Belmont Harbor to this port, where she is to be stored for the winter by Hamilton & Son.

At Chicago, they were joined by Miss Flora Carey, who is the guest of Mr. Rummel and Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton for a few days.

Tuesday, the first day out of Chicago, high head-winds prevailed, which blew out the working jib, making it necessary to pull into Michigan City and lie there to fit out new head-sails, also giving Mrs. Hamilton an excellent opportunity to recover sufficiently from seasickness to continue the rest of the journey in real comfort.

Leaving Michigan City at 11:30 a. m., Thursday, they made Macatawa (Holland), where they spent the night. On Friday, at 11:05 a. m., they set sail for Charlevoix and without stops or mishaps, arrived here at about 5:00 p. m. Saturday, having covered, according to the log, 322 nautical miles.

STEAMER KANSAS GUTTED BY FIRE

Old Timer of Michigan Transit Line Laid Up for Good

The S. S. Kansas, oldest steamer flying the flag of the Michigan Transit company, was badly damaged by fire while tied to her dock at Manistee last Monday afternoon. Officials, unable to board the ship on Monday, would make no estimate of the loss but made an inspection trip Tuesday the results of their findings not being obtainable at this writing.

It is believed the fire started from defective wiring in the engine room. Recently new circulating pumps of an electric type had been placed in the ship and it was in the neighborhood of these that the fire was first noticed by a member of the crew.

The ship had not been in active service for the last two years, making but an occasional trip. The vessel was well known and for years made trips between northern Michigan ports.

The Manistee fire department fought the blaze which proved stubborn for more than four hours, throwing tons of water into the after hold in an effort to quench the flames. It is doubtful if the old vessel will ever be reconditioned for service again, officials said.

What was good enough for my father is not good enough for me.

FISHING SEASON STARTING

ANNUAL FALL HARVEST HAS ALREADY COMMENCED

Some Fifty Craft are Operating On the Isle Aux Galets and Dahlia Shoals

November 1st marked the official opening of the 1924 fishing season in local waters.

Test nets were put out on Saturday, October 29th and on the 30th were lifted and, a satisfactory percentage of spawn being obtained, fishing started in earnest and the first lift was made on Monday, October 31st, off Beaver Island, ten days earlier than last year's date for this event.

This is the regular fall harvest for the fishermen in this district, which comprises the coastal grounds from Frankfort on the south to Manistique on the north and the important interlying fishing centers of Charlevoix, Beaver Island, Harbor Springs, Northport and Leland.

Up until yesterday the weather has prevented the local fishermen from doing very much and those who did put out their nets had been unable to lift them. But Tuesday most of them ventured out. It is very likely that a good many nets have been lost or damaged in the storm and that this loss will aggregate considerable money. The nets are set during this part of the season in shoal water, where the fish come in from the deep water to spawn. They remain there approximately two—not to exceed three weeks. The fact of the matter is that some trout spawn earlier than others and there are what are known as early grounds and late grounds. The Isle Aux Galets and Dahlia shoals off Cross Village are early grounds and this is where most of the first fishing of the season is done.

All of the fish caught at this time are trout, the whitefish closed season, which starts the 20th of this month, not ending until the 15th of December. The nets the fishermen are now using are of 5 inch mesh and the whitefish slip through them easily.

Over fifty boats are operating for the three local companies in the district north of Charlevoix. Both Fisheries company have twenty-seven craft fishing out of the Beavers, eight out of Charlevoix, six out of Northport and five out of Leland. The Beutel Company operates three out of Charlevoix, while five boats are working out of this port for Robbins, Inc.

Harold McCann and Louis Bourisnu of the Beutel outfit, with the tugs, Liberty and Ethel S., have already made good hauls and Will Duba with the Lucille has recently joined them. This concern made shipment of some 42 boxes of fish Tuesday. Manager D. J. Eckinger is confident that the season is going to be a good one.

The Booth people have made no shipments as yet, but the catches are coming in quite up to the average and are being iced away as fast as received. Their local fleet includes Charley Cross, O'Neill & Bissell, John Nordrum, Fred Bedwin, George Abbott, J. W. Cornell, of Detroit Harbor (who brought two boats with him) and Joe Smith and Clarence Bartlett, who are working on a partnership agreement. Another craft from Marinette is hourly expected to join the Booth fleet.

Max Fralick, the two Hendricks, father and son, with two boats, James Nowland and a man from Manistee by the name of Bjorkquist are working out of here for Robbins, Inc.

STRICKEN BY DEATH IN CAR

WALTER BLACK SUCCUMBS TO SUDDEN HEART ATTACK

Topples Over in Driver's Seat While On Way Home with Wife and Friends

Death came to Walter Black, prominent farmer of Marion Center, last week with shocking suddenness and in such manner as to imperil the lives of four other people who were with him in his car, returning from the State Grange meeting at a late hour on the night of Wednesday, October 29th.

Mr. Black, driving, with Charles Withers beside him and Mrs. Black, Mrs. Withers and Mrs. George Megison on the rear seat, toppled over with heart failure at a place just north of Pine Point on the Petoskey road on the way home. The car was travelling at a speed of some thirty-five miles per hour at the time and in collapsing from his position behind the wheel the stricken man depressed the accelerator, causing the car to leap forward and zig-zag back and forth across the road in so terrifying a fashion that one of its occupants, Mrs. Withers, jumped from the rapidly moving vehicle, breaking her arm. Mr. Withers, who was totally unfamiliar with the car's driving mechanism, finally succeeded in stopping it in its mad course and the party returned with the body to Charlevoix, a young man from a neighboring farm volunteering to drive the car in.

The funeral was held at two p. m. from the Marion Center Grange hall last Sunday, Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating, with interment at Brookside.

Mr. Black was born in Scotland fifty-two years ago, on October 10, 1872, came to this country with his parents when a mere infant. He was married twenty-eight years ago to Miss Elizabeth Trimble and to this union were born three children. Mrs. Dorothy Willis of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Bert McGhan of Charlevoix and Floyd Black of this city.

Besides the widow and children, Mr. Black is survived by two brothers, Henry of Ellsworth, and Will of Charlevoix, and a sister, Mrs. Maggie Hull, of Charlevoix.

AGED BELVEDERE RESORTER DEAD

V. E. Schwab Had Been Here Fourteen Summers

According to a telegram received recently by Dr. Armstrong of this city, V. E. Schwab, who with his family has been coming to the Belvedere resort for the past 14 years, died at his home in Nashville, Tenn., last Monday morning, November 3, 1924, at 9:00 a. m.

Mr. Schwab, who was about 76 years old, had been in failing health for over a year past. He leaves three sons, George, Hugh and Felix and two daughters, Mrs. Pearl Davis and Mrs. Ben Tate, all of whom reside in the south. The daughters own cottages in the Belvedere colony.

PLAN NEW ATHLETIC BUILDING

BOARD OF EDUCATION CALLS MEETING FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

Taxpayers Will Consider Purchase of Material from Old Skating Rink

A call has been issued by the board of education of school district No. 1, city and township of Charlevoix, over the signature of its president, Mrs. Arthur Bergeon, for a meeting of the taxpayers of the district to be held in the auditorium of the high school on next Friday evening, November 7th, at eight o'clock, for the purpose of considering purchase of the material of the former skating rink and the erection therefrom of a suitable building for athletic purposes. All voters and taxpayers are requested to be present.

The need for a building of this kind is imperative, inasmuch as with the passing of the old skating rink has gone the last available building that will in any way meet the requirements of indoor high school athletics. Basketball fans particularly and the people of the city in general are familiar with the difficulties and hardships with which the players and spectators were beset last season in a building inadequately heated and with almost no facilities for taking care of the players or those who came to see them play.

It is also unnecessary to stress the value of athletics in the schools, as its place in school life has become firmly established in the American educational system. As a builder of the physical, mental and moral well-being of the student, athletics has no peer and it serves as well to maintain that spirit of co-operation and unselfish team work without which no organization of any kind can long function successfully.

The building material in question is of an excellent quality and can be purchased at a figure representing perhaps less than a quarter of its original cost. It is the desire of the board to put this proposition up to the taxpayers and, if possible, secure their consent and support in carrying it out.

It is not necessary that the new building be anything elaborate or expensive. It should be tight and storm-proof and there should be some provision for heating it. In addition to its use as a basketball court and gymnasium, it can be utilized as an indoor practice field for the football squad during days of bad weather in the fall, or possibly for indoor baseball practice and play. The latter game has become quite a feature of winter amusement in various localities, notably in Traverse City, and there has been some talk of starting an indoor league here.

The matter of the location of the building may be decided at Friday evening's meeting. In our opinion, the logical place is on the south side grounds, as a building erected on the present high school property between Mason and Clinton streets would most certainly have to be torn down in the course of a few years to make way for the new high school building.

Persons desiring flowers for cemetery decoration on Memorial Day, please get their orders in before the first of the year. Mrs. William Shields, phone 310.—Adv. 45-11.

STIFF SENTENCES METED OUT TO FOUR

Failure to Pay Fines Entails Long Jail Terms for Liquor Traffickers

Last week was a bad one for bootleggers in Charlevoix county—at least for such of these gentry as were arraigned before Judge Gilbert in circuit court for sentences.

For the judge is no respecter of persons and decidedly out of sympathy with this new profession which has been flourishing since the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment. That he has been "treating 'em rough" may be gathered from the following summary of sentences:

Bernard Newson, of Burgess, was fined $500, with costs of $200; or in default of payment to serve from seven to twelve months in the Michigan State Reformatory at Ionia. He failed to pay and was taken on last Tuesday to the penitentiary, where he will probably serve a year at hard labor.

Milton G. Wilkes, of Bay Shore, also received a fine of $500 with costs of $200. Defaulting in its payment, he was sentenced to serve from six months to twelve months at hard labor, with a recommendation of six months.

Paul Pesek, of Marion township, was not fined, but sentenced to serve from seven to twelve months at Ionia at hard labor, with a recommendation of seven months.

Joe Scop, of Boyne Falls, was fined $400 with costs of $200, to be paid to the county clerk within 24 hours after sentence. He defaulted in the payment and will serve from six to twelve months at hard labor at Ionia, with a recommendation of six months.

Scop and Pesek left last week for the penitentiary in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Fike of Boyne Falls, while Newson and Wilkes were accompanied by the sheriff to their new quarters on Tuesday.

It ought to be sufficiently clear by this time that the authorities of this county intend to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment and that the path of the violator is going to be strewn with thorns and not roses. Judge Gilbert is to be commended for the fearless and sensible course he is pursuing in handing the culprits all that the law allows.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

Mrs. Meyer Levinson Now Heads the Organization

At the annual meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary, which was held last week, the following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Levinson. Vice-president—Mrs. McMillan. Secretary—Mrs. Redpath. Treasurer—Mrs. Fessenden. Chairman of work committee—Mrs. Smith.

Chairman of benevolence committee—Mrs. Sloan.

Donations of fruit are being solicited this week and a kitchen utensil shower is planned for later in the month.

The new officers, with the superintendent of the hospital were made a committee to buy furniture for the sun parlor.

SON-IN-LAW OF H. S. HARSHA IS DEAD

M. G. Owen a Victim of Bright's Disease at Forty

Mack Gilliland Owen, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Harsha of this city, died at the home of his father, A. J. Owen, of Gadsden, Alabama, on the twenty-first of October, after a protracted illness of seven months, with Bright's disease.

Mr. Owen was born and reared in Gadsden. For many years he had been construction engineer for the Smallman-Brice Company of Birmingham, where he and his wife resided. He was forty years old at the time of his death, a member of the Methodist church, a Mason and Knight Templar, which organizations conducted the funeral ceremony. He was buried in the Owen private cemetery at Gadsden.

Mr. Owen's widow was formerly Miss Amy Harsha, who, until the time of her marriage nearly twelve years ago, lived with her parents in Charlevoix.

RED AND WHITE FIGHTS GAMELY

THOUGH OUTCLASSED, STILL UNDISMAYED

Petoskey Eleven Works Hard for 51 to 6 Victory Over Their Lighter Opponents

Outweighed and outplayed, but neither outfought nor outgamed, Coach Alldread's speedy Charlevoix high gridders succumbed to a 51 to 6 defeat at the hands of the powerful Petoskey outfit before a large crowd at the fairgrounds field in that city last Saturday afternoon.

The Red and White got the worst of a break at the opening of the game, when they lost the toss and were compelled to go into the battle, not only against the Blue and White, but a gale which blew from the west as well.

In the first few minutes of play, Cunningham, one of the greatest fullbacks known in the history of Charlevoix high, received a serious injury—a broken cheekbone, which will keep the star out for the remainder of the football season. His loss was almost indescribable, as he was the backbone of the local team.

The Charlevoix team shone in defeat far more than Petoskey's eleven in its triumph. Outweighed by nearly 20 pounds to the man, the lightest football eleven that ever represented the Charlevoix institution fought to the last ditch, climaxing their courageous battle against overwhelming odds with a touchdown (Hallett to Cooper) that meant far more to Charlevoix followers than the 51 points meant to Petoskey.

The local players realized that they were up against a team that was not to be defeated on Saturday, November 1, yet they never gave up battling for every inch of ground. Twice they held the plunging Petoskey backs for downs on the 3 yard line.

Charlevoix linemen appeared like pigmies as their frail, red-clad bodies lined up against the powerful boys in blue, but these seven, frail Charlevoix linemen had something in them that Petoskey gridders appeared to lack. That was fight.

Charlevoix will play Boyne City on the south side grounds next Saturday at 2:00 o'clock. Come out and give your team your support.

LANDSLIDE FOR COOLIDGE-DAWES

SUCH IS REPORT THAT COMES OVER WIRES

Charlevoix County Gives Its Usual Republican Majority to National and State Ticket

Charlevoix county, as well as the state of Michigan, according to all reports, polled one of the largest Republican votes at Tuesday's election in the history of the state, practically every candidate on national, state and county tickets being elected to office with overwhelming majorities.

In Charlevoix city, the largest vote ever cast is the report of election officials. The vote throughout the county was also of greater numbers than at former elections. Returns came late and were hard to obtain.

In the county there was no contest other than for the office of county treasurer. Joseph Wm. Flanders, who was second in the primary race, ran on slips for this office and defeated his opponent, Mary A. Cooper, by over 500 votes.

Meager news from outside indicate a landslide for Coolidge and Dawes, Republican candidates. In several instances states conceded to the opposition, went heavily Republican.

The vote as received in Charlevoix county follows:

Presidential Electors
23 out of 25 Precincts:
Coolidge, Rep.3210
Davis, Dem. 373
LaFollette, I. P. 356

Governor
23 out of 25 Precincts:
Groesbeck, Rep.2503
Frensdorff, Dem. 649

Lieutenant Governor
19 out of 25 Precincts:
Welsh, Rep.2590

McMillan, coroner2142
Armstrong, coroner2122
Robinson, surveyor2151
Rogers, road com.2077

County Treasurer
In the contest for this office, Joseph Wm. Flanders, running on slips, defeated Mary A. Cooper, regular candidate whose name appeared on the ballot. This is the first time when a contender for office of any kind, in a county or state election, won out by the slim route. Twenty-three out of twenty-five precincts show the following vote:

Flanders1632
Cooper2127

Vote on the Amendments
Of the three amendments voted on, but one, known as the "School Amendment" carried in the county. Both the tax amendment and reapportionment amendment lost by overwhelming figures. The vote stands as follows:

19 out of 25 precincts:
School Amendment, yes, 1609; no, 1356. Income Tax Amendment, yes, 925, no, 1827. Reapportionment Amendment, yes, 511, no, 1930.

SOIL ACIDITY GIVES LAWN TYPE CONTROL

Grass Varieties Said to Thrive On Soils of Different Composition

He who would develop a lawn of velvety smoothness must first know the quality of the soil in his yard, in order to select the proper grass varieties for the soil, according to Dr. M. M. McCool, head of the soils department at the Michigan Agricultural college.

The fact that some grasses thrive on an acid or "sour" soil, while others require conditions which are exactly the reverse as far as acidity is concerned, is responsible for the importance of adapting grass varieties to the soil type. Ordinary blue grass, sometimes spoken of as June grass, does not thrive on a soil which is very acid, requiring soils which have an appreciable amount of lime. Bent grasses, fescues and red top, on the other hand, will do well on a soil which is too acid for blue grass and clovers.

Another problem the lawn owner must face is the fact that the soil which favors blue grass is also a favorable soil for many weeds, such as dandelions, plantains, and others which cause trouble. The acid soil upon which the other group of grasses will thrive is, however, often too acid for many of the weeds.

Acid soils, of course, are corrected by applications of lime; while soils which are not acid enough for the particular purpose in mind may be made so either by the omission of lime or by adding substances such as ammonium sulphate or sulphur which will make the soil more acid.

Experiments conducted since 1856 on the famous Rothamsted Station near London, England, recently visited by Dr. McCool, show decidedly the effect of acid soils on the growth of grass varieties. Similar results have also been obtained at various stations in the United States.

Children of 29,942 Schools Now Enrolled in Movement of Service to Humanity.

The American Junior Red Cross, which was organized as a children's auxiliary during war-time especially to help the young refugees in Europe, and to exemplify in peace-time the Red Cross ideal of service, has now a membership of 5,596,663 in the schools of the United States and the insular possessions.

This Junior movement gives opportunity for the children to share in Red Cross effort parallel to that of the parent organization. Juniors are therefore identified in varying degree with the health services, disaster relief work, salvage and other suitable activities of value to the operations of the Red Cross.

It is a valiant host marching on under its "I Serve" banner in the cause of happier childhood everywhere and particularly wherever the American flag flies. The enrollment embraces 29,942 schools and 147,486 school rooms, a gain over 1923 of 5,655 schools and 22,414 school rooms. The year's gain in membership was 769,402 children, or nearly 80,000 for each month of the school year.

The educational and social values of the Junior Red Cross movement is thus evidencing the firm and cordial endorsement of school authorities. The government has added the weight of recognition by extending the Junior Red Cross in the schools for American Indian children. The American Red Cross is also planning to develop the Junior program in 600 rural schools in isolated sections.

There is no abatement of the exchange of correspondence between schools in the United States and schools in the insular possessions and foreign lands. During the year the Junior Red Cross in part supported operations in twelve European countries. It is a potent influence for the cultivation of international goodwill and its example has been the means of stimulating the formation of Junior Red Cross societies in more than thirty countries.

RED CROSS RAISES $10,000,000 IN 21 DAYS FOR RELIEF

Terrible catastrophes, such as the Japanese earthquake, prove the wisdom of the people in maintaining the American Red Cross as their national and international relief agency. The readiness of the Red Cross for duty in the greatest of emergencies was also proved by test.

The record shows: Sept. 3, President Coolidge assigns the duty of raising $5,000,000 to the American Red Cross; Sept. 4, Red Cross Chapters in over 3,500 communities given fund allotments; Sept. 12, fund totals $5,563,000; Sept. 17, fund nearly $8,000,000 and President announces formal closing of campaign; Sept. 27, fund passes $10,000,000 mark.

In 21 business days the Red Cross doubly performed the duty entrusted to it—all this while keeping a steady flow of relief supplies going out from many Pacific ports to the stricken areas in Japan. Thus was the confidence of the American people in their Red Cross justified and the wisdom of Red Cross preparedness to cope with an unprecedented relief emergency confirmed.

I. O. O. F. HONORS MICHIGAN MAN

HERBERT A. THOMPSON, GRAND SIRE, FORMER PUBLISHER OF COUNTRY WEEKLY.

ADMISSION AGE NOW 18 YEARS

Great Strides Made in Odd Fellowship—Relief Work for Past Year Nearly $8,000,000.

At the recent session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, held in Jacksonville, Fla., Michigan was made the hub of Odd Fellowship, so to speak, when Herbert A. Thompson, editor and publisher of The American Odd Fellow at Williamston, was unanimously elected as Grand Sire, the highest rank and office in the world of Odd Fellowship.

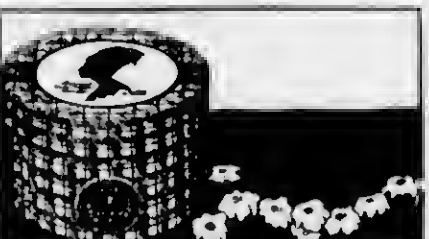

As a mark of appreciation on behalf of the Order in Michigan, a banquet was tendered to the entire body and their ladies in attendance at the session in Jacksonville. It was the finale of a dynamic drive that had been started in 1914, when Mr. Thompson first entered the Sovereign Grand Lodge as a representative of the Grand Lodge of Michigan, which he had served a year previously as Grand Master, making a record that stands out as a year of wonderful attainments.

Possibly there never was a session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge that so completely gave itself over to one grand jurisdiction as did the 1924 session to Michigan. In fact the dynamic force that had so completely won the Sovereign Grand Lodge over to the candidacy of Mr. Thompson for deputy Grand Sire at Detroit in 1922, was still felt on all sides at Jacksonville, Michigan was simply bubbling over with joy for the honors that had come to it, the first in the history of the Order, and the committee in charge of the affair "stepped on the gas" and set a pace that will be difficult for any future session to equal, which brought forth favorable comment in the press throughout the entire civilized world where Odd Fellowship exists.

In his new office Mr. Thompson has jurisdiction not only in the United States and Canada, but in Europe and all other countries where the Order has been established. He is the executive head of an organization numbering nearly 4,000,000.

As a fitting expression to its Commander-in-Chief, over ten thousand Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from Michigan and Ontario gathered in the City of Detroit, Oct. 4. Among the events was a complimentary banquet at the Hotel Statler at which more than five hundred sat down in a banquet to its honored fellow member. A monster parade was held in the evening, followed by a mass meeting at which Grand Master, John A. Wilde; Grand Patriarch, W. H. Bennett; Governor Alex Groesbeck and others made addresses of welcome, which were responded to by Grand Sire Thompson in a very eloquent and masterly manner. At the session of the Grand Lodge held at Alpena, Oct. 20 to 24, the new Grand Sire was received in a manner befitting the occasion of honoring one whose authority extends to the furthestmost parts of the earth. The reception was in every way expressive of the keen appreciation Michigan Odd Fellowship felt.

Mr. Thompson is the self-made type of man. He was born on a farm at Stockbridge, Ingham County, Michigan, on July 26, 1872. He was educated in the public schools and colleges of Michigan, and was actively engaged in educational work for six years. He then purchased The Williamston Enterprise at Williamston, Michigan, and later The American Odd Fellow, a fraternal magazine of national reputation, and has continued as the editor and publisher until the present time, his son, Theodore A. Thompson, being in active charge of the plant. During that time he became and is now actively affiliated with several financial and insurance companies, as well as other business interests. He has always taken an active part in public matters, and as a public speaker is known all over the state where his friends are legion. In politics he is a republican, and has served on the state central committee for a number of years. He has served as chairman of his congressional committee and his home county committee. He has been honored with the presidency of the International I. O. O. F. Press Association, president of the Michigan Press Association and membership in the University Press Club. He comes to his duties as Grand Sire with splendid training for a big job. He is now living in Detroit where he has recently built a home.

Mr. Thompson has been an Odd Fellow for over 23 years, and an active worker in all its branches. After serving his subordinate lodge in the several stations, he entered the Grand Lodge where he served on important committees, including the committee on laws. In 1915 he entered the Sovereign Grand Lodge as the "permanent representative" from the Michigan Grand Lodge, his associates in the Grand Lodge believing that the time was ripe for Michigan to make its bid for a Grand Sire. The Michigan Grand Lodge had confidence in his ability to make good and bring this honor to the state. He has attended each session since 1915, serving on such important committees as legislation and on several important special committees. During 1923, he was delegated as the representative of the Sovereign Grand Lodge to make a complete survey of the Order in Cuba, and upon his findings a Grand Lodge charter was granted to Cuba at the recent session in Jacksonville. In the ten years he served in the Sovereign Grand Lodge his friends became universal. Possessed of a genial personality, democratic manner, yet dignified as becomes one in his position, and having the faculty for remembering names and faces, he soon was able to greet the membership without constant introductions, which won him friends from all quarters of the world of Odd Fellowship, and who soon learned to know him, just as his brothers in Michigan know him, by his first name, "Herb."

One of the big problems that has been before the Sovereign Grand Lodge and which was solved at its recent session, was the much discussed question whether the Order should establish a juvenile branch or reduce the age of admission. After viewing both questions from all sides, the Sovereign Grand Lodge decided on reducing the age of admission to 18 years. The new law goes into effect January 1st next, and it is hoped will add thousands of young men to this splendid fraternal society.

Odd Fellowship in Michigan has made wonderful advancement in recent years, until now its membership numbers 92,500 in 550 subordinate lodges. In addition to this it has the Rebekah branch with a membership of 64,000 in 435 lodges. Further honoring its Grand Sire, it is proposed to make an intensive drive to increase the membership to 100,000. With the new field of young men to draw from it is proposed to make a special effort by designating a certain time in which to initiate classes of young men between the ages of 18 and 21.

Odd Fellowship is purely a fraternal society. While it pays to its sick and injured members, certain benefits that is by no means its predominant feature. It seeks to be a helpful factor in the civic life of every community, building up a better citizenship and rendering aid where most needed. Its social activities are leading factors in the life of the Order, and it has expended magnificent sums in lodge building alone. Its relief work for the past year reached the splendid sum of $158,570. That is Michigan's record alone. Any society that carries on a worthy work of this nature not only does credit to itself but relieves the community in which it exists from performing a duty that would naturally fall upon it.

Several years ago, the Grand Lodge recognized the necessity of making provision for those of its members who, because of adverse circumstances, would become the objects of charity; therefore an Odd Fellows Home was established at Jackson, Michigan that now has a main adult building, an orphanage and other buildings, with 190 acres of farm lands of a value of $250,000. There are 120 residents at the home, and an annual appropriation of $50,000 is made for its maintenance. An endowment fund was established a few years ago into which is paid all voluntary contributions made to the Home, and on several occasions prominent members of the Order have made provision in their wills for certain sums of money or property to go in this fund, until today it has reached the sum of $107,000.

Going into the broader field of its activities, we find that $7,808,913.47 was spent during the past year for relief work by the Order at large. But the great field of Odd Fellowship is pure fraternity, where men get in contact with one another that ripens into the finest friendships. Odd Fellowship offers the broadest field for working out many of the problems of the day, where the man or the woman can get the broader touch and wider field of activity through organized effort.

When one looks back to the foundation of Odd Fellowship in America and finds that its inception was the efforts of but five men, he is reminded that there surely must have been something more than the ordinary that built up a membership of such stupendous numbers. When we look at its splendid activities for the past years that are past, we recognize that it has an abiding place in the heart of every community to make it one of the best thought of every citizen who desires to play a part in the elevating of human character and the building up of a higher and better citizenship in almost every community in Michigan, may be one or more Odd Fellow and Rebekah Lodges. These organizations are among the great influences that make for a stable citizenship. Where an Odd Fellow Lodge exists there is peace and order is the watchword of its citizenship.

RICH CAKES

At this time of the year a nice, rich, tasty cake is better enjoyed than at any other season. The following are a few from which to choose:

Dark Fruit Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of butter, add three-fourths of a cupful of brown sugar, three-fourths cupful of raisins, seeded and cut into pieces; three-fourths of a cupful of currants, one-half cupful of citron thinly sliced and cut into strips; one-half cupful of molasses, two beaten eggs, one-half cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful each of allspice, nutmeg and lemon extract and one-fourth teaspoonful of cloves. Bake in deep pans one and one-quarter hours.

Golden Spice Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of butter, add one-half cupful of brown sugar gradually, add one beaten egg and the yolks of four eggs well beaten, one-half cupful of molasses, one-half cupful of milk, two and one-fourth cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful each of soda and cloves, one-fourth teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, a little grated lemon rind and a dash of cayenne. Bake in a moderate oven and cover with—

White Mountain Cream.—Boil together one cupful sugar and one-third cupful of boiling water, without stirring, until threads are formed when a fork is dipped into the sirup. Pour the boiling sirup over the well-beaten white of an egg, beat until thick, flavor with a tablespoonful of lemon juice.

Devil's Food Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of butter, add gradually one cupful of sugar. Beat the yolks of four eggs until thick and add another cupful of sugar to them. Combine molasses and add alternately one cupful of milk and two and one-third cupfuls of flour sifted with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two squares of melted chocolate, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and the whites of the eggs beaten stiff folded in at the last. Bake forty-five minutes in an angel pan. Cover with boiled frosting or the white mountain cream.

YOU KNOW IN ADVANCE

Dodge Brothers Dealers realize that a car's good performance is no longer the sole basis of an owner's good will.

It is equally essential that dealers give good service.

Because of this, they employ the Flat Rate Service System, which insures accurate work at a fair, predetermined price.

When you leave your car with a Dodge Brothers Dealer for service you know just what work will be done, when it will be finished and what it will cost. There are no unpleasant surprises in your bill.

An eighteen-year-old boy of Akron, Ohio, found guilty of grand larceny in connection with a series of automobile thefts, was ordered to the state reformatory in accordance with the usual procedure in such cases. When the culprit pleaded that he had "never been in any trouble before," and would stay away from pool rooms and be good if given a chance the judge considered the matter and sentenced him to attend Sunday school once a week for life. He must report to a county detective once a month, to insure obedience.

This cannot be considered a strictly legal sentence. No such punishment is provided on the statute books. But it amounts to about the same thing. If the probationary plan doesn't succeed, the released prisoner can be rounded up and shipped to the reformatory. So he will probably serve his sentence until he is of age, at least.

It may be questioned whether compulsory Sunday school will be

Have You Appendicitis And Don't Know It?

Much so-called stomach trouble is really chronic appendicitis. This can often be relieved by simple glycerine, buckthorn bark, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. Most medicines act only on lower bowel but Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, and removes all gasses and poisons. Brings out matter you never thought was in your system. Excellent for obstinate constipation. Sold at Central Drug Store.

positively beneficial. It has not been so with many other boys, driven there by stern parents. But in the present case, it should be at least better than the pool room. And there is always the chance that a boy hearing good doctrine, in a good atmosphere, may catch and profit by some of it.

A little less reformatory and more Sunday school might be a good thing for a lot of other young people, just starting on the downward road. At its worst, the Sunday school would do more reforming than the average reformatory.

THE USED CAR PROBLEM

According to a survey made by the National Automobile Dealers' Association of conditions in the used car business, a majority of dealers report the buying of used cars for less than they are selling them for. The survey was made Sept. 15, and 2,200 dealers in 18 states made reports from which the general figures were issued. It was the first time in two years that the automobile dealers were buying this class of cars for less than the selling price.

Since Jan. 1, 1924, approximately 2,750,000 used cars have been sold. The average price paid by dealers for used cars this year was $270.60 and the average price at which they resold cars was $297.88, thus netting a profit of $27.28. Two years ago, in 1922, the dealers paid an average price of $386.49 for a used car, while the average resale price was $305.98, or a loss of $70.23 per car.

These figures show strikingly the progress made in the used car end of the automobile industry, which, for years, was conducted by a majority of the dealers on a losing basis.

Seventy per cent of the new car sales of the reporting dealers involved a used car in trade, a figure somewhat lower than the last year average, due mainly to the influx of new buyers in the lower priced new car field and to dealer's reluctance to accept cars not easily salable. This has also been one of the developments of the last two years of educational work and has placed on the owner of a not readily salable car the burden of disposing of it before again appearing in the field as a new car purchaser.—Michigan Manufacturer.

PIONEER RESIDENT VISITED BY DEATHMrs. Elizabeth Newman was Nearly Seventy-nine Years Old

Mrs. Elizabeth Newman, wife of the late Harry Newman and pioneer resident of this community, died at her home on Sheridan street last Saturday, November 1st, at the advanced age of 78 years and eight months.

Mrs. Newman was born in New York state, March 24th, 1846. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Bert Crandall of Ellsworth, formerly of Charlevoix, and two sons, Ralph, of Charlevoix, and George of California. George was not able to be present at the funeral, which took place at two o'clock, Monday afternoon at the home of the deceased, Rev. Clarence W. Long officiating. Interment was in Brookside.

"500" Party

Mesdames Margaret Miller, Rose Howard and Mollie Smith were the hostesses at a 500 party held at the Miller home on Clinton street on Tuesday evening of last week. About forty ladies were present. First prizes went to Mrs. M. A. Levinson and Mrs. Lisle Shanahan, while Mrs. Sadie Faulkner and Mrs. Charles Lamphear secured the consolation. Refreshments were served at the close of a most enjoyable social affair.

THE FOOL HUNTER IS AGAIN ABROADTerrorizes Others by Idiotic Handling of His Rifle

"Wandering down the street Wednesday," said the Newberry News last week, "we were suddenly shocked to see the muzzle of a shotgun aimed directly at the sacred editorial gizzard. Hastily seeking cover, we sized up what was behind the gun. Evidently 'it,' and several companions had just arrived from 'down home,' and were ready to take over the front line trenches on short notice."

This particular specimen was in the lenient fate, hastily leaving the pages of the book of life, decided his hour had not yet struck, so he still lives. As a last minor detail, he threw open the breach of the gun, probably to see if it was loaded. It wasn't. "Occasionally the limp remnants of what was once a man are brought to town for the services of undertaker and clergy. When the likes of the above are abroad, only a split second separates any of us from eternity. But it is seldom that any of these 'ready-aimers' come back to town feet first. Not at all. WILLARD S. AUSTIN DIED OCTOBER 16THPassed Away at the Home of His Daughter in Pentwater

A letter just received from Mrs. Bert Helms, a resident of this city, now living temporarily at Pentwater, which announces the death of her father, Willard S. Austin, who lived here at one time and is well known to Charlevoix people.

Willard S. Austin was born at Grand Haven, Michigan, on February 13, 1850. He was united in marriage in 1870 to Miss Elizabeth Hoke of New York state and to them were born two children, Chauncey and Clara.

Mr. Austin was ill but a few days and passed away peacefully at 3:30 p. m., on Thursday, October 16, 1924, at the age of 74 years, 8 months, and 3 days. He leaves to mourn their loss a daughter, Mrs. Clara Helms; two grandchildren, Elmo and Ilo Helms and two great-grandchildren, Warren and Eileen Helms, all of Charlevoix.

The remains were taken to Petoskey and laid to rest in the family plot at Greenwood beside the wife and son who preceded him in death by several years. The funeral services were conducted by the Petoskey lodge of the I. O. O. F., of which he had been a member for many years.

ENJOYED A FINE VACATION TRIP NORTHDr. McMillan and Party Visited Indian River Lodge

On the afternoon of Tuesday, October 28th, a party consisting of Dr. and Mrs. F. F. McMillan, their daughters, Freda and Lila, and son, Albert, accompanied by the Misses Myrtle Guild, Lucille Belding, Francis Nowland, Genevieve Supernaw, Dorothy Gill and Norie Hebert, left for their fall vacation trip to Indian River Lodge, with side trips to Mackinac and other surrounding towns.

While at Mackinac Island, they visited the fort, registered there and were conducted through the great tower, the principle of the working system being fully explained. On their return to the lodge from Cheboygan last Saturday evening, they had an opportunity to witness one of the terrible forest fires which is now raging throughout the country.

After entertaining a number of guests from Charlevoix, the members of the party returned home Sunday evening, all reporting a wonderful trip and a fervent desire to make another such.

NOVEMBER 6 TO 14

In an effort to urge people into buying their winter clothing requirements before cold weather sets in, the manufacturers of the famous Patrick-Duluth line of Clothing have set aside the week of November 6 to 14 in Charlevoix as "Patrick Week." We are well stocked with the Patrick line, including Overcoats, Mackinaws, Flannel Shirts, Stag Shirts, Wool Pants, Sweaters, Wool Socks, Mittens, etc. We especially desire to call your attention to our line of Patrick Overcoats and Flannel Shirts. Read the following description and you will certainly become interested at once:

Patrick Overcoats

Good looks and performance distinguish the Patrick Overcoats from ordinary garments.

Patrick Overcoats are well designed, well cut, and well made. They give the warmth and wear to be expected, as the performance of "thoroughbreds."

Patrick Flannel Shirts

A regular "he-man" shirt.

Made of sturdy Flannels and genuine Broadcloths of different weights in checks, plaids and beautiful solid colors.

Handsome, comfortable and well made. Coat style, set-in sleeves, sateen faced collar. Looks and fits like made-to-measure.

Not expensive, either, wide price range, but all Patrick skilled workmanship.

We especially recommend the Patrick-Duluth line of winter wear to our customers. They wear well, are well made, stylish, and we have never had a disappointed customer. Come in and enjoy a good look at the entire line. We want you to see them whether you buy or not.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, November 8 and 9

Wm. Fox presents David Belasco's stage success, "THE GOVERNOR'S LADY." A Harry Millarde production. The picture of the hour—behind the scenes in politics. Does a woman rule the political boss? The Governor's Lady encouraged the lowly miner while he was mining in the ground. Success turned his head, but a woman's love brought him from the depths of despair to the heights of glory. Also a two reel Educational comedy, "ONE NIGHT IT RAINED."

Tuesday, November 11

Wm. Fox presents Wm. Russell in "TIMES HAS CHANGED." This is one of Wm. Russell's best pictures. Also another one of the Go-Getters in, "AND NEVER THE TRAIN SHALL MEET," starring George O'Hara and Alherta Vaughn. Don't miss the Go-Getters stories of gripping interest, romance, speed, thrills—not to mention more laughs than Ringling's Circus.

Wednesday, November 12

Paramounts presents "THE SPEED JACKS." Around the world with the Speed Jacks. A great novelty picture. Also the Go-Getters in, "NEVER THE TRAIN SHALL MEET."

SEE WAR WITH JAPS IN 5 YEARS

ARMY OFFICER WRITES SOME STARTLING FACTS

Says Brown Men Are Being Educated to Hate Americans—Will Give No Warning

A United States army officer, who has spent some time in Japan writes some startling facts to the editor of the Sacramento, Calif., Bee, asserting that this country will be at war with Japan within six years. He stresses the fact that the United States must strengthen its navy as protection, for the Japs are going to attack us, and will attack us without warning. He says:

"What I am going to say about affairs over here is perhaps well known to our navy and war departments, through our naval and military attaches here, but the war and navy departments are powerless. If they get up on their hind legs about it they are denounced by the press and country at large as fire eaters and mad militarists.

"Our press at home must regard our defenses, must demand the enlargement and improvement of our navy. I'm an army officer, but the army doesn't count for a damn as defense from a Pacific menace. If our navy goes under we're gone.

"I came over here pro-Japanese. Have been here some years and have been careful to avoid coming to erroneous, half-baked conclusions. But let me be brief.

"When the immigration bill was passed, if our battleship units were not in the Pacific we would be fighting Japan right now.

"We are to be attacked within the next five, at most six years.

"The country here is being educated to that certainty by a government-subsidized press and semi-official organs supplied with propaganda by the government. 'Der Tag' conviction is rooted in all classes.

"Back of it lies the natural hatred of the yellow men for the white of the Japanese for the American; the desire of the imperial military and naval regime to win fresh glory; of the great commercial interests of Japan not to share the trade of the Pacific with us, but to dominate it.

"The government and navy are confident the Japanese navy can defeat our navy.

"So am I—if our navy is not at once strengthened and improved.

"If our battleship strength were transferred to the Atlantic for maneuvers or any other reason tomorrow, we would be attacked tomorrow night.

"Japan will not declare war, nor seek a pretext. She is going to attack—a sudden, though delayed, attack to avenge the insult to her honor—that's the way history will read. 'Her people, to a man, would hail it as a holy war. Sentiment has reached such proportions here already.

"If our newspaper editors cannot compel the concentration of our entire fleet in the Pacific permanently, and the immediate enlargement and modernization of the fleet, no other influence can. Our government and people must be educated to it. There is no sudden danger confronting us on the Atlantic coast.

"But the impression here in Japan is that our fleet in the Pacific is going to be weakened rather than strengthened—through the dispersion of units, lack of training and funds.

"From what I have observed of the Japanese fleet in two years, it is unquestionably superior to our Pacific strength. Millions of yen were expended at target practice this year and one ship (Mutsu) made 62 per cent hits at 17,000 yards. (Their target records are not published).

"But the danger lies not in the armament, but in the psychology of the nation, eager for what is considered inevitable struggle and certain victory.

"Details are not necessary if you will accept my sane and honest statement, that, unless God intervenes, war is bound to some soon—bound to happen.

"If money for the improvement of the fleet can't be raised any other way, give it the $365,000,000 the army gets, and cut the army to 10,000. We're not going to need an army. If our fleet's smashed, we're gone.

"I wish to God our government would provide for the permanent stationing of every battleship, cruiser, destroyer, submarine and airplane carrier in the Pacific—every thing but the coast guard.

"If our whole fleet is kept there, there will be no war."

Protecting the Investment

Abraham Lincoln humorously said of a poor neighbor's assets, "He has a wife and two children which I should think were worth thirty thousand dollars to any man."

A family is indeed a golden investment and needs the same protection and care that any investment requires.

For three generations the editors of The Youth's Companion have felt the same responsibility to the families of subscribers as if those families were their own. In taking a subscription they have accepted a trust; they have done their part to see that the family investment increased in value through the development of character and taste for the good things in life.

The 52 issues of 1925 will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorials, poetry, facts and fun. Subscribe now and receive:

Ellsworth Section

Mrs. Bernie Klooster is spending a few days with relatives at Grand Rapids.

Dr. Newman, of Charlevoix, was in town on business on Monday of this week.

Oscar Smith, of East Jordan, visited his sister, Mrs. Isa Alward, on Sunday.

L. O. Isaman was at Detroit last week and drove home a new Ford touring car.

Burton Melencamp, Charlevoix county farm agent, was in town on business one day last week.

John Ruis attended the teacher's institute at Manistee on Thursday and Friday of last week.

W. A. Boss returned to his home at Detroit on Thursday, after a three week's stay on business here.

Mrs. M. R. Nelson, of Hawkins, Mich., visited friends and relatives here and at Phelps last week.

Roy Best and Miss Lenore Cummings, of Alden, were Sunday guests at the Wm. G. Patterson home.

Maxine Joan is the name of the baby daughter who arrived at the J. H. Elzinga home on Saturday afternoon of last week.

Mrs. Grace McElroy, Walter McElroy and Wm. Eastcott attended the meeting of the State Grange at Petoskey last week.

Henry Black and family attended the funeral of the former's brother, Walter, which was held at Marion Center on Sunday.

Margaret VanderArk has so far recovered from her recent illness that she returned from the Charlevoix hospital on Tuesday of this week.

Elves and Imps were out in force here on Halloween and the town looked on Saturday morning as if it had been visited during the night by a Kansas cyclone.

H. E. Dennison, field man for the Jersey Cattle Club in Michigan, spent October 22, 23 and 24 with the local cow tester, Gerald Mullett, in the work for better pure bred sires.

Harry Taylor and C. C. Fales have purchased the old Ellsworth Creamery building and are moving it on a part of the Fales lot opposite the W. A. Boss residence. They expect to open a grocery store as soon as the building is moved and necessary alterations are made.

Fred Schuler, Pere Marquette section foreman here for the past seven years, has taken a sixty day lay-off, and left on Monday for Buffalo, N. Y., where he will receive medical treatment at the Pierce Hospital.

Manley Sutton, of Alden, will have charge of the tracks here during Mr. Schuler's absence.

Woods fires have been burning briskly near Ellsworth during the past week and considerable damage has been done, especially where the fire has swept through standing timber. About one hundred and fifty acres was burned over on section 17, three miles west of town, and nearly as much was burned on adjoining land owned by F. H. Skow, E. A. Dean and Ed. Glas, one mile southwest of here. Fire fighters were also busy several days before a fire south of town on the east side of the lake could be brought under control.

High winds, coupled with extreme dry weather has made brush fires hard to stop when once started.

ANTRIM CITY

Grace Brooks started to school again Monday.

Mrs. Steel and Grace Brooks visited the school last week.

Bessie, Mary and Beatrice Baumbach started to go to school last Monday.

H. Whitney, of Eastport, was threshing in this neighborhood last week.

Mr. Stott and family were surprised Sunday when their old neighbor, Greg Sutter, daughters, Emma and Della, and son, Leonard, of Gaylord, called on them.

The box social and program held at the old Antrim City school was a success according to the size of the crowd present on Halloween night. The principal and most amusing feature was a selection rendered by the newly organized orchestra which is composed of pupils of the school.

MILES DISTRICT

Our nice weather caught gold. Dett Evans and son, Lynn, motored to Vanderbilt with a load of honey, Thursday.

Art Farmer and daughters of East Jordan, called on Mrs. Gene Miles Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Speyer, of Ellsworth, called at the A. Miles home Friday morning.

Our teacher, Miss Hammond, attended the teachers' institute at Manistee last Thursday and Friday.

This community was shocked to hear of the death of Walter Black. Our deepest sympathy is extended to the family in their bereavement.

A very large crowd attended the box social last Tuesday evening. The program was much appreciated and proceeds of the evening were $20.00.

Mr. and Mrs. Xelle Miles and children of East Jordan, and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Miles spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Kowalski, in Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Liskum, of Ranney district, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Miles attended the funeral of Walter Black at Marion Center, Sunday.

Mrs. Anna LaLonde and daughter, Agnes, motored to Charlevoix to see her daughter, Mrs. Charles Withers, who had the misfortune to break her arm.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Miles and daughter, Everil, and son, Ira, spent Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Rhuling in Chad-dock district.

ATWOOD

Awful dry.

Nellie Hastings is on the sick list. Frank S. Brown has a new Ford car.

Rev. and Mrs. Haan are entertaining friends from Muskegon, Mich.

Mrs. A. B. Sneller, who has been sick during the past five weeks, is getting better rapidly.

Ethna Joliffe, our local piano dealer, goes to Milwaukee next Thursday to purchase pianos.

Rev. Conklin and wife, pastor of the Ellsworth charge, was making pastoral visits during the past week.

Mrs. Anna VnnDecking and children of Central Lake, were visiting friends and relatives here last week.

Grandpa Parsons, who is past 90 years of age and blind, goes to election today (Tuesday) to cast his vote.

The Atwood Threshing company finished threshing last Thursday. During the threshing season not one rainy day.

We understand that Mr. Cole, who rented the J. H. Smith farm last spring, will vacate soon and John DeJong will take possession this fall.

Duluth-Potrick woolen goods will outwear any brand we have ever handled. Cost a fair price and are satisfactory as long as they last. We have what you need—call and see them. Benj. Brown.—Adv.41-1f.

ROCK ELM

Miss Jessie Metz returned from Alpena Saturday, reporting an enjoyable time at the state Rebekah convention.

Mr. Prause, who lived on the John Walker farm this summer, has moved to East Jordan, where he expects to have work through the winter.

Several from Rock Elm Grange attended the State Grange meeting at Petoskey last week. They reported a very interesting and profitable program.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Teboe and Mr. Wagner, after enjoying a week in the country, left for Detroit early Saturday morning, October 25th.

WAYS WITH FISH

A white-meat fish makes a most delicious dinner dish when boiled. Wrap in cheesecloth and simmer until tender in boiling salted water seasoned as you like, with a little parsley or onion, or use fish stock in which to cook the fish. Remove from the cloth, and serve on a hot platter with Venetian Sauce.—Melt one-fourth cupful of butter, add four tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually while stirring constantly, two cupfuls of boiling water. Bring to the boiling point, add the juice of half a lemon, one-fourth of a cupful of capers, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley and two tablespoonfuls of finely-chopped pickles. Again bring to boiling point, season with salt, and two tablespoonfuls of butter added bit by bit.

Salmon Souffle.—Season one can of salmon (flaked) with salt, paprika and two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Cook one-half cupful of soft bread crumbs with one-half cupful of milk five minutes. Add the salmon and the yolks of three eggs beaten thick, then cut and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Turn into a buttered baking dish, set into a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven. Serve with Spanish Sauce.—Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, stir until well blended, then pour on gradually one cupful of milk and one-half cupful of cream. When boiling add one-half cupful of pimientos put through a sieve, one teaspoonful of salt, a little red pepper and a dash of paprika.

Salmon may be served as salad, with lettuce, as stuffing for green peppers, creamed in thinbale cases, scrambled with eggs, in chowder, with egg sauce and boiled potatoes, or molded in fish aspic. These are but a few of the many ways to serve canned salmon.

FARMERS FIGHT CONTROL CHANGE

IMPERATIVE PRESENT SYSTEM SHOULD BE KEPT

Could Be Improved Upon Through Adoption of Ketchum Bill and
Other Measures

In her annual report, Mrs. Dora Stockman, of Lansing, state lecturer of the State Grange, given at the Petoskey annual meeting last week, presented the crisis in agriculture as one of the high lights of her message; as she predicted the swinging of the cycle back to more prosperity for the farmer. In this connection the state lecturer stated that this fall, "the farmer's dollar will buy about 79 cents worth of urban production."

Congressman Ketchum's bill, which has already passed the House and is now in the United States senate, was lauded as a help to the secretary of agriculture, as was also the McNary-Haugen bill, along the same lines. The placing of the work of marketing farm products under the department of commerce, as provided in the Winslow bill in the house and the Jones bill in the senate, were denounced as was the Capper-Williams bill, which aims to build up a market department outside of the agricultural department.

The provision for the marketing to be done by the department of commerce was scathingly denounced by the speaker as she stated "the farmers should go home and slop the hogs and let big business clean up the profits on the high prices of pork, the consumers must pay." This statement was based upon the intent of the bill, which provides that the department of agriculture teach the farmer how to produce and leave the commerce department the marketing end of the project.

Mrs. Stockman urged the State Grange to take a strong stand for placing the matter in the hands of the agriculture department and to cooperate with the National Grange, which is in the forefront of the fight to keep the handling of the farmer's affairs from the commerce department.

Still pursuing the theme of the crisis, now existing in agriculture, Mrs. Stockman quoted Willis Booth, president of the International Chamber of Commerce, as saying that industry and agriculture never have prospered side by side for very long in any country—one must dominate.

The state lecturer gave an interesting resume of the Grange work and touched upon a number of the most vital questions under its consideration. She presented the farm organization's reasons for endorsing the state income tax amendment. Other matters touched upon were the question of re-apportionment, law enforcement, the cigarette evil, the child labor amendment, Michigan Agricultural college, the Grange as a fraternal order and its outlook. Mrs. Stockman painted a pretty word picture contrasting the surroundings of the average factory worker with the beauties of nature to be found in rural communities. Stating that there is need for the "working man at the machine, and the working man with the soil," the speaker said "The Lord did not put all the good things in one place; there is more money in the city and more gold in the country."

CHEBOYGAN CHIEF OF POLICE OUSTED

Ousted by Council for Freeing Prisoner Without Court Hearing

Chief of Police William Gaynor was ousted from office last Friday for not discharging the duties of his office.

The specific charge against Gaynor was that, on June 1, Walter Wilson, of Northport, Mich., was arrested on Main street for driving a car while intoxicated, and that on June 2 Gaynor released the prisoner without a hearing.

The ouster was voted by the city council at a special meeting.

Wilson was brought before Justice King on October 22 and admitted his guilt, paying a fine of $82.50 and swearing he was released without cost to him.

Another charge preferred against Gaynor was that he failed to maintain order at the time of the storming of the boarding house where Clayton Baldwin, Klan organizer, was staying.

Gaynor was represented at the hearing by Attorney Shanahan, of Charlevoix, who asked for a further hearing of the charges at a future date, which was granted. Mayor Chapman setting December 2. Joseph Lahaie, former city marshal, was appointed to fill the vacancy until after the final hearing of the ousted chief.

KORTHS ENTERTAIN FRIENDS AT PEDRO

Ten Couples Enjoy Their Hospitality Thursday Evening

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Korth entertained a party of their friends—about ten couples—at their home on Antrim street, last Thursday evening.

Progressive Pedro was one of the chief features of the affair and prizes to the lady and gentleman winning the most and the least games were awarded, the ladies first prize falling to the lot of Mrs. Andy McCall, Jr., the gentlemen's to William Myers, while Mrs. H. L. Brady took the consolation prize and Ray Seymour fared likewise.

A delicious supper was served, each guest finding a place card and a favor at his or her plate. Members of the party dispersed to their homes at a late hour, vowing Mr. and Mrs. Korth to be royal entertainers.

Profits are not necessarily in big—ness—the annual profits of some railroads, for instance, do not equal the cost of the ink used in signing their checks.

Halloween in Charlevoix, while not characterized by the wild and woolly behavior of former times, was yet well enough observed to be interesting.

Though no serious depredations were committed, gangs of happy roisterers roamed the streets, soaping the windows, piling queer stuff up in queer places and keeping a sharp lookout for further opportunities to stir up excitement.

Somebody's Ford roadster was pushed out into Bridge street and blocked traffic at the intersection of Clinton street until removed by the patient and we imagine somewhat sympathetic authorities. Some youngsters in a Ford touring car had a great time rolling an empty oil drum between their front wheels up and down Bridge street, while a gang of assistants paced the sidewalk and set the drum in position to be picked up again whenever it got unmanageable and rolled away.

Some of our citizens came in for special attention on the part of the merry makers and their lawns and porches presented the appearance of No-Man's Land after a hard battle or the wake of a Kansas cyclone in the cold gray dawn of the morning after. One fellow from the country left his Ford outside the Charlevoix Hotel for a few moments while he went into a store. When he came out again, everything seemed all right but it wasn't. He cranked and cranked and cranked some more and finally, a broad grin of understanding stealing over his features, he reached in and untwisted the carburetor valve and presently rolled away with traces of the grin still remaining and Lizzie sputtering fitfully. The "crank" was nowhere in sight, of course.

Meanwhile the small fry were enjoying themselves at various parties arrayed in sheets, false faces and paper hats shivering delightedly at ghost and witch tales, huddling together in blissful terror at the places where the wails and groans come in and casting frightened but anticipatory glances at the doors and windows where eerie shapes might appear at most anytime.

In various gatherings of their staid but no less enthusiastic elders in several of the city's homes, bridge and "500" whiled away the evening, or perhaps Mah Jong. In short, everybody celebrated—the nature of their merrymaking being gauged according to age and tastes rather than enthusiasm.

LIBRARY NOTES

We have just received two books which will be especially interesting to the Charlevoix readers. They are: "Florida—The Land of Enchantment," by Nevil O. Winter, with its fifty-six beautiful illustrations, which comes as a gift from Mrs. Mabel Nicholls. This is one of the "See America First" series, and includes an account of the romantic history from the days of Ponce de Leon to the Florida of today.

The other book is an autographed copy of "The High Road to Honor," which comes from Mrs. Julia Scott Vrooman with a personal message to "her friends and neighbors" of Charlevoix. This novel of social and political Washington is the career of a senator, whose wife is a character.

GET RID OF THAT BACKACHE!

Charlevoix People Point the Way.

The constant aching of a bad back, The weariness, the tired feeling; Headaches, dizziness, nervousness, Distressing urinary disorders—Are often signs of failing kidneys And too serious to be neglected. Get rid of these troubles! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Hoists of people recommend Doan's. This is a Charlevoix case. You can verify it.

W. H. Guild, prop. "Fixit" shop, 109 Antrim St., says: "I had an attack of backache and kidney trouble and was so bad, I had to stop work entirely. Sharp, stabbing pains darted across my kidneys when I turned quickly. Finally I got so I could hardly get out of my chair. My kidneys acted irregularly too. Nothing seemed to give me any relief until I used Doan's Pills. One box cured me."

M. E. CHURCH

Sunday, November 9

This is a busy week. The regular official board meeting of Monday night showed encouraging reports. October gave good attendance at all the services with an increase in Sunday school and young people's work.

The Conference Home Missionary convention to be held this week at Manistee, covering the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th, has a monstrous program. It will consider Bible study and prayer, mite box work, temperance, christian stewardship and missionary education. The text-book for the year will be received. These conference workers are the backbone of our missionary enterprises. We will hope that Charlevoix auxiliary has a large delegation.

The Ladies' Literary and Sewing Club hold forth this week Thursday at the Dr. McMillan residence. The hour is 2:30. Prayer meeting, on Thursday at 7:30. Bible study from Acts, 17th. You are welcome.

The L. L. S. Club will hold a baked goods sale at the Charlevoix Hardware Co. this Saturday, November 8th.

Our Sunday notices are as follows:

10:30 a. m., missionary thank offering service. Rev. Robert Miller, Boyne City, will give the address. 12 noon, Sunday school. Lesson: "Feeding of the Five Thousand." There are volumes of instruction in these lessons.

3:00 p. m., Junior League. This is the study hour for boys and girls. 6:00 p. m., young people's meeting, Mrs. Rena Edwards, leader. Give the officers your support. Interest and attendance help greatly in making your league what you want it to be.

7:00 p. m., evening worship. This is an evangelistic service. We do not aim to entertain you, but if your soul hungers, we would point you to Him who satisfies. The pastor's subject is "The Man Who Obeyed." Search in your bible for his name.

Service at Greensky Hill at 2:30 p. m. The communion of the Lord's Supper will be administered. Indians, their families and the white people are cordially invited to be present. At our last Sunday meeting there, nineteen automobiles stood in the yard. The church was crowded to capacity.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Sunday, November 9.

Preaching service at 10:30. Sermon by pastor, theme: "Victory Out of Defeat." Pulpit editorial given last Sunday morning: on "Duty of Voting." Come and hear next Sunday's editorial on "Result of Election."

Sunday school following at 11:45, subject: "The Feeding of the Five Thousand."

The B. Y. P. U. met at Boyne City last Sunday evening. There was a large delegation from Charlevoix. We will meet at Boyne City again next Sunday at 5:30. Topic: "My Work in Life."

Midweek prayer service Wednesday evening at 7:30. The pastor, Dr. Herman Burns, will attend a conference held at Lansing, November 11th to 14th.

If you "only had the money," you'd probably do a lot of foolish things that you are unable to do now.

Supreme Court Decides Reduction of 12 Per Cent is Void

Michigan telephone users will continue to pay approximately the same rates as they are paying now and the state public utilities' reduction order of 12 per cent is void, the state supreme court ruled in an opinion handed down last week.

The court also ruled the American Telephone & Telegraph company's 4 1-2 per cent contract void. Under this contract the Michigan Bell Telephone company paid the A. T. & T. 4 1-2 per cent of its gross receipts for use of leased wires. The opinion settled a legal controversy which has been in the courts and before the state utilities commission since 1913.

The last phase of the telephone case started in August, 1922, when the company appealed from an order of the utilities commission which reduced rates on an average of 12 per cent throughout the state.

Under the opinion, the company is allowed a depreciation reserve of ten million dollars in computing its valuation, making its total forty-nine million dollars instead of thirty-nine million dollars.

Not Much Can Be Done in Athletics
Without Enthusiastic Public Support

The manager of the C. H. S. Athletic Association has submitted to the Courier for publication the following article on next Saturday's game. It contains an appeal for greater moral and financial support for the team on the part of the people of Charlevoix and the sentiments it expresses have the hearty approval of this paper.

"In order to satisfy the desire of a great number of active, enthusiastic and sport-loving people, a certain amount of community amusement is necessary.

The local school athletic association has earnestly endeavored to contribute its share in the form of clean and wholesome athletic contests.

We are now well-nigh the end of our most important season. The last football game on the Charlevoix athletic field will be played between Harbor Springs and Charlevoix teams on Saturday, November 15th, at ten a. m. This game has been arranged for several legitimate reasons, among which we here mention the following:

1. It being a game between old rivals, we know that you will be interested in seeing it and it is our impression that it is easier for you to leave your work in the morning.

2. It is the only time of that particular day (November 15th) that satisfactory officials can be present.

3. A number of our most loyal supporters wish to attend the Traverse City-Cadillac game, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

Our team is going strong and we purpose to put up a scrappy battle. We cannot boast of victories this season, but we defy anyone to contend that we are not playing good football. All who saw the Boyne City-Charlevoix contest last Saturday agree with the writer that it was nobody's game until the end. The suspense was held until the whistle blew. Many spectacular runs were made and thrilling passes and plays were put into action. It was real football.

Harbor Springs has one of the most enterprising teams in Michigan this fall. To date they have not been defeated. It is unofficially reported that they are scheduled to play with Traverse City on Thanksgiving Day in an attempt to secure the championship honors of our big district.

A larger crowd than that which witnessed the last game will be necessary in order to enable us to win and defray the expenses of our game. We charge the same admission as all neighboring schools and plan to give you as much for your money. It might be interesting for Charlevoix people to know that your school is one of the very few of its size in the state of Michigan that has an athletic association which sustains itself. We hope to continue this fine record, which is possible only if your loyal support is continued. We are depending on you.

We tell our fans to fill our stands. Be on deck at ten a. m. The game will be over before twelve noon.

FARMER MET DEATH IN A STRANGE WAY

Hit by Falling Pole When Tractor
Strikes Guy Wire

One of the linemen attached to the construction gang working out of Charlevoix for the Michigan Bell Telephone Company reports a peculiar accident that occurred recently.

George Jackson, a farmer of Grand Traverse county whose place is about four and a half miles south of Elk Rapids, was ploughing at the roadside opposite his farm last Monday with a gasoline tractor. The tractor fouled a telephone guy wire and brought the heavy pole down on his head, killing him instantly. Jackson was married and about 45 years of age.

The ladies of the M. E. church will give their annual chicken-pie supper, Wednesday, November 19th, from 5:30 p. m. until all are served. Price 50c. 46-11.

HUNTERS JAM FERRY DOCK AT MACKINAC

Extra Ferry Boat Pressed Into Strait Service

Many hunters have experienced difficulty in obtaining transportation for their cars at Mackinac City, owing to the state ferry being unable to operate on account of rough weather.

Thursday and Friday saw a big jam at Mackinac, where over 200 cars were in line, waiting for an opportunity to cross. Several loads of motorists could not secure lodging accommodations there and drove back to Petoskey to spend the night.

The state automobile ferry, City of St. Ignace, has been taken from its winter quarters at Cheboygan and placed on the Mackinac City-St. Ignace run to help care for the unusually heavy number of hunters who are crossing with their automobiles this season. More hunters than ever before at this time of the season have already crossed and during this week the usual number who go north by automobile will probably be doubled.

The deer hunting season opened Monday and will continue for twenty days.

VOTERS REJECT ORIGINAL PLAN

SCHOOL MEETING TURNS DOWN
RINK OFFER

Taxpayers Want a Permanent Building for Athletics—No
Make-shifts

A fairly good representation of the taxpayers of the school district turned out to the board meeting on Friday evening of last week at the high school building.

The result of the meeting was that the board was instructed to obtain a temporary place for the basketball team to play this year with the least possible expense.

The matter of purchasing the lumber and trusses for the old skating rink, which was the evening's main subject of discussion, was voted on and rejected, because it promised to be a comparatively expensive proposition without offering anything other than temporary relief. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that the expense of heating such a building would be excessive.

Rollie L. Lewis submitted a proposition to the effect that the board cooperate with the American Legion in the erection of a community building of which the high school students were to have the use for their games and social functions, the school district entering into contract with the Legion to pay into their building fund the sum of $1,000 per year for the term of ten years, or a total of $10,000, the remainder of the amount necessary to erect such a building to be secured by loan and subscription.

This plan did not meet with the approval of the voters and, after much discussion, the board was empowered to secure temporary quarters, as above stated, and the general opinion seemed to be that, inasmuch as within the next few years it will be necessary to build a new high school building, any permanent structure to house a gymnasium or community hall should be made a part of the new high school building, even though it were necessary to build the gymnasium part first and later build the new school building around it. Therefore, it was felt, all funds intended for this purpose should be turned into and be made a part of the new school building fund.

The W. C. T. U. will meet at the church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

RED AND WHITE IN A COMEBACK

HALLETT PROVES TO BE OUR "RED" GRANGE

One of Season's Hardest Fought Battles Shows Gain Made by Local Team

Charlevoix high school football team staged a remarkable come-back Saturday, although beaten by Boyne City, 16 to 12.

Boyne City had held Petoskey to a 6-6 tie and had also held Cadillac to a score of 14-0, a feat Petoskey was unable to accomplish, as they sank into a 44-0 defeat at the hands of Cadillac.

The game started with Hallett kicking off to Boyne and, after the ball was returned a few yards, Dunn, star half-back, broke away for a twenty yard run. This paved the way for Boyne's first touchdown, which occurred a few minutes later. Dunn also kicked goal.

Then the battle started. Charlevoix could not gain and Brown, whose punting featured, punted out of danger. In the second quarter, Boyne scored a field goal, giving them a decisive lead of ten points.

When the second half opened and Charlevoix players had heard a talk by coach Alldread, they, with this encouragement, "opened up" and outplayed their rivals in the second half, 12-6.

In this period, too, Pete Hallett got angry and showed the followers of C. H. S. just what "Red" Grange has been showing his followers: a sixty yard run through the entire Boyne outfit. Hallett, however, failed to kick goal.

Again the Red and White started a grand march towards the visitor's goal, when a pass (Hallett to Dagwell) put it across. This touchdown, under the officials' ruling, was not counted.

C. H. S., however, was not discouraged at this hard luck and soon brought the pigskin to the visitors' three yard line when Hallett carried it across. He failed to kick goal.

In the last few minutes of play, C. H. S. again threatened to score, but the final whistle blew too soon and one of the bitterest fought battles of the season was ended with the score standing, Boyne 16; C. H. S., 12.

Harbor Springs, one of the undefeated teams of the north, will play C. H. S. on the south side gridiron next Saturday morning at ten o'clock. Come out and give your team your support, as this will be the last home game of the season.

SURPRISE PARTY ON JOHN McCANN

Friends Gather at His Norwood
Home on Birthday

John H. McCann of this city was pleasantly surprised by his friends, last Sunday at his Norwood home, it being the occasion of his birthday. The surprise party consisted of Archie Livingston and A. J. Usher and their families and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hamilton—seven adults and twelve children, who with their host and hostess did full justice to the fine chicken dinner provided. Mr. McCann was the recipient of many useful and handsome presents and the best wishes of his friends for many happy returns of the day.

MICHIGAN IS BACKING TABOR

SUGGESTED AS SUCCESSOR TO DECEASED SECRETARY

President Ask Farm Organizations to Nominate Men for Secretary of Agriculture

In his attempt to choose a worthy successor to the late Henry C. Wallace for the high office of Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, President Coolidge is turning to the large national farm organizations for suggestions and advice. The president wired O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, as follows:

"Please get in touch with your state organizations and let me have your suggestions for a Secretary of Agriculture."

Immediately upon receipt of this telegram, the president of the Farm Bureau hastened to carry out the request of President Coolidge. Telegrams were dispatched to each of the 15 state farm bureau federation headquarters. Among the replies received there were more than 30 names of men suggested for this position. Occurring more frequently than others were the names of Frank O. Lowden, formerly governor of Illinois; J. R. Howard, former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Howard M. Gore, acting secretary of agriculture and governor-elect of West Virginia; L. J. Tabor, National Master of the Grange; J. W. Coverdale, former secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation and now secretary-treasurer of the Grain Marketing Company; Murray D. Lincoln, secretary of the Ohio farm bureau federation; Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, commissioner of agriculture of Massachusetts.

The election on November 4 of Howard M. Gore as governor of West Virginia apparently eliminates him as a prospective secretary of agriculture. Frank O. Lowden is not a candidate and could not serve as secretary of agriculture. This narrows the field somewhat and makes the chances better for Mr. L. J. Tabor, Master of the National Grange, who is the candidate for this position that has received the endorsement of the Michigan State Farm Bureau and the Michigan State Grange. In advising President Coolidge of their support of Mr. Tabor for this position, the officials of the Michigan State Farm Bureau indicated that they would also be favorable to either Mr. Gore or Lowden.

President Bradfute of the American farm bureau federation, in advising President Coolidge of the attitude of the several state farm bureaus, expressed himself as opposing any action which would suggest that organized agriculture is trying to dictate the choice of a successor to Secretary Wallace. In his letter to President Coolidge, Mr. Bradfute made clear the position of the farm bureau in stating the qualities that a secretary of agriculture should have and in suggesting six or seven men whom various state farm bureaus recommend as competent to fill the position. Such a stand is in keeping with the general policy of the farm bureau not to endorse or champion the individual but rather the type of man that should fill a given position.

A few years ago it would have been practically impossible for a president of the United States to have found out readily whom the farmers would favor for any important position, but now that the farmers are more fully organized they are having a voice in such important matters both state and national.

MANCERONA HAS GARAGE FIRE

Williams Building Burns with Heavy Loss. One Man is Injured

The Williams garage in Manceron was completely destroyed by fire at about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, November 9. The blaze caught from the blacksmith shop in the rear of the garage and this building was also burned.

The garage was on M-13 in the village and the owners maintained the Dodge automobile sales agency there. Four cars were destroyed. The building had a capacity of 40 cars. Insurance on the building was only $3,000 while there was $3,400 on the contents.

In helping fight the fire, Martin Klahdeisch had his left leg badly injured. Three bones in the leg were broken when a wall fell on the workman.

CHIEF HOLM GETS ESCAPED CONVICT

MAN WHO LEAPED FROM TRAIN WINDOW IS FOUND

Is Badly Cut and Bruised from Leap Into Graveled Road-Bed—Spends Day in Woods

Thursday evening, just as darkness was falling, Chief of Police Lou Holm, L. L. Thomas, City Manager, Wolf and Policeman Harter, of Petoskey, captured Adam Frencavage, 22, who leaped from the window of the sleeper car on the northbound train Thursday near Clarion. The man was being transferred from Grand Rapids to Marquette prison to serve a term of from six to fifteen years for burglary.

As the train left Clarion the man asked permission of the deputies to enter the men's dressing room on the sleeper. This was granted and he entered the room alone. The window was quickly smashed out and Frencavage leaped through.

He was not missed until the train reached Petoskey. Search was started and officers in Charlevoix, Emmet and other counties notified.

Thursday evening Charlevoix county officers phoned Chief Holm that a man answering the description of Frencavage had asked a ride from a Charlevoix man, who at once reported to the officers. The man was then reported on the road near Clarion. Chief Holm and Deputy Thomas at once started south by auto and sighted their man about three miles north of Clarion. He was walking along the railroad but left the tracks, crossing the highway and went to the Bearup shack near the road. The shack was dark and the officers were without searchlights. Deputy Thomas hurried back to Petoskey and secured several powerful search lights. He was accompanied back by City Manager Wolf and Policeman Harter.

The burglar was found in the shack and offered no resistance. He had received a bad cut over the forehead and one on the back of the head in his leap from the train and was covered with blood and dirt. He had lost his shoes in his leap for liberty. He told officers that the fall had knocked him unconscious and that he became badly chilled before regaining consciousness. He crawled into the woods and buried himself in the leaves.

Friday morning Deputy E. Jarman and Detective Harold Cendle, of Grand Rapids, took Frencavage on to Marquette prison. Frencavage's partner, Harry Eddinger, was sent to Jackson for a similar term of years. The men were caught in Los Angeles.—Petoskey Evening News.

ARMISTICE DAY IS CELEBRATED

STORES CLOSE TUESDAY FOR A SHORT TIME

Exercises Were Held at Palace Theatre in Which Many Took Part

Six years ago last Tuesday, amid the blowing of whistles and booming of guns and in a tremendous fervor of enthusiasm, we celebrated the close of the greatest war in all history.

After four long years of terrific struggle, two vast, contending armies laid down their arms and returned by various pathways to the pursuits of peace to face problems no less serious or difficult than those that had confronted them during their far-flung battle line. Much water has passed under the mill since that time and we of the world who stand here today—the captains and the kings, the tumult and the shouting having faded into the background of memory—may judge whether the results are worth the great and precious gift of human lives that was fed into the hopper of war during those memorable four years.

We might answer in the negative, were we to judge only by the economic and material aspects which a world but lately shattered by titanic strife presents to us. But there is another side to it. The changes wrought in man's mind and soul are far more important than the changing of boundary lines, the destruction of material property or a shift in the balance of power. And even here some of us are apt to shake our heads, beholding the apparent overthrow of cherished and time-honored ideals, the rise of new cults and heresies, political and religious, the growing rebellion against established authority, the prevalence of the jazz spirit, of profligacy, of waste, of license. But isn't this apparent chaos in itself, viewed as a whole and not watched through the small end of a spyglass, as it were, a real evidence of progress? Isn't it plain that people are thinking for themselves to-day and thinking harder, perhaps, than ever before in this generation? And not only thinking, but experimenting—tearing down the false fronts, probing into the machinery and trying valiantly to discover what there is to these old maxims of life and conduct that their fathers and grandfathers were content to receive and adopt without challenge. Perhaps they are doing a little too much tearing down and not enough building but; we need not fear—the constructive period will come soon and we shall then know with what we build. And the results will be well worth all that they have cost.

Yesterday in Charlevoix the anniversary of the coming of peace was observed by the closing of the stores at ten thirty a. m. until the noon hour. During this period, memorial exercises were held in the Palace Theatre in which the children of the schools and the townspeople who could find seats or standing room within the theatre took part. The program was as follows:
Song by Chorus of School Children and Audience....."America."
Explanation of The Day's Meaning.....R. L. Lewis, Commander, American Legion.
Solo.....Miss Vander Hagen.
Address on Americanism.....Rev. H. R. E. Quant.
Song by Chorus.

Mrs. F. D. Brown was a business visitor to Charlevoix, Saturday.

The L. A. S. will meet Wednesday, November 12th, with Mrs. J. N. Emery.

E. E. Richardson is some better after his recent attack of rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Whitley have moved to Charlevoix for an indefinite time.

Colon McKenzie and family were Sunday visitors at the home of their sister, Mrs. Merrill Richardson.

Dora Kirby, of Eastport, was a Sunday visitor at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ethel Kirby.

Geo. Lord was a Sunday dinner guest at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Emma Resnol, of Potoskey.

The Ladies' Aid dinner which was served at the Geo. Sarasin sale, was pronounced quite a success. Proceeds were $25.00.

Percy Empey and family were visitors last week at his parent's home here, before moving to Lansing where they expect to reside.

Bud Hull is in Potoskey this week, visiting his son, Albert and family, and also his two daughters, Mrs. Grace Broman and Mrs. Eliza Neal.

Albert Holmes and wife were callers last Sunday at the H. Pierce home, before starting Tuesday for their winter home in Port Orange, Florida.

Mrs. Boomstra and son, Wilbur Seymour, of Grand Rapids, were visitors a few days last week at Norwood. Her mother, Mrs. Haskin, returned with them to Grand Rapids for the winter.

Albert Supernaw, of Ellsworth, celebrated his 81st birthday anniversary last Sunday with a family reunion. About fifteen were present. It was also the second birthday of his little great-grandson, Buddie Hillelt.

A bounteous dinner was enjoyed, with birthday cakes and candles galore.

John McCann was pleasantly surprised last Sunday when several of his Charlevoix friends followed him out to his Norwood home (where he expected to spend the day in rest and quiet) and helped him celebrate his birthday. The usual goodies were enjoyed and all report a fine time.

Many Charlevoix Folks Have Felt That Way

Feel all out of sorts? Tired, achy, blue irritable? Back lame and stiff? It may be the story of weak kidneys!

Of toxic poisons circulating about upsetting blood and nerves.

There's a way to feel right again. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic.

Doan's are recommended by many Charlevoix people.

Mrs. Delora Cutler, 101 W. Garfield St., Charlevoix, says: "My back ached and I had pains through the small of my back. I always felt tired and weak and my kidneys acted irregularly. After using a few boxes of Doan's Pills, from Metcalf's Drug Store, I was rid of the trouble."

(Statement given May 4, 1920.)

On October 10, 1924, Mrs. Cutler said: "Doan's Pills rid me of kidney trouble in a lasting way and I am glad to confirm my former statement."

RAISING CHICKS FOR BEST EGG PRODUCERS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Arrangements must be made to raise chicks to replace the poultry flocks. Poultry are the most profitable part of the laying flock, and a well-balanced laying flock should consist of at least half pullets, which allows careful culling of the hens during the summer and fall before the pullets are matured, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Baby chicks need especially careful attention in breeding and feeding during the first weeks of their lives, which should be followed by careful and regular attention throughout their growing period. Early hatched chicks are by far the most profitable whether grown to maturity for lay or sold as poultry fash.

The brooder house and stove heater which are used for curing for chicks during the first few weeks of their lives, must be in working order before the chicks arrive. The most common style of brooding is the use of a stove brooder in a colony house, of a stove brooder in a colony house, keeping from 350 to 500 chicks in a flock in each house, and placing the houses about 150 feet apart on a good grass range. A house 10x14 feet makes a suitable colony house which can be easily moved if built on runners. Chicks brooded in the winter will do better in a larger house, about 10x20, partitioned so that one side is used for a brooder stove and the other for a cool exercising room. Wire netting should be placed in the corners of the brooder house to prevent the chicks huddling and crowding in the corners.

Chicks should not be fed for the first 36 to 48 hours, after which they should be supplied regularly four or five times daily with easily digested feed which contains little waste material. They should be fed sparingly until about the fifth day; then they can be put on full ration. An excellent feed can be made of infertile eggs taken from the incubator, boiled for 15 minutes, of chopped and mixed with dry mash of equal parts of cracker meal, bran and cornmeal, using a sufficient amount of the grain to make a dry, crumbly mixture. Middlings can be used in place of the cracker meal. Dry rolled place of the cracker meal and can be used as one feed, the other two or three feeds being the commercial chick grain.

At two weeks of age the chicks can be given a dry mash, in a hopper consisting of 4 parts by weight of rolled oats, 2 parts bran, 2 parts cornmeal, 1 part high-grade wheat scrap, 1 part middlings and 1/2 part dried buttermilk. Commercial chick feed should be fed three times daily in addition to the dry mash.

Milk is an excellent feed for chicks and should be provided either as a liquid or in the dry form to secure best growth. If liquid milk is available the dried milk can be omitted. When the chicks are one month old they should be fed a coarser or intermediate chick grain, and at about two months of age the scratch feed can be changed to equal parts of wheat and cracked corn. This should be fed two or three times a day.

Concrete Floors Avert Dampness in Quarters

Many farmers who in former years lost money in poultry raising are now making it a success, all because they are learning that clean, dry quarters for poultry keep the flocks healthy and result in larger egg production and better birds for the market.

A chicken coop with a floor that is likely to become muddy in wet weather and to become a source of dust in dry weather is not conducive to healthy poultry.

Concrete floors are now being laid in chicken coops in increasing numbers. The farmer has found that these floors save him flock in many ways by prevention of mud and dust and by checking the rat menace. Concrete floors prevent rats burrowing under the coops if the floors are surrounded by a low concrete wall about 18 inches high. And if rats do enter the coops through the doors there is no chance for them to burrow into the ground to build nests. Exclusion of rats means a great saving of eggs and young chicks.

A good, practical hen house floor is one two inches thick, made of a "rich" concrete mixture, in which three parts of sand are used to one part of portland cement. This floor should be well smoothed over with a trowel.

Before laying a concrete floor a satisfactory base should be made to give adequate provision for drainage. An eight-inch fill of coarse crushed rock or cinders makes a good base for a concrete hen house floor.

Coöperative Fund for Improving Forest Roads

Twenty-eight states in which national forests are located wholly or in part will share in the distribution during the current fiscal year of the $1,000,000 fund appropriated by Congress annually for the construction of roads and trails within the national forests in cooperation with local authorities, according to the apportionment recently approved by the chief of the forest service and the secretary of agriculture. Alaska and Porto Rico will also share in the distribution of this fund, commonly known as the Section 8 fund.

Last year 27 states shared in the federal money, Pennsylvania having been added to this year's list following the establishment of the Allegheny National fund is expended only under cooperative agreements with state and local authorities and should not be confused with other road-building funds expended upon roads and trails within the national forests.

Following are the states and the amounts each will receive: Arizona, $54,200; Arkansas, $9,732; California, $126,82; Colorado, $67,587; Idaho, $114,764; Montana, $64,886; Nevada, $17,164; New Mexico, $37,945; Oregon, $130,680; South Dakota, $7,496; Utah, $38,319; Washington, $85,741; Wyoming, $45,201. Alaska receives $43,919.

Florida, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, and Porto Rico will together share in $13,980. Alabama, Georgia, Maine, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia will together share in $35,507. The sum of $100,000 is reserved for administrative and equipment expenditures and special contingencies.

 Improved Roads *****

 There were 11,400 miles of federal aid roads built in 1922. *****

There are 430,000 miles of improved highway in the United States, while the total road mileage is 2,941,294 miles.

Because of the increased congestion in automobile traffic on the important highways, there is a growing demand for wider roads.

Good highways greatly widen the farmer's area of distribution. They enable him to go to points where better prices are obtained, and with motor transport he can do this with a great saving of time, and time means much in handling farm products.

The urge and need of good roads, supplementary to our railways, are recognized by leading public officials and the great majority of the people, and is emphasized by the fact that 85 per cent of all motor vehicles in this world are in the United States.

Many Miles of Concrete

Ten years from now, according to the law now in effect, we may expect to have 200,170 miles of completed, well-paved highways in this country. At present there are only 27,000 miles of such roads. This federal aid system calls for this work in cooperation with the states.

To the Farmers--

Reports upon which we can depend tell that there is an acute shortage of food and feed grains in Germany and other European countries.

Moreover, we hear and it is probably true, that there is a material reduction in the Canadian wheat and oat yield.

These facts can have but one effect upon grain prices in the United States, in fact, they have already had the effect of raising the price of wheat very substantially. Rye climbed 25 cents in a week, and there has been a remarkable advance in the price of all farm products.

This, it seems to us, spells prosperity for the farmer and our feeling is borne out by a nationally known economist, who says that the good old days of prosperity are back for the farmer, with increasing prosperity for farmers in all sections.

This condition means that your road and ours is going to be far smoother from now on and we want you to know that our service in time of prosperity will be just as wholeheartedly helpful as it has been in the past, and we solicit an opportunity of demonstrating.

ILLINOIS HIGHWAY MOTORCYCLE AMBULANCE

Cook County (Illinois) highway police have adopted a new method of patrolling the roads with a motorcycle which serves the highway policeman as a mount and is instantaneously converted into an ambulance in case of necessity. The side car is equipped with an adjustable end which may be lowered and permits the side car to serve as a stretcher on wheels. It is expected to prove a great boon in country accidents.

BE DELIBERATE IN CHOOSING DEALER

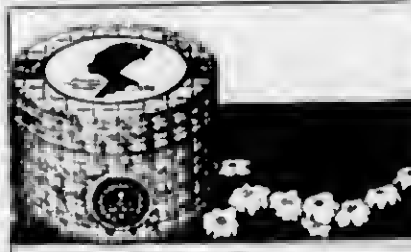

Beware of Salesman Who Is Willing to Make Big Allowance on Old Car.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering.) Every dealer promises satisfactory service—free service for the first few months or the first year with certain restrictions, but fully satisfactory service always. He will tell you that his particular brand of service is at least equal, and usually he will say it is superior, to that of his competitors. It is as much of his selling talk as stating that he has the best car for the money. So beware! Do not accept these statements but investigate by talking to present owners. A glance through the shop will often prove whether what he says is likely to be true or not, and additional information along this line may be obtained from owners. This precaution will often prevent a real awakening.

Indications of Stability. The shop is not the only angle, however, from which to judge the dealer. The condition of his showroom, whether it is neat and clean, whether his cars are shining or not, the personnel of his employees and the general atmosphere are important indications. Perfection in these little details shows business ability; shows that he is up-to-date, and consequently will give you the sort of treatment you expect. The financial status of the business is also important. If it is a thriving, flourishing going concern it is safe to assume that parts and repairs may be obtained for years to come. A healthy business usually has a good shop; the shop is the heart of the business. If money is lacking the shop is the first to feel the pinch, because it rarely makes a profit anyhow. It is merely a means to further sales.

Allowance on Old Car. Beware of the dealer who is willing to make a big allowance on your old car. If he gives you more than the car is worth he is really selling the new car at a discount. It has been proved time and time again that it is impossible for a car to be sold at less than list price and for the dealer still to make any money. If he sells the car at a discount there is a false value somewhere. A car sold for less than list price is rarely a bargain; invariably that car would be cheaper and more satisfactory if purchased at full price. A discount means a reduction in value.

The most important function of the dealer after the car has been delivered is to give service—free service for minor adjustments, perhaps, but prompt and satisfactory service whether the work be gratis or not. When a car breaks down, the seriousness of the breakdown is not truly measured by its size or importance, but by the money it costs and the time it takes to place the car in running order.

The DAIRY

GRAIN MIXTURES FOR YOUNG DAIRY CALVES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Dairy calves in their second week will begin nibbling at grain, if any is available, and by the time they are one month old will often eat a half-pound a day. Young calves relish wheat bran, which is often used in grain mixtures at the start. Corn has a desirable effect upon cattle of all ages and is available on most farms. It helps to make up for the fat removed from skim milk. Experiments have shown that cracked corn is better than ground corn for young calves. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends that bran and cracked corn be made the basis of the feed mixture whenever possible. Ground oats is a very good feed, but oats are not so generally grown as corn and usually cost more per unit of feed than corn and bran. The department recommends any of the following mixtures as suitable for young calves:

1. Three parts cracked corn and one part wheat bran.
2. Three parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran and one part ground oats.
3. Three parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran, one part ground oats and one part linseed meal.
4. Five parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran, one part ground oats and one part blood meal.
5. Oats, ground.

Some time during the third month calves will probably be eating about three pounds of grain a day. When the grain is fed with the separated milk it should never be mixed with the milk, and it is questionable whether there is any advantage in soaking or rolling.

Improved Sires Work Is Encouraged by Breeders

"The Alabama beef cattle breeders have sold all of their surplus bulls of breeding age," says K. G. Baker, extension market agent of that state, who recently visited the United States Department of Agriculture. Mr. Baker cites as one reason for this increased demand for bulls the influence of the co-operative show and sale of feeder cattle held in October at the Montgomery Union Stock Yards, in co-operation with the state extension service.

In this event nearly 1,200 head of cattle were sold at auction, many of them going to feeder buyers for rearing and fattening and more northern states. Before the sale the cattle were all publicly graded for quality, size, sex, etc., and demonstrations made to show the advantages of using pure bred bulls of good quality.

Producers received from 2 to 3 cents per pound more for their cattle under this system than they could obtain by marketing them in ungraded lots to local buyers.

Plans have been made to continue this enterprise as a permanent annual event, and it is expected to provide a much-needed stimulus to beef cattle production in that section.

Forage Crops in Summer Are of Big Importance

A good many dairymen find that when the summer months begin to show up dry pastures, they also find it the easiest way to let the cows dry up, or at least cut down the milk production. It is during these months that it is important to keep a steady supply of milk to meet a steady demand from the markets. During May and early June, the cows are doing their best, while in July the milk supply falls off.

Silage, legumes or hay feeds should be added to the scanty pastures in July and August. For that reason it is well to be planning on the crops now, to keep an even feed supply on hand all summer. Some grain should be added to the supplementary feed throughout the summer. Alfalfa, clover, soy beans, cowpeas, sudan grass, sorghums, silage, field peas, etc., can be turned into ready cash by way of the milk route to very good advantage in this manner.

Dairy Notes

It takes longer to feed a scrub cow than it does to milk her.

Ordinary shelled corn is the best supplement to skim-milk for calves.

One of the neglected opportunities in most dairies is the curdycomb. It pays to use it.

Pure bred dairy cows do not guarantee success, not even pure bred cows from high-producing ancestry.

Tuberculosis can be detected with a high degree of accuracy by the use of the tuberculin test.

There is no higher type of farming than that of keeping good dairy cows, selling the butterfat, and feeding the skim milk to good hogs, calves and chickens.

Excepting the extra time for milking, it requires no more labor to care for a cow producing 8,000 pounds of milk than it does to care for a scrub producing 4,000 pounds.

"West of the Water Tower" Human Story

A jewel of priceless value, a human story, so big, so vital, so full of pathos and laughs, human interest and dramatic suspense is the Paramount production "West of the Water Tower," starring Glenn Hunter which comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Hunter is one of the biggest players on the screen. Ernest Torrence, as his father, wins new laurels. George Fawcett, as the girl's father and May McAvoy as the girl, have made new history as far as remarkable performances on the screen are concerned. And Zazu Pitts as the other girl does a perfect bit of acting. The minor players, too, are excellent, including Charles Abbe, Anne Schaefer, Riley Hatch, Allen Baker and Jack Terry.

The story is "The Miracle Man," "Over the Hill" and "Humoresque" rolled into one. It is the tale of a tragedy, grim and real—of the rapid rise to favor and decline of Junction City's prize smart boy, portrayed as only Glenn Hunter can do it. Rollin Sturgeon directed the production which was adapted by Doris Schreider.

Brenon Films Longest and Shortest Scene Ever Made

Both the longest and the shortest single scenes ever made for a motion picture are included by Herbert Brenon in his latest production for Paramount, "The Breaking Point."

The longest scene ran eleven minutes with twelve actors going through continuous action. This is believed to be a world's record.

The shortest scene ever filmed was a close-up of a pistol flash which occupied a fraction of a second. A battle in utter darkness takes place between Matt Moore and John Mergel. The pistol flash illuminates the scene and tells the audience which of the combatants is the victor.

Nita Naldi, Patsy Ruth Miller, George Fawcett and Matt Moore have featured roles in the production, coming to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday. The picture is an adaptation by Julie Herne and Edfrid Bingham of the novel and play of the same name by Mary Roberts Rinehart.

COOLIDGE NOT COMMITTED

During the recent campaign, as in every campaign within the recollection of this generation, there was much talk of a "slush fund" and of the purchase of government favors by large contributors to campaign funds. Particularly it was asserted that industrial leaders were buying tariff favors by their donations to the Republican treasury.

There are several adequate answers to this sort of talk, though it is hardly to be assumed that very many people took it very seriously. The "slush fund" assertion has been made in every campaign for fifty years, at least, and the argument that contributors are to be repaid by tariff favors is heard every time the tariff is an issue in politics—which is in every national campaign.

There is one fact the people of the country will not lose sight of—that President Coolidge is not under any special obligations to any one man or group of men. In that respect he occupies an unusual and highly desirable position. His nomination was not attained through the influence of any one man or group of men. In truth, he was the one big asset of the Republican party and failure to nominate him would have been disastrous. Because one aggressive western senator put up a vigorous fight for the nomination, it was necessary for the friends of President Coolidge to do some organization work to see that his name or the names of men friendly to him were placed on ballots in the primaries so that the voters in the primaries would have an opportunity to indicate their choice. This done, and the rest followed as a matter of course. President Coolidge was given the support of the state of his one important opponent.

Some work was done in the primaries, and much in the general campaign, for all of which the Republican party and its leader are duly grateful, but that work was not of such a nature as to place the president under special obligations to any man or interest. He is absolutely free to serve the general welfare in making appointments, in recommending legislation and in determining whether to sign or veto bills.

There is, of course, some foundation for the assertion that the man who makes a large campaign contribution expects to get something in return, but this does not mean that he expects something which the rest of the country will not enjoy in corresponding degree. The Republican party stands for a protective tariff, and if the beet sugar producers contributed to the Republican campaign fund, they expect to profit by the preservation of their industry from destruction, but all the farmers producing beets, and the merchants, mechanics, professional men and laborers in the community which thrives on a successful beet sugar industry will share in the profits. This would be a sorry old world if no man were to be permitted to promote the general welfare of his community and his country if by so doing he also promoted his own personal interests.

President Coolidge and the Republican party will continue to support a protective tariff, not because of campaign contributions but because they believe, and have always believed and taught, that a protective tariff is for the best interests of the nation as a whole. They were continued in power with that understanding on the part of the public. To fail to maintain a protective tariff would be a breach of public faith.

President Coolidge and his party will continue to oppose paternalism, will favor tax reduction, will encourage individual enterprise and oppose bureaucracy, not because of campaign contributions, but because of long-maintained principles of government well known to the American people.

See the mischief in her eyes? Look healthy, doesn't she? Jane was one of 40 children who spent two months this summer at the Fresh Air Camp of the Ingham County Tuberculosis Association. She went there, listless, apathetic and underweight.

Before she left, she gained fifteen pounds and her pranks were the talk of the camp. She changed physically and mentally. Her pallor gave way to a healthy tan; she learned to play. There was no wonderful panacea. A dozen such camps do as much for hundreds of boys and girls every year. DANISH POSTAL CLERK HEARS SANTA WHISPER PLAN TO HELP TUBERCULOUS.

When Santa Claus was looking for someone to give the first Christmas Seal to the world, he picked on this big benevolent Nordic as a perfect personification of himself. On Christmas Eve, 1903, Elmar "Iolloell," a postal clerk in a small Danish town stopped a minute to hear Santa whisper in his ear the plan of selling penny stickers to help tuberculous children.

His enthusiasm for a plan which would benefit humanity brought him of distinction and influence to his cause. A committee was formed. All clerks agreed to work overtime to sell the seals. The people of Denmark liked the idea. It came to the United States in 1907.

PROPER FEEDING IS REQUIRED BY PIGS

For the first twenty-four hours after farrowing, the sow should have nothing to eat, but she should have plenty of clean water. On the second day she should be fed a light feed of bran in the form of this slop, and should be put on feed gradually so that the pigs will be able to take care of the milk flow. Young pigs must not get too much milk, because it tends to give them scours, one of the most serious troubles. About the only way to check this trouble is to feed the sow very lightly and sometimes it is necessary to skip a few feeds and gradually bring the sow back on full feed again.

No fixed rule can be followed in regard to the amount of feed the sow should have for the first week or ten days, says L. P. Crawford, farm herdsman at Cleghorn college, in discussing the care and attention that should be given the sow and litter during the first two weeks after farrowing. Some sows produce more milk than others. A heavy milker should be fed lightly until the pigs are large enough to take care of the milk. A poor milker should be fed more liberally in order to get the milk flow started. It is necessary that the feeder use judgment in each individual case. After the pigs are a week or ten days old the sow should be on full feed.

Pigs ten days or two weeks old are likely to develop tumps. This is caused by the pigs becoming too fat and from the lack of exercise. Often when you think you are going to have a wonderful show litter you will find them breathing hard and with a pronounced jerk in the flank. This is tumps, and we have found that this trouble can be prevented easily by forcing the young litter to take exercise. This can be accomplished by pushing the young pigs along with a broom, or carrying them some distance from the bed and allowing them to work their way back, the former method being preferable.

Assuming that all has gone well for the first week, we would then get the sow out in a lot to herself. A lot containing young rye or rape where she can get all of the green forage she will eat is preferable. She should be fed in addition a well-balanced ration, such as a mixture of corn meal, middlings and a small percent of tankage. Another good ration is corn and skim milk.

All Sheep Susceptible to Stomach Worm Pest

The stomach worm is a parasite of all breeds of sheep. Fine wool sheep are susceptible to invasion by this pest just the same as any of the mutton breeds, although they may not show the effects of a medium to light infestation as quickly. This is probably due to the fact that their bodies are more angular and a slight loss of flesh is not as noticeable, writes D. S. Bell in the Ohio Farmer.

The eggs of the stomach worm are passed from the sheep in the droppings and will hatch in a variable length of time depending upon the temperature and moisture conditions. This hatching may occur in a few hours or under adverse conditions it may require a few weeks. Dryness or freezing temperature will kill this newly hatched larvae. If it passes this stage it becomes enveloped in a chitinous sheath and in this condition is resistant to freezing and drying for long periods of time. Keeping sheep and cattle off an infested pasture for one year is usually considered necessary for those ensheathed larvae to die and render the pasture free.

Necessary Precautions to Safeguard Young Pigs

If the farrowing pen or house is thoroughly cleaned with scalding hot lye water, then disinfected, and the sow, especially her udder, is washed with strong soap soda before being placed in the farrowing house, the little pigs will start life without picking up worm eggs that cause so much loss each year. If those precautions have not been followed it will be necessary to worm the pigs later. This is worth while, but much more expensive and less satisfactory than preventing worms.

A satisfactory worm remedy consists of live grains of colomel and eight grains of santoun per 100 pounds of live weight. Keep pigs off feed for 10 to 12 hours and mix these drugs carefully and thoroughly in a thick slop. Use every possible precaution to insure each pig getting an equal share.

Film Shows Control of the Grasshopper

Government Picture Shows Methods of Fighting Insect.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Hoppers," a film dealing with grasshopper control, particularly in the western states, has just been completed by the United States Department of Agriculture. This picture shows various methods of fighting grasshoppers, including the hopper catcher, the "batloon," and large flocks of turkeys, but particular stress is laid upon the poisoned bait method of killing hoppers, and upon thorough plowing and harrowing of fields for

WINTER WEARING APPAREL

SAVE YOUR

SEED CORN

There Will Be a Great Demand for It Next Spring

The seed corn situation is again serious, even more so than last year. You recall what a high moisture content corn contained at that time and from your own experience how difficult it was to carry it through the winter in the proper condition for use in the spring.

This year the situation is even worse than last year. Nine-tenths of the crop will be harvested in a somewhat soft condition due to the very unfavorable weather conditions. If you expect to get a good crop of corn next year more than the average attention will have to be given it in the way of curing and storing. The importance of selecting your seed corn now for next year cannot be over-emphasized. Action now means dollars and cents.

The following are some seed corn facts:

Good seed corn can only be secured by thoroughly drying carefully selected ears before being exposed to the freezing weather. At this time corn contains from thirty to forty per cent moisture and is easily damaged by molding and freezing. In order to retain its vitality it must be rapidly dried so as to pass the winter with a moisture content of from twelve to fifteen per cent. Place it where it will receive free ventilation of air to dry rapidly. No two ears should touch. Corn can be stored in many different ways, but the main thing is to have good ventilation and have windows open to allow the removal of the excessive moisture.

Properly dried seed corn will not be greatly damaged by freezing, but prevention is good policy.

Dependable seed corn cannot be secured from crib. It pays to handle seed corn properly, a little work this fall in selecting, drying and storing seed corn insures better germination and a more vigorous start next spring.

More full hills and fewer spaces in the row.

A heavier and richer crop for the silo.

A heavier yield of well ripened corn.

In the corn belt they have scarcely a bushel of seed corn. They are willing to pay almost any price for northern grown seed corn. Save your seed corn. There will be a great demand for it in the spring.

FISHERMEN LOSE IN FALL STORMS

St. James Men Report Their Nets Swept Away During Blow

Fishermen of St. James and other small towns on Beaver Island are losing heavily in nets swept away during the last week's rough weather. "It is the roughest weather we have had in many falls," said one of the fishermen. "It took out nets almost as fast as we could set them. Besides the loss in nets, we also lose the fish, hitting us double hard."

The steam lumber barge Nijo of the Edwards Hinds Lumber company, Chicago, which went down Sunday night, November 2, during a heavy northeaster, is resting in 24 feet of water on Garden Island and is likely to be pounded to pieces during the fall storms which are expected. The ship got the line from her tow barge fast in her wheel during the storm while attempting to escape from St. James harbor and sprung such a heavy leak that she soon went down. The ships went into the harbor to escape a heavy wind which suddenly shifted and blew directly into the harbor. All shipping sought to escape into the open lake or around to the lee of the islands. All escaped but the Nijo.

GOOD ROADS

MICHIGAN TO BUILD MODEL FOR HIGHWAYS

The ideal section of the Lincoln highway completed recently in Lake county, Indiana, thirty miles south of Chicago, reminds the finest stretch of the transcontinental road between New York and San Francisco.

But Oakland county, Michigan, is going to provide a road between Pontiac and Detroit which in many respects will be two Lincoln highway ideal sections side by side. It is believed that when the thirty-two mile road is completed between Detroit and Pontiac, it will be the finest section of modern rural highway in the United States.

It is interesting to note how this road has developed. Only ten years ago the first short strip of concrete was laid on the road in what is now the city of Detroit. In 1915 another section was completed near the Pontiac end. Additional strips of pavement fifteen and sixteen feet wide were laid in 1916-17, the road being completed to an average width of sixteen feet in the latter year.

This new road was not a year old when it became obvious that it was far too narrow to care for the ever increasing traffic. Many fatal accidents occurred, some due to cars being crowded off the road and on to the tracks of the Interurban line, which parallels the highway for the greater part of the way.

The state and county now expect to do the job right. A right of way of 200 feet has been provided, and when the new highway is finished it will consist of two 40-foot concrete pavements separated by a 4-foot space in which the interurban line will run. High curbs will separate the interurban tracks from the two automobile highways, each of which will carry one-way traffic. Outside of each 40-foot pavement will be a shoulder of gravel 38 feet wide. These shoulders, roads in themselves, will be provided for the use of slow-moving vehicles and for parking purposes. Thus 78 feet of width will be provided for travel in each direction.

The ideal section of the Lincoln highway was designed to handle a daily traffic of 20,000 vehicles, estimated to consist of approximately 15,000 passenger cars and 5,000 trucks.

Connecticut Will Have $1,000,000 of Road Fund

Close to $1,000,000 will be allotted to Connecticut by the federal government for highway purposes during 1924 and 1925 under appropriation bills of the United States Department of Agriculture now before congress.

The state highway department has been informed by Washington officials. The money has been apportioned by states for the two-year period and approaches $130,000,000 for the next two years throughout the country.

From 1917 to 1923, inclusive, this state received from the federal government for aid in highway building a total of $2,490,821. This money was divided by years as follows:

1917	$1,030,46
1918	62,180.88
1919	399,281.11
1920	583,422.84
1921	613,345.42
1922	480,897.78
1923	320,595.52
Total	$2,490,821.00

Under the appropriations suggested for the current period, $474,820.00 is apportioned to Connecticut for 1924 and $480,898 proposed for 1925. The approximate grand total of money apportionments to this state, therefore, from 1917-1925, inclusive, reaches $3,386,579.

NEW PICTURE SHOWS VALUE OF HIGHWAYS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"The Road to Happiness," a highway film produced jointly by the Ford Motor company and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, representing the entire motor vehicle industry, and the highway education board has just been released for distribution. The picture was made with the advice and guidance of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture.

President Coolidge, who is a strong believer in the value of road improvement, appears as one of the principal characters in his proper role as President of the United States.

Taken in historic Fairfax county, Virginia, about twenty miles from Washington, the picture tells the story of the influence of improved highways upon the social, educational, religious and economic phases of life in rural communities, and the need for skilled highway engineering in bringing about the improvement.

The story has to do with the life of a farm lad reared in an old farm home on a mud road, surrounded by all the handicaps, difficulties, and discouragements attendant upon such an environment.

As the result of an essay contest for a four-year scholarship prize offered through the highway education board, the boy, who wins the contest, obtains the chance for a college education. He becomes a highway engineer and is privileged to bring about such changes in the condition of the roads of his home community that even the most skeptical opponents of road improvement are brought to a realization of the truth of the maxim which forms the moral of the picture that "we pay for improved roads whether we have them or not, and we pay less if we have them than if we have not."

The film is distributed by the Ford Motor company through its numerous branches and is available for use in schools and at public meetings without charge other than cost of transportation. Full information in regard to the film can be obtained from the Ford Motor company, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the highway education board, or the United States bureau of public roads.

Better Highways

Over $1,250,000,000 was spent in 1923 for road construction and maintenance.

The betterment of highway transportation, both the vehicle and the road, brings about an increase in property valuation.

In the last fifteen years the United States has spent between $15,000,000,000 and $20,000,000,000 for passenger automobiles and trucks. More than $8,000,000,000 has been expended for improved roads.

Starting from the zero milestone in Washington, D. C., a circle of nearly 2,500 miles can be had over the paved highways through Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Montreal, Buffalo, Detroit and Chicago.

Mrs. E. E. O'Brien of Oakland, Cal., does work almost, if not quite, unique for a woman. She is a contractor who bids on large jobs, and recently she has completed several such projects. Mrs. O'Brien has just built the Tunnel road on the boulevard known as the Skyline.

Duluth-Patrick woolen goods will outwear any brand we have ever handled. Cost a fair price and are satisfactory as long as they last. We have what you need—call and see them. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 41-tf.

CATARRAL DEAFNESS

Is often caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over forty years.

LIVESTOCK SHOW GREATEST EVER

CANADA AND U. S. WILL COM-PETE FOR HONORS

More Than 11,000 Animals and 5,000 Samples of Crops Will Be Shown

With the official announcement from Washington that President Coolidge has accepted their invitation to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary of the International Live Stock Exposition, which will be celebrated at Chicago from November 29th to December 6th, the management of that famous show is preparing for the greatest gathering of agricultural people ever brought together in the history of the basic industry.

This will be the first time that the chief executive of the United States has attended the "International," the opening of congress having always interfered, but the importance of this quarter-centennial event is deemed by President Coolidge to be sufficient to justify his absence from the capitol for a short period. Congress had previously recognized the unusualness of the occasion by authorizing, at its last session, the issuance of official medals to be awarded by the United States Department of Agriculture to the principal winners in the live stock competitions at the coming show.

The history-making character of the twenty-fifth anniversary is further emphasized by the fact that seven foreign judges from three continents will assist in designating the victors. Canadian exhibits will be out in full force, headed by a herd of prize-winning Shorthorn cattle from the Prince of Wales' Alberta ranch and entries from the agricultural college and experiment stations of the Dominion. As an added incentive for Canadians to compete in the grain and hay show classes, the provincial governments are offering cash bonuses to their farmers who are successful in the various contests.

Spurred on by the challenge of outside competition and the unusual opportunity to enjoy the honor of receiving official recognition from the president and congress, stockmen and farmers of the United States are putting the finishing touches on their finest cattle, horses, sheep and swine and selecting their choicest samples of seeds, small grains and hay in preparation for the coming struggle at Chicago, which promises to be the greatest battle for agricultural supremacy ever staged.

In addition to the special honors and trophies, over $100,000 in cash prizes will be awarded in nearly nine-hundred separate contests, $10,000 of which is offered by the Chicago Board of Trade as premiums in the grain and hay show. More than eleven thousand animals and five thousand samples of crops will compete, the number of entries received establishing new records in nearly every department of the exposition.

NEW RECORD FOR EGG PRODUCTION

Leghorns in M. A. C. Contest Pass
High Figures of Former Years

Establishing a new record for ten-bird pens east of the Rocky Mountains, White Leghorns owned by W. C. Eckard, of Paw Paw, Van Buren county, won first place in the second International Egg Laying contest, which closed last week at the Michigan Agricultural college. Mr. Eckard's ten birds produced 2,622 eggs during the 52 weeks of the test, an average of 262.2 eggs per bird.

The best previous mark for a ten-bird pen, in the section east of the Rockies, was 2,531, made at Storrs, Connecticut, in a similar egg laying contest. Second place in the M. A. C. contest went to L. F. Heasley, of Dorr, Michigan, whose ten Leghorns totalled 2,350. Eckard's second pen was only fourteen eggs behind the second place winner.

No records were broken by individuals in the contest this year, according to C. F. Ferguson, M. A. C. specialist in direct charge of the contest. Of the 1,900 birds entered in the 100 pens competing, high honors were divided at 285 eggs, for the year by a Leghorn owned by Mr. Eckard and another entered by Mr. Heasley.

White Leghorns took the first five places in the entire contest, a pen of Rhode Island Reds, entered by the Milan Matchery, of Milan, placing sixth in the contest, or first among heavy breeds. Others whose pens finished in the first ten included: Chas. Hefferan, Newage, Mich.; H. A. Keister, Bangor, Mich.; O. S. Thompson, Allen, Mich.; Circle "W" Farm, Gates Mills, Ohio; Northland Farm, Grand Rapids, and Geo. B. Ferris, Grand Rapids.

The grand total of production for the 1,000 birds was 163,065 eggs, or an average of 163 eggs per bird for all breeds. This is an increase of 3.5 eggs per hen over the contest held a year ago at M. A. C.

HORSE-DRAWN VEHICLES MUST CARRY LIGHTS

Law Should Be Strictly Enforced as Danger Is Great

Now that the days are becoming shorter, with darkness coming on at 5 o'clock, the horse-drawn vehicle on the highways is becoming a menace. Numerous complaints are being made to county officials, who state that the state law providing that lights must be carried by horse-drawn vehicles should be strictly enforced before some serious accident occurs. A number of mishaps have been very narrowly averted.

It is of utmost importance to the safety of the public that horse-drawn vehicles carry lights. The motorist driving at even a moderate rate of speed when blinded temporarily by an oncoming automobile, may drive directly upon a vehicle which does not hear a light. It is of as much interest to the man with a wagon as it is to the man with a car, that the wagon or other vehicle have a light, and that it is up to the driver of the horse to protect himself as well as protect the motorist, and the law so provides.

The state statute says it "shall be unlawful for any person to drive a horse-drawn vehicle in a village, city or on a trunk-line highway of the state from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise unless displaying in a conspicuous place on the left side of the vehicle a light that can be seen from front and rear for a distance of not less than 300 feet."

The statute provides prosecution and fine for violation of the law, which should be strictly enforced in this county hereafter.

DAIRY

CREAM DECREASES AS TEMPERATURE RISES

For many years the heating of milk to 140 or 154 degrees F. and holding it for 30 minutes has been considered proper pasteurization. Recently two sets of opinions have developed, one holding that the milk should be kept for 30 minutes at a minimum of 145 degrees F., while the other contends that it is sufficient to hold the milk for 30 minutes at a temperature of 142 to 145 degrees F. All agree that at no time should the temperature of the milk fall below 142 degrees F.

In the operation of commercial pasteurizers, it is impossible to avoid a fluctuation of less than 3 degrees. If a minimum of 145 degrees F. is maintained the milk would go as high as 148 degrees F.

The dairymaid, however, is anxious to deliver to the consumer a bottle of milk with a good layer of cream. Unfortunately the consumer uses this as his only index of high-quality milk. The University of Illinois, in Bulletin 237, has completed work upon the effect of temperature upon the creaming ability of milk. It was found that the volume of cream "decreases" when the temperature of pasteurization rises from 142 degrees F. to 145 degrees F. It is stated further, "As the temperature goes higher, the decrease in volume of cream becomes rapidly more pronounced; at 145 degrees F., it amounts to slightly more than 10 per cent by volume; at 146 degrees F., it amounts to 10.6 per cent; and at 148 degrees F., to approximately 10 per cent."

Dr. William N. Price of the Detroit Creamery company, in reporting for the pasteurization committee of the International Association of Milk and Dairy Inspectors at their last Washington meeting, recommended the heating of milk to 142 to 145 degrees F., with the absolute minimum of 142 degrees F., and holding for 30 minutes.—B. W. Fairbanks, Colorado Agricultural College.

Outline of Scrub-Sire Trial Is Instructive

An outline of the proceedings for conducting a mock trial of scrub sires has just been issued by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. This material in mimeographed form tells briefly how to organize and conduct such a trial and suggests means of making the event entertaining as well as instructive.

The outline is designed particularly for the use of county agents and extension workers who are conducting field activities in live stock improvement. While designed chiefly for dairy bulls the trial may be used for other classes of animals as well. The compilation includes a scrub-bull funeral oration, and suggestions for entertainment features.

Persons who contemplate staging such an event may obtain from the department a collection of photographs showing various scenes taken at a typical scrub-sire trial. The outline just issued has been prepared in accordance with frequent requests and supplements other literature of the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign conducted by various states and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Difficult Churning Is Remedied by "Starter"

There are several things that might cause difficult churning. The cream may not be properly ripened. It may be too rich or the temperature may not be correct. To ripen cream properly a "starter" is often used. To make the starter take from a pint to a quart of fresh, clean milk and put in a sterilized bottle. Keep it at a temperature of from 65 to 75 degrees F. till it curdles. If the curd is smooth and solid and the odor clean and pleasant it is satisfactory.

The cream should be kept sweet until ready to be ripened. Then heat it to about 70 degrees F. and add from 2 to 5 per cent of the starter. Keep near 70 degrees until it begins to thicken, the odor becomes pleasant, and the acid taste is distinct but mild. When it should be cooled to churning temperature, which is from 54 to 60 degrees in winter. Leave at this temperature from one to two hours before churning. If these directions are followed there will not be much trouble in the churning of the butter. Cream that is allowed to sour naturally in the fall and winter often makes churning difficult and the starter method is used to overcome this difficulty.

Turning Stock on Pasture

The first grass in spring is waxy; that is, it contains a very high percentage of water and a relatively small amount of nutritive matter. Such grass really does a milk cow more harm than good. She likes it; especially so if she has received no succulent feed all winter long. She likes it so well, in fact, that she often refuses to eat either hay or grain unless she has obtained a taste of the grass. This causes her to fall off in milk.

LEARNING FIRST AID OPERATIONS

Michigan Bell Co. Instructing Its Linemen

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company, through its safety department, has instituted a new feature which is likely to prove of inestimable value both to its employees and the public, especially the automobilist.

A school of first aid to the injured has been started among the employees of the various construction departments of the state's exchanges. The course in book form, comprising material for fifteen weeks of study, is placed in the hands of each employee and an instructor makes his rounds every week to the different classes to lecture on various subjects connected with the course and to answer questions.

The course covers practically the entire ground of first aid knowledge and has already been put in practice with gratifying results in the case of men who have been partially electrocuted, in automobile accidents, where a lineman was handier to find than a doctor, and in many other minor instances.

Last Tuesday evening, two of the company's representatives attached to the safety department of the state's headquarters at Detroit visited Petoskey and addressed employees of the Central Division, which comprises the territory between the lakes, extending as far south as Ludington and Saginaw and north to Cheboygan and Mackinac City.

Dress yourself in all-wool clothing and you will be comfortable in cold weather. See our line. Benj. Brown. Adv. 41-tf.

RELIABLE HOME FURNISHERS

Robert Frost sings in one of his most notable poems, "Something there is that does not love a wall." Something there is, surely. It is the love of God. Jesus had little use for walls. He drew men out of little selfish back yards and led them down the main thoroughfares as a marching brotherhood. Some church bodies in America have expressed a fear that the choice of the topic of the race question is not a wise one. They seem to feel that "it is too hot to handle." Let us thank God for the increasing number of people who realize that there is no subject under the blue dome of heaven "too hot to handle" in Christ's name and in His spirit. For we can clearly see that if the race question is regarded as too hot to handle, the result will soon be a world too hot to live in.—H. E. L.
